As we navigate our way through the COVID-19 pandemic, we have been challenged by the deep structural problems in our economy and, in particular, in our health and social care system. We must now invest in and resource a properly functioning public health system that is able to deal with the pandemic. That will require investment in find, test, trace, isolate and support systems to a level that will operate at any given time and will be able to flex to meet the needs of positive cases that we see in the community in order to build in the protections for the health system.

The structural difficulties did not start with COVID-19, but they have been cruelly exposed by it. They are a consequence of deep Tory cuts to the NHS over time. When the pandemic arrived, the devastation was worsened by the catastrophic cuts that we have all been talking about for 10 years and which, cruelly, came home to roost. Those are the same cuts that have caused workforce shortages, a lack of equipment and a crumbling health and social care system that is barely fit for purpose. We now urgently need to invest in and rebuild an effective public health system. That will require longer-term planning, transformation and longer-term funding. In that respect, I, too, am disappointed at the retraction from the commitment to longer-term planning; health, in particular, requires longer-term planning and budgeting to allow it to transform and deliver the service.

Surely the lesson of COVID is that we must endeavour to do things differently. Perhaps, for a moment, we should be more optimistic and look at where society is now as a blank canvas, where we can be creative, thoughtful and humane in the policy decisions that we make from this point and build in the lessons and the understanding of inequality that we have developed as a result of everything in recent times. Although we do not have all the money that we would like to have, surely we owe it to our communities to create a new, more equal society by addressing the deep inequalities that confront us every day and returning hope for the future to all our people, but especially our young people, who have suffered so much at this time. Austerity is not the way forward. We must now invest in our people's education, health, prosperity and well-being for the future and return that hope for the future to all of our communities and, in particular, our young people.

Mr McAleer (The Chairperson of the Committee for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): During the debate on the Supply resolution, I outlined some of the work that the Committee has undertaken throughout the year on the DAERA budget. I also articulated some of the Committee's main concerns, including the cost of EU exit and the cost to the agri-food industry of COVID-19. It is those aspects that I will focus on today. I will take the opportunity to update the Assembly on the latest financial information on the EU exit and COVID-19.

I will start by referring to the additional agri-food COVID-19 funding that DAERA bid for and was successful in obtaining. We have every reason to be very proud of the agri-food industry; it has kept operating and kept the food supply chain going seamlessly during the worst of the lockdown and in to this new phase. We have every confidence that it will continue to do that in the coming months.

We have an industry here that produces the highest-quality food, which is exported all over the world. It has also been supplying the hospitality and catering industries, and that aspect has taken the direct hit.

The DAERA Minister made a bid and received an additional £25 million for the agri-food sector, and this was with the full support of the Committee; in fact, we in the Committee held a mini-inquiry to help to inform the Minister and the Department about how the farmers and, indeed, the stakeholders wanted to see the money spent. After our quick call for evidence, we heard from a large number of farmers and rural sector groups about what was happening in their businesses and what support was needed.

There are two schemes for the distribution of the £25 million. The first, making up the bulk of the money, went to dairy, beef, sheep and potato farmers and accounts for £21.4 million. The dairy sector got up to £11 million, while the beef sector got £7 million. That scheme is closed. The Committee was clear with the Department that it wanted to see the funding targeted at those most in need and who had suffered the most loss and that it would be equitable in its distribution. Some members still have concerns about funding for beef cattle and about whether enough was given to sheep farmers. However, we are well aware that we are not out of the woods yet when it comes to the financial impact on our farmers. Further support may be needed in this financial year.

The second scheme is aimed at the ornamental horticulture sector, and it accounts for around £1.6 million. That sector produces many of our vegetables, soft fruits and garden plants. When the secondary legislation came to the AERA Committee to provide the authority for the Department to spend the money, the Committee had concerns with the requirement for those businesses to be VAT-registered. The ornamental horticulture sector has lots of small businesses, and many are not VAT-registered and, therefore, are not eligible for the scheme. I am glad to say that the Committee made strong representation to DAERA on that aspect and the requirement for VAT registration has been removed. That funding scheme was recently opened, and it closes on 15 November. Applications are now being received by DAERA.

There is residual funding from the £25 million of £3.6 million, plus there has been a reprioritisation within the Department of another £3.6 million. That funding is being held by DAERA for potential allocations of support should COVID continue to throw up challenges in the coming months. Other COVID funding has been allocated, including an additional £145,000 for environmental NGOs, and that was allocated in September.

The fishing industry has also received funding to support it through the crisis. The Committee recently wrote to the Department to get an update on that funding. We considered that update at our meeting last week and noted that, in April, £1.32 million had been paid to 171 vessels under the fishing support scheme. Under the aquaculture scheme, the vast majority of the money, around £125,000, has been paid.

There is a further scheme — the extended fishing support scheme — for trawlers and dredgers. It is a tie-up scheme. It is to support the sector to help with the continuation of depressed markets and prices for landings of fish. Under the European Maritime and Fisheries Fund (EMFF) programme, £1.3 million has been allocated, and that was launched on 5 October, with the first payments expected in December. During the period from 19 October to 27 November, 38 vessels will be tied up, and a further 23, to date, will be tied up from 16 November to 31 December.

Finally, there will be a fixed cost scheme for static fishers, with an allocation of £390,000, and the Committee will consider the SL1 on the scheme at our next meeting. We also understand that there will be a scheme for the Lough Neagh eel fishermen. It has not been launched yet, but the Committee understands that it will be funded under the EMFF, and the Minister is still considering the scheme's eligibility criteria.

The Main Estimates and Supply resolution will also show that £3.8 million of COVID funding has been allocated to waste. Most of that was to help local authorities cope with the closure of public amenity sites during lockdown, with the resulting increase in fly-tipping. A further bid of £11.4 million for the period from July to March 2021 was approved in September. That funding will help to support the additional cost of implementing social-distancing measures and ensure that staff across the council are able to fulfil crucial waste-management roles in a safe manner. The Minister of Finance announced the allocation on 24 September as part of the Executive's COVID-19 allocations of £165 million, which will see a funding injection for business, infrastructure, culture, schools and councils.

Some £2 million has been allocated by the tackling rural poverty and social isolation (TRPSI) programme to support the Department for Communities revitalisation programme.

I will now move on to the next major area of financial concern to which the Committee has recently turned its attention: the financial impact to DAERA of the preparation and delivery of EU exit at the end of the transition period. It also covers the contingency planning that DAERA is doing for the possibility of a no-deal outcome. The AERA Committee is getting regular written and oral briefings on the preparations, which, as most Members know, are essential to allow us to trade with Britain and to ensure that food can be brought in for our population. For Members who want information or details, I refer them to the Hansard report of the oral briefing that we received on 5 November from the DAERA permanent secretary and his senior team.

On the EU withdrawal Act and the protocol, DAERA is required to implement the EU official controls regulation. That includes sanitary and phytosanitary (SPS) checks on regulated goods arriving at points of entry into this jurisdiction. The preparedness work includes physical facilities, IT systems and staff training. It also requires the reprioritisation of DAERA work programme and the staff resource required to deliver official controls post transition. We know that, in connection with EU exit, DAERA has recently activated its major emergency response plan and has indicated that it will not be able to deliver a full-day service on day one after exit.

DAERA recently awarded major contracts to three companies for the new inspection facilities to be built at Larne harbour, Belfast harbour and Warrenpoint harbour. Contractors have been asked to deliver the design and build on the required facilities and the contingency arrangements.

I asked the Department about the staffing arrangements that needed to be put in place to deal with EU exit. We know that a recruitment process is ongoing, and the Department has increased its staffing capacity from 2,900 to around 3,200. It is estimated that, to operate 24/7 at Larne and Belfast, 25 vets, 75 port inspectors and 12 administration staff will be needed to undertake the required work. In addition to that, local authorities estimate that they will require some 30 additional environmental health officers, 18 plant officers and three fish officers. The Committee has been informed that most of the local authority staff are in place, but DAERA is still recruiting or redeploying staff from other business areas.

The Chief Veterinary Officer has just recruited 14 new vets, nine of whom are for the ports. He already has five in place, so that brings him to 15 of the 25 vets needed. The Committee heard welcome news from the Chief Veterinary Officer last week when he confirmed that there had been substantial and positive progress in the discussions with Queen's University and Ulster University about creating a veterinary faculty in the North. For years, many of our vets have been trained in the EU, and, unfortunately, many do not come back and continue to work overseas, which results in a brain drain. Vets are absolutely crucial in facilitating east-west trade and, indeed, maintaining the epidemiological unit of the island of Ireland. I spoke to the AERA Minister yesterday about it and wrote to the Economy Minister today for an update. It is a good news story about the possibility of having our own veterinary faculty in the North.

As I said, there is a price tag for EU exit. This year, it will cost £45 million, which includes £5 million of contingency costs. The money has come from the Treasury, and the Committee clarified that with the permanent secretary and the senior team last week. I have asked for a detailed breakdown of the costs for staffing, IT and infrastructure at the three ports of Larne, Belfast and Foyle.

Another major issue with EU exit is future funding to replace current EU funding. Members are aware that the bulk of the EU funding that comes to DAERA is paid out as direct payments to farmers. Whilst the Committee welcomes the fact that £293 million has been secured for 2020-21, it still has concerns about what will happen beyond that. The Committee is doing focused work on that aspect, and, as we start that, there will, no doubt, be a series of sessions on the future agricultural strategy, including the payment of support to farmers.

I note that the Paymaster General, Penny Mordaunt MP, wrote to the devolved Administrations on 13 July confirming the British Government's manifesto commitment to maintain the current budgets for farming and fishing for the duration of the Parliament. That confirmation is a welcome starting point. However, the Committee recently received a copy of a letter on EU funding from the Minister of Finance to the Chair of the Committee for Finance. In the letter, the Finance Minister notes that, regarding replacements for agricultural funding where a guarantee has been received from the British Government, there are concerns about how elements of the funding for that guarantee have been calculated and that it may lead to a cut in support for rural communities. The Committee has asked DAERA for clarity on that.

The Committee has also expressed concerns about replacement funding for rural development. Currently, funding derives largely from CAP pillar II. Earlier in the year, we discussed with officials the resources and capital budgets that had been set aside for the rural development programme. The Committee noted that it is intended that the replacement for EU funding for rural development will come from the Shared Prosperity Fund. The fact that there has been very little progress or clarity on the UK Shared Prosperity Fund has been raised here today, and I raised it during Question Time with the Finance Minister a number of weeks ago.

Stakeholders from rural communities indicated to DAERA that, prior to the COVID-19 crisis, they had already begun work on a new rural development policy framework, which is welcome. When I spoke informally to the Minister yesterday, he said that there would be a consultation on the new rural policy in the very near future, and we all look forward to that.

Clarity on the Shared Prosperity Fund is long overdue, but I am hopeful that the Committee will wish to examine that aspect in detail in the near future. That is all that I want to say.

Mr Catney: I thank the Department and the staff for the work that has gone into developing the Budget. I thank the Minister for coming to the Assembly, answering our questions and providing clarity on a wide range of points. I also thank him for all his help when the all-party group on fair banking was being set up in response to COVID-19. That will be used more and needed more in the future.

I agree with the Minister that MLAs treat this debate as an opportunity to highlight projects in their area for which they would like funding. I am as guilty as any: dare I mention Maze/Long Kesh? Really, this is not the stage at which to do that. I welcome his commitment to a review of the budgetary process as it will give help and clear direction on how best to input into the process. There have been delays, but, as this is such important work, I hope that the Minister will commit to making sure that there are no further delays.

I also welcome the Minister's continued work on trying to get flexibility in budgetary exchange. Given COVID and all the talk about Brexit in the last few days, it is vital that flexibility is put into our Budget so that we can deal with pressures that do not conform to a financial year. We all agree that giving back unspent money should be avoided at all costs, and I know that the Minister has the support of the Committee on that.

On the Budget itself, I hope that recent announcements on housing associations will help them to access FTC. For a long time, the lack of use of that function has been staggering, and I hope that a credible option is now available. Continual monitoring of the available COVID-related funds is needed. New announcements are welcome, but, as the Minister is aware, there are still those without support.

Continuous pressure must be put on the Treasury to solidify its commitment to meet Brexit costs.

The burden on our economy, on our agriculture sector and on our trade will be difficult enough. We will not front the bill for a Tory vanity project.

In the last debate, Minister, you made a point of monitoring the increase in the capital budget for the Department for Infrastructure and, specifically, the £15 million for Northern Ireland Water. I appreciate your point, but I am sure that you are well aware that that is far less than what is required to save our water and sewerage infrastructure. Northern Ireland Water has been to each council area describing how developments will have to be put on hold because of the issues. I hope that you will sit down with the Minister for Infrastructure as a matter of urgency to discuss what can be done.

Going forward to the next Budget, we have a number of issues that are already apparent. First, we need an announcement from the Treasury to kick off the process that is pushing any consultation period on the new Budget into the festive season. That is not ideal, and I hope that the Minister will continue to push the Treasury. We also know that a £350 million hole has been left by the New Decade, New Approach funding, which will need to be found from somewhere. Consultation with Departments must start as early as possible so that pressure can be identified and sensible decisions made. Ultimately, work must continue on a fiscal commission to give greater scrutiny into and expertise on our budgetary process. Maybe then some of the projects that we develop can begin to be checked off rather than gather dust in a report somewhere.

I sit on the Finance Committee, and the onus is on us to come forward with solutions. I thank the Minister and the Department for listening to the solutions that we try to bring forward. It is not always about scrutiny; it is about trying to help and bring forward solutions to get us to where we want to be.

Mr O'Dowd: Unfortunately, I do not think that I will have my remarks finished before the 1.00 pm break, but I will try my best to assist in moving the debate on.

I welcome the opportunity to speak on the Budget Bill. As I have said in the House before, while it is welcome that we have a Finance Minister, an Executive and an Assembly in place, our Budget Bill is unique in many ways, as we are not here today discussing a taxation policy or revenue policies; rather, we are divvying up what is, ungraciously, in my opinion, called the block grant, plus our rates and a few other earnings, among our Departments to spend in the year ahead. As an Executive, an Assembly and a society, we have to reach the stage where we have politically matured to the point where we have a Budget Bill that is based on taxation and other matters and fiscal powers, because that is where the real decisions are made.

If anyone watched 'The View' last Thursday night, they will have heard the paediatric consultant from the Royal Victoria Hospital talking about child poverty, which was quite horrific. She talked about how children on the wards stuffed toast down their nappies because they did not know when they would get their next feed at home and how children ate bowls upon bowls of cereal because they knew that, when they went home, they would not get any more food. What has brought that about? I cannot judge each case, but poverty has brought that about. What creates poverty? Poverty is not a natural phenomenon. Poverty is created because policies, legislation and decisions have been made that ensure that trends continue. In our society, down through the decades, you can pinpoint where the trends of poverty have existed and which communities those trends exist in. There is a higher level of poverty in the Catholic community but not exclusively. There is poverty in working-class communities across this society. As an Executive, an Assembly and a society, if we want to tackle that, we should not look towards charity or food banks. Look towards policy and legislation, and redirect much-needed funds towards ensuring that we do not have children stuffing toast into their nappies to bring home with them because they do not know when they will be fed again. That is what Budgets have to be about, and that is what our Executive and our legislation have to be about. We have to eradicate poverty, and we have to give communities that have been left behind for decades, if not centuries, an opportunity to create the change that is needed.

There are ways of doing that, as I have said. Education is one of them; in fact, education is key to it. Education is key to eradicating poverty in our society. Let us make sure that we invest in our education system and that we have the community infrastructure in place to ensure that there is a strong sense of community in our society. Let us make sure that the Executive have the spending power to redirect the extra resources into those communities. I recall, as Education Minister, redirecting millions of pounds away from some schools to others to tackle educational underachievement and poverty. Quite rightly, I was challenged. We were in austere times, and I was taking money off schools that were surviving and giving it to others to make sure that they had a leg-up. Those are the difficult choices that have to be made.

Mr Deputy Speaker, I am conscious of the time. I think I have another five minutes, if that is OK. I am just waiting for the break.

That brings me on to Mr Frew's commentary. It is understandable that the debate has entered the realm of COVID, which dominates everything. The economic impact of COVID has been as devastating, in many ways, as the health impact, setting it aside, of course, that over 1,000 people have died of COVID-19, many more have been ill and many more will face the consequences of that illness for a long time. I listened with interest, when I was in my room, to Mr Frew's commentary on this. I was not sure whether I was listening to a resignation speech from the DUP or to the continued feud between him and his party leader in relation to the role of the Executive. We have COVID-19 deniers, and now, to add to that list, we have Executive deniers. Five parties in the Chamber are members of the Executive, and it is right and proper that MLAs hold the Executive to account. That is our function; that is what we are here for. However, if I was of Mr Frew's belief that the Executive have been criminal, have led to killing people and are involved in wanton vandalism against businesses, I would sit in that corner, not on a party Bench. I would get up, leave that party and sit in that corner over there. If someone solemnly believes those statements about the Executive, they have to act on it.

Mr Frew: Will the Member give way?

Mr O'Dowd: I will.

Mr Frew: Does the Member recognise that even members of the very Executive that he talks about have spoken in those terms? Even this morning, the First Minister, from this very Bench, spoke of the impact on businesses. This is not an issue in-house; it is the Assembly performing its function, using its power to hold the Executive to account. That is our job. When will the party opposite realise that its function is to challenge, not to be led like some troop through the Lobbies?

Mr O'Dowd: At no stage have I heard the First Minister refer to the Executive as being criminal, killing people or doing wanton vandalism: never. I have not heard the First Minister say, "Who is going to save us from this Executive?"

There are mixed views in the business community around what the Executive should do next. I have listened to different views in my constituency and on the air waves about what should happen next. I have met businesspeople who are angry and frustrated with the Executive. The majority of businesspeople whom I have met want the Executive to take a leading role in tackling COVID-19, to protect themselves, their families and their loved ones, but in the recognition that, on the other side of this, we have to have an economy. At the start of the pandemic, many businesses were grateful and thankful for the interventions of the Executive — the Finance Minister in particular — and the funds that were distributed. What is clearly breeding frustration in the business community at this stage is this: three weeks into the current lockdown, many of the businesses affected have not received the financial interventions that they were promised, not by the Finance Minister but by the Economy Minister. I have concerns about the record and role of the Economy Minister, even if there was not COVID-19, because there has been —

Mr Deputy Speaker (Mr Beggs): Excuse me. I ask the Member to clarify whether he will have finished his speech in a couple of minutes. If not, we will bring him back in after the break.

Mr O'Dowd: I think that I will have to come back in after the break.

1.00 pm

There has been dithering from the Economy Minister throughout the process. She has had one eye on Westminster and one eye on what happens in the Assembly. She needs to have both eyes on our local economy to ensure that our business community is supported. I will end there for now.

Mr Deputy Speaker (Mr Beggs): The Business Committee has arranged to meet at 1.00 pm. I therefore propose, by leave of the Assembly, to suspend the sitting until 2.00 pm. The first item of business when we return will be questions to the Minister of Finance. We will return to this debate at 3.30 pm, when the next scheduled Member to speak will be Mr O'Dowd resuming his speech.

The debate stood suspended.

The sitting was suspended at 1.01 pm.

On resuming (Mr Principal Deputy Speaker [Mr Stalford] in the Chair) —

2.00 pm

Oral Answers to Questions

Finance

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Questions 2, in the name of Alex Easton, and 11, in the name of John Blair, have been grouped.

RHI Inquiry: Recommendations

1. Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the work of the Executive Subcommittee on Reform following the RHI Inquiry, on the implementation of the renewable heat incentive (RHI) inquiry report recommendations. (AQO 1053/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): In line with the NDNA commitment, the Executive subcommittee on reform was established to consider the recommendations of the RHI report in full and to oversee their implementation. The subcommittee met for the first time in July 2020 and was scheduled to meet again on 5 November. That meeting was postponed and will be rearranged in the coming weeks.

The report's recommendations have been brigaded under seven key themes, and at the next meeting the subcommittee will hear from each theme lead. The leads will outline the significant work that has already been done and present for approval an action plan detailing the work ahead. The Executive subcommittee plans to bring a full report on the actions taken and proposed for each recommendation to the full Executive and Assembly before the Christmas recess.

Ms Armstrong: Can the Minister provide an update on the independent panel set up to examine the role of civil servants in the RHI scheme, and on the independent panel that is to be established to investigate breaches of the ministerial code?

Mr Murphy: With regard to the panel's work to look into the disciplinary process, some of those cases have been concluded, some have been stayed, either due to legal action or ill health, and some are ongoing, with their time frames to be confirmed. I am limited in what I can say about that process because there is ongoing litigation that seeks to challenge it. As I said, four cases have been heard and concluded, four have been stayed, either due to legal action or ill health, and two are ongoing. Legal correspondence has been received in respect of one of those cases. Therefore, as I said, I am very limited in what I can say in relation to them. Nonetheless, I would like to see them concluded as quickly as possible. I hope that whatever legal issues are involved are resolved as quickly as possible to bring this chapter to a close.

Mr McGuigan: Can the Minister provide an update on the RHI scheme itself as per commitments in the New Decade, New Approach agreement?

Mr Murphy: There was a commitment to bring the RHI scheme to a close. Of course, that is the responsibility of the Department for the Economy. I know that the Minister for the Economy has brought discussion of the issue to the Executive on a number of occasions. Like, I am sure, many other Ministers, I share an ambition to see the scheme closed. Of course, there are outstanding issues to be addressed as a consequence of that, and I look forward to hearing the Economy Minister's propositions for them.

Dr Aiken: I thank the Minister for his answers so far. Can he update the House on whether the delay in the founding of the RHI committee and its work has led to the delay in recruitment to senior positions, such as head of the Civil Service? I understand that, at the moment, we are also still waiting for new permanent secretaries to be appointed or to go through the process for Justice, Education and Economy.

Mr Murphy: No, there is no relationship between the two issues at all.

Mr O'Toole: Further to his answers about the Executive subcommittee and panel meetings, can the Minister confirm whether any discussion or consideration has been given to underpinning any of the reforms in legislation? Thus far, the Executive are insistent that reforms should go through via codes and guidance. Can the Minister also tell the House whether any members of his party referred themselves to the Commissioner for Standards in relation to business assistance schemes?

Mr Murphy: First, it is not a matter of the Executive's being insistent: the work informing the RHI subcommittee was conducted by the five parties over a long period, in which the Member's party was a participant. The recommendations that the Executive and their subcommittee are following through come from that area of work, in which the Member's party was a participant. If the Member is advocating a different approach with regard to legislation now, that is a departure from what his party had agreed all along on the matter.

I have no idea whether anyone has been referred, or has referred themselves, to the Commissioner for Standards.

COVID-19: Centrally Held Funding

2. Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the COVID-19-related funding being held centrally. (AQO 1054/17-22)

11. Mr Blair asked the Minister of Finance what financial reserves are available to fund future economic interventions needed as a result of changes to the public health regulations. (AQO 1063/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Following the October monitoring round, the Executive held £100.6 million in reserve. Last Thursday, 5 November, the Executive were informed by Treasury that we would receive an additional £400 million.

COVID-19 continues to present many challenges, and the Executive will consider how to best use that £500 million for targeted support in the coming weeks and months.

In addition, the following funding is also held centrally: £0.4 million is being held for transfer to the Department for Transport in England for the ferry operator scheme; £6 million is being held pending the finalisation of the bus, coach and taxi support scheme; £22.9 million is being held for further sectoral support and for any unforeseen PPE requirements; and £60 million is being held pending the Department for the Economy's development of COVID restrictions business support measures.

Mr Easton: I thank the Minister for his answer. Does the Minister agree that it is vital that all funding is not held centrally and that it gets out to the Departments, especially Health and Finance, so that we can tackle the COVID-19 pandemic? Can the Minister also tell us what he is doing to ensure that none of that money gets handed back to the Treasury?

Mr Murphy: Some £600 million was ring-fenced for Health and held for a time — probably since the end of the summer and into early autumn — and Health was assessing how much of that it could spend. It has come back to the Executive in the last number of weeks to say that it will spend, roughly, £524 million of that. That left an additional amount of money, then, to go into a central pot for the Executive. All of that money was allocated in the last week or two, with £100 million being held in reserve in case further interventions were necessary; the Executive considered that prudent, and it was my recommendation to them. We learned only last Thursday that we have an additional £400 million. I am partly drifting into today's debate on the Budget Bill, but we have been getting a drip feed of allocations, which we are trying to respond to. If we had had a full sense of the entire £2.8 billion at the start of the year, it would have allowed us to plan much better, but we have been on a drip feed.

The greatest sin of all is not spending some of the money. Of course, there will be a challenge ahead. We learned only last Thursday that we have an additional amount of money. We were holding some back. Along with some of the other areas that I have outlined, that amounts to roughly £0.5 billion that we need to spend in the time ahead. I want to see schemes brought forward, money on the ground as quickly as we can possibly get it there, and that money being directed where it is needed. Of course, as I said, Health has already taken a share of the money, which it has said that it needs for the rest of the financial year.

Mr Blair: I thank the Minister for his answer. Can the Minister provide an update on whether there is likely to be increased borrowing powers for the Northern Ireland Executive to try to tackle COVID-19 and to assist in recovery measures?

Mr Murphy: I think that the first priority will be to spend the money that we have. As I said, we were operating, until last Thursday morning, on the basis that we had set aside an additional £100 million to look at unforeseen circumstances in the rest of the financial year and that has now been bumped up to almost £0.5 billion. The priority will be to spend that. We have, along with Scotland and Wales, been pressing the Treasury for, in principle, flexibilities around borrowing, carry over, the conversion of capital to resource — all those issues. We have not yet had confirmation of any agreement on all that. However, I think that the Executive's priority will be to spend the money that we have and to look for, in principle, flexibilities around a range of other matters.

Mr Allister: To know that there is £0.5 billion at the centre is discomfiting in one sense for many businesses that are on their uppers and have not been able to access money.

However, more specifically, the businesses that were closed down three weeks ago, and which were expecting to open again this week, were promised money. I am sure that I am not the only MLA to be in receipt of multiple representations from such businesses, which ask the simple question, "Where is it?". So, on their behalf, I ask, "Where is it?".

Mr Murphy: My Department is responsible for rolling out the Land and Property Services (LPS) scheme. The issue over the last number of weeks has been the fact that, in earlier schemes, the entirety of businesses were getting support, which is when we were operating off the LPS database. When it is restricted to hospitality that means that a differentiation has to be provided, and that requires additional data from other sources, such as council environmental health sources, to differentiate between what is a shop as in retail and what is a shop as in a hairdresser, beauty salon or various cafes and other aspects of that. That is how they are characterised by LPS, and that has added another layer of difficulty. As of this morning, £7.84 million has been allocated from the scheme to over 2,290 businesses. The money is being rolled out. That is not happening as fast as I want it to happen, but it is going out. I am told that there have been over 11,300 applications and that those are being worked through as quickly as possible.

Mr McGlone: Can the Minister provide an update on how centrally held COVID-related funding will be utilised to specifically increase support for the hospitality sector in the run-up to the Christmas period?

Mr Murphy: A number of schemes have been put forward. As I said, my Department received £35 million for the scheme that I just talked about, and that is to get money on the ground for hospitality and people in close-contact services who have business premises, because it is based on the property model. Sixty million pounds is being held centrally for Economy to roll out schemes for other people in close-contact services and other hospitality support. I look forward to seeing the details of that and early applications for it. Of course, given the discussions that we are currently having and the possibility of an extension to the restrictions, the Executive will consider and act very quickly to get further support to anyone who has been affected by the restrictions.

Victims' Pension

3. Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the discussions he has had with HM Treasury regarding funding for the victims' pension. (AQO 1055/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My engagement in the case has been with the NIO, because, in my view and in line with the statement of funding policy, it is for the Department that has constructed the policy to deal with funding in the first instance. I and other Ministers have raised that issue with the Secretary of State on a number of occasions and will continue to do so. A request was recently made to the Secretary of State by the First Minister and deputy First Minister to meet with him, alongside myself and the Justice Minister, to discuss the matter. He has yet to agree to a meeting. However, I am determined to pursue the necessary funding.

Mr Lyttle: I thank the Minister for his update. It is a moral stain on the history of Ireland that those innocent people, who suffered the most heinous injuries and injustice, have waited a lifetime for the victims' pension. Indeed, many have died and are dying waiting for it. I welcome the commitment given by the Justice Minister to administer the scheme. When will the Finance Minister meet the UK Government to secure the funding necessary to deliver that unacceptably overdue assistance for victims?

Mr Murphy: As I said in my original answer, we have requested a meeting with the Secretary of State. It was the Northern Ireland Office that created the policy. It differed and departed from the agreement that the parties had reached at Stormont House. Under its rules and statement of funding policy, those who create the policy and legislate for it are responsible for funding it. We have been trying to have a discussion with the Secretary of State. Even though the request came from the First Minister and the deputy First Minister, alongside myself and the Minister of Justice, we have yet to secure such a meeting, but we will continue to pursue that.

Ms Dillon: As you have already outlined, Minister, the British Government, by their own rules, say that, if you create a policy, you must pay for it. As Mr Lyttle outlined, the victims have waited far too long. Can you ask, when you have that meeting, the NIO and, indeed, the British Secretary of State to meet the victims' groups? They have all requested meetings with him, and yet, to date, he has not responded to them.

Mr Murphy: What the Member outlines is another extension of the unsatisfactory nature of the way that the scheme has been developed and taken forward by the Northern Ireland Office. I was part of the discussions at Stormont House to reach an agreement on that. Those were not easily done, and the agreement required a lot of accommodation by all five parties. The fact that the British Government unilaterally took off in their own direction and substantially changed that agreement is unsatisfactory. Their handling of it since they did that has compounded not only the political problems that they have created for all the parties in the Executive but the problems for the victims. I hope that they address all those issues in the very near future.

Mr Nesbitt: The Minister will be aware that three months ago, in August, the Executive appointed the Department of Justice to run the scheme. Has his Department had any indication from the Department of Justice on the resource requirements, the business plan or any other preparatory work for running the scheme?

2.15 pm

Mr Murphy: No, not as yet. My understanding is that work on the costings is ongoing. There has been a huge variation in some of the public expression of what the costings might be, but we have had no detail on that. The absence of a discussion with the Northern Ireland Office in the middle of all this is not assisting in the development of that process.

Spending Flexibilities

4. Mr Catney asked the Minister of Finance what update he has received from HM Treasury on his requested spending flexibilities. (AQO 1056/17-22)

Mr Murphy: I have been pressing the Treasury to agree to a suite of Budget flexibilities for the Executive, specifically, the ability to switch from capital to resource; a loosening of restrictions on how much the Executive can carry forward from one year to the next; and for a pragmatic approach to budget overspends.

With the Finance Ministers from the other devolved Administrations, I raised that issue again with the Treasury on 21 October. The Treasury is still considering the request, and I will continue to press for a positive outcome.

Mr Catney: I thank the Minister for his answer. What I was really trying to get at was the specific amount that you want to carry over and in which Departments.

Mr Murphy: We are yet to come to the end of the budgetary phase. We have to go through another monitoring round in January in terms of reallocation, so it is really later in the year when you realise that.

What we and the Finance Ministers in Scotland and Wales want to establish is the principle that we have a small percentage of the Budget that can be carried over and that that be extended. We may not need to use it all. We may have the ability to spend out everything that we require, although, with the additional COVID allocations this year, that will be a challenge. With the experience of COVID, that will be a challenge for departmental spending, but it is about establishing in principle those conditions that allow us to carry over.

We have not as yet identified which Departments may need that or how much they may need.

Mr Sheehan: Will the Minister give an update on the establishment of a fiscal commission that would consider the Executive's ability to raise revenue for public services?

Mr Murphy: Work on a fiscal commission and a fiscal council, which was part of the New Decade, New Approach (NDNA) commitments, had been slowed as a consequence of the overall Executive response to COVID. That work continues, and I hope to be able to bring a paper to the Executive in the very near future with propositions for a fiscal commission.

Mr Butler: Will the Minister outline any Northern Ireland-specific conversations that he has had with the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on specific asks, and any commonalities with the other devolved regions?

Mr Murphy: We will have specific asks for the Treasury. We have been raising the issue of payments to cover the protocol for Brexit, the loss of funding here as a consequence of leaving the European Union, and the replacement of all that. Those are specific to here.

We have common positions with Scotland and Wales on a lot of these issues, and we have quite a lot of dialogue with the Welsh and Scottish Finance Ministers. We have been developing common asks on flexibilities, early sight of the comprehensive spending review and early information on what our funding envelope will be for next year, all of which are essential for planning.

While Barnett consequentials have been very welcome over the past year with additional money, they have come with little or no notification and very much as a drip feed. The Executive are responding all the time to try to get that money out quickly and to get support to where it is needed. It has not been ideal, albeit the funding itself is very welcome.

Those are the conversations that we have been having regularly, more specifically for here on Brexit issues and the spending that we require for that.

Belfast Region City Deal

5. Miss McIlveen asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the Belfast region city deal. (AQO 1057/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Belfast region city deal is finalising a number of outline business cases in preparation for signing deal documents. Local partners and Departments continue to work closely to achieve that. I am fully supportive of the city/growth deals initiative, which signals our desire to build a productive, regionally balanced and inclusive economy, and will provide investment and much-needed jobs in local areas, offering hope for the future.

Miss McIlveen: I thank the Minister for his response. While I am disappointed that my constituency will largely miss out on the capital spend of the proposed city deal, I am hopeful that there will be spin-off benefits.

There are concerns, with the focus on COVID-19, that projects will be delayed. Can the Minister give an assurance that there will be no undue delay to the commencement of schemes?

Mr Murphy: The Member will know that a number of Departments and councils are involved in those projects, so there are a lot of moving parts.

Our clear intention, however, is to drive those schemes on and get them completed as quickly as possible. As part of our discussions on economic recovery, we recognise that city deals are a key component in stimulating economic activity, construction jobs and all of the benefits that flow from major capital projects. There is a strong desire in the Executive to progress the projects, and we will continue to monitor and focus on that, as will the Department for the Economy, which has been one of the major players in city deals and will work with our council colleagues to make sure that we do not experience any undue delays.

Ms Flynn: Will the Minister provide an update on any of the other city deals, please?

Mr Murphy: The city deal partners in Derry City and Strabane are working closely with officials to progress a deal to head of terms. The deal equates to £210 million. It combines city deals and includes future funding with equal contributions from the Executive and the British Government. It is a welcome investment in the north-west region, especially at this time. I will meet shortly with south-west councils to discuss the proposals attached to the funding that they have for the deals that reflect those council areas.

Mr Blair: Will the Minister confirm whether the £100 million city deal complementary fund is open and, if so, how many bids have been received?

Mr Murphy: I am afraid that I do not have those details at the moment. The Member will know that this involves a range of Departments and a number of council areas. I know that councils have been working up proposals for some of their projects and having discussions across the Belfast city deal area about the complementary fund and what might flow from it. I do not believe that any bids for that have been received. I am sure that councils are aware of it. He will know that any bids must complement the city deal projects, and councils in other areas will be looking very closely at what they can bid for. The process of allocation, or the consideration of allocation, from that complementary fund has yet to be developed.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Going by Mr Thomas Buchanan's new place in the Chamber, I should congratulate him on his promotion.

Subregional Stadia Programme for Soccer: Funding

6. Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Finance what engagement his Department has had with the Department for Communities to ensure that the necessary funding is made available for the subregional stadia programme for soccer. (AQO 1058/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Neither my officials nor I, in my current role as Finance Minister, have had any specific engagement with the Department for Communities to discuss progress on the funding for the subregional stadia programme for soccer. It will be for the Department for Communities to initiate engagement at an appropriate time.

Mr T Buchanan: Minister, I am sure that you are aware that, for many years, soccer has been underfunded and underdeveloped in comparison with the Gaelic Athletic Association (GAA). Will you, as Minister, give an undertaking that you will do what you can to reverse that so that soccer is funded on a par with the GAA?

Mr Murphy: I want all sports to be adequately funded. Sport is hugely beneficial to young people in particular and to society in general. You can see the effect that the inability to attend football matches and other sporting events has on society.

I disagree, absolutely, with his contention that the funding of the GAA has disadvantaged soccer. Take, for example, the number of council pitches that have been built for soccer as opposed to GAA over the years. As a lifelong member of the GAA living in a rural area, I know that any provisions for GAA that were made over the years were funded by GAA members, not by the state, Departments or council funds. GAA members funded the vast bulk of those provisions themselves. I do not think that it serves the debate well to try to get into comparative figures as if this was a political issue. We need to try to develop as much money as we can for sport. Sport makes a positive contribution, and we need to ensure that facilities and supporting arrangements for sport are as well funded as possible.

Mr Allen: As the Minister will be aware, the subregional stadia programme is a commitment that sat alongside the regional stadia programme, for which a potential increase in the final budget has been forecast. The Department for Communities carried out a budgetary exercise recently. From that, can the Minister advise whether the Minister for Communities forecasts an increased spend on the subregional stadia programme?

Mr Murphy: I have to say that, from my perspective and from my understanding from talking to officials, there is no correlation between funding for the two. Clearly, any increase in the regional stadia programme has happened as a consequence of things that are beyond the control of the people who are providing regional stadiums. Issues have held up the delivery of that programme, and that was, obviously, not planned for by those who were developing the plans. I have not had discussions on that. I have had a preliminary meeting, as I have with most, but not all, other Ministers on budgetary matters. We cannot really decide how we allocate budgets until we know the amount that we are getting. We are dependent on the comprehensive spending review and on getting as early as possible an announcement from the Treasury on what our budgets look like, and then we will be able to finalise discussions on what is required for all programmes.

Mr Lyttle: The subregional association football stadia funding programme was to be allocated as long ago as 2016. What funding has been allocated for that programme for the financial year 2021-22? Is this not the time to make a vital capital investment in not only sport but in construction?

Mr Murphy: I do not disagree with his last point on investment. Where we can get capital programmes done, they contribute to economic recovery. The funding for 2021-22 will be allocated as part of the Budget. As yet, we are not aware what our Budget will be for 2021-22. We do not know the funding envelope that we will have. While we have been able to have preliminary discussions with Departments on their budgetary requirements, we will not be able to allocate an actual spend until we know that amount ourselves. When we are aware of what we have, we will be able to take decisions on how we spend it.

Mr McNulty: Does the Minister agree that sport plays an incredibly important role in the well-being of our society and that it is greatly missed at grassroots level? We are lucky that we have elite-level sport. We are sorry that we cannot go and cheer on our team this weekend, Minister. Armagh are playing Donegal at Breffni Park, and we would both love to be there. We cannot be there, but we will be shouting them on on the TV.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Order. The question relates to the subregional stadia programme for soccer.

Mr McNulty: I am getting there. The GAA wants only its fair share. Casement Park can be a catalyst for rebooting our economy. Can the Minister confirm that he is committed to providing all the funding to enable the construction of Casement Park and to helping to reboot our economy?

Mr Murphy: First, I agree with his outlook on sport and, specifically, Armagh GAA. The commitment to Casement is an Executive commitment. It is a flagship project. It is a key project commitment, and I expect the Executive to live up to that commitment. I will certainly play my role in helping the Executive to live up to that commitment.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: We know that the Minister and Mr McNulty are two Orangemen [Laughter] I call Órlaithí Flynn.

Ms Flynn: My question has been covered. Thank you, a Phríomh-LeasCheann Comhairle.

Arm's-length Bodies: NDNA Review

7. Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the New Decade, New Approach (NDNA) commitment to review arm's-length bodies (ALBs). (AQO 1059/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Executive agreed the terms of reference for the review on 18 June 2020. It is a two-stage review.

The first stage is about gathering background information from Departments, and it is complete. The second stage is desk-based in the Department of Finance and involves looking at the rationale for an arm's-length body and considering whether the functions that it carries out can be delivered in the Department. Does it require political impartiality? Does it have a technical function that it would be inappropriate for a Department to carry out? Are there overlaps with other arm's-length bodies? Has it outlived its purpose? Should it be abolished? Does it have sufficient transparency to the public on its activities, and could that be improved? That work is almost complete and will be brought to the Executive when it is finalised. It will include proposals for the rationalisation, efficiency and effectiveness of the arm's-length bodies that are considered in the review.

Mr McAleer: I thank the Minister for his response. Will the Minister provide us with an update on Civil Service reform?

Mr Murphy: The two issues are linked. They are part of the broad NDNA commitments to reform the Civil Service. I have been developing propositions on Civil Service reform, and I hope to bring a paper to the Executive in the not-too-distant future outlining a process for initiating a very wide-ranging reform of the Civil Service.

Mr O'Toole: Given what the Minister just said about the importance of Civil Service reform, when will a head of the Civil Service be appointed?

Mr Murphy: The issue of a non-appointment was in TEO, and I know that it is looking at interim measures. I want to see a head of the Civil Service appointed as soon as possible. We obviously have to look at the process in the interim and then look for a more permanent replacement at the head of the Civil Service. I hope that that will be done as quickly as possible.

2.30 pm

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Thank you, Minister. That ends the period for listed questions. We now move on to 15 minutes of topical questions.

COVID-19: Financial Support during Self-isolation

T1. Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance what, if any, financial support packages have been discussed for those who might be required to self-isolate. (AQT 641/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Under the leadership of Deirdre Hargey, before she went off with illness, further developed by Carál Ní Chuilín in the Department for Communities, there had been an extension of support for those who have to isolate. Financial support packages have been discussed at almost every Executive meeting. The issue of compliance is clearly about people following the message and following regulations, but it is also about people being able to do that. If we have a situation where people who are required to isolate cannot afford to do so or the consequences of that become difficult for them and their families, the Executive will need to make sure that we provide sufficient support. The Department for Communities has been focused on that, and there is already a support mechanism there. We want to ensure that that is as good as it can be and that, when we get to this crucial stage of the year when compliance will be more important than ever, we assist people in complying. It is not just a matter of enforcing things; we have to provide assistance to do that.

Ms Bailey: I thank the Minister for his answer. Has finance been set aside to do that work, or are we still just discussing it?

Mr Murphy: As I say, there already is a scheme in the Department for Communities. There are finances available, and I have said to Executive colleagues, including the Communities Minister, that, if additional support measures need to be brought in to assist people in isolation and assist with compliance, I am happy to consider them. As of last Thursday, we have additional money, and I think that compliance will be a key issue over the next number of months. I agree, and I will support any proposition that assists people in isolating and ensures that they can afford to do so.

Procurement Board: Social Value

T2. Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Finance how the new Procurement Board will promote social value, so that government spending addresses issues such as poverty and deprivation, particularly in her constituency in Derry. (AQT 642/17-22)

Mr Murphy: We have put forward propositions for the Procurement Board. It had intended to meet recently, but, because the proposals to revamp the Procurement Board were put in place, we need to seek additional personnel to go on to that and to change the make-up of the Procurement Board. Clearly, social value is a key part of that, and procurement can be used as an effective tool in achieving social outcomes. We have had discussions with them, and I know that the procurement people in the Department have been working on policies in relation to that. If the time frame allows it, we will also consider legislation, if that is required, in the next year before the end of the mandate, to enforce social value in procurement. Procurement by the Executive is a huge amount of money. It can be used not only to stimulate economic growth but in social value, and we want to ensure that that is a key part of government procurement and that of all public bodies.

Ms Anderson: Minister, most people will be glad to hear you say that you want a social value Act taken forward in this mandate. I believe that something in the region of £3 million is spent year-on-year on procurement, so, in the propositions that you mentioned, are you engaging or will that board be able to engage with other Departments to ensure that they embrace social value?

Mr Murphy: It is £3 billion, actually. Procurement has an overarching function for the entire Executive and giving advice to public bodies generally, so any policies that the Procurement Board adopts will be decided by the Executive and therefore will apply across Departments. It is one thing to have policies agreed and the Procurement Board pursuing them, but it is about implementation and making sure that Departments follow through, right down through all levels of their responsibilities and those of their arm's-length bodies, and, indeed, influence other public bodies. There will be a key focus on those policies but also on implementation to make sure that that is carried through.

COVID-19: Data Review

T3. Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Finance, since he will be aware that, in August, the COVID-19 death toll across the United Kingdom was reduced by 5,377 after a data review in England because people were being counted as having died from COVID-19 regardless of when they tested positive and that there seems to be some indication that people can even test positive in absentia — a question to the Minister of Health tabled by her colleague Ms Bradley refers — whether such a data review has been conducted in Northern Ireland and what the findings were. (AQT 643/17-22)

Mr Murphy: NISRA continuously ensures that its statistics and processes are as up-to-date as possible. The Member will be aware that it is a difficult area, because there are people who die from COVID and there are people who die with COVID. There are people who maybe had a terminal condition and acquired COVID while being treated for it. It is a complex area. The issues that are identified on a death certificate have to be followed through on so that there is statistical representation. It is a complex and sensitive area.

Undoubtedly, COVID is a new experience for our Health Department and for statistical agencies, and trying to develop a response to it has been challenging. I am not surprised that issues have arisen in other areas. I want to ensure that NISRA, which does that statistical work here for us, is as on top of it as it can be, because I recognise that there is a sensitivity for families if someone has been incorrectly identified as having died of something when that is not the case. I know that NISRA is conscious of that complexity and sensitivity, and we need to ensure that that continues as we go forward.

Ms Bunting: I am grateful to the Minister for that answer. In response to a question for written answer, he advised me that, as of June 2020, for which he had the most up-to-date figures, data showed that, in Northern Ireland, 754 of the 830 people who had COVID mentioned on their death certificate were subsequently coded by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) as having died from it. Given the different treatment of the remains of those who are cited as having died as a result of COVID, the lack of dignity and the considerable distress that it causes to their loved ones, what is being done to ensure much greater accuracy on death certificates?

Mr Murphy: Primarily, the responsibility for that when someone has died lies with the certifying doctor. The job of the statistics agency is to transfer that into data. In the initial circumstances, the certification of death identifies how a person has died. I agree with the Member: these are hugely sensitive issues. The death of a relative is difficult enough to cope with without the additional pain of the restrictions affecting how the death is dealt with by the family and how funeral arrangements are made. It is very challenging for a lot of families. It has to be done as sensitively and accurately as possible, but not just one element is involved. There is the recording of the data and the transferring of it into statistical arrangements. In the first instance, how a funeral will operate is dictated by whoever certifies the death and how that is done.

COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme

T5. Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance, since it has been reported that 2,170 applications have been made to the COVID restrictions business support scheme, to advise the House how many of those have been paid, because people are finding it extremely hard at the moment even to feed their family, about which all of us are receiving emails and messages; to assure the House that those grants will get out; and to say how many have got out so far. (AQT 645/17-22)

Mr Murphy: It is not happening as fast as I want it to, because more than one set of data is required. The initial roll-out of support through Land and Property Services (LPS) was much more straightforward, because it happened across a range of business premises. The business support scheme is specific to some sectors: hospitality and close-contact services. There have been over 11,300 applications for support. Almost £8 million has been paid out so far to 2,290 businesses. About 300 applications have been identified thus far as not meeting the criteria, and that number will probably grow as assessments continue. The initial hold-ups with data processing and getting the correct data from other sources seem to have been addressed, and I now expect the payments to roll out much more quickly.

I do not have the detail of how many have applied to the Department for the Economy schemes, for instance, or how quickly that money is getting out. The detail that I have provided relates to the scheme that is being managed by LPS.

Mr McGlone: Gabhaim buíochas leis an Aire as an fhreagra sin. I thank the Minister for his response. Will he assure us that, if there is an extension to close-down for specific businesses or sectors, money will be applied to support those sectors? Will he also assure us that the money will be sent out as efficiently as humanly possible? People are really feeling the bite.

Mr Murphy: I assure the Member of that. I absolutely understand the difficulties for businesses. I hear from them; I am an elected representative, the same as everybody else. The intention is to get that money onto the ground as quickly as we can. As I said, there have been hold-ups in the verification of other sources of data, but that seems to have been addressed. The scheme has been rolling out and gathering pace ever since those issues were addressed. I absolutely understand the necessity of that. If there are extensions to restrictions for some businesses, we need to ensure that the payments go out; people are struggling to keep their businesses afloat. We have set aside money to support them; we need to make sure that that money gets to them as quickly as possible.

Brexit: Cost

T6. Mr McGuigan asked the Minister of Finance, with the end of the implementation period fast approaching, what certainty the British Government have provided with regard to meeting the cost of Brexit. (AQT 646/17-22)

Mr Murphy: We have gathered from a number of Departments the cost of the protocol. Primarily, they have to do with some of the arrangements at the ports from DAERA, but there are other costs. We have recently had confirmation from the British Treasury that it will accept the costs that the Department of Finance presented to it.

Of course, as we look through budgets with Departments, there are an awful lot of other costs associated with Europe that we do not necessarily identify. They are not about the implementation of the protocol and do not cost individual Departments huge amounts, but, added together, they are significant. Outside the big headline figures for the European social fund and others, such as the agriculture funds, there is a range of smaller costs for Departments for which Europe has provided support over the years. We want to identify all those. The priority is making sure that we can implement the protocol and that the effects of Brexit are as reduced as they can be, although we know that they will be bad, no matter how we reduce them. However, there are costs still to be bottomed out in terms of a loss to Departments. We also have no certainty about the Shared Prosperity Fund, what it will look like or how it will be delivered. It is unacceptable that, at this stage, we are still seeking answers to those questions.

Mr McGuigan: Minister, thanks very much for your response. Given that the North is being pulled out of the EU against its will and given that you referred to additional costs that still have to be bottomed out, do you think that the British Government should meet the broader economic costs of Brexit in lost trade and employment?

Mr Murphy: I am party to the Brexit discussions that the Executive have every week. There will clearly be a cost from the implementation of the protocol and a cost to businesses as they try to meet whatever new requirements there may be. Those are not factored in and have not been calculated yet. I share the Member's point: we have been taken into a situation against our democratic wishes. The British Government have said that we will be better off as a consequence of leaving the European Union. I, as Finance Minister, have yet to see much evidence of that. We should do our best to identify not only the cost to the Executive and the loss of funds from Europe but the cost to businesses and other sectors of society of trying to cope with the abrupt exit from Europe, and we should present those to Treasury.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: We have probably just enough time for one more question and answer.

Finance: Moneys Returned to Treasury

T7. Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of all moneys and funds at risk of being returned to the Treasury come financial year end. (AQT 647/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As I said, we have yet to have another monitoring round to reallocate Executive budgets. This time last week, we were discussing the £100 million that the Executive had held over in a prudent fashion to meet any unforeseen challenges or any repetition of some of the current challenges that we face. That is now almost £500 million. That is a significant amount that we have to ensure is spent before the end of the financial year, on top of the budgets that Departments already have. That is a challenge, and I will talk to Executive colleagues about it this week.

I think that we need to ensure that we do that. We have had a range of issues raised with us, including support for isolation and for people who are forced to be at home over the winter and some additional fuel payments and things like that. I think that there are a range of issues that can be met. From that, we need to ensure that that money is spent, because, as always with this place, the greatest sin is in returning money. Sometimes, that does not lead to the right type of planning or long-term strategic thinking, as the priority is just to get that money spent. There are a lot of challenges out there in society. We need to identify where they are, and the primary thing is to get money to support people quickly. We have four months to do that, and I think that we should be attempting to do that very quickly.

2.45 pm

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: That concludes questions to the Finance Minister. I ask Members to take their ease for a few moments. The next item of business will be questions to the Minister of Health. Do not forget to clean the surfaces as you leave the Chamber.

Health

COVID-19: Rural Domiciliary Care

1. Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the availability of domiciliary care in rural areas. (AQO 1068/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): Domiciliary care workers provide a vital service to over 23,000 people in Northern Ireland, allowing them to continue to live independently. While there are sometimes particular challenges in rural areas, given the longer travel distances, we have seen increasing pressures right across our domiciliary care service provision for a number of years.

I am pleased to say that, over the past 12 months, the social care workforce has expanded significantly, with an increase of 3,409 registered workers since 2019. While that is very welcome, more staff are clearly still needed. That is not least because the COVID-19 pandemic has had a profound effect on the ability of domiciliary care providers to deliver services. One impact was the number of staff unable to work because they were required to self-isolate. However, at the onset of the pandemic, many service users and their families opted to suspend their existing domiciliary care package. My Department moved quickly to put in place a guarantee of income for domiciliary care providers to ensure that there was no loss of capacity in that critical service at that time. In return for that guarantee, we asked providers to improve their sick pay for staff unable to work for COVID-19-related reasons.

Power to People was clear, and I am clear, that the only way to make the service sustainable in the long term is through improved terms and conditions. My officials are finalising a business case that sets out some of the costs for achieving that. It will be challenging, given the current financial pressures and uncertainties, to meet those costs and it will need Executive support, but I am determined to do my best to make it happen. Throughout the pandemic, we have also made sure that domiciliary care providers have access to PPE where they need it and that the health and social care trusts continue to provide millions of items free of charge.

Ms Sheerin: Thank you, Minister, for your answer. I am sure that you will be aware of the extreme sensitivity of this subject, and I do not want in any way to understate that. Domiciliary care workers, as you outlined, are probably one of the most stretched of all groups of workers across our health service. The issue of unavailability of care packages in rural areas such as my constituency of Mid Ulster is a massive pressure point, for the workers on the ground and for the families that are affected. I have been informed in the past that your Department does not keep a record of the number of care packages that never get fulfilled because the person requiring a care package passes in hospital before they are allowed to enter their home with a care package. Can you start to record that, so that its high incidence and the great need is recorded properly?

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for that very specific follow-up question. She asked that in a question for written answer, and I am aware of the reply, but we will look into it, now that she has asked for it, and see whether that is feasible and to make sure that there is a useful outcome should that information be gathered.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Before I call Mr Alan Chambers, I must say that I do not wish to curtail any Member or the Minister, but, given the current climate, so many people have questions that they want to ask about Health that we need to use the half hour that we have judiciously.

Mr Chambers: Will the Minister detail what measures he has taken to shore up and support domiciliary care providers during the pandemic?

Mr Swann: I covered that point briefly in my initial answer. I introduced financial support measures, which covered the period from June until the end of October, for domiciliary care providers who were contracted to the health and social care trusts. Under those arrangements, providers had their incomes supplemented to a level that was 100% of an average of the three months prior to the pandemic. In return for that support, providers are expected to ensure that workers were paid at least 80% of their normal earnings above statutory sick pay when they are on sick leave for reasons related to COVID-19.

I have also recently agreed a fund of £5 million for providers to claim against reasonable expenses incurred as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. In addition, health and social care trusts continue to support providers with millions of items of free PPE every month.

Mr McGrath: The Minister mentioned PPE for domiciliary care workers. What assurances can the Minister give us that those care workers on the front line have the necessary PPE, rather than merely accepting employers saying that they have the correct amounts?

Mr Swann: One of the things that we did through the first wave of the pandemic was to make sure that every provider, every care supplier and every employer had a direct line into the trust. Those supply chains are established through our Business Services Organisation into trusts, and any care supplier can draw down PPE as and when needed.

Mr Lyttle: Many family carers are at the end of their resilience due to the disruption of not only domiciliary care but respite care and day services. Will the Minister give an update on the publication of a plan for the resumption of those services, as voted for by the Assembly on 7 July?

Mr Swann: It is one of those areas that is continually under pressure due to the reallocation of some of our staff. It is a piece of work that is being done on a regional basis to ensure that there is equity of service across the entirety of Northern Ireland.

Ms P Bradley: As someone who worked in the health service, I understand what unmet need is, and it has been around for many years. Will the Minister tell the House how his Department is capturing that unmet need?

Mr Swann: The Member makes a valid point that it has always been there. With domiciliary care, the demand far outstrips the supply that we currently have. That is why it is a significant step that we have increased the number of registered workers since 2009 by more than 3,400. Demand is currently outstripping the provision that we have due to members of that profession being off due to COVID and the community incidence. It is about putting in that support package for employers but also making it a profession that people want to go into. As the Member will know, many individuals who work in the sector are there by vocation because they want to support people in their communities. They do that to a very high standard and are currently under very extreme pressures.

COVID-19: International Best Practice

2. Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health what work his Department is undertaking on the interpretation of data and learning from international best practice in relation to COVID-19. (AQO 1069/17-22)

Mr Swann: COVID-19 continues to have a devastating impact right across the globe, with the recent surge of cases in Northern Ireland highlighting the need for ongoing vigilance. In order that our health and social care sector is in the best possible position to respond to the virus, and to reduce the impact on local people, it is essential that we take expert advice and learn from international practice.

Throughout the pandemic to date, the Northern Ireland Executive have received expert advice and recommendations from the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Scientific Adviser in respect of the most appropriate public health response. That advice has been based on the emerging evidence from the rest of the UK and from the rest of the world. For example, the Chief Scientific Adviser attends the Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE) and reviews evidence from the Scientific Pandemic Influenza Group on Modelling (SPI-M), which examines the data on the trajectory of the virus, nationally and internationally. In addition to that, evidence from UK Government analysis and published scientific papers are regularly reviewed with regard to international experience.

The need to consider the best evidence and practice applies not only to the strategic public health response but to all parts of the health and social care sector in responding to COVID-19. That can be seen in the reduction in mortality rates for those diagnosed with COVID-19, as experience has provided enhanced insight into the best form of treatment. However, as a novel virus, it is important to recognise that the evidence on COVID-19 is changing over time, and there is often no consensus on the most appropriate response.

Ms Kimmins: I thank the Minister for his answer. Is data being shared effectively, North and South, with the Minister's counterparts in the South in line with the agreed memorandum of understanding?

Mr Swann: The memorandum of understanding is working well, although there are areas where it needs enhancement. One challenge that was evident over the weekend was the reaction to travel restrictions from Denmark. It took engagement from us with the Health Minister and engagement from the Westminster Transport Minister with the Transport Minister in the Republic of Ireland to make sure that information was shared on anyone who had been in or travelled through Denmark and who then entered the Irish Republic through Dublin Airport while we put in those restrictions. That engagement is ongoing. The Chief Medical Officer and senior colleagues meet their counterparts in the Republic of Ireland weekly to discuss their approach to COVID-19 and their experience of responding to the pandemic.

Mr Allister: In the first wave of the virus, it was quite clear that the impact on our care homes was catastrophic. Why, then, in the intervening period, until, I think, last week, were staff tested only once every fortnight? The Minister now says that it will be once a week. Surely it should be every day or every other day. What is the international standard, because, yesterday, there were 139 outbreaks in our care homes? Did we learn nothing from the first wave about testing in care homes?

Mr Swann: We have increased testing. The recommendation was that we tested staff every fortnight and tested residents once a month, unless the home tested positive or showed a confirmed case, in which case we increased the testing capacity.

When a home does not have an identified case, we use pillar 2. Once a home has an identified case, either a resident or a member of staff, it moves to pillar 1, which is the Northern Ireland-based testing programme, so that we can get a response to those test results more quickly. Testing has been increased to once every two weeks in order to upscale the frequency.

The Member referred to the number of care homes that are rated as having confirmed cases. About 46% of those homes are confirmed as being positive because of staff, not residents, testing positive. The increased testing programme has proved beneficial in indicating and identifying staff who may be asymptomatic so that they do not take the virus into care homes, where residents are more vulnerable to the virus.

Mr McCrossan: Does the Minister accept that other countries have much more stringent test and trace processing? Will he update the House on improvements to the test and trace system and on when they will be delivered?

Mr Swann: One thing that often happens with our test, trace and protect system is that the failings of other systems are pointed towards our system.

In our current system, in the past week, we have transferred 4,450 cases to test, trace and protect. Of the cases transferred, 4,023 were successfully detected.

That is a success rate of over 90%. By any international standard, 80% is what should be reached. From the 4,023 cases that were identified and contacted a further 9,267 contacts were identified, and 9,173 of those were eventually contacted. That is a success rate of 99%. When it comes to the failings that have been pointed out about the test, trace and protect system, often, people look at the criticism of the Westminster system and then apply those aspersions to our system.

3.00 pm

The improvements that we made over the summer were brought forward when we saw the dramatic increase in positive cases. We went to a text alert service for some people who had tested positive. We also introduced a "digital first" system whereby people could go online and identify their contacts. That made it easier for someone who tested positive to interact, whether they wanted to talk to someone on the phone, do it online or respond by text message. That is what we have done in the past number of weeks.

Often, we look to Germany for best practice. One thing that should be noted is that Germany has said that, when you get a case rate of over 50 cases per 100,000 of the population, there is no way that any test, trace and protect system can keep on top of that. It is vital that we bring down the case rate so that the real benefits of test, trace, protect and isolate can come to the fore. It is all part of the overall package. The fewer cases there are, the more impact and effect test, trace and protect has.

Mrs Cameron: Who will look after the administrative burden of testing in the care sector, given that the independent care sector has said that it cannot cope with the increase in testing, which, in going from two weeks to one week, is, effectively, doubling?

Mr Swann: We took a strategic approach. A fortnight before we announced that we were increasing the testing frequency, we put additional funding into the care home sector so that money could be drawn down and used to supply the administrative support that those homes need. It could also provide additional staff, if needs be, to come in and do those tests, which can take up to 10 or 15 minutes to perform, of residents or staff. My Department has already put in place additional financial supports for the care home sector.

Ms Bailey: In response to the original question, the Minister referred to advice that he had received from the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Scientific Adviser. Does the Minister have the authority to act alone in implementing the experts' recommendations or does he need the approval of the whole Executive?

Mr Swann: The current regulations 9 and 10 fall at midnight on Thursday, so it would take the support of the Executive to bring forward further recommendations. If they fall at that point, I think, we will move back to the bare basics in regulation 2, which still stands and is current.

Mr Carroll: Does the Minister have any concern that the phrase "living with COVID" is being used by some Ministers? It appears to be completely out of step with international best practice and more in line with that of countries that have had a very high death toll and economic ruin.

Mr Swann: Since the outbreak and the first wave, every politician has had to be careful of the challenge around the phraseology and language used, because of the impression that can be given. I have been clear that the phrase "living with COVID" may be useful at the point at which we have a vaccine and the virus is under control. At this minute in time, because of the increased rate in Northern Ireland, we are not at that point. As for the phrase "living with COVID", one thing that I do not want to see is more people dying from COVID.

COVID-19: Missed Test Appointments

3. Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health to outline the number of individuals that received positive COVID-19 test results for a test they booked and did not attend. (AQO 1070/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for her question. Testing through the national testing programme is managed by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) in London. I am advised that a few such incidents have been reported through the Public Health Agency (PHA), and my officials have been made aware of that. Upon investigation by the Public Health Agency and the DHSC, they have advised that no specific details have been received to enable the issue to be investigated further. My officials will continue to liaise with DHSC on the matter as required, and DHSC has advised that individuals who have been impacted by such an incident should contact the 119 helpline to provide their specific details for further investigation.

Ms P Bradley: I thank the Minister for his answer. Minister, this is a little bit concerning. I have been advised by three individuals whom I know personally — one is an accountant, another is a solicitor and the other is a social worker — that they all got positive test results for tests that they were not able to attend. We know that a lot of good has been done during the pandemic, but there are also people out there who want to do mischief. We know that discretionary support grants are available for people who test positive for them or their family members. I would like you to look at that further and to look at those figures to see whether there have been any patterns, changes or increases in recent weeks. It is public knowledge, certainly in the area that I represent, that that can be done.

Mr Swann: I thank the Member. It is something that her party leader, the First Minister, raised with me earlier in the week. We contacted DHSC to see whether that is a possibility. It is looking into its systems to make sure that it does not and cannot happen. It would be unthinkable for somebody to fake a positive COVID test for the sake of a payment, because that puts pressure not only on other individuals and their family members but on our health service by making it look as though we have a higher incidence than we actually do.

Fortunately, when we see the number of positive cases compared with the number of hospitalisations and people who are in an intensive care unit (ICU), it does not seem to be a widespread practice. One of the difficulties that PHA and DHSC had was that, although the Member said that she was aware of three such individuals, no one was prepared to give their contact details, name, address or identification so that it could be followed through the system to see whether it was happening. However, it is something that the DHSC and the PHA are aware of.

Mr Nesbitt: My question to the Minister concerns what is happening in Liverpool with rapid and mass testing, and I wonder whether he has any thoughts on whether those mechanisms could be deployed in Northern Ireland.

Mr Swann: We are observing in Liverpool a pilot of mass testing, and I think that it will be useful. However, in being part of the observation group that is overseeing what happens and learning the lessons from it, we want to make sure that that sort of mass testing can be utilised to its best and most effective use and that any individual who tests positive receives the correct support and advice. It is easy, when we look at Liverpool, to put it in the context of being a large city, but when you put it in another context, you see that Liverpool has a population that is actually larger than Northern Ireland's. It is about using mass testing most effectively for the region. We will look at a number of pilots once the testing system, should it be lateral flow, proves efficient. Whether we do that by a sectoral rather than a geographical basis is still something that my expert advisory group on testing is exploring.

Ms Bradshaw: Minister, the DHSC in England is issuing new guidance for clinically extremely vulnerable people to patients, who are provided with a formal shielding notification that can act as guidance for employers. Will you reintroduce shielding letters here?

Mr Swann: The Chief Medical Officer is meeting his shielding advisory group tomorrow to see what steps we need to take and whether those should replicate what England is doing. That guidance and updated advice will be considered in the context of where we are in Northern Ireland with the spread of COVID-19, R and the direct effect that they would have on that specific group of individuals in Northern Ireland.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: I know that Mr Gildernew and Mr McCrossan have indicated that they want to ask a question, but we have only eight minutes left. I see that Mr Gildernew is number one on the topical questions list and that Mr McCrossan is number four, so I hope that they will forgive me if I move on to the next question.

Mental Health Services: Funding

4. Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health what additional funding will be made available for mental health services. (AQO 1071/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for his question.

With the Principal Deputy Speaker's indulgence, I may take more than two minutes for the answer, because of the nature of the issue.

Since taking up my post as Minister of Health, I have been very clear that mental health is one of my key priorities. I have created a mental health champion, and I have published the mental health action plan, which includes a dedicated COVID-19 mental health response plan. My officials are also working on developing a new 10-year mental health strategy that I intend to publish for consultation by the end of the year. Also, since taking up the post of Minister, I have provided additional funding for mental health. That includes £1.5 million for the implementation of the mental health action plan secured through June monitoring; an additional £300,000 approximately, also secured through June monitoring, for mental health co-production work; and an additional £180,000 secured through June monitoring for suicide prevention. There is £1.5 million for my Department to support the Department of Education in its work on mental health in schools. To assist suicide prevention in 2020-21, £649,000 has been allocated to zero-suicide initiatives in HSC trusts. An additional £190,000 has been allocated to enable the continued delivery of the multi-agency triage team project, and a further £60,000 has been allocated to the Derry crisis intervention service to allow its continuation to the end of the year. The Executive have also jointly agreed to fund the mental health champion with £500,000 per year. Furthermore, over the last couple of years, a programme of capital investment to provide immediate improvements to the old mental health facilities has seen around £3.5 million in funding, which will directly benefit mental health patients.

I welcome the additional COVID funding made available for the Department of Health through the HSC during this particularly challenging time, including funding to support mental health services. From that funding, I am seeking to make available up to £2.6 million to ensure capacity across mental health services, including support for the adult acute mental health bed management network, the provision of additional nurses and funding for psychology therapies and waiting lists. The new mental health strategy will, going forward, provide the strategic direction for mental health services when the full strategy is published in July 2021. I intend to also publish a 10-year funding plan, and that will provide a comprehensive outline of the funding required for future mental health services.

Mr K Buchanan: I thank the Minister for his answer. The focus is currently on COVID and rightly so. However, the strains on other conditions and the pressures on people's personal lives are putting pressure on the mental health of the population across Northern Ireland. Is the attention to the pandemic outweighing attention to other conditions and putting strains on people's mental health?

Mr Swann: The Member raises the point of the additional mental health strains that COVID has put on the population of Northern Ireland and on our health professionals because of the stresses and strains that they cope with. That is why, when we produced the mental health action plan, we included a specific section on COVID-19 to pick up on the specific additional points that are being brought to bear because of additional pressures, be they from self-isolation or the loss of a loved one due to COVID, which is affecting many people across Northern Ireland.

The additional pressures on our mental health service are being compounded by COVID. It is also a part of our health and social care system that needed additional funding. It needed additional support pre COVID, and I am pleased that, due to the support that we have across the Executive and even in the New Decade, New Approach commitments, that support is now coming forward and that work is being championed by our interim mental health champion, Professor Siobhán O'Neill.

Ms Flynn: I thank the Minister for all those really positive mental health initiatives. They are greatly appreciated by the sector. I am conscious that the mental health action plan that was announced six months ago contained specialist community perinatal services, and I know that the sector and the perinatal mental health campaigners are waiting in suspense. Can the Minister confirm when funding will be made available for those services?

Mr Swann: The business case for specialist community perinatal mental health services was received by the PHA. Officials in the mental health and capacity unit reviewed the document and consulted professional colleagues before requesting further evidence from the PHA to support the proposals. Following a further review of the amended business case, there remained several minor discrepancies, and the PHA has agreed to complete those amendments as soon as possible. The PHA has noted that its response to the current COVID pandemic has added substantial pressures to this workload.

Recurrent costs associated with the business case are significant, with high costs apportioned to the extensive multidisciplinary team complement proposed for each trust.

3.15 pm

In the June monitoring round, I approved funding for 2020-21 for perinatal mental health as part of the mental health action plan. That action requires recurrent funding and so creates an inescapable pressure of £4.7 million recurrently. The business case proposes a phased implementation, with the first phase requiring £3.4 million and the second phase an additional £1.3 million. A submission seeking approval of the business case and the recurrent funding will be sent to me on receipt of the finalised business case from the PHA.

I had that answer prepared. I knew that it was something that the Member would raise, because it is an issue that she has championed in her time in the House.

Ms Hunter: I am mindful of the time, Mr Principal Deputy Speaker, so I will be quick. Can the Minister identify whether any additional funding from his Department will go towards those with mental health issues who are struggling with addiction and those who face a dual diagnosis?

Mr Swann: The increase in the level of dual diagnoses has been brought to the fore, especially during lockdown. The Assembly all-party group on dual diagnosis and addiction has raised the issue, and it is something that my Department is working on.

Initially, the issue was brought to the House and debated. What often was happening was that the dual diagnosis fell as two diagnoses rather than be brought together in one place. The challenge that my Department and the trusts face in their work is for people to receive the appropriate support, guidance and help that they need.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Ten seconds for Mr Beggs, followed by 10 seconds for the Minister.

Mr Beggs: I thank the Minister for his update and for his detailed response on COVID and additional mental health pressures. Can he provide an update on the mental health and suicide prevention group?

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for his question. Contrary to media reports suggesting an increase, suicide rates in Northern Ireland have remained relatively stable over the past decade. That mental health funding is in place. As I detailed earlier, it is approximately £300 million a year, which is only 5% to 6% of total HSC funding. It is accepted that that is significantly lower than funding in other places, and that is why I continue to put in bids and to increase the finance to make sure that we get a support package, and not just one that provides finance but one that provides personnel to support those who need it.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Thank you, Minister. That ends the period for listed questions. We now move on to topical questions.

COVID-19: Vaccine

T1. Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health what plans his Department has to secure a COVID-19 vaccine for people here. (AQT 651/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for his question, which is very topical. The UK Government, acting on behalf of the whole of the UK, have access to six potential COVID-19 vaccine candidates. That reflects a national strategy to ensure that we have a supply of vaccines, should any of them prove to be safe and effective.

The vaccines are at various stages. There was an announcement about one yesterday. It still has to undergo rigorous testing and complete the development process that vaccines must complete before they can be considered for use in a vaccination programme.

The United Kingdom would be eligible for the one announced yesterday and has pre-bought over 20 million vaccination doses, which will be distributed across the devolved Administrations using the Barnett formula. That would leave us with 575,000 doses, which would be the equivalent of initially vaccinating 255,000 people. I stress to the Member that it is one out of six potential vaccine candidates. It is the first to be brought forward.

Mr Gildernew: We have, as you said, heard from one company that has made progress. Can the Minister explain how that vaccine will be rolled out for those 255,000 people and what priority groups he is considering for it? Would it be for care home residents, Health and Social Care staff or those who were previously advised to shield?

Mr Swann: That is one of those decisions that is taken out of my hands. One of the things that the Department of Health does, and this is the case across all four nations, is to ensure continuity of supply. The decision on any vaccination programme is handed over to the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI).

It decides what flu vaccines we should prepare and buy in advance, the groups that they should be allocated to, and in what order. It has already done an initial trawl as to where it sees the priority for a COVID-19 vaccine. One of its main thrusts is by age and by working sector. The first sector that it is looking at is those in care homes and the care home working sector. The next sector will be for those over 85. It will then move down into those working in the health and social care systems and will then be ratified by age group.

The JCVI is undergoing the stratification of who will be accessible. I will write to the Member with that because it is accessible. I will also inform the Committee and update the House, should that be useful.

COVID-19: Testing

T2. Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Health whether, given the difficulties witnessed with COVID-19 testing, he believes that the current test, trace and protect approach is fit for purpose. (AQT 652/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for her question. Earlier, I gave a few statistics for our current test, trace and protect system. At times, it does come under criticism because of what happens in other places. At the Committee a couple of weeks ago, some of the management team came under unfair criticism and personal attack, which was unfortunate. In that dedicated team there are now 220 tracers working under three different employment contracts — full-time, part-time or on-call bank — so that they can flex up.

We made advances over the summer in being able to contact people by text message and online. The digital ability to test, trace and protect is being enhanced continually. As I said in response to another question, even the best system in the world, when we get those large numbers, does not simply rely on a test, trace and protect system to bring it under control. COVID-19 takes a multitude of tools to bring it under control. In Germany, whose test, trace and protect system has often been lauded as the most efficient, they are saying that, once you get over 50 cases per 100,000, no test, trace and protect system can effectively manage that. We are sitting at 200 per 100,000, so we have a long way to go. I would rather see us dropping the incidence of COVID-19 and then rely on test, trace and protect, isolation and support to provide the enhanced service that manages and keeps COVID-19 under control.

Ms Dolan: Thank you, Minister. You touched on this briefly in your answer, but we heard earlier that the World Health Organization and others stress the need for a find, test, trace, isolate and support strategy. Do you have any plans to renew the approach to cover all those elements?

Mr Swann: It is a conversation that is ongoing between my Department and the Department for Communities, which is held by the Member's colleague Minister Carál Ní Chuilín, about how we can provide additional supports. There is a non-refundable payment loan that can be drawn down. The conversation that has been raised is that our system is means-tested so that anyone who earns over £21,000 per annum is not eligible for it because it is being handled through the Department for Communities and social services. It is something that the Minister for Communities and I are looking at to ensure that anyone who does test positive, or becomes a contact to someone who is positive, is supported and encouraged to self-isolate and to remain at home so that they are not put under a financial burden to get back to work or out into the community. It is a holistic approach that we are taking forward to make sure that the support is there.

COVID-19: Shielding

T3. Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Health if he would expand on the assessment given by the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) on 23 September that COVID-19 shielding advice should not change. (AQT 653/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for his update. I know that he was not in for the initial part of Question Time due to the COVID-19 seating arrangements in the House, but I informed Ms Bradshaw that the CMO is meeting the shielding advisory group tomorrow to review where we are. One of our concerns is that we have seen an increase in the number of over-60s who are testing positive. The test rate that we have shows that roughly 23% of tests are for someone in that over-60 age group. We all know that they are the most vulnerable section of our community should they contract COVID, because there is a high incidence of it ending in hospitalisation. It is a piece of work that the CMO is looking at. He is meeting the shielding advisory group tomorrow to update recommendations to me and the Executive.

Mr G Kelly: Gabhaim buíochas leis an Aire as a fhreagra go dtí seo. I thank the Minister for his answer. I apologise. I met Paula Bradshaw, and hopefully I will not repeat her supplementary. Somewhere in the region of 95,000 people got the original shielding letter. Some of them have been in touch with me. There are a huge number of families involved. They are under greater threat. Will the Minister commit to sending an updated letter to those who were shielding to at least give them reassurance and any more information that is there?

Mr Swann: The CMO issued updated guidance about two and a half weeks ago, although it was done online and through social media and we did not post it out to everyone. The Member underestimates it. By the time that we finished issuing shielding letters, there were 208,000. The number of people who finished up in that shielding group far outweighed our initial expectations. That updated guidance is online. I will send it to the Member so that he can forward it to his constituents. It is an area of concern for many. When that group meets tomorrow and the additional advice comes out, I will make sure that it is shared with all MLAs and across all Health and Social Care sectors. We can then inform each of our constituents who have those concerns, should they fall under renewed advice or into renewed categories that we are concerned about.

COVID-19: Restrictions

T4. Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health whether, given the frustration of many at the lack of decision-making by the Executive in recent days and the impact of uncertainty on the business community, he can confirm that further restrictions are likely in the month of Christmas if there is any easing in the restrictions currently in place. (AQT 654/17-22)

Mr Swann: If there are any further easements, I cannot give a guarantee.

Mr McCrossan: Thank you, Minister. You also mentioned that the vaccine is forthcoming. It is a game changer, particularly for the restrictions that affect every aspect of our society. You mentioned that the roll-out will happen by age, but there are many in our community, from a variance of age groups, who have underlying health conditions, some very serious. Can the Minister give any assurance to the House that his Department will prioritise those with underlying health conditions to ensure that they get access to the vaccine as quickly and swiftly as possible on its release, hopefully this year?

Mr Swann: As I said in response to the initial topical question from the Committee Chair, prioritisation of who receives that vaccine is managed by the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation so that there is equity and equality across the United Kingdom and we do not get drawn into a political sphere where politicians get to decide who gets access to a vaccine and who does not. It is left in the hands of medical professionals who can best decide, when the vaccine becomes available, what groups need to have it and in what order.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: I call Ms Clare Bailey.

Ms Bailey: I did not know that I had a question, Mr Principal Deputy Speaker.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Do you want to take it? No?

Ms Bailey: No. Sorry.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Dead on.

Flu Vaccination

T6. Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health, after thanking Ms Bailey for the opportunity, for an update on the flu vaccination programme. (AQT 656/17-22)

Mr Swann: I thank the Member. The one before was easier to answer. The flu vaccination programme is proceeding at pace. One of the things that we have done is to increase the order of flu vaccinations. We did that in the summer. The initial batch that arrived was in the region of 665,000. Our vaccination programme usually runs from 1 October into December, and then the second batch arrives for times of need. This time, we increased the number of people who will get the flu vaccine, and we increased its promotion. That initial batch of 665,000 was distributed.

The majority of that was administered within 26 days, and the highly proficient system that we put in place outstripped our supplies of flu vaccine. The other batch is due in the next couple of weeks, so that should allow us to pick up on those who missed out — they did not miss out, but they thought that they were going to be vaccinated at an earlier stage. Arrangements for the schoolchildren's vaccine were in place and remain so, but we very much got ahead of ourselves with those in the adult ranges. One of the things that it has proved to us is that, when a COVID vaccine becomes available, we know that the systems will work very efficiently.

3.30 pm

By way of an update to the Member, one GP sent out flu vaccination letters to 500 patients and 499 turned up. That is unheard of anywhere else. They were able to trace the one remaining person and realised that he or she did not receive the letter. The initial uptake far outstretched any of our expectations of a vaccine programme. It was also beneficial that we took the time in the summer to order additional vaccines, because they will supplement the cohort that was missed during the first phase.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Ms Bradley.

Ms P Bradley: Oh, I am getting to ask a supplementary question. Even better.

Minister, following on from what Ms Bradshaw said about possible shielding letters being sent out, we have heard from various people that they have not yet received their flu vaccine. Will those who are required to shield and their family members be treated as a priority in the next tranche?

Mr Swann: That was one of the pieces of advice and guidance that were sent out. Shielding letters were often based on those who were eligible for a flu vaccine, so the counter works. One of the things that we did was to expand it so that anyone who was a carer of someone in receipt of a flu vaccine was also eligible. That is why we saw that massive uptake at the start.

I know that many saw it as a criticism, but it delivered far in excess of our expectations, and I must congratulate our GPs, community pharmacists and all the peer vaccinators across our health and social care system. They went out of their way to deliver what is usually a three-month programme in 26 days.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: Mr McGuigan and Mr Durkan are not here. Ms Armstrong can have one question if she and the Minister are brief.

Child Poverty

T9. Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health, after hearing Dr Julie-Ann Maney from the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children talk about children hiding toast in their nappies, what actions are being taken to ensure that children are not living without food and that benefits are allocated by the Department for Communities to those families identified by social services as living in poverty. (AQT 659/17-22)

Mr Swann: The story that the Member raised broke many a heart and brought a tear to many an eye when people realised that that was happening in our community and sector.

The work that is being done by social services in identifying and supporting those families that need that help is crucial. There is also an onus on us, as elected politicians, to make sure that those individuals know what help is available and how to access it. We should also make it as easy as possible to access for the people who need it. It is heartbreaking to think of the reliance on food banks that we now have in Northern Irish society.

The step that the Minister of Education took to support the expansion of free school meals in school holidays was welcome, but it was an embarrassment that we had to do that and that we do not have support mechanisms across our society that prevent people being driven into those situations. There is a partial responsibility among us all in the Executive and the House to make sure that children do not have to hide toast in their nappies because they do not know when they will get their next meal.

Mr Principal Deputy Speaker: That concludes questions to the Minister of Health. I ask Members to take their ease for a few moments. Please also do not forget to wipe down the surfaces etc on your way out of the Chamber.

(Mr Deputy Speaker [Mr McGlone] in the Chair)

Executive Committee Business

Budget (No. 3) Bill: Final Stage

Debate resumed on motion:

That the Budget (No. 3) Bill [NIA 09/17-22] do now pass. — [Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance).]

Mr Deputy Speaker (Mr McGlone): We will resume the Final Stage of the Budget (No. 3) Bill, and, at this stage, we will look to Mr O’Dowd to continue his contribution.

Mr O’Dowd: Before we broke for lunch and for Question Time, I was responding to some comments from Mr Frew about his opinion of the Executive, the role of the Executive and the passage of the Budget Bill. I commented on what I see as dithering in the Department for the Economy and dithering by the Minister for the Economy, not only in responding to the COVID-19 pandemic, which has crippled our economy and, indeed, had a huge impact on the world economy, but in bringing forward proposals for the economic recovery on the other side of this. I also mentioned the frustration in sections of the business sector that, although they were promised funding when they were closed down by the Executive, there has been a delay in getting that funding out. Facts speak louder than words on many occasions, and, on this occasion, the facts speak for themselves.

Some grants are the responsibility of the Department for the Economy, and 51 were paid out during the most recent lockdown. The Department of Finance has paid out 2,142 grants; £7 million has been paid out and that is still progressing. That is comforting news to the 2,000 businesses on one side and the 51 businesses on the other, but we need to continue to get that money out the door. If we are to close businesses down — there will be occasions when we have to — and if everybody wants to work towards a position where our economy is opened up again in a safe way, we have to ensure that there are mechanisms in place to get the money to those businesses, and the key to that is having a Minister at the front of it leading and making sure that it happens.

I want to end with a few comments on the budgetary position. It is worth noting that, before COVID-19 hit, our economy was going into recession. In fact, it was in recession. That is the basis from which we are starting. We were in recession before COVID-19 came along. COVID-19 has hit us and Brexit has hit us. Brexit was part of the reason that we were in recession before COVID-19, but Brexit is having a huge impact on our economy, on our ability to recover from COVID-19 and, indeed, on putting a Budget in place that will meet the needs of our society moving forward.

Declan McAleer made an interesting point during his speech. He said that some of the measures being put in place at the ports would cost around £45 million a year. Those are just some of the measures. That is about £800,000 a week. What could our farmers do with £800,000 a week? Quite rightly, Members have been talking about the needs of restaurateurs, the hospitality sector, care and beauty therapists etc, but £800,000 a week is being paid out on infrastructure and staff because of Brexit. When we look in the round at the damage being done to the economy, we have to look at it in its totality.

In the Chamber last week — the Minister read out some of the figures earlier — the Minister for Infrastructure was answering questions on the North/South Ministerial Council meeting in transport sectoral format, and she said:

“It is no secret in the House that the Department for Infrastructure often struggles to secure funding, but I am willing to talk to anybody [to see what we can bring about]” — [Official Report (Hansard), Bound Volume 132, p130, col 1].

That statement stuck with me. Then, today, I heard the Finance Minister say that the Department for Infrastructure received £180 million in the most recent funding package. That matches the Department of Education, and I suspect that the highest funding has, deservedly, gone to Health. Therefore, it is not the case that the Department for Infrastructure is struggling to find funding. It is no secret that it received up to £180 million in the most recent financial packages.

Mr Deputy Speaker, I will end on this point. I started off by talking about one of the subjects that was mentioned during questions to the Health Minister: children who are so hungry that they hide toast down their nappy. The Budget and other policies are key to tackling poverty. Quite rightly, people ask, “What are the Executive doing? What have you done?”. Let us look at some of the positive measures that have been taken across the Executive, as a collective. They are not Sinn Féin initiatives, DUP initiatives or SDLP initiatives. When the Executive act together, they make a difference. In England, there was a recent debate, as there was in the summer, about free school meals. It is worth noting that there is a more generous free school meals scheme in place here in the North than there is in England. In this society, you can be in a higher earning bracket and still receive free school meals than is the case in England. Why? It is because the Executive and the Finance Minister, then and now, funded it.

Look at our welfare reform system — the infamous universal credit — and what the Executive did. They put hundreds of millions of pounds in place to mitigate the effects. Scotland is one of the most progressive Administrations on these islands, and people often point towards Scotland and say, “Look at what the Scottish are doing”. Scotland has not put hundreds of millions of pounds into a mitigation scheme for welfare reform. The Executive have, and the Finance Minister backed it, as did other Ministers. There are numerous examples across Departments of where Ministers have put in place funding packages to mitigate the impact of poverty or bring people out of poverty, and that has to be welcomed.

Our Executive make a difference. The question is this: do we have enough money or the fiscal powers to make a significant difference — the change in tempo that we need? My answer is that we do not. If we are to stop children hiding toast down their nappy because they are so hungry, we need to have the fiscal powers that have been talked about in this and other debates. We also need to have a matching economic strategy that will create well-paid jobs and wealth and ensure that our young people, our older people, and everyone in between, are able to contribute to society and earn a proper wage. I will leave it at that.

Mr Allister: I will strive to be mercifully brief, but I want to make a number of miscellaneous points. Of course, we all need to recognise that, when it comes to Budget procedures, this year is, undoubtedly, a year apart. The circumstances, so unforeseen in many regards, have, of necessity, produced not one but three Budget Acts. Who knows? There might be another before we are finished. So, this year is to be treated as something apart.

One of the factors that emerges from the urgencies of this year is that this sort of crisis demonstrates that, if ever you needed to be nimble in government — to have a system capable of being swift of foot — an occasion like this is it. However, what we have, by virtue of our system of government, is probably the most clumsy system imaginable. Yes, I make lots of criticisms about that system but, in making that statement, I am simply making a statement of fact. This is an inherently clumsy system, and it is therefore one that does not lend itself to the swiftness of action that might otherwise be desirable.

3.45 pm

This system of government and process does not emerge well from the present crisis. We have had many people in considerable desperation contacting us all, I am sure, saying, “Government have closed us down and have promised us assistance”. However, as I put it to the Minister during Question Time, many of them are asking about the current schemes, “Where is it?”. The Minister gave an explanation about that, but that does not detract from the reality that there is a considerable time lag between the promise of assistance and its delivery.

I am reading a message that was sent by one self-employed person this afternoon. She is in the beauty industry and has been shut down for four weeks. She has not had a penny. If she is to reopen on Friday, and she does not know that, she does not have any money to buy in what she needs. That drag in the compensation and matching the reality to the promise are compounding many difficulties. Is she opening on Friday? Who knows? It is pretty clear that the Executive have been unable to reach agreement about that. Indeed, it seems that they have not even met today to deal with it.

A circuit breaker was brought in three weeks ago. As I said this morning, we do not need a circuit breaker now but a circus breaker. It really is a circus, but it is not funny for those who are at the receiving end; they do not even know whether their doors will open again on Friday. That is so unfair. That is a physical manifestation of the clumsiness and lack of nimbleness that attends our system of government. That is something that, for many, is quite appalling. Someone, rightly, made the point on the radio this morning that it is OK for the public sector — we are all paid out of the public purse — that it is the private sector that is really paying the price in all this and that employees in the private sector are in desperation as a result.

We had some interesting contributions to the debate. Probably the most interesting was the one from the Deputy Chair of the Finance Committee, Paul Frew. He made a number of very pertinent and challenging points. One of the points that he made is sometimes forgotten in the House: the House is meant to be a forum of challenge. It is meant to be the forum that holds to account the Executive. You would think, from listening to some, that we are here only to back up, sustain, support and, where necessary, cover up for the Executive. We are not. We should not be. We should be here to challenge. That is something that has been substantially underrated and underprovided in the House.

Mr Frew: I thank the Member for giving way. Given that we have a five-party coalition Executive, that those five parties all come from different directions and go to different places and that we have no Opposition in this place, is it not right and proper that we, as MLAs, should all challenge where we can? Whilst we have members on the Executive, no one has a majority on the Executive. It is vital that we, as an Assembly, do not become compliant and that we challenge where we see the need arise.

Mr Allister: I largely agree with that; there needs to be challenge. Of course, fundamentally, there needs to be an official Opposition. It is beyond farcical that we are in circumstances where they do not exist. Even when they existed, they had their hands tied behind their back because of a lack of provision.

I will pick up on one of Mr Frew's points about the monitoring rounds. We set a Budget and allocate various provisions. One of the points that I made last week at the Finance Committee was that, when we set those allocations, we set them at such a high level that, frankly, they mean very little. We set, for example, £2 billion for the Department of Education. We do not specify in the Estimates or in the Budget how much of that is for primary, preschool, secondary etc; we simply set a global figure. That does not invite or permit an avenue of proper scrutiny, and I think that it is done because Ministers like the luxury of being able to move money around. I am sorry, but that is not really what it should be about. It should be about tabulating what Ministers need according to each sector in their Department, and those on scrutiny Committees should be able to see that. It should not just be £5 billion for Health and £2 billion for Education: we should be able to see the composition of all of that, and we should be able to interrogate that and find answers to that. I think that that information is held in each Department and in the Department of Finance, but it is not conveyed to the House. That is why we get pretty meaningless global figures in our Estimates etc.

Mr Frew made a point about our monitoring rounds. We set all of these figures, and, three times a year, we have an arbitrary — “arbitrary” in the sense that there is no input from the House — distribution by the Executive of reallocations within that. The House is simply told. The House, according to the theory of Budget, is supposed to be the authoriser of spend. It is supposed to be the House that authorises the spending of public money, yet, when it comes to the monitoring rounds, we have no function whatever. We are simply told what the allocations are. As Mr Frew suggested, why cannot the House be in a position where the allocations are subject to a vote of the House? Why can we not ascribe to that some democratic accountability? Why can we not have the monitoring rounds discussed, as they are to a degree, with the Committees and then brought to the House and a resolution of the House required to implement them? That is the fundamental principle of distributing money to Departments, but it certainly does not operate in respect of monitoring rounds. That is something that could properly be addressed.

I heard much talk of a fiscal council. I have a couple of questions about that. What would a fiscal council do that the Office for Budget Responsibility cannot do? Every day, the Department of Finance sends its Consolidated Fund figures to London: every day. That information is fed to a source where the Office for Budget Responsibility can assess it and make recommendations and do as it does elsewhere. What would a fiscal council do that the Office for Budget Responsibility cannot do? Are we in the business of reinventing the wheel? There was a question earlier about quangos and arm's-length bodies. Are we just going to create for the sake of creating, or is there something there to adapt and to work with?

Someone suggested that it was all about fiscal powers. I am sorry, but I have to say to the House that the thought of letting this Executive put their hand into the pocket of business and taxpayers in this Province is, for me, a most frightening proposition.

I, for one, do not want to see fiscal powers be given to this House. This House has grown up with the mentality that you just spend. You spend, spend, spend, and then you whinge and complain when you do not get more to spend. The thought therefore of giving this House fiscal powers, considering how it has exercised many of its current powers, is, for me, a very frightening proposition. For some, perhaps that would be a reason to do it, but there it is. I do not think that it is a sensible proposition whatsoever.

I said that my comments would be miscellaneous, and they are. I will leave them there.

Mr Carroll: It has been referred to already, but a video circulated online last week from Dr Julie-Ann Maney, a paediatrician who works in the children's hospital at the Royal in my constituency of West Belfast. She was being interviewed about an article that she wrote on 'Medium', in which she said:

"Years of austerity have had a devastating impact on the one in three children in Northern Ireland living in poverty."

Many in this Chamber would do well to read what she has written. Mr O'Dowd referred to her comments. He should reflect on what his party did to increase poverty and implement austerity in previous Executives, alongside other parties.

In the interview, she spoke of 14-month-old children who are so hungry that they store food in their nappy; seven-year-old children who are eating three portions or more because they are so hungry; and children with deficiencies whose short lives have been plagued by malnourishment because of poverty. It is heartbreaking stuff. She spoke of dental decay. Her quote that:

"Between 10 and 12 teeth are cleared out of children's mouths every day"

across the North has stayed with me since I heard it. The outpouring of heartbreak and rage on behalf of those children is something that I felt as I watched that caregiver, health worker and doctor being forced to speak out because the impoverished children in our communities are being failed by this Assembly. We are supposed to be living in a civilised part of the world, but that does not sound like civilisation to me.

Every time that I could rise to speak at each stage of this Bill, during the debate on the Estimates and at every stage of the previous Budget Bill, I said that they do nothing to challenge the state-maintained poverty in our communities. This Budget Bill is a continuation of the kind of politics that has deepened poverty rather than alleviated it in our communities.

We hear much about the increased investment in the Budget to alleviate the COVID crisis. It would be quite astounding if there were less money invested in tackling the crisis. As with almost everything that comes before the House, however, that investment has been predominantly aimed at businesses. Far too many people and workers have been forced to struggle throughout this pandemic.

I said something similar a few months ago, but little did we know that £10,000 was rushing into the accounts of some, including accounts that were connected to, or in the control of, public representatives who did not ask for it or did not qualify for it. All the while, I and my colleagues and every community service across the North have been inundated with pleas from people in working-class communities to help them dig around somewhere or barter with someone to get what money or food they need to tide them over. How many hospitality workers would welcome or, indeed, need £10,000 in their account to get them through this crisis? Quite a lot, I would say.

Unite the Union has had to design a financial bailout package because support for workers that it represents is severely lacking, despite those workers being expected to get back on the front line every time that this Executive click their fingers or change their mind and before the virus is under control or a proper testing system is in place.

It is also worth asking this: if, as a result of a universal credit overpayment, sums of £10,000 had been rushed into the accounts of social security claimants, many of whom are new claimants, having lost their job during COVID and facing a Christmas that they never imagined, how quickly would the relevant Department and agencies come down on them to pay it back? I guarantee that it would be done very quickly indeed. That people who hold or who previously held public office chose not to pay back that money is disgraceful, and I am glad that some of them have walked. That the Stormont Executive did not move immediately to claim back the rest of the money taken wrongly from the public purse at a time when people are suffering is completely unacceptable.

4.00 pm

The Finance Minister has been quick to say that Tory austerity has tied the hands and the purse strings of this place and has deepened poverty. Few in this Chamber hate the rotten Tories more than I do. I believe firmly that the Tory Party's influence has made people here worse off, not to mention people in England, Scotland and Wales. I hope that one day we can consign them to the dustbin of history, along with the rotten system that they thrive under and want to maintain.

However, it is plainly false to say that the Assembly could not have done more. The last Executive, of the DUP and the Finance Minister's party, Sinn Féin, spent a decade begging the Tories to let them reduce corporation tax to harmonise our levels with the South, in an ugly game of race-to-the-bottom economics to give multinational corporations a tax break and to send up a flare to other corporations to fill their boots here at the expense of our block grant. To this day, I do not think that the Sinn Féin Finance Minister can pledge that he would champion an increase in corporation tax to make those who profit from workers in the North pay their way and fund our services. Perhaps he can correct me.

Mr Buckley: I thank the Member for giving way. On the topic of corporation tax, does the Member think that it is fair to describe a policy that could have brought thousands of jobs to Northern Ireland as a strategy of “filling your boots”?

Mr Carroll: I remind the Member that no evidence exists that reducing corporation tax would bring a single additional job into the North. However, if he can supply me with such evidence, I will happily share it online. However, I know that it does not exist; it is fantasy economics.

We do not even need to push Westminster for further powers to make the wealthiest pay. People Before Profit has, for years, pushed the idea of lifting the rates cap, so that those with the broadest shoulders carry the heaviest burden. It is worth noting that billionaires have increased their collective wealth by an estimated £25 billion to £30 billion solely during the pandemic. I have been calling on Governments, North and South and across these islands, to consider a wealth tax to bail out ordinary people.

I am not alone in that; progressive economists and activists have raised the idea too. Not only are those Governments not implementing a wealth tax, but, just today, I asked the First Minister whether a COVID-19 wealth tax was discussed at the recent British-Irish Council meeting. She told me that it was not even on the agenda. If we needed another reminder that we are not all in this together and that Governments continue to work with those with the deepest pockets, a vivid example of it is right there.

Finally, I find it galling that some in this Government are going above and beyond to present an image of themselves as mould-breakers, as shakers of institutions, and as champions of social security claimants and those in public housing. The big parties in this House set the mould, built up the institutions and ran them, in large part, as a gravy train.

It was never good enough that parties like Sinn Féin played good cop against the will of the big, bad DUP or the wolves across the water. However, it is particularly exasperating when they stand over this Budget today; when they stand over the approach of this Executive to the COVID-19 pandemic; when they harp on about Bengoa being the solution to our health service underfunding shambles; when they allowed health workers to strike in the cold and still refused to pay them the lost pay that they had promised would be paid; when they continue to stand over the decision to do the Tories’ bidding by introducing and defending welfare reform, the mitigations to which have cost more than it would have done to avoid introducing them in the first place, and when there are so many cracks that people are struggling to pay the bedroom tax that we were told was never coming to the North.

They should scrap welfare reform; they should raise the rates on the wealthiest; they should shout and scream about raising corporation tax and not be shy about it; and they should radically shake up the priorities of this —.

Mr Stalford: I appreciate the Member giving way. The Member talks about raising people’s rates, but can I outline a scenario for him? The Member will know that in my constituency there are places such as Stranmillis, where people bought their houses 40 or 50 years ago. They are now pensioners who may be asset-rich but who are cash-poor. If he places them in the bracket of the wealthy, how does he intend to extract the money from them? Will they be forced to sell their homes?

Mr Carroll: I thank the Member for his intervention. I am advocating that the wealthy pay more, but I believe that the Member probably disagrees with that, given his comments yesterday.

How else can parties claim to stand on the side of people in working-class communities who will always feel the sharp edge of their budgets and never seem to benefit from the scandal-laden schemes, of which there are too many to name, that have come from this Building?

I am very well aware that this kind of speech will be received, particularly by Mr Stalford —.

Mr Stalford: With the contempt that it deserves.

Mr Carroll: “With the contempt that it deserves”, he says. I am well aware of that, given yesterday’s comments and optics, with his side of the House having a meltdown with the talk of basic socialist policies. I think that he is still hurting from Trump’s defeat in America [Laughter.] Indeed, I have enough experience of having radical ideas about the redistribution of wealth being met with sneering and arrogant disdain from several sides of the Chamber and, sometimes, even laughs from across the way. We have had plenty of them today. However, it is not my job to present politics that is acceptable to Establishment politicians; it is quite the opposite. I know that the Budget is likely to be passed, and there will probably be no Division in the Chamber. However, I want to put on record my opposition to it for the reasons that I have outlined.

Mr Nesbitt: I listened to Mr O’Dowd’s speech earlier. His remarks focused on children who were so frightened that they would go hungry again that they hid food in their nappies in the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children. We are a First World country. Of course, there are many measures of how successful a Government, an Executive and a society are, one of which is how well we look after children. Another is how well we look after elderly people, and, another, the most vulnerable in society. In fact, section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 specifies nine categories of people to whom we must pay particular attention.

I am sure that I have said this before: Mr O’Dowd and I could go now to the maternity unit of the Ulster Hospital round the corner and ask to see the latest child to be born into this country. I imagine that we could agree that, in that child, there is a spark of ability, creativity and talent. Our job as politicians is to create the environment where that child can explore that spark and find out what it is.

As a former Minister of Education, Mr O’Dowd might actually agree that our education system, which provides the schools that are the environment where children find out who they are, perhaps, puts too much emphasis on one particular form of intelligence: the academic. We know that there are multiple intelligences. In this country, we produce people who are brilliant at all sorts of things; great artists, musicians, actors, scientists and sportspeople. A lot of people will recognise that George Best was the best footballer of his generation; a man who was born in east Belfast in the 1940s. What a lot of people fail to recognise is that, within two years of George Best's birth and two miles from where he was born, another sportsman was born. He was Mike Gibson, who the All Blacks, the best rugby players in the world, said was the best rugby footballer of his generation. Those men were born not only in a small regional capital city of the UK but in one quarter of that city.

I, certainly, commend to Members the thinking of the late professor of creativity Ken Robinson, who recognised that spark, which he called "the element", in children. We need to allow children to find that spark or element. We have to use the Budget to produce positive outcomes for people. We are debating the Budget in isolation. As I have said before and will say again, it should be a multi-annual Budget and should be linked very carefully and closely to a Programme for Government. The Programme for Government, which still sits in draft form, has an overarching purpose to improve the well-being of all our people. That is what we need to do.

The architect of outcomes-based accountability in programmes for government, Mark Friedman, makes it clear that trying hard is not good enough.

I know that the Minister is trying hard, and maybe all of the Ministers in the Executive and everybody in the House is trying hard, but that does not mean that we are succeeding. I think that, if you were to ask the hospitality sector, it would say that we are failing. Much more widely, there are many people in our society who are looking at us today and saying, "You are failing", and some may be even going as far as to say, "You have failed. There is no way back".

Mr Frew makes the point that we need to scrutinise, particularly because there is no Opposition in the Chamber and no second revising Chamber, as there is in London and Dublin. The media may play a much more important scrutinising role in this country than they do in the Republic, England, Scotland and Wales because there is no Opposition or second Chamber. This morning, I heard a well-known radio host deride the Executive because they went home at 9.00 pm last night without an agreement. He made the point that, if his team were working on an investigation, it would work through the night until it was resolved. Well, there is a problem with the analogy because I do not think that his team splits in two, with one half saying, "We are taking the investigation down this road", and the other half of the investigative team saying, "Oh no, we are going in exactly the opposite direction". Unfortunately, that seems to be what is happening with our Executive today. As Mr Allister has said, it appears that there is not even agreement on when to meet, never mind agreement on the substantive points on the agenda.

I hear a fear expressed that at least one party of the Executive is trying to run down the clock until Thursday night at midnight, which is when some of the regulations fall. If the clock runs down, the pubs reopen. Well, the Finance Minister and I could agree to go to lunch in a pub on Friday in his constituency or mine. There is just one problem: there will be no food. The pubs, hotels and restaurants need lead-in times, and the lead-in times have gone for reopening on Friday.

I say, as a final thought — one that, I think, is reflective of how many people are thinking about us in the Chamber today — that the two parties that run the Executive out of Stormont Castle have had 13 and a half years to find a way to rub along together. That is 13 and a half unbroken years to put their differences aside and to recognise that, when the votes are counted, they are not opponents any more but partners in government. Coming to a point where, after 13 and a half years, they still cannot overcome difficulties for the greater good of the people, difficult as it is, is not good enough.

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): I thank all of the Members who have spoken today in the debate and all of those who contributed to earlier debates. We have had a number of debates on the Estimates and at the earlier stages of this Budget Bill. I have listened with interest, and, while I do not agree with all of the arguments that were presented, it is useful for me, as Finance Minister, to hear those arguments. There are points that have been made that I would like to come back to.

A number of people mentioned the fiscal council; indeed, Mr Allister questioned the need for it. The fiscal council is part of the NDNA agreement, so it is a five-party Executive agreement that we will have a fiscal council. Therefore, as the Minister responsible, it is my obligation to provide a fiscal council, and that is what I intend to do. As I said — I think that it was during Question Time — I intended to bring a paper to the Executive in the not-too-distant future and had been working on it. Of course, that work, like a lot of normal Executive work, was held up because of the response to COVID issues, but that is clearly the intention.

My colleague John O'Dowd took Mr Frew to task on a number of issues, but there is clearly an internal issue with regard to his party leadership being worked out, once again, in his speech. I have no desire to get into that. Suffice it to say that we have given over £428 million to the Department for the Economy to support businesses. Of course, my Department has provided support to businesses as well. Mr Frew's attitude to additional fiscal powers is similar, given his kind of COVID-denying speech here, to that of his colleague Sammy Wilson.

4.15 pm

Mr Frew: Will the Minister give way?

Mr Murphy: Let me finish my point.

I remember that, when, as Finance Minister, he was asked about additional fiscal powers for the Assembly, he said, "I don't want any more fiscal powers because I'm a unionist". That, to me, betrays a colonial mindset where you think that people in Whitehall know better than us natives and therefore should take responsibility for our decisions. That is as well as being someone who —

Mr Frew: Will the Minister give way?

Mr Murphy: I will in a second, if you will allow me to finish my point.

That is as well as being somebody who is clearly opposed to the strategy that the Executive are taking in response to COVID. His remarks were not about the current restrictions and getting support out on the ground but about the entirety of the approach to the restrictions. It was in pointed language, but, as I say, that is more to do with a challenge to his party's leadership. The idea that he does not want fiscal powers falls into that category as well. I am happy to give way.

Mr Frew: I thank the Minister for giving way. Mr Deputy Speaker, is it right that the Minister would misinterpret my wording? I have never denied COVID; in fact, in my speech, I talked about it being a dangerous disease and virus. The reason that I would not want further fiscal powers for the House is that in front of me is one of the most dangerous political parties in western Europe.

Mr Murphy: In relation to COVID, clearly, the remarks that the Member has made consistently in the last number of debates have challenged the whole approach of the Executive, whose priority is to protect public health and protect lives. Clearly, he considers the necessary, if very difficult, choices that we have made — all five parties collectively in the Executive — as something with which he fundamentally disagrees.

Mr Frew also raised the issue of the delay in LPS payments. I accept that there was a delay, and I would have much preferred that the payments were out much more quickly. I answered the question at Question Time. There were issues because the scheme was perhaps not quite as straightforward as the one for the first round of payments. There were other data issues attached to that, but I am told that those have been resolved. As of yesterday, over 2,000 payments of over £7 million in support had been issued on the ground, and more will go out today. I am hopeful that that will then start to roll out accordingly.

Caoimhe Archibald raised the case of multi-annual Budgets, as did a number of Members. We have had that discussion here on a number of occasions. Members will know not only my desire but the Executive's desire for multi-annual Budgets, given the planning that we wish to do and the certainty that we wish to have about our finances. She also mentioned the issue of those excluded, particularly travel agents. The First Minister, the deputy First Minister and I met that sector a week or so ago, and we have undertaken to do some work with them. We recognise that they, like a number of other sectors, have not yet received support and that a way should have been found for them to receive support some time back. We have given a commitment to try to do that.

Dr Archibald raised questions about the funding held at the centre. Just for clarity, as I said, again at Question Time, we had held back £100 million for further interventions, and, as of last Thursday, we have an additional £400 million. That is a significant amount of money. The Executive will want to get down fairly quickly to ensure that the schemes that we have started to roll out get on the ground where they are needed and that other schemes and supports can get out where they are required in the next four months, because that money has to be spent in the current financial year.

Dr Archibald asked about the Shared Prosperity Fund. I regret that we still have no certainty about how much that will be. Of equal concern to us is the fact that the legislation being brought through Westminster — I note that it ran into some hiccup yesterday in the House of Lords — seems to give Whitehall the power to decide on and allocate programmes in relation to what would have been European funding. That is clearly not what was agreed or expected not just by us but by Scotland and Wales, and it is a matter of some concern for those Administrations also.

Dr Archibald asked about flexibilities, as did other Members, including Pat Catney and, perhaps, Matthew O'Toole and Andrew Muir.

Again, that issue is common to Scotland, Wales and us. We have pressed the Chief Secretary to the Treasury to agree additional flexibilities, including carrying forward unspent funding and the ability to switch capital to resource. That would allow us to manage our budgets more effectively within our overall funding. It is not about asking for additional funding; it is about managing the funding that we have. We have yet to hear from the Treasury on its consideration of that.

Dr Archibald asked a pertinent question about mental health funding. That is a key concern of the Executive as a whole, which is why we supported the establishment of a mental health champion. In June, the Executive allocated £1.5 million for the implementation of the mental health action plan. That includes a dedicated COVID-19 mental health response plan. There is collective concern across the Executive about that.

Matthew O'Toole has just arrived in the Chamber. I had written a series of responses to him. However, he must be a good man for an each-way bet in the bookies. Having outlined all his criticisms of the Executive, he tempered them by recognising all the challenges and the fact that the SDLP is very much part of the Executive, so I had to retreat from some of the areas of contention that I was going to raise with him in relation to that. He recognises that there are challenges. We have now had £2.8 billion of additional spend this year. We did not get that money at the start of the financial year and told to spend it over the financial year. We got it in chunks, unannounced. Sometimes, we learned from the media that we were getting additional money. Had we had this debate this time last week, we would have been operating on the basis that we had £100 million set aside to spend. Within two days, we have £500 million set aside. Matthew O'Toole argues for much more planning and foresight — a strategic approach. I am not complaining about the additional money; I am happy to have it. The problem of trying to spend it is much better than the problem of not having enough. However, he has to understand, as others do, that that makes strategic planning almost impossible. We want to allocate the money to where it is needed most.

After Mr O'Toole had spoken, Mr Muir raised the point that the most unforgivable thing that we can do is have money unspent. Those two things compete: strategic, long-term planning; and ensuring that you spend the additional tranches of money that come at you unexpectedly. I have no doubt that, if I stand here on 1 April talking about money that we have returned to the Treasury, there will be a litany of criticism of the Executive. That is not an excuse; it is a recognition of the circumstances. I agree that, in the longer term, we need budgetary plans attached to an agreed Programme for Government. That is why we have argued, as the Member knows, for multi-annual Budgets that will fit with more long-term, strategic planning. In the circumstances that we find ourselves in, it has been practically impossible to do that. I agree, as I have said to him on many occasions, that we need a fiscal commission as well as the fiscal council. We have been working side by side on those. Propositions for both are well worked up, and we intend to bring them forward very soon.

Matthew O'Toole raised questions about borrowing. We have not yet utilised the RRI borrowing in 2020-21. It can be used only for capital expenditure, and the current assessment is that the existing capital budget will be sufficient for Departments this year. He will know that we lost at least the first quarter — arguably, the first six months — of construction. If we asked to borrow but were unable to spend the capital that we have, questions would be asked, but we will continue to monitor that position.

I thank Pat Catney for some of the points that he made in relation to the Department, and, indeed, the work of the Committee. He asked about NIW and its funding. I agree that every Department is challenged. The £15 million was, I am sure, welcome to NIW. However, the Department for Infrastructure has had an increase of almost 19% in its capital budget this year, which is substantial. It is for the Minister to prioritise how to spend that within her Department. I have no doubt that she is challenged. John O'Dowd remarked that the Infrastructure Minister had said that it was no secret that her Department does not get the allocations that she wants.

No Department gets the allocation that they want. A 19% increase in capital with an almost 10% increase in resource and £180 million given to it over this year on top of that is a substantial amount of money for any Minister to be going along with. You then get to the question of what they decide to do with that money and how they prioritise that.

John O'Dowd raised questions about the certainty that we want for next year's funding envelope. He knows that we will continue to press the Treasury for that amount. We are waiting on the outcome of the comprehensive spending review. It should have happened over the summer, but it has been pushed back into the autumn. The later it comes, the more difficult it becomes for us to do our consultation exercise that we want to do in order to afford effective scrutiny to next year's Budget. That did not happen this year, and we recognise that. The later it is that that amount is revealed to us, the more compressed that consultation exercise becomes.

Jim Allister raised a number of points. He criticised the need to be nimble. I agree with him. This emergency has highlighted that. In certain circumstances, it has highlighted weaknesses that we probably always knew were there. He referred to one business that was in touch with him, but he also has to recognise that we were able to turn schemes around in days to get them out, albeit there were delays in getting the data to get the money paid, and that under previous Executives those schemes would have taken months to turn around and get out the door. There has been a degree of nimbleness and a responsiveness, certainly in some Departments. Undoubtedly, a five-party coalition has made that more difficult, but I can look at the Scottish Government, which have a single-party government, and see that they have some of the same difficulties and criticisms that we have about getting support out on the ground. Wales is the same. In the South, a three-party coalition is having its difficulties. That is not unique to our system of government, to be quite honest.

If we can get this all spent by the end of the financial year, and we have the bulk of it spent, we will spend £2.8 billion on top of the budgets that we already had to spend. That is a significant challenge. To get schemes out in the middle of that, with people off work, working from home and all the disruption that that brings is a significant challenge.

I agree with him and with Paul Frew about the challenge role of the MLAs. He does not have to do this, but some people try to present themselves as being opposed to the decisions that the Executive make while not recognising that, in fact, their party in the Executive voted for the very decisions that are being taken. Absolutely, there should be a challenge function in Committees and in the Chamber, but people cannot ride two horses at the one time.

I recognise that there is a challenge in the scrutiny of the monitoring rounds because you have a bidding process coming in very late from Departments, and that money has to be turned around within a certain time and allocated. The Committees have an ability to ask departmental officials for details on spending areas in not only the Budget allocation but in the monitoring round allocations. While that does not, perhaps, allow the entire Assembly to do that prior to a monitoring round, it can nonetheless be carried out by Committees.

He is also an opponent of fiscal power. It is fair enough if he thinks that he would not like to see the Executive put their hands in the pockets of businesses, but he is quite content for Tories such as Boris Johnson, Michael Gove and all those characters to put their hands in the pockets of businesses here and decide what to do with it in order to give tax breaks to their friends over there. He is content for that to happen.

Gerry Carroll again raised questions. He made the point that he is not here to present acceptable politics. I absolutely get that, and he should challenge as much as he wants to, but he also has to present accuracy. When he says that the Executive have spent much more on businesses than we have on workers, that is not true. Setting aside the furlough scheme, which was done by Westminster, was for workers and probably outweighs all that we have spent —.

Mr Stalford: Will the Minister give way?

Mr Murphy: I will just finish this point, and then I will give way. The Health budget, the budget that is going through Communities for vulnerable people and the Education budget far outweigh the money that we have given to Economy. If he thinks that it is his responsibility to present unacceptable politics, and I congratulate him on that, he has a responsibility to present accurate figures.

I will give way on that point.

Mr Stalford: I thank the Minister for giving way. On that point, the Member from West Belfast talks about giving money to businesses. Businesses do not exist in isolation; they are made up of people. They provide jobs for people that those people will have to go back to.

Does the Minister agree that, if we were to follow the logic of the Member for West Belfast of permanent or semi-permanent lockdown, that would make it more and more difficult to revive those jobs once we come out of the crisis?

4.30 pm

Mr Murphy: There are difficult challenges to be faced by any Executive. Obviously, we have to act on the basis of health advice. The vast majority of our businesses are small enterprises that employ very few people. They are not multi-property stores. They are not huge businesses. The vast bulk of the businesses that we have in this part of the world are small businesses.

The fact is that Mr Carroll is not correct. The fact is that the last Executive did not spend 10 years begging for a reduction in corporation tax; it was part of a one-off agreement at Stormont House. The fact is that the health workers' strike pay is not being held up by the Executive. I allocated that money to the Health Department months ago, and it has not been paid by the Health Department. As I say, the Member can present the politics that he wants to present. He is absolutely entitled to do so, and I support him in doing that. I support his challenge in relation to austerity and other matters, but he has to be accurate when he speaks about that.

On Mike Nesbitt's points, I am old enough to remember Mike Gibson. He was a very classy full back, as I recall.

Mr Nesbitt: A centre.

Mr Murphy: A centre, yes. I remember him playing. Mr Nesbitt characterises the difficulties that we have in the Executive as being simply the product of the DUP and Sinn Féin. That is fair enough; he is in a different party. A lot of parties here present themselves as being in opposition and in the Executive at the same time. I always think that the danger of trying to ride two horses is that you fall off in between. I was prepared and ready to have an Executive meeting at 9.00 pm last night. My party or the other parties in the Executive did not call off an Executive meeting at 9.00 pm last night. I have been prepared all day, even though I have been on duty in the Chamber, to go into an Executive meeting. I have not been able to get an Executive meeting. I am ready to do business in the Executive any time soon.

I will finish with this point, which is probably a more optimistic note. Mr Nesbitt referred to children who might be born today: as I was answering questions in the Chamber earlier, I learnt that I had a grandson born today [Applause.] I am very conscious of our responsibility not just to the next generation but to the one beyond that. I ask Members to continue to support the legislation so that we can address all of the key issues, not only now but into the future. I ask Members to support the Bill.

Mr Deputy Speaker (Mr McGlone): Thank you. It would be remiss of me if we did not put on record our congratulations to you and the family, Minister. I hope that mother and baby are very well.

Before we proceed to the Question, I advise Members that, as this is a Budget Bill, the motion requires cross-community support.

Question put and agreed to.

Resolved (with cross-community support):

That the Budget (No. 3) Bill [NIA 09/17-22] do now pass.

Adjourned at 4.33 pm.

Department of Finance

Extension of the Financial Support Agreed for Derry City and Strabane District to all Areas

Published on Tuesday 20 October 2020.

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): I wish to provide Members of decisions taken by the Executive on 15 October 2020 on the provision of financial assistance to be paid to businesses most directly affected by the essential actions outlined to the Assembly by the First and deputy First Minister on 14 October 2020. They indicated then that the Executive would be working on supports as a matter of priority.

Support Scheme

This Statement provides details of a first support scheme.

The Executive previously agreed a financial support package for Derry City and Strabane District Council area. The regulations (The Financial Assistance (Coronavirus) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020) to allow the financial assistance to be paid to businesses in Derry and Strabane were laid on Wednesday. Those regulations are directly linked to The Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No. 2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. Consequential amendments to the Health regulations will continue to be linked with the financial support scheme. The scheme opened to applications on 14 October.

The Executive has now agreed that the scheme agreed for Derry and Strabane should be extended to all districts with effect from Monday 19 October. I will now ensure that amendments are made to the Financial Regulations at the earliest possible opportunity this week to incorporate the revised levels of support and to link with the revised restrictions that came into operation on Friday evening.

Eligibility

The definitive list of all the revised restrictions are in Amendment No 9 of the Health Protection Regulations made on 16 October 2020.

The Department's Scheme seeks to support those businesses using commercial premises now significantly restricted in use or now forced to close directly by these new Regulations. These include:

- Cafes, pubs and restaurants that are required to close or limit their services to a takeaway service instead;

- Hotels, guest houses and registered Bed and Breakfasts;
- Close contact services detailed in the Health Protection Regulations which use commercial premises;
- Indoor visitor attractions;
- Other businesses which under the Health Protection Regulations are required to cease to carry on that business or service, such as; campsites and caravan parks for touring caravans, cinemas, museums and galleries, bingo halls, funfairs, inflatable parks, indoor amusement arcades and skating rinks.

The Department will look carefully at every application; it is not possible to outline every scenario at this stage given that the new Health Regulations only came into force on Friday 16 October.

I am keen to roll out the current scheme to all areas so the majority of businesses affected by the new restrictions get financial support as quickly as possible.

Levels of Support

The Executive has further agreed that we double the levels of financial assistance made to qualifying businesses. The new rates will be as follows:

£800 per week for businesses in properties with a Net Annual Value of £15,000 or less and businesses that are joint occupant of a property with any NAV;

£1,200 per week for medium sized businesses in properties with a Net Annual Value between £15,001 and £51,000; and

£1,600 per week for businesses in properties with a Net Annual Value of £51,001 or more.

Businesses in the Derry and Strabane Council area who have already applied to the scheme do not need to re-apply - they will automatically receive the higher payment.

Financial Implications

The costs of the scheme for 4 weeks are estimated at £35 million. DoF will deliver the scheme through its Land and Property Services and DoF has been allocated £35m for this purpose.

Other support

The extension of this scheme across the North means that it can be implemented almost immediately. It opened for applications on Monday 19 October.

The construction of the financial assistance scheme – which is linked directly to the Health Protection regulations – means that it is not a suitable vehicle to deliver support to those businesses and sectors which have been indirectly affected by the restrictions.

I know there are many businesses who haven't benefitted from previous support schemes. I have encouraged Executive colleagues to urgently bring forward proposals for sectors they have responsibility for.

COVID-19: Update

Published at 5.00 pm on Friday 23 October 2020.

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): In this update to Members I am pleased to be able to report that the rate of increase in Covid-19 cases has slowed from last week.

Testing has remained stable over that period, however there has been a progressive rise in COVID hospital patients, which today now stands at 296. We are now very close to peak levels experienced during wave 1 and indeed some individual Trusts have well exceeded the level experienced by them in April.

Unfortunately the spread of the virus has caused serious disruption to our Health and Social Care system. Whilst we know much more about treatment for Covid-19 now than we did in March, and detailed surge plans are in place across each of the local Trusts, with many staff either infected or being required to self-isolate there has been an unavoidable disruption to some front line services.

I am deeply concerned however that some cancer procedures have been postponed. I have always made clear that I expected to see red flag and cancer procedures protected as much as feasibly possible. From next Monday I have asked that all patients whose cancer surgery was cancelled in recent days to be provided with a new date.

The ability to protect these urgent services, and provide the appropriate post-operative care, however is very dependent on the number of Covid-19 hospital admissions, the demand for ICU beds and the availability of specialised staff. That is why stamping down on Covid-19 infection rates is now more critical than ever as reducing our rates helps us to protect those cancer and other vital services.

Whilst we are sadly reporting a number of deaths each day now, and R remains above 1 both for cases and hospital admissions, it does appear that Northern Ireland may be beginning to turn the corner on this wave. The R number has fallen slightly since last week. This is likely to reflect both the impact of the Northern Ireland wide household restrictions and the wider restrictions in Derry City and Strabane Local Government District area.

The percentage of positive tests has also begun to plateau, while remaining at a high level. Assuming that current restrictions reduce R to less than 1, Professor Young has advised that we expect some indication of an improvement in these measures in the next week.

There has been an increase in ICU occupancy which now sits at 34 and in the context of the increase in hospital admissions and inpatients, we have now moved beyond the lag period between increased case and pressure on the health and social care system. As a result of the recent strict measures taken and as long as public adherence remains high, my Department expects that admissions, bed occupancy and ICU admissions will peak in the next two weeks.

It is essential therefore that everyone takes all the necessary precautions to look after themselves and others.

Shielding for 'clinically extremely vulnerable' people has been paused since 31 July 2020. The Chief Medical Officer and his team have looked at this position again in light of the increased numbers of cases of Coronavirus in Northern Ireland.

Since shielding was first advised, a number of important changes have taken place in our approach to managing coronavirus and reducing its transmission. This includes a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, Covid secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene.

After careful consideration, the Chief Medical Officer and his team has concluded that shielding should remain paused. This position will, however, be kept under review and my Department will not hesitate to update our shielding advice if we need to.

Department for Communities

COVID-19 Culture, Languages, Arts and Heritage Support Programme 2020-21

Published at 12.00 noon on Monday 26 October 2020.

Ms Ni Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): My Department has been working at pace to bring forward funding schemes to support the culture, languages, arts and heritage sectors. I recognise the profound and pressing challenges for organisations and individuals in the sectors and have worked hard to ensure the allocation of funds by the Executive to address these.

I have already approved the release of £3million to Arts Council to manage oversubscription to their current funding scheme for individual creatives in recognition of the significant hardship that self-employed and freelance individuals are currently facing.

I am today releasing a further £15.75million to Arts Council, and heritage and indigenous language partner bodies. Details of how to apply to Arts Council's support fund for organisations and to a Heritage Recovery Fund will be available from Wednesday 28 October 2020.

I will announce further allocations in the coming weeks, with the aim of dispersing the total Executive Covid-19 funding allocation of £29million by 31 March 2021.

This paper sets out the rationale, further details of the approach to supporting these vital sectors, and the wide ranging benefits they deliver to our society, communities and individuals.

Value of these Sectors

The culture, languages, arts and heritage sectors make a substantial contribution to our local economy, our quality of life, health and wellbeing, and in shaping our standing as a great place to live, work, visit and invest.

These sectors have been disproportionately impacted by the pandemic, and we are at risk of losing a quarter of the GVA they generate, as well important skills and of our valued cultural infrastructure crumbling.

These sectors need to be supported urgently, not just to protect economic and social benefits, but also in recognition that they have a vital role to play in helping us all understand the impact of the pandemic, reconnect with one another and find ways to emerge from this crisis fresh and refocussed, ready to tackle social challenges.

Engagement

In developing a policy framework to support these sectors, my Department has engaged widely with partners across central and local government, as well as arm's length bodies and people from the sector, to ensure that funding can be distributed quickly, fairly and in ways which maximise its impact.

Release of £3million

Arts Council are already delivering a £5.6million Covid-19 Creative Support Fund which has so far opened for calls for applications from arts organisations and creative individuals in two tranches. The second tranche call for applications from creative individuals was significantly over-subscribed and so I have approved the release of £3million from the £29million Programme budget to provide much needed support.

Support Schemes

My Department has now finalised proposals and approvals for funding schemes to support these sectors with the remaining £26million budget.

All proposals are premised on demonstration of need and ability to deliver defined outcomes now and in the longer term.

The majority of the budget will be used to meet immediate needs, with a focus on stabilising sectoral organisations and supporting self-employed individuals working in these sectors. The remaining funds will be allocated to new projects to create momentum and begin to deliver social renewal with a new focus on tackling poverty, social exclusion, isolation and deprivation.

Delivery partners' administration costs to manage these grant schemes will be deducted from scheme allocations.

All schemes will include proportionate due diligence to manage the potential for duplication with other funding sources and ensure funding awards are prioritised to achieve value for money.

Sectoral Organisations

New funding programmes to support the culture, arts and heritage sectors will be available from 28 October 2020.

Sectoral organisations which apply for support will be expected to demonstrate that their primary purpose is to create, present or support across a range of areas, including visual, performing and traditional arts, music, community arts, creative industries, heritage, and independent museums, libraries and cinema amongst others.

Commercial organisations, including those which not have previously received public funding, will be eligible to apply for support provided they are viable and their primary purpose relates to these sectors. However, they will compete for funding with non-profit organisations by demonstrating the contribution they make, and the benefits they deliver to our wider creative infrastructure and communities

Individuals

A further call for applications to the Arts Council scheme to support individuals will also open shortly and will provide support to those who have not yet received funding from previous calls. Individuals will be required to demonstrate that a significant proportion of their income is derived from creative activity and that as a result of this having been lost, are facing financial hardship.

This third tranche of funding for individual creatives will include higher awards for deaf and disabled creatives who have additional support needs.

Support will also be available to individuals working in the heritage sector.

Indigenous Languages Culture and Heritage

I am also today releasing funding to support individuals, organisations and groups working in our indigenous languages sectors.

This will help to support cultural development, for example music and tuition; develop ways to promote communities' cultural and linguistic heritage; provide local community services through the medium of their indigenous languages; and help develop partnership working (including urban and rural joint projects) within their communities to focus on social renewal and outreach for a wider audience.

Partner bodies will release details of funding support on 4 November 2020.

Local Government Sectoral Organisations

Allocations will shortly be made to local councils to provide them with funding to support these sectors and the arts and heritage organisations for which they are responsible – this will also ensure a geographical spread to the support.

Renewal Projects

I am keen to catalyse new, renewal activity in addition to stabilising these sectors and this will be achieved through allocating the remainder of the Programme budget to new project ideas.

The Community Foundation in partnership with the Rural Community Network will shortly be calling for applications from organisations – not limited to those traditionally working in this space – for proposals for culture, language, arts and heritage projects.

The University of Atypical will expand their successful Deaf & Disabled Artists Programme and the Architectural Heritage Fund will expand their successful Community Enterprise Catalyst scheme.

Funding will also shortly be allocated to National Museums, Libraries and to our Creative Learning Centres via NI Screen, to deliver partnership projects with the community to reach new audiences. I will also allocate additional funding to Neighbourhood Renewal Partnerships to allow communities to take forward cultural, language, arts and heritage projects to spark momentum at community level.

Cultural Strategy

This emergency has highlighted the need for a more strategic and sustainable approach to the sector. I have asked my officials to develop a Culture Arts and Heritage Strategy to set out an ambitious vision for how these sectors must adapt in the post-Covid-19 landscape in order to thrive and deliver longer term social and economic benefits. I will bring further proposals on this forward in due course.

I hope that you will join me in welcoming this much needed investment for the culture, languages, arts and heritage sectors.

Department of Health

Clinical Concerns within Urology at Southern Health and Social Care Trust

Published at 12.00 pm on Tuesday 27 October 2020.

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): The Southern Health and Social Care Trust notified my Department on 31 July 2020 that it had identified clinical concerns in relation to the work of a consultant urologist who no longer works in the health service.

An internal exercise was immediately initiated by the Trust and is ongoing in order to ascertain the number of patients whose care may need to be reviewed. At this stage, a small number of patients have been contacted in this regard.

As Health Minister, I am extremely concerned about any issue that involves the potential for patients to come to harm within our Health and Social Care system. However, it is important to stress that the vast majority of urology patients in the Southern Trust will be unaffected by the issues that have come to light. I want to assure all patients and their families that the investigation into these matters will be comprehensive, and that anyone whose care needs to be reviewed will be contacted as quickly as possible.

My Department has been kept updated by the Southern Trust regarding progress with this exercise, and I intend to make an oral statement in the Assembly as soon as practicable in order to provide further details about this matter.

My Department's immediate priority is to ensure that the Southern Trust completes this initial phase of work in the weeks ahead in order to minimise and prevent any potential risk or harm to patients.

My Department has therefore established a Urology Assurance Group to provide external oversight to the Southern Trust's ongoing process, and the future management plan for the issues arising from it. The Assurance Group comprises senior officials from the Department of Health, Health and Social Care Board, Public Health Agency, Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority, as well as the Southern Trust. I will publish final terms of reference for the Assurance Group alongside my Assembly statement.

If any urology patient or their carer has concerns about their treatment and would like information they should contact the Southern Trust on 0800 4148520.

2020-21 October Monitoring and COVID-19 Funding

Published on Thursday 29 October 2020.

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): I wish to provide Members with an update on the second monitoring round of 2020-21 which has taken place alongside decisions taken in response to the Executive's new COVID-19 restrictions coming into effect.

COVID-19 Response

Covid Funding Available

In response to COVID-19 the Chancellor, on 9 October, announced further measures which increased the amount of funding guaranteed to the Executive in 2020-21 to £2.4 billion. This provided an additional £200 million Resource DEL for allocation.

The Health Minister has provided his assessment of the need within his department. Of the £600 million held centrally £526.7 million is needed for rebuild, the full expected cost of PPE and the response to a second surge. This leaves £73.3 million for other COVID pressures.

Departments have declared reduced requirements against previous COVID-19 allocations and details are provided in the tables provided with this statement. This makes £25.6 million Resource DEL available for reallocation.

My Written Statement on 20 October provided details of financial support costing £35 million. Since then the Executive has agreed an allocation to the Department of Education of £1.4 million to provide support to those who receive free school meals over the extended half term break. The Executive has agreed the proposals brought forward by the Economy Minister for schemes to help the tourism and hospitality sectors and the recently self-employed and for a Business Support Scheme. £60 million has been set aside and held centrally for these schemes.

The total amount of funding as a result remaining for allocation is £202.5 million.

I had previously advised that funding was being held centrally pending proposals from relevant department to provide support for other sectors. From that funding £7.3 million has been allocated to the Department of Health to ensure that hospices can continue with the critical role they play in the delivery of health services. £25 million has been earmarked for schemes to support the bus, coach, haulage and taxi industries with £19 million allocated to the Department for Infrastructure now and a further £6 million held centrally pending finalisation of costs. £10 million previously set aside to provide support to the airport sector and £12.9 million for other sectors continues to be held while proposals are developed.

October Monitoring COVID-19 Bids

Departments have submitted COVID-19 bids totalling £213.4 million Resource DEL and £32.4 million Capital DEL, details are provided in Table F.

The Executive has decided that it would not be prudent to allocate all the available funding at this stage and is holding £100 million in reserve to provide support should it be necessary for further restrictions.

COVID-19 Allocations

Further allocations to provide immediate support have been agreed by the Executive and these are shown in Table H to this statement.

The Department for Communities will receive £36.5 million to provide £15 million for Local Council support in recognition of the lost income across council amenities and £15 million to provide support for all levels of sport. £3 million to the Emergency Community Support Fund will ensure the voluntary community sector can continue their key role in providing direct community support while £3.5 million will provide much needed food packages to the vulnerable in our society.

In addition to the £60 million held for support schemes for Business, Tourism and the recently self-employed, the Department for the Economy also receives £2.8 million for the Further Education sector to continue the free school meals provision and in recognition of lost income.

The Department of Education will receive £49.4 million for a range of measures related to restarting education in a safe environment and using blended learning, and to respond to the changing circumstances brought about by COVID-19.

The Department for Infrastructure receives £10 million to help alleviate pressures as a result of lost income.

The Executive Office receives £3.1 million for the communications work it has taken forward as the Executive responds to COVID-19.

October Monitoring Funding

£28.1 million Resource DEL, £24.4 million Capital DEL and £115.2 million Financial Transactions Capital DEL was available to address the more routine pressures in October Monitoring.

Central Issues

Changes to a number of central items have had a minor impact on the funding available, with £2.0 million Resource DEL and £1.2 million Capital DEL made available.

Reduced Requirements

Reduced requirements totalling £26.0 million Resource DEL, £30.8 million Capital DEL and £8.1 million Financial Transactions Capital DEL have been identified by departments. However, two adjustments are necessary to these amounts to come to the amount available for allocation. The Capital DEL amount for Shared Education is not available for reallocation bringing Capital DEL available for allocation to £24.4 million. The Financial Transactions Capital easement against a COVID allocation due to the nature of that funding will be added to the overall FTC amount available for reallocation.

Full details of all reduced requirements are included in the tables provided with this Statement.

Allocations

Departments submitted bids totalling £132.6 million Resource DEL and £23.0 million Capital DEL. I have allocated October Monitoring funding of £28.0 million Resource DEL and £36.0 million Capital DEL.

The Department of Education receives £12.8 million for schools maintenance and to fund pressures within the Education Authority including Special Educational Needs.

In addition to the £534.0 million required from the centrally held funding I am providing a further £6.3 million non Covid funding to the Department of Health. This will allow for the implementation of the Review Body on Doctors and Dentists Remuneration recommendations.

The Department of Justice receives £4.5 million to provide certainty as we approach the end of the Transition period and exit the EU.

I have allocated £4.1 million to the Northern Ireland Assembly Commission for increased costs in relation amended determination for Member's allowances.

I am allocating £0.3 million to the Executive Office for the Social Investment Fund.

Turning to Capital DEL I am allocating £32.4 million to the Department of Health for COVID related costs. There is no specific COVID funding for capital works so this allocation is from the general October Monitoring funding.

The Department for Infrastructure will receive £3.6 million to fund an increased level of enabling works for the Belfast Transport hub and essential road maintenance.

I have allocated £1.1 million Capital DEL to the Department of Justice for PSNI.

Ring-fenced Financial Transactions Capital Funding

Allocations of ring-fenced Financial Transactions Capital totalling £39.3 million have been made to the Department for Communities in this round for Co-Ownership pending the Office for National Statistics decision on the classification of Registered Housing Associations in Northern Ireland. £32.2 million to the Executive Office will provide £30 million for the next tranche to the Investment Fund.

Ring Fenced Resource DEL

Allocations have been made to the Department of Education £0.1 million and £1.8 million to the Department for the Economy for increased depreciation costs in the Further Education Sector.

Flexibility

Departments in this round had full flexibility to reallocate internal budgets to meet emerging pressures. The outcome of this is shown in the tables to this statement.

October Monitoring Outcome

At the conclusion of October Monitoring all Resource DEL funding has been allocated and Capital DEL is overcommitted by £12.7 million. This level of overcommitment is manageable at this stage of the year. The Executive continues to work to provide support to those that need it as a result of COVID-19 and I will continue to keep the Assembly informed of funding for further measures as this is agreed.

COVID-19: Update

Published at 5.00 pm on Friday 30 October 2020.

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): While some welcome progress has been made in the past two weeks, it is essential that this is not only maintained but accelerated.

Over the last week, the number of cases has continued to plateau and has begun to decline slightly, however I would caution the rate of decline is slow and the trajectory remains uncertain.

R is now likely to be slightly below 1 for cases, around 1 for admissions and above 1 for hospital inpatients, but has fallen somewhat since last week. This is likely to reflect the initial impact of the Northern Ireland wide restrictions and the earlier restrictions in Derry City and Strabane, which is no longer the Local Government District with the highest 7 day incidence.

The extent to which our recent progress is maintained will be a central consideration when it comes to deciding what measures may need to be in place at the end of the current four week period of restrictions.

At this time, as we look around to the experience of our neighbours and those on mainland Europe, any expectation that we can return to any kind of normality from November 13 would be entirely misplaced.

What we cannot countenance is allowing case numbers to surge once again, through complacency, or poor levels of compliance with public health advice, or premature relaxation of all restrictions.

Further enhancements to the contact tracing service have an important role to play in the weeks and months ahead, but this must not be viewed as a panacea. Members will be aware that other jurisdictions, with contact tracing systems that have been compared favourably to ours, are now in even stricter lockdown situations.

Our health and social care system and its dedicated staff remain under intense and unprecedented pressure.

The welfare of patients – both Covid and non-Covid - and of staff will continue to be the overriding priority. I once again pay tribute to staff at all levels of health and social care.

I also want to underline the toll the current pressures are taking so many of them. Exhaustion – both physical and mental – is a very real concern.

There is only so much we can ask of staff and this will be to the forefront of my mind as we consider next steps after November 13.

The health service's staffing challenges are well documented and long-standing. They certainly long predate this pandemic. Northern Ireland is by no means unique in this regard.

Significant numbers of people are coming forward through the current workforce appeal, with over 9,000 expressions of interest so far resulting in almost 5,000 formal applications. Whilst the clinical applications are prioritised however I would thank each and every person who has come forward, as well as all those that remain in post or on call from the first appeal.

Putting our permanent workforce on a stable footing however is a long-term task. It takes years to train up specialist staff.

As things stand at present, an already overstretched workforce is being further depleted by Covid-related absences.

A health system that was already fragile has been further weakened and is now facing into winter with an additional 354 Covid patients to treat.

There has been a progressive rise in COVID hospital patients which we expect to plateau in the next week at levels significantly above wave 1. Any subsequent decline is likely to be slow and will depend on how cases fall.

While strenuous efforts are being made to maintain non-Covid services, this will not always be possible – especially when increasing numbers of ICU patients require the redeployment of specialist staff from other posts. There are herculean efforts being undertaken every single day by our clinicians to try to protect the most urgent services, including cancer surgeries, and in the event of cancellations I am assured every feasible option is being explored to reschedule them as quickly as possible.

The health and social care system needs ongoing support across society at this critical juncture.

That means all of us doing all we can to stop Covid spreading – cutting down our contacts with each other, maintaining social distancing, wearing a face covering and downloading the Stop Covid-19 app.

COVID-19: Update

Published at 5.00 pm on Friday 6 November 2020.

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): As I have emphasised before, our health and social care system is facing into its most challenging ever winter.

Let me once again publicly thank everyone who works within it. Our society will never be able to repay the debt we owe to health and social care staff.

We only have one workforce and they are battling against relentless daily pressures, while already exhausted. This has been a deeply distressing and difficult 9 months and we must never underestimate the physical and emotional strain it has placed on our staff.

In order to sustain sufficient ICU capacity to care for critically ill Covid and non Covid patients painstaking and complex work continues.

As of today there are 93 patients in critical care across Northern Ireland, of which 49 are Covid positive. The Trusts have capacity across their critical care units totalling 119 critical care beds. The Belfast Trust has a further 10 fully occupied cardiac surgical ICU beds, giving a total capacity across the region of 129 ICU beds.

This scaling up of ICU requirements inevitably and unavoidably comes at a cost. Even with revised staffing ratios, expanding the number of ICU beds requires the redeployment of experienced and specialist staff away from other parts of the health service.

ICU patient numbers are monitored on a daily basis in liaison with Critical Care Network Northern Ireland (CCaNNI). Should it be deemed possible to scale back ICU bed numbers in agreement with CCaNNI, this would allow further urgent or emergency surgery to be progressed.

Whilst some procedures are unfortunately being cancelled, in many cases they are being quickly rescheduled. Other elective services, many of which were cancelled in the first wave, are continuing.

Thankfully hospital admissions have begun to decline slowly over the last week, but remain much higher than the peak ever experienced in wave 1.

The best way to protect non-Covid services is to stop Covid spreading and thankfully over the last week, the number of cases has continued to decline. R is definitely below 1 for cases, around 1 for admissions and likely to be above one for hospital inpatients and ICU occupancy.

The fall in cases is undoubtedly as a result of the momentous efforts and sacrifices being made by you, the people of Northern Ireland. I do not underestimate for one moment the strains that the restrictions, as well as the continued prevalence of the virus, is having on the ordinary day to day lives of our citizens, and the economic damage this virus is inflicting.

For our health and social care workers, our older people, our other clinically vulnerable citizens and society as a whole we all have an obligation to do all that we can to push down infection rates and keep them low. That's a duty on us all as individuals in our daily lives and on those of us making decisions around the Executive table.

This week I submitted a paper to the Executive, informed by the latest medical and scientific advice, and I hope that early next week a decision can be made. If we do not take action we almost certainly will have to intervene more significantly if we are to avoid our health service being overwhelmed.

The best way to navigate through these dark days is to strictly follow public health advice – for the sake of ourselves and others and for the sake of the health service and its workforce.

That's how we build hope and optimism – by sticking together as a community and continuing to do the right thing.

There are grounds for wider hope on the horizon. Work is continuing on the development of mass testing with fast turnaround times; hugely important advances have been made towards a successful vaccine; treatments will continue to improve. We should be in a much better place by next Spring.

This winter will be undoubtedly a tough slog, I will not sugar-coat the situation nor offer false hope or assurance.

There are no quick fixes, easy solutions or overarching strategies that are going to make this virus go away. My priority will be to ensure that the health service is not overwhelmed, with all the consequences that will entail.

Let me emphasise once again that I share the concerns voiced by other Members about economic consequences of this pandemic. The Executive rightly has to consider all potential interventions in the round, taking into account the full societal implications. We are taking the most difficult and complex decisions of our political lives.

It is, of course, my duty to stand up for the health service – for staff, for all those who receive and need treatment and care.

It should always be remembered that an overwhelmed health service would be detrimental to our economy and society.

We can all play our part in avoiding that nightmare and I am confident that we will.

Decisions of the Executive on COVID-19, 12 November 2020

Published on Thursday 12 November 2020.

The First Minister and deputy First Minister: We are writing to provide Members with an update on today's decisions taken by the Executive to help mitigate the spread of the COVID-19 virus.

The Executive has agreed the following:

- Close contact services including driving instructors will reopen by appointment on 20 November;
- Hospitality will reopen on a graduated basis, with unlicensed premises such as cafes and coffee shops opening on 20 November, with restricted opening hours to 8.00pm. This will not include the purchase or consumption of alcohol on such premises;
- Support will be provided for mitigations to reduce risk within the hospitality sector, including improved ventilation and requirements for the recording of customer information for contact tracing purposes;
- Pubs and bars will be permitted to sell sealed off sales on 20 November;
- The remaining restrictions, which came into being on 16 October, would be extended and come to an end at midnight on 26 November, leaving all elements of hospitality including hotels able to open on 27 November;
- A vaccination programme will be rolled out from as early as possible in December in line with England, initially targeting priority groups such as health care staff, care homes and those with underlying vulnerabilities;
- Ongoing preparation for introduction of rapid testing at the earliest opportunity;
- Additional financial support for affected businesses; and
- A strengthened adherence/compliance working group, which will work to assist and to mitigate risk in the opening up of the hospitality businesses.

Department of Health

COVID-19: Update

Published at 5.00 pm on Friday 13 November 2020.

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): This has not been a good week for the Executive. Whilst the pandemic has undoubtedly confronted us with many immensely difficult decisions, the people and businesses of Northern Ireland deserved so much better than the leadership and political stewardship they were given.

There is huge work required to repair the damage that has been caused but I would urge Ministers to look forward to the very real issues at hand rather than repeat the arguments that have been exhausted over recent days.

At the forefront of all our minds is that the pandemic remains an immediate and serious public health threat.

We must also remember why we decide to take the decisions we do. On the 16th October the Executive introduced a range of restrictions for two crucial reasons - firstly, to limit the transmission of Covid and secondly, to avoid an immediate risk to our Health and Social Care system and all the staff that work within it becoming overwhelmed.

There is clear evidence that the restrictions have proven effective in bringing down the value of R. As a result of the ongoing personal and collective sacrifices of so many of our people and businesses over the last week, the number of cases has continued to decline, albeit at a slower rate than during the previous week. Rt for confirmed cases has however started to increase and is now between 0.8-0.9. We should not underestimate the danger presented by that.

Worryingly it would appear that as a result of the relatively higher value of Rt in over 60's, hospital admissions remain at a higher than anticipated level.

The numbers of hospital inpatients are not falling, and instead have risen from 407 last Friday to 443 today. Whilst the number of ICU inpatients and deaths remain tragically high, but relatively stable, I remain concerned about the overall capacity of our hospital system.

So it was in the recognition that any relaxation this week would have likely put upward pressure on R, and starting from a high baseline of ongoing community transmission and significant numbers of hospital inpatients, the Executive extended the restrictions.

Whilst there are grounds to be optimistic for the future given the huge advancements that are being made in regards to a vaccine and improved treatments, I am becoming fearful of just how challenging the next number of weeks and months will be.

Whilst R has been brought down, it is now heading in the wrong direction and creeping up once again. I suspect the political wrangling this week has also caused untold damage to the public confidence and understanding of the current restrictions.

Moving forward there is very limited headroom without quickly reaching the point where the hospital system, which is already now operating at over capacity, struggles to cope. So as the Executive is already well aware, if I have to recommend further interventions to prevent vital services being overwhelmed, I will not hesitate to do so.

Of course, it must be underlined again, that everyone across society has a vital part to play in stopping the spread of the virus. That means following the public health advice by cutting down our contacts, keeping our distance, wearing a face covering and washing our hands.

There is a heavy burden on the public in terms of protecting each other and the health service. I hope and trust they will rise to the challenge better than the political class has managed this week.

Written Answers to Questions

The Executive Office

Ms Bunting asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline (i) what Social Investment Fund projects that were previously agreed, are now not proceeding; and (ii) the reasons why, broken down by constituency. (AQW 2461/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): Projects being delivered through the Social Investment Fund are those based on identified need, prioritised by Steering Groups and which demonstrate value for money.

65 projects are proceeding with an investment of £80.5 million.

The table below sets out those projects originally subject to a Letter of Offer that are no longer progressing to completion.

Project	Element	Constituency	Reason not Proceeding
Clogher Orange Hall	N/A	Fermanagh & South Tyrone	Value for Money not demonstrated – Funding was originally approved for energy efficiency improvements. Conditional surveys identified significant additional works required, increasing costs for the revised project by 1182%.
Titanic People	N/A	Belfast East	No longer delivers SIF objectives and Value for Money not demonstrated - Full conditional surveys of the building identified significant additional works required, increasing revised project costs by 211%. Changes in expected outputs also meant the project no longer sufficiently meet SIF strategic objectives.
Community Operated Sports (3 elements)	Downpatrick Football Pitch	South Down	Value for Money not demonstrated - Ground condition surveys identified a flood risk, with mitigating works increasing project costs by 211%.
Increasing Community Services (5 elements)	Arts for All	Belfast North	Value for Money not demonstrated - Full conditional surveys identified significant additional works required increasing the revised project costs by 171%.
Community Capacity Hubs (7 elements: 2 Community Halls & 5 Orange Halls)	Kennedys Orange Hall	Mid Ulster	Value for Money not demonstrated - Funding was originally approved for energy efficiency improvements. Conditional surveys identified significant additional works required, increasing revised project costs by 345%.
	Lisnamorrow Orange Hall	Mid Ulster	Value for Money not demonstrated - Funding was originally approved for energy efficiency improvements. Conditional surveys identified significant additional works required, increasing revised project costs by 481%.

Project	Element	Constituency	Reason not Proceeding
Belfast North Increasing Community Services (5 elements)	Westland Community Centre	Belfast North	Withdrawn by Group
Community Premises Support (30 elements)	St Matthews GAC	East Londonderry	The Group independently completed and funded the works to their building removing the need for SIF funding.

Mr O'Toole asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail how the Common Travel Area will be protected in legal form and what measures will be taken to prevent exploitation of different immigration systems on the island of Ireland.
(AQW 5827/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: A Memorandum of Understanding between the UK and Ireland on the Common Travel Area (CTA) was signed by both governments in May 2019 to re-affirm their commitment to maintenance and protection of the CTA. This commitment includes legislative provisions should it be required.

Immigration, including decisions on residency and entry and exploitation prevention, is not devolved and is managed on a UK-wide basis by the Home Office.

Mr Beattie asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how they decided the Minister of Health had more time than the junior Ministers to take forward the debates on the COVID-19 regulations.
(AQW 6934/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: In light of the demanding and significant workload during the initial stages of the COVID-19 pandemic, Junior Ministers welcomed the opportunity to provide support to the Minister of Health by leading the Assembly scrutiny of the Coronavirus subordinate legislation.

Looking ahead and reflecting the need to address the evolving priorities of the recovery phase, which includes the development of a Programme for Government and implementation of the New Decade New Approach document, it is now appropriate for this role to return to the Department of Health.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the funding received by groups from the Victims and Survivors Service, in each of the last three years.
(AQW 7122/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Victims and Survivors Service provides funding to a variety of groups throughout Northern Ireland through the Victims Support Programme (VSP). Figures for each of the last three financial years are outlined in the tables below. Figures for 2020-21 are currently available on the VSS website (https://victimsservice.org/vsp_piv_funding_2020_21/).

Mr Beattie asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) whether a request was put to the Minister of Justice to chair the new Ministerial-led group to consider compliance and enforcement of the regulations; and (ii) if so, what was her reply.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: A proposal was made to the Executive that the Minister of Justice should convene a working group on compliance. The Executive agreed that a working group on compliance and enforcement of the regulations be established, but that this should be led at ministerial level by the Executive Office. We do not comment on the views expressed by Ministers in their correspondence to colleagues.

Mr Stewart asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) why the High Streets Task Force, announced by their Department on 6 August, has yet to meet; and (ii) what date the first meeting will take place.
(AQW 7439/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The High Streets Task Force is intended to be a strategic response to the long-standing challenges faced by town and city centres: such as the need for infrastructure investment, the prevalence of on-line shopping, and changing patterns of consumer behaviour.

Engagement with stakeholders on the co-design of the initiative is underway, and our aim will be to bring a proposal to the Executive in the coming weeks.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail (i) what funding their Department has made to Cara-Friend; and (ii) the purpose for which the money was awarded, in each of the last three years.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Executive Office has provided funding to Cara-Friend on two occasions in the last three years (2017/18, 2018/19 and 2019/20 financial years).

They were awarded a grant from the Shared Future Fund in 2018/19 to provide a T:BUC Camp, project name 'Rainbow Bridges'. The grant award was for £10,020.54 and was paid to Cara-Friend by the Education Authority as delivery partner for The Executive Office.

They were also awarded a grant from the Central Good Relations Fund in 2016/17 for cross-community sports projects, mindfulness training events and workshops in identity. A payment of £9,201.90 was made in June 2017, which was for a grant drawdown for work carried out in 2016/17.

Mr K Buchanan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how they will promote more effective enforcement of the Executive's COVID-19 regulations at GAA fixtures across Northern Ireland.
(AQW 8194/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Whilst it is not within the remit of the Department for Communities to enforce public health regulations, DfC and Sport NI officials continue to engage with sports Governing Bodies on a range of issues including the development of plans and protocols to ensure that games with a limited number of spectators can be played in a safe environment that fully complies with Covid advice and with social distancing guidelines.

The GAA are also working, as are other sports, to ensure that they have controls in place to manage incidents of players and backroom staff testing positive and to ensure that they follow the health guidance.

In terms of enforcement of the Executive's Covid-19 regulations, the Executive has set up a strategic enforcement group, chaired by the TEO Junior Ministers, to coordinate efforts on encouraging compliance and enforcement. The group includes the Health Minister, officials from DoJ and DfE and is working closely with the PSNI and local government and other partners.

Mr Stewart asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their assessment of the employment provisions of the Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 with regards to the teaching exemption.
(AQO 749/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Although the power to repeal or amend the teachers' exception in Article 71 of the Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 is conferred on the Executive Office, any change to the exception would clearly have implications for the Department of Education.

The exemption of teachers from The Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 will receive further consideration in due course.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) when the Knockninny Area of Special Scientific Interest was declared; and (ii) the features which led to this.

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): Knockninny Hill was declared an ASSI on 31 July 1997. The selection features of the site are: Upland Calcareous Grassland; Upland Mixed Ashwood; Higher Plant Assemblage and Invertebrate Assemblage.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to improve the conservation status of the Knockninny Area of Special Scientific Interest.

(AQW 6314/17-22)

Mr Poots: The Department is taking a variety of actions at a strategic level to improve conservation status of Areas of Special Scientific Interest. We support actions on the ground by providing others who own and manage ASSIs with grant support and bespoke agreements through our Environmental Farming Scheme, the Environment Fund and Management of Sensitive Sites (MOSS) programme, and through the INTERREG Va Habitats Programme for sites also designated as Special Areas of Conservation.

Specifically at Knockninny Hill, 66% of the land area within the site is within the Environmental Farming Scheme (EFS). A number of land owners have availed of the EFS Higher scheme within the last three years restoring, preserving and enhancing grassland and woodland habitats.

The Department is also working to address wider pressures on protected sites, such as that posed by ammonia emissions and associated nitrogen deposition, through the development of an Ammonia Strategy and a review of the operational protocol on the assessment of air pollution impacts on sensitive habitats which are due to be consulted on later in the year.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what powers his Department has to address malodours in the vicinity of the Kinnegar area, Holywood.

Mr Poots: The Department deals with policy and legislation on statutory nuisance for Northern Ireland. The laws are enforced by the environmental health units of the district councils.

Article 63 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 defines statutory nuisances. Article 63(1)(d) includes "Any dust, steam, smell or other effluvia arising on industrial, trade or business premises and being prejudicial to health or a nuisance" as a statutory nuisance. This only applies to a smell arising from industrial and trade or business premises. However, other subsections of article 63 could be relevant, depending on the nature/source of the odour. For example, article 63(1)e indicates that 'any accumulation or deposit which is prejudicial to health or a nuisance' could constitute a statutory nuisance.

The statutory nuisance regime, as set out in CNEA is enforced by the District Councils. As such, it would be for an officer of the relevant District Council to investigate any complaint made and determine whether or not it constitutes a statutory nuisance, and what, if any action should be taken.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the impact that the recent decision of the European Union to ban the use of lead shot will have on shooting in Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: It is widely acknowledged that many waterfowl die from lead poisoning after ingesting lead shot which has fallen onto wetland. In Northern Ireland lead shot has been banned for use over wetlands since 2009.

The EU REACH committee vote on Thursday 3rd September approved the proposed EU wide ban on the use lead shot over wetlands. This proposal includes a buffer zone of 100metres and will now have to be ratified by the EU Council of Ministers within 3 months. Once ratified it will need to be published in in the Official Journal, and 20 days after this, the regulation will come into force and the 2 year transition period will begin.

It is uncertain if the EU regulation will come into force prior to end of the EU exit transition period on 31st December 2020, thereby the UK may not be required to implement.

As outlined above, Northern Ireland has already implemented a ban on the use of lead shot over wetlands, along with similar legislation in the rest of the UK. The main difference in the proposal by the EU REACH committee is that it will significantly increase the area land where a ban would be enforceable. At present it should be noted that my officials, in the exercise of their duties, have not detected any infringements of the current regulations.

Notwithstanding that the UK may not be legally obliged to implement, it should be noted that organisations such as the British Association for Shooting and Conservation have already proposed a five year transition in the total ban on lead shot to their members. This stance demonstrates that the use of lead shot is already being phased out by significant elements of the shooting community.

My Department will continue to monitor the progress of the EU REACH proposal and liaise with our UK colleagues as appropriate.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to outline funding streams available to assist the development of Cairn Wood Forest.^[R]

Mr Poots: My Department, through the Forest Park Enhancement Scheme, has allocated funding of £450,000 towards the cost of a £787,000 scheme to enhance Cairn Wood Forest Park. The project, which is currently being delivered by Ards and North Down Borough Council, involves the provision of toilet amenities, carparking facilities and enhancement of the existing walking trail network.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail (i) how many (a) visits; and (b) enforcement notices under the Noxious Weeds Order (NI) 1977 has his Department taken or issued; (ii) the breakdown of these visits or enforcement actions between (a) farmers; (b) the public sector; and (c) other landowners, in the last two years; and (iii) how his Department informs (a) landowners who are not in receipt of area payments; (b) other Government Departments; and (c) public sector organisations, about their responsibilities to control noxious weeds.

Mr Poots: The Department investigates noxious weed complaints under The Noxious Weeds (Northern Ireland) Order 1977, which requires landowners to control Thistles, Ragwort, Docks and Wild oats that could infest agricultural land.

In 2018, eleven notified occurrences were investigated, resulting in eight enforcement notices for control measures being issued to landowners. Nine follow up visits confirmed compliance with notice requirements.

In 2019, sixteen notified occurrences were investigated, resulting in six enforcement notices for control measures being issued to landowners. Seventeen follow up visits confirmed satisfactory compliance.

One case of noxious weeds on public sector land was investigated in 2018 and the site inspection confirmed that satisfactory control measures had been taken, therefore no notice issued. As investigations undertaken and notices issued under the Noxious Weeds (Northern Ireland) Order 1977 are directed to the land owners, they do not distinguish between farmers and non farmers

The Department raises awareness of legislative requirements to all landowners annually, usually in the springtime, to encourage control of noxious weeds. This normally includes mail shots and posters issued directly to Government Departments, other public landowners, including Councils. These are also displayed at DAERA Direct offices. As a consequence of the Covid-19 circumstances that prevailed, this was not undertaken in Spring 2020, however the Department plans to resume the campaign in Spring 2021.

More generally the Department uses press articles to raise awareness of responsibilities for all landowners and provides detailed comprehensive guidance on a range of control options for Noxious Weeds, which is published on the Department's Internet site.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department has any plans to introduce the mandatory use of CCTV in Northern Ireland's abattoirs as is already in place in other parts of the United Kingdom.

Mr Poots: I currently have no plans to make the installation of CCTV recording in abattoirs mandatory as the systems already in place provide assurance that welfare standards are being met. At present, over 99% of animals and birds processed in Northern Ireland are slaughtered under CCTV coverage.

Official Veterinarians from my Department maintain a permanent presence in approved Northern Ireland slaughterhouses during the hours of slaughter. They are responsible for monitoring animal welfare at slaughter and verifying that operators fulfil their obligations under both meat hygiene and animal welfare legislation.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether there are plans to reform rights of way access legislation.^[R]

Mr Poots: My Department is currently reviewing legislation related to access to the countryside, with a focus on optimising the benefits and opportunities for outdoor recreation.

The current review will consider the suitability of the current Access to the Countryside (Northern Ireland) Order 1983 which includes the policies associated with the assertion of Public Rights of Way.

Dr Aiken asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what representations they have made to the (i) UK Government; and (ii) European Union regarding any potential for the Northern Ireland post-Brexit food supply being disrupted. (AQW 6831/17-22)

Mr Poots: I have been clear all along that I want this aspect of the Northern Ireland Protocol implemented in a way that minimises any frictions on the flow of goods into and out of Northern Ireland, one that works for our businesses and citizens.

I have directly engaged with Minister Eustice on several occasions in the past months to ensure that we take the necessary steps to minimise and remove where possible the impacts on the movement of goods, including food, into and out of Northern Ireland. I am content that I have sought clarity from the UK Government throughout and where necessary I have taken legal advice to support my considerations as my officials seek to develop effective options in response to a complex and time sensitive task.

At all stages, I have clearly outlined to my officials as part of the programme delivery that I want to see the levels of facilities minimised, that any physical inspections at the points of entry are as low as possible and that any costs to businesses are removed. I have indeed challenged them on several occasions over the past months asking them to consider in detail how these requirements are met, as I am mindful that negotiations with the EU commission are ongoing.

My officials are currently developing proposals in conjunction with Defra and will share them in due course. Their discussions with UK Government colleagues have also included Food Supply Contingency planning in relation to Northern Ireland. My Department, working collaboratively with other Executive Departments, continues to lead on the regular assessment of the health of Northern Ireland's food supply chain and my officials are committed to developing associated contingency plans.

I believe it is because of my challenges that we are actually holding both the UK Government and the EU Commission to account in ensuring there is a minimised impact on Northern Ireland as we seek to deliver against the Northern Ireland Protocol.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department will be represented at the United Nations Summit on Biodiversity on 30 September 2020. (AQW 7140/17-22)

Mr Poots: My Department will not be represented at the United Nations Summit on Biodiversity. Representation at the Summit will be on a UK wide basis and led by the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra).

My officials work closely with Defra and the other devolved administrations on this and other biodiversity related international issues as applicable.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for an update on the answer to AQW 5466/17-22. (AQW 7219/17-22)

Mr Poots: DAERA continues to work closely with the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) in order to develop and implement arrangements that will meet the obligations emerging from the Northern Ireland Protocol. Recently this has included detailed work in the following areas;

- a Updating the EU designation applications for the Northern Ireland Seaports and supporting drawings further to the EU designation applications made on the 30 June 20;
- b Obtaining EU Technical support for the delivery of the IT functions and;
- c The development of an approach for engagement with the retail sector.

I have made clear to the Defra Secretary of State that the Sanitary and Phytosanitary (SPS) regime to be implemented under the Protocol must be minimised in terms of its effect on the movement of animal and plant products into Northern Ireland and I am assured that he and his officials are fully committed to delivering this outcome through on-going engagement with the EU Commission.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) whether he intends to redirect funds for Greening Payments to other environmental aspects of the Basic Payment Scheme; and (ii) whether he has engaged with stakeholders on this matter. (AQW 7306/17-22)

Mr Poots: On 10 September 2020 I announced my intention to incorporate the Greening payment into the overall BPS entitlement unit values. This funding will, therefore, not be directed specifically to environmental aspects of the Basic Payment Scheme.

There was stakeholder engagement on this issue as part of the 2018 engagement exercise taken forward by DAERA on a potential future Agricultural Policy Framework for Northern Ireland.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for an update on plans to decarbonise business activity by introducing legally binding targets to cut its greenhouse gas emissions to net-zero by 2050, as is the case in the rest of the UK.

(AQW 7482/17-22)

Mr Poots: I have written to the independent expert UK Climate Change Committee (CCC) for advice on what would be our equitable contribution to the UK's net zero emissions target, to ensure our greenhouse gas emissions reduction targets are credible and evidence-based. Unfortunately the CCC are not in a position to respond to my request until after they have provided advice on the UK's sixth carbon budget, which will be published in December 2020.

In the interim, my officials have provided me with proposals on an options appraisal for a Climate Change Bill in Northern Ireland. I will consider those options along with the advice provided from the CCC and will present my findings to the Northern Ireland Executive to agree a way forward.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to list the wildlife under possible threat of extinction in Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: The International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) have produced categories and criteria used to assess the conservation status of species and to inform the IUCN Red List of threatened species. NIEA have worked in partnership with National Parks and Wildlife Service in the Republic of Ireland to produce a number of relevant Red Data lists for the island of Ireland. These give specific detail on the vulnerability of a wide range of species, including vascular plants, terrestrial mammals and bryophytes. These lists can be found at <https://www.npws.ie/publications/red-lists>.

The Birds of Conservation Concern in Ireland 2014-2019 is the latest assessment of the conservation status of all regularly occurring birds on the island of Ireland. It uses data from a wide variety of sources and a traffic light system (i.e. Red, Amber and Green) to indicate the conservation status of species. Of the 202 species assessed, 37 were placed on the Red List; i.e., the most threatened species. These include well-known species such as Corncrake, Curlew and Barn Owl. The full listing can be found at:

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, in regard to dealing with ruinous and dilapidated buildings and neglected sites, to detail (i) what powers are bestowed on local councils under the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment (NI) Act 2011; (ii) the legal definition of ruinous and dilapidated buildings and neglected sites; and (iii) how many times the legislation has been successfully used by councils to deal with such sites and buildings, in each of the last three years.

Mr Poots: A dilapidated or unsightly building can ruin the general appearance of the area in which it is located. A business whose property adjoins such a building can suffer a loss of trade due to the deterioration of the amenity of the area. Property owners can also suffer due to decreasing property values. Dilapidated buildings also have consequences in terms of people's perceptions of an area. Such areas can attract anti-social behaviour and can harm tourism potential and reduce civic pride. The maintenance of attractive and successful places in which people are happy to live, work and visit is therefore very important and should help Northern Ireland as we seek to recover from the Covid-19 pandemic.

District councils currently do not generally have statutory duties in this area, with the exception of dealing with statutory nuisances under Part 7 of the Clean Neighbourhoods & Environment Act (NI) 2011, whereby councils are required to inspect, investigate and serve abatement notices. For the purposes of Part 7 "any premises in such a state as to be prejudicial to health or a nuisance" constitute a statutory nuisance.

There is no definition of "ruinous and dilapidated buildings and neglected sites" contained within the legislation and my Department does not hold any information on how often these provisions have been used by district councils.

Much of the legislation used by councils in this area dates back to the mid-19th century and/or applies to specific geographical areas. The Belfast Improvement Act 1878 and the Towns Improvement Clauses Act 1847 place some statutory duties on councils in relation to dangerous/ruinous buildings, walls, etc. (such as requiring the owner or occupier to demolish, secure or repair a property or requiring councils to secure such properties themselves by way of a board or fence). There is also a significant legislative deficit in Northern Ireland compared with other jurisdictions, which have access to powers to deal with dilapidation at a much earlier stage.

Over the past few years my Department has engaged with stakeholders through blight summits, a discussion document, bi-lateral meetings and a formal public consultation in March 2016. The overwhelming majority of the respondents to the consultation expressed a preference for the development of a wide-ranging Dilapidation Bill that would consolidate and amend much of the existing legislation, and supplement it with new provisions in respect of low level dilapidation and dangerous buildings already available to local authorities in the rest of the UK. The other key proposal was to enhance significantly the cost recovery provisions available to councils, making the option of them carrying out the relevant works themselves much more viable.

The intention of the proposed Bill is to provide all district councils with a modern, fit-for-purpose Northern Ireland-wide enforcement regime to deal with the negative impact of dilapidated/dangerous buildings and neglected sites.

It is intended to introduce the Bill to the Assembly in 2021 so that it completes its passage before the end of the current Assembly mandate.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how much rural development funding has gone into the the North Antrim villages of (i) Armoyle; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum, in each of the last five years.

Mr Poots: In accordance with EU Regulation No. 1306/2013 and Commission Regulation No. 908/2014, details of amounts received by UK beneficiaries under the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) can be found at <http://cap-payments.defra.gov.uk/>. This information includes Rural Development funding and can be searched by town and postcode.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of why (i) the Nitrates Action Programme Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006; (ii) the Phosphorus (Use in Agriculture) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006, (iii) the Nitrates Action Programme Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2010 and (iv) the Nitrates Action Programme (Northern Ireland) 2014 did not prevent deterioration in water quality arising from agriculture expansion.

Mr Poots: The Nitrates Action Programme (NAP) Regulations first came into operation in 2007 and are reviewed and revised every 4 years. The NAP contains a range of measures to control the application of manures and chemical fertilisers to land. It applies to all farms in Northern Ireland and the measures promote best practice and efficient use of nutrients on farms.

The Phosphorus (Use in Agriculture) Regulations contained measures for land application of chemical phosphorus fertiliser, to limit its use so it was only to be applied where and when there was a crop requirement.

After the introduction of these regulations, water quality improved with reductions in both annual mean nitrate concentrations in surface water and groundwater, and soluble reactive phosphorus (SRP) in rivers.

However, water quality data since 2012, especially for SRP in rivers, indicates this downward trend has reversed, although nutrient concentrations in waters are generally below those before the introduction of the NAP and Phosphorus regulations. This decline in water quality is likely to be related to an increase of phosphorus inputs to NI agriculture in terms of livestock feeds and chemical phosphorus fertiliser use. Overall livestock numbers have also increased from 2012 to 2018.

Therefore, when the NAP 2015-2018 was reviewed, a range of additional measures were introduced for the NAP 2019-2022, in response to the decline in water quality. Specific phosphorus measures include requirements for a fertilisation plan and soil analysis for the application of chemical phosphorus fertiliser by all grassland farms, and phosphorus rich manures and anaerobic digestate by all farms and new maximum phosphate fertiliser application limits for extensively managed grassland. The NAP for 2019-2022 came into operation in April 2019 and has been renamed the Nutrients Action Programme, to reflect the fact it now incorporates the Phosphorus (Use in Agriculture) Regulations.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the potential effect of hydrogen technology on improving air quality.

Mr Poots: Air pollution can have a serious effect on people's health and has negative impacts on our environment.

To date, my Department has not assessed the potential effect of hydrogen technology on improving air quality. However, I did meet with Ministers Dodds, Mallon and Murphy on 5 October and there was support for the development of hydrogen technology. The Department for the Economy is leading on this work and as such you may wish to contact them for further information.

You may also find it interesting to note that my Department has been working on developing a Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document involving close collaboration with other Departments. The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for public consultation. The consultation will invite views on a range of matters relating to air quality and will be an opportunity for stakeholders to put ideas and suggestions to my Department. I welcome full engagement in this process.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when his Department will be issuing the discussion document aimed at collecting stakeholder views on how we should deal with environmental plans, principles and governance in the future.

Mr Poots: The Discussion Document on Plans, Principles and Governance was scheduled for publication on the DAERA website and the Citizen Space consultation platform on 12 October 2020 but has been postponed to allow officials to provide further briefing to the Committee for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs. The discussion document will issue as soon as it is practicable to do so.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans he has to bring forward legislation to ban the import of hunting trophies from endangered species.

Mr Poots: In November 2019 Defra launched a UK wide consultation on options for the future of importing and exporting hunting trophies in the UK. Unfortunately, due to the current coronavirus outbreak, there has been a delay in publication of the summary of responses.

The international trade of endangered species, including hunting trophies derived from them, is subject to global agreement and regulated under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES).

CITES is a reserved matter within UK Government and my officials were engaged during the development of the consultation. Only when the consultation process is complete will it be clear what is the appropriate action for the UK Government to take forward.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether he intends to introduce Lucy's Law, or similar legislation, in Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: I can see merit in introducing a law prohibiting the sale of pups and kittens by third parties in Northern Ireland (known as 'Lucy's Law' in England). However, I am conscious that immediate EU exit related legislative pressures provide little scope to introduce a new law at this juncture. I have, however, instructed my officials to progress the matter as resources permit with a view to ensuring that it can be introduced as soon as is possible when those pressures ease.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how his Department follows up on the implementation of village plans arising from under rural development funding.

Mr Poots: Priority 6 of the EU Rural Development Programme (RDP) 2014-2020 makes provision for the development of integrated village plans to assist development on the basis that the plans can be utilised by communities, working with their local Council, to identify need and seek action from the statutory bodies. Local Action Groups (LAGs) are given an allocation of RDP funding to support a range of activities and some choose to fund village plan activities so as to demonstrate action. The Department in its role as Paying Agency carries out a percentage check on projects funded under the Village Renewal Scheme in accordance with EU rules.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, in order to prevent further deterioration in water quality and to be legally compliant with the (i) Water Framework Directive; and (ii) the Habitats Directive, whether he will consider an immediate repeal of the Nutrients Action Programme 2019-2022 relaxation on fertiliser plan requirements and livestock thresholds.

Mr Poots: The Nutrients Action Programme (NAP) 2019-2022 implements a number of additional measures to the previous NAP 2015-2018. These include an additional requirement from 1 January 2020 for all grassland farms using chemical phosphorus fertiliser; and all farms using phosphorus rich manures and anaerobic digestate, to prepare and keep up to date a fertilisation plan and conduct a soil analysis. In the previous NAP 2015-2018 fertilisation plans were only required for farms operating under an approved derogation. The purpose of fertilisation plans is to ensure that nutrients are only applied where there is a crop requirement, therefore reducing the risk of nutrient losses to water.

There has been no relaxation in relation to livestock thresholds. The NAP 2019-2022 introduces an additional requirement that Low Emission Slurry Spreading Equipment (LESSE) must be used from 1 February 2022 on cattle farms with 200 or more cattle livestock units and pig farms with a total annual livestock manure nitrogen production of 20,000 kg or more from pigs. The purpose of this measure is to improve both water and air quality and nutrient use efficiency.

As the NAP 2019-2022 has added more requirements for fertilisation plans and for the use of LESSE on farms of specific livestock thresholds, there are no relaxations to consider for repeal.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the impact that the numerous Nitrates Directive derogations sought by his Department have had on water quality deterioration.

Mr Poots: Farms operating under the Nutrients Action Programme (NAP) derogation must adopt specific nutrient management, land spreading restrictions and record-keeping measures, in addition to complying with the NAP measures. Derogation requirements include preparation of annual fertilisation plans and accounts, regular soil analysis and a farm phosphorus balance limit. The purpose is to ensure that operating at the higher grazing livestock manure limit of the derogation does not adversely impact on water quality.

The conditions of the derogation are set by the European Commission and specified in the legal decision. The Northern Ireland derogation has been granted by the European Commission since 2008 and must be renewed every 4 years. The application process for renewal is lengthy and involves detailed scrutiny by the European Commission and the EU Nitrates Committee. In order for the derogation to be approved, it must be demonstrated that it will not adversely impact on water quality. Given that the Northern Ireland derogation has been approved on four occasions, the European Commission and the EU Nitrates Committee consider that it should not cause a deterioration in water quality.

Data since 2012 indicates that deterioration in water quality in Northern Ireland is mainly due to increases in concentrations of soluble reactive phosphorus in rivers. This is likely to be related to an increase of phosphorus inputs to NI agriculture in terms of livestock feeds and chemical phosphorus fertiliser use. Overall livestock numbers have also increased from 2012 to 2018.

However, on derogated farms phosphorus inputs are constrained as they must operate within a farm phosphorus balance limit. In addition, water quality monitoring of a derogated sub-catchment compared with a non-derogated sub-catchment of the Upper Bann has indicated little difference in the measured median concentrations of soluble reactive phosphorus in out-flowing drainage water between these two sub-catchments. This implies that the derogation is not exacerbating water quality problems.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when AQW 5910/17-22 will be answered.

Mr Poots: The answer to AQW 5910/17-22 is still under consideration by my Department and I will respond when this work is complete.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what action his Department is taking to address ongoing issues with Japanese knotweed in Redburn Country Park.

Mr Poots: Japanese knotweed has been confirmed as occurring within the historical Walled Garden area at Redburn Country Park. It is not known to occur in any other areas within the Park.

The growth in this area has been subject to control for a number of years via the application of a systemic herbicide which was most recently undertaken on 17 September 2020 by my Officials in the Northern Ireland Environment Agency.

During the course of the ongoing control programme my Officials became concerned that despite fencing and local signage having been put in place to restrict local access, some members of the public were still ignoring this and crossing the control area, which appeared to have been spreading the knotweed further and setting back the control efforts. In response to this, the existing cordoning off of the area, is in the process of being enhanced to further restrict public access in the immediate area.

My Officials will continue to monitor and control as necessary until no further regrowth occurs.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs why no critical load information is available on the Air Pollution Information System website for the following Special Areas of Conservation (i) Rea's Wood and Farr's Bay; (ii) Red Bay; and (iii) Skerries and Causeway.

Mr Poots: The habitats and species for which Rea's Wood and Farris Bay, Red Bay and Skerries and Causeway SACs have been designated are not considered to be sensitive to the eutrophication caused by nitrogen deposition. Therefore, no critical loads have been set for those features.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how many farms are still to be inspected under the Single Farm Payment Scheme before payment is made.

Mr Poots:

488 businesses who have submitted claims under the Basic Payment Scheme have been selected for an On the Spot check (OTSC) in 2020. All of these businesses have been inspected by an external contractor using Control with Remote Sensing. This involves the use of satellite imagery to determine the eligibility of each field. For any fields where the contractor has difficulty ascertaining the eligibility, DAERA inspectors complete a rapid field visit (RFV) i.e. a physical check on the ground, to ensure a high level of accuracy.

As of 12 October 2020, final results for 144 businesses have been returned to DAERA and 83 of these have been sent for payment with the remainder going through final validation checks. Therefore 405 businesses remain outstanding. My Department is currently processing these businesses as quickly as possible and the number being transferred for payment increases every day. It is anticipated that the vast majority of OTSC cases will be paid by the end of November 2020.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether he will bring forward a clean air strategy for Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: In December 2016, the previous DAERA Minister, Michele McIlveen, gave a commitment to develop an air quality strategy for Northern Ireland.

Since then, the Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs has been working on developing a draft Clean Air Strategy discussion document. Work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure. The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for public consultation. The consultation will invite views on a range of matters relating to air quality and will be an opportunity for stakeholders to put ideas and suggestions to my Department. I welcome full engagement in this process.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what (i) Departmental; and (ii) arm's-length body spend there has been in each of the North Antrim villages (i) Armoy; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum, in each of the last ten years.

Mr Poots: The Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs and Arm's Length Bodies has identified a total of £986k in the North Antrim Villages of Armoy, Bushmills, Dervock, Mosside and Stranocum from 2013-14 to 2019-20. This is broken down in the table below.

North Antrim Village Spend

	£'000	£'000	£'000	£'000	£'000	£'000	£'000	£'000
Armoy	26	30	-	-	88	-	115	259
Bushmills	58	117	6	-	68	79	293	621
Dervock	7	10	-	-	7	-	-	24
Mosside	16	11	-	-	8	-	4	39
Stranocum	12	4	-	-	8	17	2	43
Total	119	172	6	-	179	96	414	986

Due to the Department's document retention policy of 7 years, financial information for the 2010-11, 2011-12 and 2012-13 years is limited and has therefore been excluded.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) what assessment he has made of changes in the level of air pollution during lockdown restrictions due to the COVID-19 outbreak; and (ii) what steps he is taking to reduce air pollution.

Mr Poots: My Department continually monitors air quality across Northern Ireland. This includes monitoring pollutants such as particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide. Sources of nitrogen dioxide include domestic and industrial combustion and road transport. Particulate matter is formed from domestic wood and coal burning and industrial combustion.

During the first few months of lockdown, levels of nitrogen dioxide were lower than in previous years. However, this is thought, at least in part, to be a result of weather conditions in 2020. More recently, levels of nitrogen dioxide have begun to return to post lockdown trends.

Particulate matter has shown more variability than nitrogen dioxide. At times, levels of particulate matter in 2020 have remained above the five year average for a sustained period. For example, on the 9 April my Department issued an air pollution alert for the following day, due to high levels of particulate matter being forecast.

You ask about the action that I am taking to reduce air pollution in Northern Ireland.

My Department financially supports district councils in monitoring air quality through the Local Air Quality Management Grant. This year additional funds have been made available to upgrade existing monitors and support a variety of projects relating to air quality. Funding is also provided to Sustrans, the active travel charity to promote behavioural change and encourage walking and cycling.

The data from the monitoring stations is publically available on the Air Quality NI website (www.airqualityni.co.uk/) which was redesigned earlier in the year. A page specifically for children has been added. The data from the website is used in the first Air Quality App for Northern Ireland, which I launched on 7 May 2020. I would encourage everyone to download the new Northern Ireland Air App in order to receive the most up-to-date information on the quality of air across the province.

In addition to the App, my Department has been working on developing a Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document. Work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure. The Discussion

Document has been finalised and will be launched shortly for public consultation. The consultation will invite views on a range of matters relating to air quality and will be an opportunity for stakeholders to put ideas and suggestions to my Department. I welcome full engagement in this process.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of air quality in the South Antrim constituency.

Mr Poots: Air pollution can have a serious effect on people's health. It also has negative impacts on our environment.

In Northern Ireland, District Councils are responsible for reviewing the state of air quality in their district. They do this through monitoring air quality at a number of sites throughout Northern Ireland and the Department provides financial assistance to support this monitoring network.

The air quality within the South Antrim constituency is monitored with a network of nitrogen dioxide diffusion tubes managed by Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough Council. Local councils produce an annual report on the quality of air within their district. The 2019 report for Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough Council can be found on the Northern Ireland Air website at www.airqualityni.co.uk/laqm/district-council-reports.

For information specifically regarding these AQMAs, I recommend that you contact Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough council.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, as part of the Clean Air Strategy, whether his Department plans to introduce (i) a city-wide Low Emission Zone for Belfast; and (ii) smaller localised Low Emission Zones for specific hotspots in other areas.

Mr Poots: In December 2016, the previous DAERA Minister, Michele McIlveen, gave a commitment to develop an air quality strategy. Since then, my officials have been working on developing a draft Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document. This work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure. Information on Low Emission Zones (LEZs) is included within the Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document.

The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched for a 12 week public consultation in the coming weeks. The consultation will invite views on a range of matters relating to air quality and will be an opportunity for stakeholders to put ideas and suggestions to my Department. I welcome full engagement in this process.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail plans to increase funding for additional air quality monitoring sites.

Mr Poots: Air Quality is continually monitored across Northern Ireland. This includes monitoring pollutants such as particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide. Sources of nitrogen dioxide include domestic and industrial combustion and road transport. Particulate matter is formed from domestic wood and coal burning and industrial combustion.

My Department financially supports district councils in monitoring air quality through the Local Air Quality Management Grant. Annual sums offered each year under this Grant are in the region of £180,000. During the 2010/21 financial year an additional £90,000 has been offered to district councils to upgrade existing monitors.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 2615/17-22, (i) why his Department does not hold information on (a) the location; or (b) volumes of commercial peat extraction activities in Northern Ireland; (ii) for his assessment of the value of such data in relation to the work of his Department; and (iii) whether he intends to instruct his Department to explore options for (a) collating; and (b) publishing this information.

Mr Poots: Currently, my Department has no statutory or other obligation to collate or publish information on the location or volume of commercial peat extraction activities in Northern Ireland. The power to regulate commercial peat extraction rests with the planning authorities of local councils.

Going forward, in the context of the development and implementation of a Northern Ireland Peatland Strategy, it may be useful to have such data in order to define future policy and direction on overall peatland restoration.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for an update on his Department's review of Fixed Penalty Notices for littering and dog fouling; (ii) when he expects the review to be completed; (iii) whether the review will be made public; and (iv) whether the review is likely to bring forward changes to the Fixed Penalty Notice regime before the proposed consultation on his Department's Environment Strategy.

Mr Poots: I share your concerns regarding the scourge of both dog fouling and littering. My Department is using a combined approach of legislation, education, awareness and enforcement to tackle these issues. As you are aware, the current legislation (the Clean Neighbourhoods & Environment Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 & the Environmental Offences (Fixed Penalties) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012) enables district councils to issue fixed penalty notices (FPNs) of between £50 and £80 for littering and dog fouling offences, with a reduced fine for early payment. When the case is dealt with by the courts, a fine of up to £1,000 for dog fouling offences, and up to £2,500 for littering offences can be imposed.

The Department keeps this legislation under review and earlier this year appointed Keep Northern Ireland Beautiful to gather data from all councils on their use of FPNs for both litter and dog fouling offences. Feedback was also sought from councils on the effectiveness of the current powers and fines. In addition, several councils have recently independently contacted me about this issue. This data is being used to inform the Department's review of the current FPN regime.

My officials are currently reviewing all of the responses received, both through Keep Northern Ireland Beautiful and those sent directly to myself. It is anticipated that the review will be completed in early 2021.

The findings will be made public and included in the draft Environment Strategy. This will be Northern Ireland's first overarching Environment Strategy and is due to be consulted upon in early 2021. The strategy consultation will consider a range of options for tackling litter and dog fouling offences in the future and will ensure all stakeholders have an input to the process. Any changes to the current FPN regime will only be possible after public consultation.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of how nitrate levels in shellfish water bodies impact E. coli levels.

Mr Poots: Nitrogen as nitrate is naturally present in the environment and is a necessary nutrient for plant growth and for ecosystems. However, high levels of nitrate are associated with anthropogenic (human-derived) sources such as agricultural runoff, (nitrogen-based fertilizers and animal manure) and sewage discharges.

The presence of E. coli in the environment is an indicator of faecal contamination. It is possible to have elevated nitrate levels in shellfish water bodies without a corresponding increase in E. coli. This can occur where the source is not of faecal origin, for example, where chemical fertilisers are in use.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, with regard to having the worst air pollution in Northern Ireland, what plans he has to improve air quality in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area.

Mr Poots: In Northern Ireland, District Councils are responsible for reviewing air quality in their district. They do this through monitoring air quality at a number of sites and my Department provides financial assistance to support this monitoring network. There are currently four Air Quality Management Areas and four automatic monitoring stations within the Derry and Strabane District Council area.

The most recent air quality report published in May of this year, relates to the 2018 calendar year. The report found that levels of particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide recorded at the automatic monitoring stations in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area were below the annual mean objective for each pollutant. Levels of Polycyclic Aromatic Hydrocarbons, which had exceeded the EU target value in 2016, have now returned to levels lower than that recorded in 2014. You can read the full report here;

https://www.airqualityni.co.uk/documents/technical-reports/Air_Pollution_in_Northern_Ireland_2018_Issue2_screen-optimised.pdf

At present my Department is developing the first Clean Air Strategy for Northern Ireland. In December 2016, the previous DAERA Minister, Michele McIlveen, gave a commitment to develop an air quality strategy. Since then, my officials have been working on developing a draft Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document.

This work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure.

The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for a 12 week public consultation in the coming weeks. The consultation will invite views on a wide range of matters relating to air quality and I encourage everyone to put forward their ideas and suggestions as part of the consultation.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what progress his Department has made on reducing the use of plastics.

Mr Poots: In the New Decade, New Approach deal, the Executive is tasked with bringing forward actions to address climate change including creating a plan to eliminate plastic pollution.

An Executive paper will be tabled shortly proposing an action plan to eliminate unnecessary single-use plastics in the government estate. If agreed by the Executive, the plan will be introduced in October 2020 and changes to purchasing contracts with suppliers will be phased in over the following 12 months until October 2021.

The Department is now into Year 3 of the Tackling Plastic project with Keep Northern Ireland Beautiful and Sustainable NI providing public messages through social media and giving ongoing support and guidance to local businesses, schools and local councils about how they can reduce their plastic consumption.

DAERA implemented the Carrier Bag Levy for Northern Ireland in 2013. Our latest published figures show that 1.5 billion carrier bags have already been removed from circulation across Northern Ireland. I am presently reviewing this levy as there is evidence that reusable bags are only being used once.

DAERA's College for Agriculture, Food and Rural Enterprise (CAFRE) is working with Northern Ireland Food and Drink Association (NIFDA) food and drink processors to facilitate better engagement between the manufacturing sector and policy-makers to help create an improved, shared understanding of the use and potential reduction of plastic in food packaging.

DAERA has joined the other UK Administrations in becoming a member of the UK Plastics Pact this year. In contributing to the pact, the Department is directly funding the work of its organisers, the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), to develop and disseminate approaches to reduce the environmental impact of plastic packaging. Membership of the pact also enables the Department to use its contact networks to share innovations, data, analyses and reports with businesses and work is already underway to achieve 4 key industry targets to eliminate unnecessary plastics and/or increase recyclability by 2025.

I am continuing to work closely with my Ministerial colleagues across the UK to introduce a range of legislative drivers to help promote a Circular Economy waste package which will help to keep plastic in the economy and out of the environment. This includes ongoing work with other UK administrations on plans to introduce both an Extended Producer Responsibility scheme and a Deposit Return Scheme which together will contribute to minimising the amount of plastic packaging produced whilst maximising the amount of plastic packaging waste collected for recycling. Further consultations on the proposals are planned for early 2021. With other UK administrations having introduced or consulting on introducing legislative measures on single-use plastics, I am keeping the situation in Northern Ireland under review. In addition, HM Treasury will introduce a plastic packaging tax on plastic with less than 30% recycled content in April 2022 which will encourage a significant increase in the use of recycled plastic in packaging.

I trust this provides reassurance that both I and my officials are using a variety of approaches to engage with the problem of eliminating plastic pollution.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether he will make it policy to introduce new metrics to measure improvements in individual aspects of water quality in (i) rivers; and (ii) other inland freshwater bodies.

Mr Poots: Water quality metrics are set out in legislation under the Water Framework Directive (Classification, Priority Substances and Shellfish Waters) Regulations (Northern Ireland) Regulations 2015. They are in place for both i) rivers and ii) other inland freshwater bodies such as lakes and show both improvements and deterioration in individual aspects of water quality. Metrics are subject to review based on scientific advice and technical improvements in assessment method.

The policy of my Department remains that new metrics will be introduced when the underlying scientific advice supports this. The normal legislative and consultation processes will be followed.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of whether his Department's Going for Growth strategy is leading to an increase in ammonia emissions and, consequently, to poorer air quality.

Mr Poots: In May 2012, the then Department of Agriculture, Rural Development (DARD) and Department of Enterprise and Department Trade and Investment (DETI) appointed the industry led Agri-Food Strategy Board (AFSB) to make recommendations on a strategic action plan for the agri-food sector. The AFSB published their 'Going for Growth' strategy in May 2013. In October 2014, the NI Executive's response to Going for Growth outlined agreed actions to be taken by a range of NI government departments and agencies to address various AFSB recommendations. DAERA's actions were mainstreamed into core business as usual activities and almost all are now virtually complete.

There was an increase registered in ammonia emissions in Northern Ireland each year from 2011 to 2017, before an annual reduction was reported for 2018. A number of factors may have contributed to these figures. My Department's focus is on developing a comprehensive approach to ammonia which will significantly reduce emissions and we intend to publish these proposals for consultation soon.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how many (i) Special Protection Areas; and (ii) Special Areas for Conservation have been designated in Northern Ireland, in each of the last four years.

Mr Poots: The Department has not classified any Special Protection Areas (SPAs) in the last 4 years. Three marine Special Areas of Conservation (SACs) were designated in 2017 and 1 marine SAC in 2018.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the potential for an outdoor recreation bill to (i) address right of way and land ownership issues; and (ii) develop natural green corridors that would connect people and place for green growth and wellbeing.

Mr Poots: My Department is currently reviewing legislation related to public access for outdoor recreation. The review is considering the suitability of the current Access to the Countryside (Northern Ireland) Order 1983, which includes the policies associated with the assertion of Public Rights of Way.

We are currently drafting a consultation paper to seek ideas from stakeholders on how we can better facilitate outdoor recreation including the development of green corridors for public use.

Consideration will be given to the provision of a recreation bill, if current legislation cannot be suitably amended.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, in relation to the NI Audit Office report Generating Electricity from Renewable Energy findings, and in consideration of the fact that his Department are responsible for issuing the appropriate licences, to outline whether his Department was aware that anaerobic digestion plants without licences were operating and receiving renewable energy subsidies.

Mr Poots: The Department for the Economy (DfE) has overall responsibility for renewable electricity policy and legislation, including the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation Scheme (NIRO). Its administration is fulfilled through an Agency Services Agreement with the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (OFGEM).

As the NIAO report states, there was no requirement in the legislation for planning and environmental regulations to be complied with for a generating station to be accredited and receive Renewables Obligation Certificates (ROCs). However neither anaerobic digestion plants nor the biogas they produce are eligible for support under the NIRO. The NIRO supports the generation of renewable electricity, including electricity generated by stations fuelled by biogas produced through the anaerobic digestion process. This is an important distinction to make as the NIRO legislation and scheme administration is focused solely on the electricity generating station and ROCs are issued only in recognition of the eligible electricity produced.

When it was announced that the NIRO scheme was closing on 31 March 2017, there was a large increase in applications to the scheme and some developers proceeded to construct AD plants without securing the necessary grant of planning permission or waste authorisation where this was required.

While not all anaerobic digestion plants require a waste management licence, as this is dependent on the nature of the feedstock, my Department is aware that a number of Anaerobic Digestion plants have been operating without waste management licences. My officials have worked with colleagues in DfE, DfI and OFGEM to identify the locations of these plants. They have contacted all known operators and applications have now been received from all plants currently operating that require a waste authorisation.

My Department has welcomed the NIAO report's key findings and recommendations, in particular its recommendation that new measures to strengthen partnership arrangements with DfE and other relevant public bodies, to ensure that any future renewable energy schemes are supported at an early stage, with a proactive and joined up approach to accreditation, monitoring and enforcement.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department requires anaerobic digester plants dealing with agricultural waste to have planning permission before the Department will issue them with a waste management licence.

Mr Poots: Yes, anaerobic digester plants treating agricultural waste must have planning permission in place prior to my Department issuing a waste management licence.

This is a statutory requirement under Article 8 of The Waste and Contaminated Land (Northern Ireland) Order 1997 which states that a waste management licence shall not be granted for the use of land, plant or equipment, for which planning permission is required, unless such planning permission is in force. My Department therefore requires applicants for all waste management licences to provide evidence that this requirement has been satisfied before a licence is granted.

Department for Communities

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the current number of Northern Ireland Housing Executive properties that do not have a shower; (ii) any measures being taken by the Department to amend the process surrounding the installation of showers, particularly in cases where residents are suffering health and mental health issues due to their bathing facilities; and (iii) why, in 2020, is it not considered a basic right to have a shower in a Housing Executive property.

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): The Housing Executive has provided the following response;

- i) The current number of Northern Ireland Housing Executive properties that do not have a shower;

The Housing Executive currently records 14,524 properties as having showers installed, which would indicate that some 70,192 properties do not have a shower. However, records on shower installations are incomplete as – except where showers were installed as adaptations - they were not recorded separately as part of bathroom replacement works until recently.

- (ii) any measures being taken by the Department to amend the process surrounding the installation of showers, particularly in cases where residents are suffering health and mental health issues due to their bathing facilities;

In addition to the well-established process for those tenants who receive adaptations following an Occupational Therapist recommendation, there are opportunities for tenants to request alternative bathing facilities through their local office. This may be as a consequence of their mobility deteriorating or due to the normal aging process rather than having a notifiable disability. This usually requires the bath to be removed and a shower installed in the same location if possible. Alternatively, if there are young children in the household, the bath may be retained (or a lower height bath installed) and a shower fitted over the bath, provided this is suitable for all the family needs.

- (iii) Why, in 2020, is it not considered a basic right to have a shower in a Housing Executive property?

Since the recent introduction of the current bathroom, kitchen and rewire (BKR) replacement programme, the Housing Executive has endeavoured to either provide a shower provision over the bath or alternatively install a level access shower to suit the mobility needs of the tenant. This is usually identified during tenant consultation. It should be noted that due to the size restrictions within the majority of bathrooms in Housing Executive properties, it is difficult to install a separate shower cubicle whilst retaining the bath.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities how many searches have been carried out through (i) Public Records Office; and (ii) General Register Office, records in each of the last three years.

Ms Ní Chuilín: PRONI publishes a range of statistics relating to service delivery in an annual digest of statistics. The latest Digest can be found at <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/topics/proni-statistics>

The number of documents produced for the public was:

32,033	29,802	30,642

The number of public written queries that were responded to was:

2016/17	2017/18	2018/19
3,207	3,903	3,356

2016/17	2017/18	2018/19
10.4 million	9.4 million	10.1 million

This includes searches across Will calendars, Electronic catalogue, Valuation books and other PRONI online applications.

The number of searches carried out through the General Register Office were:

2019/20	1,135,460 searches

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities how much funding has been provided to Transgender NI in each of the last three years.

(AQW 7371/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has provided no funding to Transgender NI in the last three years.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities to detail any plans for local mitigations to ensure that women and families are protected from poverty while on Universal Credit.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are some welfare mitigation payments available to people who are claiming Universal Credit. This includes financial support for people who are affected by the Social Sector Size Criteria policy (commonly called “the Bedroom Tax”) and for families with children who have their benefit reduced by the Benefit Cap. In addition any person making a new claim to Universal Credit can apply to the Universal Credit Contingency Fund for a non-repayable grant.

I am currently considering options of introducing a scheme to mitigate the restriction on support for a maximum of two children in Child Tax Credit and Universal Credit. It is also anticipated that the forthcoming review of the welfare mitigation measures will consider the provision of new mitigation measures for people who are claiming Universal Credit.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she is considering measures to mitigate and remedy the negative impacts of Universal Credit on women, particularly around the 5-week wait.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are some measures in place to mitigate the impact of the 5 week wait for payment of UC.

Since 22nd July 2020, people who move to Universal Credit will have their existing legacy benefit continue for two weeks with no requirement to repay the overlay.

A similar two week run-on is also in place for Housing Benefit claimants who move to Universal Credit as a result of a change of circumstances.

Any person experiencing financial difficulties can apply for an Advance Payment (an interest free payment) where advances, worth up to 100 per cent of a person’s indicative award, are available, if there is a need. Advance Payments are deducted over a period of 12 months and from October 2021, the payback period for these advances will be extended further, up to sixteen months.

In addition a person claiming UC can apply for a Contingency payment, which is a grant and is not repayable. From 1st January 2020, the Department removed the requirement that people must take out a Universal Credit Advance Payment before being eligible for a payment from the Universal Credit Contingency Fund. It is anticipated that the forthcoming review of the welfare mitigation measures will consider the future design of the Universal Credit Contingency Fund.

My Department continues to monitor the effectiveness of the various support measures that are available for people claiming Universal Credit.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how she plans to inform Universal Credit claimants about the existence of the Contingency Fund.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Universal Credit Contingency Fund is promoted to people claiming Universal Credit and through the NI Direct website.

Everyone who makes a claim to Universal Credit is informed about the Contingency Fund through a personal welcome message on their online journal. This message includes signposting to the Finance Support Freephone and Textphone numbers, as well a link to the online claim form if they wish to enquire further, or apply directly, to the Contingency Fund.

Our staff also promote the Universal Credit Contingency Fund to anyone contacting them to report financial hardship. The Department also uses its social media channels to highlight the existence of the Contingency Fund, and our partners in the Advice Sector also actively promote its existence.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities what plans she has to simplify the process for making claims to the Universal Credit Contingency Fund.

Ms Ní Chuilín: To help simplify the process for making claims to the Universal Credit Contingency Fund an online claim form was recently introduced in addition to the pre-existing telephony based application process.

This online form was co-designed in collaboration with the Voluntary and Community Sector.

To help promote the different options available, each person who makes a new claim to Universal Credit is advised of the availability of the Universal Credit Contingency Fund and how to apply via their Universal Credit journal.

The journal entry includes the Finance Support Freephone number and provides a direct link to the online form. Further assistance to complete an application will be provided on request.

Further information on the Universal Credit Contingency Fund is also available on the Extra Finance Support and Universal Credit pages on NI Direct.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will consider bringing forward a financial package to support sporting bodies and groups who have seen a loss of income in recent months due to the cap in numbers attending sporting fixtures.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have asked my officials and Sport NI to continue to engage with the Governing Bodies for sport to explore the full impact of the reduction in spectators both now and in the coming months.

I have already shown my commitment to supporting the sector through the Sports Hardship Fund. I also recently announced the launch of a programme to provide essential PPE packs to clubs which will help to reduce club expenditure on Covid related supplies.

I can assure the sports sector that I will continue to explore options to support those in financial difficulty and to help sustain and protect sports clubs during these difficult times.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities when she will roll out redundancy support resources into the community; and what role councils will have in this programme.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department works with other departments and stakeholders to provide people facing redundancy with information and advice. This service is often delivered in partnership with the local Councils.

The service can be offered virtually and face to face, to provide the support that best meets the needs of both the employer and employees. On-site Redundancy Clinics can be arranged where social distancing requirements can be adhered to.

A Redundancy Clinic Webcast has been developed to provide employees with information on benefits, supports and services available as they prepare for redundancy, including help with costs such as travel to interview expenses and help to search for and find a new job. This is readily available to any employer or anyone facing redundancy.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether artists who are prohibited from performing in clubs and bars that sell alcohol will be able to access the £29 million support package announced for the arts sector.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The £29m allocation from the Executive will provide a much needed lifeline and significant boost to our culture, language, arts and heritage organisations, local musicians, freelancers and artists who have been disproportionately impacted by the pandemic.

My officials are currently working on proposals for a suite of funding schemes to support these sectors. The schemes will include support for individuals, as well as organisations. Details of the funding schemes including guidance, eligibility and application information will be announced shortly.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the capital funding available from her Department for new community centres.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department, through People and Place, A Strategy for Neighbourhood Renewal, delivers The Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund (NRIF) which considers capital grant applications that meet any of the four overarching strategic objectives of the People and Place strategy. The main objective of capital investment is to promote physical renewal within the Neighbourhood Renewal Areas, where the investment helps create attractive, safe, sustainable community space in the most deprived neighbourhoods.

This can include support for new community centres. While there is no specific budget allocated to new community centres, all capital projects are developed through the respective Neighbourhood Renewal Partnership subject to priority needs, successful business case approval and funding availability.

Over the last three years my Department has issued £10.1M in capital investment through NRIF, a third of which has been for new community centres.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Communities how many households in the Upper Bann constituency pay bedroom tax.
(AQW 7808/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that there are currently 2,701 households in receipt of Housing Benefit affected by Social Sector Size Criteria (Bedroom Tax) within its South Area. This most closely aligns to the Upper Bann constituency and includes Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon. However almost 99% receive Welfare Supplementary Payments to fully compensate for the reduction in their entitlement to Housing Benefit.

The latest available data shows that 34 households in the Area have lost entitlement to Welfare Supplementary Payments.

In addition at 31 March 2020, there were 240 individuals in receipt of Universal Credit in the Upper Bann constituency who were affected by the Social Sector Size Criteria. All 240 were in receipt of Universal Credit administration payments to mitigate its impact and therefore were not required to make up the shortfall in their rent.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the impact of COVID-19 restrictions on marching bands.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I recognise the challenges that are being faced across the community for all musicians and bands, including marching bands, as we seek to tackle COVID-19.

Restrictions on gatherings and the need for social distancing have had significant impacts on practice, performance and the development of talent. I also recognise the impact that restrictions might have on the sense of community and individual well-being that participation in or listening to performances can bring.

The current situation has also brought financial impacts and so I very much welcome the £29 million allocation from the Executive which will provide a much needed lifeline across the culture, language, arts and heritage sectors, which will support them to resume their activities when it is safe to relax the restrictions.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Communities to list the schools which have secured funding through the Your School, Your Club initiative, including (i) a breakdown of sums secured; and (ii) the nature of the projects funded.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Between 2017/18 and 2019/20, over £1.3m capital funding has been provided for projects completed under Your School Your Club to revitalise existing sports facilities or to develop new/additional provision as part of the initiative. Mrs Barton asked the Minister for Communities how many Personal Independence Payment applications are awaiting a decision.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The most recent Personal Independence Payment statistics were published on 26 August 2020 and covered the period up to 31 May 2020. At that date, there were 8,470 people who had registered an application to claim Personal Independence Payment and had yet to receive a decision on their application. These cases are at various stages of the PIP claims process, such as the Department awaiting return of a completed PIP2 Questionnaire from the applicant, with Capita for an assessment to be completed or the assessment report is with the Department for a decision to be made on entitlement to PIP.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for Communities how many benefits appeals have been submitted to the Appeals Service are awaiting a decision.

Ms Ní Chuilín: As a result of the on-going COVID-19 pandemic, no appeals were listed for hearings between 18 March 2020 and 6 July 2020. At 31 August 2020 there were 7,731 appeals awaiting a decision.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities whether people who have to self-isolate will be entitled to the same £500 payment that is available in England, from the end of September.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department provides financial support to those required to stay at home and self-isolate through the Discretionary Support Covid-19 living expenses grant introduced on 25 March 2020. This grant is unique to citizens here. Work is ongoing to review and update this process.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities what projections she has made of the number of additional claims for Universal Credit between now and December 2020, compared to the same period in 2019.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Universal Credit caseload forecasts are produced by statisticians in my Department and used by my operational staff on an ongoing basis for resource and budgetary planning purposes. However, these forecasts are for internal use only. The member can find detailed official statistics on Universal Credit publically available on my Department's website at: <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/publications/universal-credit-statistics-may-2020>

Management information has also been published on the number of claims made to Universal Credit since Covid-19 began up until 27 September 2020.

<https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/system/files/publications/communities/dfc-management-information-uc-021020.pdf>

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the support available to people at risk of losing their homes as a result of being unable to pay their mortgage.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There is support available to homeowners who are unable to pay their mortgage; both those in receipt of benefits and those who are not.

With regards to people claiming benefits, in April 2020, my Department increased the basic rate of Universal Credit by over £80 a month. This has been beneficial to all people claiming Universal Credit, including those who are owner-occupiers.

People who claim Universal Credit, or a legacy income-related benefit, can avail of Support for Mortgage Interest, which is a loan designed to assist with paying home owner mortgage interest payments, with the primary purpose to enable people to stay in their homes without fear of repossession. A loan is available from the date the person starts getting Pension Credit or, if the person is in receipt of another qualifying benefit, they have served a nine month qualifying period.

All homeowners can currently also access payment holidays on their mortgages. In March, a three month mortgage payment holiday for those who were in difficulty due to COVID-19 was announced, which was extended to buy-to-let landlords. Additionally, a three month moratorium began on residential and buy-to let possession action, meaning that no homes will be repossessed during this period.

These two measures prevented both homeowners and landlords from facing unaffordable bills or repossession if they can't work, or if their tenants can't pay rent, during this period.

This gives home owners a much-needed respite period, where no repayments on these products are due. The FCA's guidance sets out that borrowers can access a 3-month payment holiday from their lender until 31 October.

Anyone experiencing financial difficulty with their mortgage should contact their lender as soon as possible to discuss their circumstances and what support might be available.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities what engagement she has had with the Department for Work and Pensions to abolish the Social Sector Size Criteria.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department continues to deliver welfare mitigation payments to people who lose benefit as a result of the bedroom tax with £21.3 million paid to more than 38,000 people affected in 2018/19. A small number of people are not currently eligible for a mitigation payment and this is something I intend to address in the forthcoming welfare mitigation legislation.

Engagement with DWP officials by this Department is a regular occurrence.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many Personal Independence Payment Appeals are currently waiting to be heard since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Ms Ní Chuilín: As a result of the on-going COVID-19 pandemic, no appeals were listed for hearings between 18 March 2020 and 6 July 2020. At 31 August 2020 there were 3,773 cases waiting to be heard.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities what plans she has to reduce lone parent poverty.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Work has started on the development of a suite of Social Inclusion Strategies including an Anti-Poverty Strategy.

I have appointed an Anti-Poverty Expert Advisory Panel to make recommendations on the key themes and priorities that the Strategy should address. The recommendations will inform the work of a Co-Design Group made up of a cross section of Voluntary and Community Sector organisations. This group will reach out to people including lone parents affected by poverty to ensure their voices are heard and considered in the development of the Strategy.

My Department is also taking forward work linked to the wider Labour Market Recovery which includes expanding the support available to help people into employment, assisting lone parents to increase their income and move out of poverty.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of pieces of official Ministerial correspondence she has issued since the restoration of devolution.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of appearances she has made since the restoration of devolution (i) before the Assembly; and (ii) before the Ad Hoc Committee on the COVID-19 Response.

(AQW 7993/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Minister for Communities has appeared 36 times before the Assembly and 3 times before the Ad Hoc Committee on the COVID-19 Response, between the restoration of devolution and the 1 October 2020.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities what plans exist to introduce a pre-action protocol encouraging mediation in the private rental sector.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Responsibility for pre-action protocols lies with the Lord Chief Justice and the Court Service. Helping to prevent evictions is a priority for me during this Coronavirus emergency. My officials have consulted with the Lord Chief Justice's Office which has issued clear guidance that when dealing with possession proceedings the courts will take account of all circumstances, including the guidance my Department has produced in this area.

The Member may also wish to note that last year a pilot mediation service for landlords and tenants was launched. This is being delivered by Housing Rights. The Housing Mediation Service will help mediate disputes between landlords and tenants about rent arrears, threatened evictions, repairs, tenancy agreements, anti-social behaviour issues and much more. This pilot will run for 3 years and will help inform any decisions around the establishment of an independent housing panel, which was one of the proposals which was consulted on during the review of the Private Rented Sector in 2017.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities how she plans to mitigate against the impact of Social Sector Size Criteria on a more long-term basis.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am committed to the continued mitigation of the Social Sector Size Criteria policy (commonly referred to as the “bedroom tax”). As such my priority is to secure an extension of the existing welfare mitigation package and this will be included in forthcoming legislation.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister for Communities what her Department is doing to financially support musicians who cannot work due to COVID-19 regulations.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I recognise the significant impact that current restrictions are having on musicians. I have welcomed the £29m allocation from the Executive which will provide support across the broad arts, language, culture and heritage sectors.

My officials are engaging with partners across central and local government, as well as arm’s length bodies and sectoral representatives to ensure the funding is distributed quickly, fairly and to maximise its impact. Work on the programme of support is well advanced and details of the new funding schemes, including guidance, eligibility and application information will be available shortly.

This fund is in addition to the £5.5m Creative Support Fund previously established by my Department.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of applications for intimidation points in each of the last five years, broken down by constituency.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table which details the numbers of Applicants who have presented as homeless (Homeless Presenters) to the Housing Executive with the stated reason of intimidation, in each of the last five years.

The Housing Executive has advised that this data cannot be extracted from the Housing Management System at constituency level and therefore is provided on the basis of Local Council Area. Where there have been less than 10 Applicants awarded intimidation points this has been denoted by <10 to anonymise this data and mitigate the potential risk of identifying individuals and individual households.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail her social housing new build target for the (i) 2020/21; and (ii) 2021/22 financial years.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I can advise that the social housing new build target for 2020/21 is 1,850 social housing units to be started. For the years 2021/22 I can advise that no target has yet been set. I am committed to increasing the amount of social homes; delivery of this commitment will be significantly determined by future decisions on budget.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities whether the Sub-Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer will commence in the 2020/21, 2021/22 or 2022/23 financial year.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Sub Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer is one of the commitments in the “New Decade, New Approach” Deal and my Department has begun work in 2020/21 to refresh and re-engage with the programme to provide a robust evidence base on the current challenges, strategic priorities and needs of soccer at all levels. Following this work I will present recommendations to Executive colleagues on the future implementation of the Programme.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Communities whether she is working towards introducing a scheme similar to the Green Homes Grant in England.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department of Finance has advised me the British Treasury has indicated that funding for a Green Homes Grant scheme, is to be found from existing budgets for 2020-21. This means that there is no additional funding for the Executive this year. I will continue to keep options under review.

However, my Department currently funds two grant Schemes aimed at reducing fuel poverty by increasing the energy efficiency of households; the Affordable Warmth Scheme and the Boiler Replacement Scheme.

Since the introduction of the Affordable Warmth Scheme in September 2014 a total of 34,683 energy efficiency measures have been installed in 21,027 homes, at a cost of £78.3m. A total of 37,491 boilers have been replaced under the Boiler Replacement Scheme since its introduction in 2012, at a total cost of £20.9m.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will seek to have the Taekwon Do Alliance Ireland recognised as the sports governing body with Sport NI.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Currently, TANI is recognised as the governing body for the sport of Taekwondo. Only one governing body may be recognised for a sport.

Should another organisation wish to be recognised as the governing body for Taekwondo it should contact Sport NI to apply, where it will be assessed on its own merits and against the incumbent body in line with the Recognition criteria. To date, Taekwon Do Alliance Ireland has not submitted such an application.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities how much community funding has gone into (i) Armoy; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum, in each of the last five years.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In the last five years the Department for Communities, including its Arm's-Length Bodies, awarded £221,872.17 of funding to the areas requested. The analysis is set out in the following table.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the measures introduced in response to COVID-19 by her Department to safeguard staff in the workplace.

Ms Ní Chuilín: During the Covid 19 pandemic period my Department has kept offices open for staff to provide essential benefit and child maintenance services and ensure the continuity of payments to customers. Jobs and Benefits Offices were re-reopened to the public from July 2020 on a restricted basis to ensure that services for vulnerable customers could be provided on a face-to-face basis.

Consequently the Department also put in place a number of measures to protect staff coming to the workplace including the designation of key worker status for benefit and child maintenance staff, the provision of IT equipment to work from home where this was possible, the introduction of rota based systems to ensure minimum staffing levels, the reinforcement of social distancing measures in the workplace and additional cleaning/ sanitising regimes.

The Department has also worked with TU Health & Safety representatives to put in place Covid19 risk assessments for all of its office estate to ensure that staff numbers coming in to the workplace could do so safely and in compliance with all relevant Public Health Agency and Health & Safety Executive guidance.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of departmental staff who are (i) working from home; and (ii) have returned to the workplace.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The position on 6th October 2020 is:

- i 2,982 DfC staff working from home;
- ii 3,405 DfC staff working from their place of work;

Please Note:

- DfC have c 8,397 staff in post.
- On 6th October 2020 there were 1,411 DfC staff not working due to being on either annual leave, flexi leave or part-time (non-working day).
- In addition there were 599 DfC staff not working due to being on either COVID-19 special leave, maternity leave, term-time or sick leave.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities whether she intends to establish a Northern Ireland Green Homes Grant scheme.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department of Finance has advised me the British Treasury has indicated that funding for a Green Homes Grant scheme, is to be found from existing budgets for 2020-21. This means that there is no additional funding for the Executive this year. I will continue to keep options under review.

However, my Department currently funds two grant Schemes aimed at reducing fuel poverty by increasing the energy efficiency of households; the Affordable Warmth Scheme and the Boiler Replacement Scheme.

Since the introduction of the Affordable Warmth Scheme in September 2014 a total of 34,683 energy efficiency measures have been installed in 21,027 homes, at a cost of £78.3m. A total of 37,491 boilers have been replaced under the Boiler Replacement Scheme since its introduction in 2012, at a total cost of £20.9m.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Communities for an update on work to bring forward legislation to outlaw conversion therapy.

Ms Ní Chuilín: So-called conversion therapy is an abhorrent and inhuman practice. It is widely opposed by the United Nations, human rights experts and health professionals on the basis that it is a form of torture.

I recently met with Minister Long and Minister Swann, who share my commitment to ensure these harmful practices stop.

As this is a cross-cutting matter, it will be taken forward in the development of the Executive's Sexual Orientation Strategy outlined in New Decade, New Approach.

I recently announced the timetable for developing the Social Inclusion Strategies in my remit, one of which is the Sexual Orientation Strategy. Subject to Executive approval, the Sexual Orientation Strategy and Action Plan will be published and launched in December 2021. The Action Plan will include any legislative requirements that flow from this work.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities how her Department follows up on the implementation of village plans.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Village Plans are developed under the Rural Development Programme (2014-20) Village Regeneration Scheme. The Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (DAERA) is the Managing Authority with responsibility for the implementation, monitoring and reporting of the programme.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the total number of Northern Ireland Housing Executive properties which either have inadequate or inefficient cavity wall insulation.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In 2019 the Housing Executive published a research report on Cavity Wall Insulation. The findings for the Housing Executive's stock were based on a sample survey of 825 properties and found that 63% of these properties had cavity wall insulation installations that were non-compliant with modern industry standards because there were found to be voids or debris in the cavity. Although the Housing Executive's data on the construction of all of its stock is not comprehensive, we estimate that if this 63% is extrapolated it would represent some 44,600 of our likely cavity wall constructed properties.

The Housing Executive is currently finalising a Draft Cavity Wall Insulation Action Plan for its stock in response to BBA's findings and recommendations. It will be issued for public consultation in the coming months.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities what progress she is making in bringing about a return of face-to-face benefit appeal panels; and when the panels will be hearing appeals again.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Appeal hearings recommenced on 6 July 2020, for those appellants who opted to have their appeal determined on the papers before the tribunal panel.

Remote oral hearings commenced on 28 September 2020 using telephone conferencing facilities, while video technology hearings commenced on 5 October 2020.

Oral face to face hearings are recommencing in Cleaver House on 19 October 2020.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities how the Job Support Scheme will interact with childcare or other elements of Universal Credit.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Entitlement to the childcare element of Universal Credit will not be affected by the Job Support Scheme.

The support which will be provided to employees who can return to work part-time under the Job Support Scheme will be taken into account in calculating the amount of Universal Credit. This is similar to the position for employees under the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme – commonly known as the furlough scheme - which is due to end on 31 October 2020.

Work allowances are provided to those who are responsible for one or more children and/or have limited capability for work. For those with housing costs the work allowance is £287 per month and £503 per month for those without housing costs. Universal Credit is not reduced until earnings exceed these amounts and then by 63 pence in the pound.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities (i) to detail the challenges in implementing The Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Act (NI) 2011; (ii) whether she will advise clubs to use an auditor for account preparation rather than the independent examiner method; and (iii) for her assessment of advice given to clubs by the PSNI that they should use the independent examiner method.

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- i The Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 contained 19 sections.

Sections 5, 11 and 12 of the Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 have yet to be commenced.

In respect of Sections 5 and 11, the Department decided not to invoke its power to make regulations as it has not found it necessary to do so, whilst work is ongoing to commence Section 12 of the Act.
- ii Currently all registered clubs must conduct their accounting requirements in accordance with Article 40 of the Registration of Clubs (Northern Ireland) Order 1996 and the Registration of Clubs (Accounts) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1997. Therefore, current legislation does not permit any club to use an independent examiner to carry out accounts preparation. It is only a qualified auditor who is permitted to audit an annual statement of accounts for a registered club.

However, the new accounts regulations and guidance which will revoke the 1997 Accounts Regulations will set out:

 - the documents with respect to transactions, assets and liabilities which a club is required to keep;
 - the manner in which such documents must be kept;
 - the system of control of accounts, cash holdings, receipts and remittances which a club must establish and maintain;
 - the need for a club to complete and the form of and particulars to be contained in, and the annual statement of accounts;
 - the need to have its accounts audited, who may conduct that audit and the manner in which an audit should be conducted; and
 - the need to have its accounts examined by an independent examiner, who may be selected as an independent examiner and the manner in which an independent examination should be conducted.
- iii My officials are continuing to work closely with the PSNI and it is hoped that Section 12 of the Act will come into operation on 1 April 2021 to coincide with the start of the new financial year. Current legislation does not permit any club to use an independent examiner to carry out accounts preparation.

My officials are currently drafting new accounts regulations, which will make some easements to the accounting requirements of clubs along with associated guidance and a frequently asked questions guide in order to assist registered clubs with the new accounting procedures. It is envisaged that these regulations will come into force before April 2021.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities what the new regulations introduced in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area mean for different sports.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Following an increase in coronavirus (Covid-19) cases, additional restrictions have been introduced for people living in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area.

In terms of what the new restrictions mean for sports:

- Indoor sport is allowed for individual training only (for example, no exercise classes); and
- Outdoor sports training and sporting events are permitted, however they will be required to take place without spectators.

For a full summary of the restrictions that are already in place, along with the additional restrictions for the affected area, please visit the following link: www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-regulations-and-localised-restrictions

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities what is the public housing stock in (i) Armoy; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Public Housing Stock is managed by two bodies:-

- 1 Regional Housing Associations have provided the following figures for their Housing Stock in the areas requested.
 - (i) Armoy - 6 (Rural Housing Association)
 - (ii) Bushmills – 17 (14 – Radius; 3 – Choice)
 - (iii) Dervock – 0
 - (iv) Mosside – 0
 - (v) Stranocum – 8 (Triangle)
- 2 The Housing Executive has provided the following table which details their Housing Stock in the areas requested.

Common Landlord Area	Bungalow	Flat	House	Maisonette	Cottage	Total	Void
Armoy	29	0	36	0	9	74	0
Bushmills	51	10	161	0	12	234	2
Dervock	40	0	68	0	20	128	0
Mosside	15	0	46	0	6	67	1
Stranocum	9	0	9	0	7	25	0

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Communities what measures her Department can bring forward to address the lack of parking areas in estates with a high proportion of Housing Executive properties.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive recognises that many of the estates it inherited were constructed at a time when car ownership was significantly lower than it is today and where such provision would therefore not have been to today's standards, or whose now unpopular design and layout were specifically intended to separate vehicles and parking from dwellings.

Consequently the Housing Executive has historically implemented minor and major schemes to introduce increased or more appropriate parking provision in many such estates; for example, through in-curtilage parking, the reconfiguration of existing parking areas and the creation of new parking areas (where land availability and planning approval permits, and the Department for Infrastructure is prepared to adopt these). However, such activity has been reduced in recent years.

Now that estates are mixed tenure areas such works will be considered if Housing Executive owns over 50% of the properties in the area.

Schemes where the level of Housing Executive ownership is lower can be considered, but only on the proviso that there is a contribution to the costs from Roads Service. In some cases this has been done with funding support from Departmental programmes, such as Neighbourhood Renewal and TBUC, where works are part of area regeneration proposals.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Communities whether she will retain the Model Engineers Society Northern Ireland organisation at the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum, Cultra.

Ms Ní Chuilín: This is an operational decision for the Management of National Museums. National Museums have developed a masterplan for the Cultra site which will more fully unlock its potential to meet long term objectives. With these considerations in mind, National Museums indicated to the Model Engineer's Society in October 2019 that their continued use of the Walled Garden would not form part of the future plans for the site.

On 12th October 2020 National Museums issued the Model Engineers Society with notice of termination of their licence and this will start the formal 6-month period of notice to vacate the site. National Museums have offered to meet Model Engineers Society at their earliest convenience to discuss their relocation plans and how National Museums may be able to facilitate and support them.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 7517/17-22, (i) for a breakdown of the amount by constituency area; and (ii) how many people are currently on the waiting list in each area.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following updated figures for the number of applicants on the waiting list and the number of voids broken down by constituency area.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many new claims for Universal Credit have been unsuccessful, since 16 March 2020.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There may be several reasons why someone is not eligible to receive Universal Credit. Between 16 March and 8 September there were 87,555 claims made for Universal Credit of which 18,835 were unsuccessful for various reasons

- 51% of those were either withdrawn by the person claiming or the individual did not provide enough evidence for an assessment to be made; and
- 49% were closed as the person did not meet the eligibility criteria, e.g. excess capital, income, in full time education, residency.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities what additional public housing stock is planned for (i) Armoyle; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are 9 social housing units programmed to start in Armoyle as part of the Social Housing Development Programme (SHDP) 2020/21 – 2022/23. The detail of these units are included in Table 1 below.

The Housing Executive have also engaged with communities within the Bushmills, Dervock, Mosside & Stranocum areas to help them examine the needs for social housing. There are currently no social housing schemes planned in these areas.

The Housing Executive is currently in the process of updating the Social Housing Need Assessment Net Projection for the next 5 Year Period (2020-2025). Planned new social housing for these areas will be reviewed following confirmation of the updated projections.

Table 1: Social housing units programmed to start in Armoyle 2020/21 - 2022/23 (9 units)

Housing Association	Scheme Name	Location	Type	Units	Onsite Year	Completion Year
Triangle	New Street	Armoyle	New Build	9	2021/22	2022/23

Programmed schemes can be lost or slip to future programme years for a variety of reasons, for example, relating to delays in acquiring sites and/or failure to secure Planning Permission.

Additional schemes can also be added to the SHDP in-year through the purchase of Existing Satisfactory / Off-the-shelf properties.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the habitability of each of the high rise flats in East Belfast.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has six tower blocks in East Belfast: Kilbroney House, Woodstock House, Willowbrook House, Clarawood House, Carnet House and Whincroft House.

The Housing Executive has advised that these blocks would now require very significant investment in order to both extend their service lives and achieve and maintain a quality of accommodation expected of modern social housing.

The Housing Executive has developed a Tower Blocks Action Plan for its Tower Blocks portfolio which was approved by its Board in March 2019 and by the Department for Communities in August 2019. The Action Plan comprises a mix of retention and investment, re-provision and disposal at various points in a timeline. Given the complexity and scale of this plan the blocks have been categorised into 3 phases:

- Phase 1: Demolition (or disposal in some cases) in a 1 to 5 year time period - 14 'Short' term blocks
- Phase 2: Demolition in a 6 to 10 year period, with remedial works to be carried out in the interim - 7 'Medium' term blocks
- Phase 3: Demolition at a point beyond a 10 year period, with improvement works carried out as required - 12 'Long' term blocks.

As regards the East Belfast blocks the Action Plan proposes that Kilbroney House and Clarawood House, which have been categorised as 'Short' term blocks, should be demolished with new social housing built on the cleared sites subject to housing need. The remaining four blocks - Willowbrook, Woodstock, Carnet and Whincroft - have been categorised as 'Long' term and it is proposed that these blocks will have full improvements carried out (Carnet and Whincroft Houses have already had major works completed to the exterior of the blocks).

Implementation of these proposals will be subject to approval of business cases for individual blocks or groups of blocks as appropriate. The Housing Executive has advised that the programme of business cases is already underway and is currently focused on the 'Short' term blocks. It is envisaged that the business cases for Kilbroney House and Clarawood House will be finalised over the next few months. It is expected that the Housing Executive will approach the Department for Communities for approval of the detailed plans early next year.

An indicative programme for the refurbishment of the 'Long' term blocks has been drawn up. This is a seven and a half year programme in total, albeit timescales could slip due to the impact of Covid-19. A brief has been prepared by the Housing Executive for a procurement exercise to appoint consultant(s) to undertake detailed condition surveys for the first tranche of blocks to be refurbished. Woodstock House is included in the first tranche of blocks.

As regards the 'habitability' of these blocks, the statutory test as to whether a dwelling is fit for human habitation is the Fitness Standard as set out in Schedule 5 of the Housing (NI) Order 1992. I am informed that the Housing Executive is of the opinion that the six East Belfast blocks do not fail this standard.

I am advised by the Housing Executive that some of the windows in Kilbroney House are in a poor condition and that there are a number of repair issues within the block. Given that the block has been categorised for 'Short' term action, spending significant money to replace elements such as windows at this stage could be considered nugatory expenditure. The Housing Executive's South & East Belfast Area Office is therefore making assessments on the habitability of individual flats once they become vacant, pending the business case setting out the future plan for the block being approved. The Area Office continues to provide a response maintenance service to deal with day to day repairs to tenants in all of its blocks.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities how her Department will alleviate housing stress in East Belfast.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am acutely aware that the numbers of people currently on the waiting list and those deemed to be in housing stress remains very challenging. I am focused on seeking to deliver as many new social homes as possible with the funding available.

In terms of new social homes in the East Belfast Parliamentary Constituency I have been advised by the Housing Executive that there have been 26 social housing units completed to date in 2020/21, with a further 130 social housing units currently under construction.

There are 233 new social housing units programmed to start through the Social Housing Development Programme (SHDP) between 2020/21 and 2022/23.

I am committed to delivering on the commitments within the "New Decade, New Approach" and will be taking steps to protect existing Housing Executive homes for future generations by actively progressing solutions to tackle the investment challenge faced. I will be laying out my plans very soon to commence a process of revitalisation.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities (i) for an update on the redevelopment of the King's Road flats, East Belfast; and (ii) how she will progress this project as quickly as possible to avoid cost increases.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive tendered a multi element improvement programme for Kings Road in late 2019. Upon examining the compliant tenders it was found that the bids submitted significantly exceeded the budget estimate and the Business Case approval limit for the project from the Department for Communities. As a consequence of this and the likely impact of Covid on the working arrangements, the Housing Executive in April 2020 decided not to award the contract.

I am informed that it is the Housing Executive's intention to retender the project in late 2020 with a commencement on site in quarter 1 of the 21/22 financial year. This is only on the basis that the tenders are compliant and that they fall within the approved expenditure limits.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she will remove the loophole in the mitigations package which sees families claiming after 2016 being subject to the bedroom tax.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I will be bringing forward new legislation to extend and improve the existing welfare mitigation schemes. The legislation will include proposed amendments to the Benefit Cap mitigation scheme to remove restrictions on entitlement. This will ensure that all families with children who are affected by the Benefit Cap will receive a mitigation payment equivalent to the capped amount.

I will also be bringing forward an amendment to the so called "bedroom tax" mitigation scheme to remove an anomaly in the current legislation that acts to end entitlement when a person moves home and continues to under-occupy by at least the same number of bedrooms. This will ensure that in future all tenants affected by the “bedroom tax” will receive full mitigation for the associated loss of benefit. Both these proposed amendments will be subject to the approval of Assembly.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has plans to mitigate the two child tax cap.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am considering the feasibility of introducing a scheme to mitigate the restriction on support for a maximum of two children in Child Tax Credit and Universal Credit. The proposal is at an early stage of development with the estimated costs for delivering any additional welfare mitigation schemes currently being assessed.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Communities what support she can provide to students in regards to the cost and burden of contracts for private accommodation.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The main source of support for students facing genuine financial hardship is the Department for Economy led Student Hardship Fund which is allocated to the local Higher Education Institutions (HEI) for distribution to students who can demonstrate genuine financial hardship. Each HEI is responsible for assessing student’s need and issuing support within the guidelines of the scheme.

Any students who may be experiencing financial hardship, should contact their Higher Education Institution to determine if they are eligible to receive support.

The obligation to fulfil a contract between individuals is legally binding and it is outside the powers of my Department to change this.

Since the outbreak of this pandemic the Department has put in place a number of provisions to assist private renters. Some students may be eligible to receive Housing Benefit if they already receive certain benefits or have parental or caring responsibilities.

An increase in Local Housing Allowance rates from 1 April has provided additional financial support for private tenants including any students in receipt of Housing Benefit or the housing costs element of Universal Credit.

In addition, anyone who has lost their job and who signed on to Universal Credit can apply for a Discretionary Housing Payment to have their full rent paid for 13 weeks.

Discretionary Support is available to provide financial assistance in extreme, exceptional or crisis situations where there is significant risk to the health, safety or well-being of a person or a member of their immediate family.

A person who is in full time third level education is normally not eligible for Discretionary Support. However, a student who is experiencing financial hardship as a direct result of the COVID-19 pandemic may be entitled to Discretionary Support including a grant for short term living expenses if they, or any member of their immediate family, are diagnosed with COVID-19 or are advised to self-isolate in accordance with the latest public health guidance.

In addition to this I also worked with local student representatives to ensure that students facing hardship were able to access food parcels.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities what Barnett consequentials are available as a result of the Kickstart programme in the UK; and how much of the allocation has been allocated to her Department to support the Communities Jobstart programme due to commence in November 2020.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Following the British Chancellor’s update the Executive received Barnett consequential of £6.116m of Resource DEL in 2020/21 for New Jobs for Young People. It is for the Executive to decide how this is allocated.

My Department bid for £4.8m for Labour Market Inventions in 2020/21 but to date has received no Executive allocation. My Department is now seeking to manage this pressure internally through reprioritising and reallocating funding. A further bid will be considered as part of January Monitoring for any pressure remaining to 31 March 2021.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities how the recently announced £40 million support for local councils is being allocated.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is carrying out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period 1 July 2020 to 30 September 2020 and actual spend for the period mid-March 2020 to 30 June 2020.

Once my Department has carried out a due diligence exercise on the information provided by councils, the figures will be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives. Final consultation with ALGFO and SOLACE will also take place.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations of funding will be confirmed once the due diligence exercise has been completed.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she will write-off social housing rent arrears for people who incurred these arrears due to cuts to their benefits beyond their control.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that its staff are in regular contact with tenants to ensure that they are receiving their correct entitlement to the relevant benefits and mitigations to assist with their housing costs.

If their entitlement is reduced and that is causing an arrear to accrue the Housing Executive will seek to offer tenants advice and assistance through a “Making Your Money Work” Assessment. This Assessment includes basic budgeting help, a referral to Advice NI if other significant debts exist, a referral for Floating Support if factors affecting their housing situation have been identified, a referral to the Department’s Make the Call Wraparound Service who will carry out a Needs Assessment to ensure people are receiving all the benefits, supports and services to which they are entitled, and/or a referral to the Department’s in-house Financial Inclusion Managers who provide expert benefits, income maximisation and money and debt advice.

Under existing Housing Executive policy, and in line with the guidelines in Managing Public Money, the write off of rent arrears is only permissible when they are deemed to be irrecoverable. The Housing Executive must be satisfied that every reasonable and cost effective attempt has been made to recover a debt, using the available recovery methods.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities what additional (i) powers; and (ii) resources she has made available to local councils for the enforcement of Health Protection Regulations.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Executive has agreed to introduce new powers which will allow council enforcement officers to issue improvement notices on premises giving the owner/occupier 48 hours to comply with the instructions in the notice. Regulations are currently being drafted.

On 19 May 2020 Minister Hargey announced that the Executive was allocating £20.3m to local councils for the period mid-March – 30 June 2020, to assist them with their financial pressures as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. The Executive then allocated a further £40m to councils, on 24 September 2020, to help address their financial pressures as a result of the COVID-19 crisis.

My Department continues to liaise with councils through Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives to ascertain their needs going forward, including the costs to councils of responding to the COVID-19 emergency such as the deployment of enforcement officers to issue improvement notices.

The Executive will shortly be commencing their consideration of the Budget 2021-24 period. This will allow the Executive to consider future year pressures, including those presented on behalf of Councils by my Department and enable the Executive to agree a budget settlement for future years. It will then be for my Department to prioritise funding requirements, including consideration of any proposal to provide additional financial support to Councils, within the context of that budget settlement

Dr Aiken asked the Minister for Communities whether the GAA proposed any sites other than Casement Park for a new stadium.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Alternative sites for a regional scale Ulster Council GAA stadium were considered within the Regional Stadia Programme Outline Business Case in June 2010. The Ulster Council GAA proposal contained an assessment of other site options.

These other sites were excluded on the basis that they were not able to satisfy the criteria required to deliver a regional stadium: to facilitate the development of a facility capable of hosting Club, County, Provincial and National fixtures. They were therefore unable to satisfy the project objectives, the objectives of the Regional Stadia Programme and inherently, the wider community benefits contained within the programme.

Dr Aiken asked the Minister for Communities what discussions (i) have been held; and (ii) are planned, with the GAA regarding increasing the Association’s contribution to the Casement Park project.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My departmental officials, in conjunction with officials in the Department of Finance, are currently completing a review of the latest version of the draft Full Business Case for the Casement Park Project. Alongside this, a due diligence exercise is underway reviewing the estimated construction cost, which has risen due to the passage of time since the original estimate. There is also potential for any conditions associated with the planning approval process to impact on the projected costs for the project. UCGAA has continued to engage with the Department throughout this process.

Discussions have taken place, and will continue, with the GAA in respect of all these and associated matters, including the apportionment of any projected increased project costs.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities what support will be provided to people who lose their job but do not receive assistance from the Government’s new Job Support Scheme.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is committed to supporting people at this difficult time and a series of changes have been put in place to ensure that the social security system is more flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require.

Those on low incomes or out of work can get support by applying for Universal Credit. Claims can be made online and a step by step guide on how to make a claim is available on the Department's website at <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/communities/dfc-universal-credit-step-by-step-guide.pdf>.

Anyone currently in receipt of Tax Credits should read the information on www.gov.uk/working-tax-credit/further-information before making a claim to Universal Credit.

A person considering making a claim for benefit can access the 'entitled to' benefit calculator to get an estimate of how much Universal Credit they may be entitled to <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/benefits-adviser>

Immediate financial support is available for anyone struggling financially while waiting for their first payment of Universal Credit by applying through their online account for a repayable advance payment of up to 100% of their estimated entitlement. In addition, and in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Universal Credit standard allowance increased for everyone by £86.67 a month from 6 April 2020 for one year.

People making a claim to Universal Credit can also apply for a non-repayable grant from the Universal Credit Contingency Fund through the Discretionary Support Scheme. An online application form can be found at:

www.nidirect.gov.uk/publications/discretionary-support-form. Further details on the Discretionary Support Scheme can be found at: <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/extra-financial-support>.

If a person satisfies the National Insurance Contributions (NICs) criteria, they may also be able to apply for New Style Jobseeker's Allowance. Details, including access to an on-line form, can be found at:

<https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/jobseekers-allowance>

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities how many Universal Credit claims have been made in the last twelve months, broken down by the time it has taken to process each claim.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Official statistics on the number of households on Universal Credit each month since October 2017 to May 2020 are detailed in the official Universal Credit publications available on my Department's website at:

<https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/publications/universal-credit-statistics-may-2020>

Unlike many other social security benefits, Universal Credit is based on Assessment Periods. These are rolling one month periods that start on the day a Universal Credit claim is made. For example, if a claim is made on 1st September, the first assessment period will cover the period 1st September to 30 September. A new assessment period will begin on 1 October.

Up to the end of September 2020, over 90% of new claims were paid in full and on time by the end of their first assessment period. It is important to note that the Department will be unable to pay a person their full Universal Credit entitlement if they have not provided all the relevant information before the end of their assessment period.

Management Information providing weekly information on the numbers of people claiming Universal Credit, payments made, advances approved and payment timeliness for new claims is published on the Department's website and can be found at:

<https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/system/files/publications/communities/dfc-management-information-uc-021020.pdf>

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities what actions she will take to ensure the Model Engineers Society NI will be able to stay at the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum.

Ms Ní Chuilín: This is an operational matter for the Management of National Museums to decide upon. However, it is acknowledged that their decision will have far reaching implications for the Model Engineers Society.

Acting on my direction, Departmental Officials have been in regular contact with National Museums as this matter has developed and they have sought assurance from National Museums that consideration had been given to the possibility of maintaining MESNI's relationship with Cultra by resettling the Model Engineers elsewhere on the estate.

I have been advised by National Museums that the possibility of retaining the link between the Society and the Ulster Folk & Transport Museum had been considered but they concluded that this could not be achieved.

NMNI are keen to conclude the relationship on amicable terms and have again offered to meet the Society at their earliest convenience to discuss their relocation plans and how National Museums NI may be able to facilitate and support them.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for Communities what support is available to students to offset rent for accommodation they are not using due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The main source of support for students facing genuine financial hardship is the Department for Economy led Student Hardship Fund which is allocated to the local Higher Education Institutions (HEI) for distribution to students who can demonstrate genuine financial hardship. Each HEI is responsible for assessing student's need and issuing support within the guidelines of the scheme.

Any students who may be experiencing financial hardship, should contact their Higher Education Institution to determine if they are eligible to receive support.

The obligation to fulfil a contract between individuals is legally binding and it is outside the powers of my Department to change this.

Since the outbreak of this pandemic the Department has put in place a number of provisions to assist private renters. Some students may be eligible to receive Housing Benefit if they already receive certain benefits or have parental or caring responsibilities.

An increase in Local Housing Allowance rates from 1 April has provided additional financial support for private tenants including any students in receipt of Housing Benefit or the housing costs element of Universal Credit.

In addition, anyone who has lost their job and who signed on to Universal Credit can apply for a Discretionary Housing Payment to have their full rent paid for 13 weeks.

Discretionary Support is available to provide financial assistance in extreme, exceptional or crisis situations where there is significant risk to the health, safety or well-being of a person or a member of their immediate family.

A person who is in full time third level education is normally not eligible for Discretionary Support. However, a student who is experiencing financial hardship as a direct result of the COVID-19 pandemic may be entitled to Discretionary Support including a grant for short term living expenses if they, or any member of their immediate family, are diagnosed with COVID-19 or are advised to self-isolate in accordance with the latest public health guidance.

In addition to this I also worked with local student representatives to ensure that students facing hardship were able to access food parcels.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the review of the Neighbourhood Renewal Strategy. (AQW 8758/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: A review of People and Place, a Strategy for Neighbourhood Renewal is currently ongoing involving a co-design approach with key stakeholders. The foundation of the review are the lessons learnt and key recommendations of the independent Evaluation (2014) of the Strategy along with feedback from key stakeholder engagement events.

To help inform and shape the Review a Partnership Forum, comprising representatives from each Neighbourhood Renewal Partnership and Areas at Risk project, has been established to secure the views of those delivering Neighbourhood Renewal on the ground.

Unfortunately the work of the Forum has been impacted by the efforts required on the Covid response however it has met twice to date, with a third meeting arranged for early November.

It is expected that the Review will be completed within the current Assembly mandate, whilst findings from the Review will be directly fed into the development of the Anti-Poverty Strategy.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities for her Department's definition of community development. (AQW 8759/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities has not adopted a single definition for the term community development.

The United Nations defines community development as "a process where community members come together to take collective action and generate solutions to common problems".

Within this broad definition, the Department for Communities supports community development approaches to improving outcomes for citizens and communities through a number of different mechanisms involving local and central government in partnership with the community and voluntary sector.

The skills and knowledge of the community and voluntary sector have been to the fore in working with government departments and council colleagues during the pandemic. This approach will be built into planning recovery and renewal.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Communities what financial help is under consideration for Irish League football clubs to address restricted income. (AQW 8761/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I recognise that the continued restrictions on sport are making it extremely difficult for organisations and clubs across the sector which depend on ticket sales and sponsorship from fixtures and events, to generate the income they need to survive.

DfC Officials and Sport NI have been engaging with the Sports Governing Bodies, District Councils and the Sports Ground Safety Authority in terms of the safe return of spectators to sport, which in the case of the Irish League football clubs, will go some way to address restricted income.

I have alerted the Executive to the level of support we estimate the sector to need during this time and in the future.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Communities how much of the additional £40 million support for local councils is earmarked for Belfast City Council.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is carrying out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period July 2020 to September 2020 and actual spend for the period mid-March 2020 to June 2020.

Once my Department has carried out a due diligence exercise on the information provided by councils, the figures are to be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations of funding will be confirmed once the due diligence exercise has been completed.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will bring forward a funding package for local charity groups, such as Gateway Clubs, who support children and adults with learning disabilities and who have had their fundraising activities curtailed as a result of the pandemic.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I launched the Executive's £15.5 million Covid-19 Charities Fund on 15 June 2020 to help local charities facing financial difficulties as a result of the current public health pandemic. Although this Fund has since closed, I recognise further needs are emerging and I have asked my officials to explore options for providing additional support.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities whether any orders have been made pursuant to section 109 of the Local Government Act (NI) 2014.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has not made any orders pursuant to section 109 of the Local Government Act (NI) 2014.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities how many discretionary support decision appeals have been lodged in each of the last three years, broken down by the outcome.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The decision to award a Discretionary Support grant or loan is not subject to appeals rights however, the decision can be reviewed on request.

The number of Discretionary Support internal reviews carried out in each of the last 2 years and their outcomes are provided in the Department's published Annual Reports on Welfare Supplementary Payments, Discretionary Support, Standards of Advice and Assistance and Sanctions. These reports can be found by accessing the following links:

In 19/20 a total of 72,183 Discretionary Support decisions were made of which only 2,826 (4%) asked for an internal review; and 768 (27%) of the reviews overturned the original decision made primarily as a result of additional information being provided during the review. This information will be included in the Department's published Annual Report on Welfare Supplementary Payments, Discretionary Support, Standards of Advice and Assistance and Sanctions for 19/20.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the amount of funding from the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Scheme received by each council.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The amount of funding each council received under the first tranche of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme is set out in the table below:

COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme – First tranche

Council Area	Amount Received
Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough Council	£255,000

Council Area	Amount Received
Ards and North Down Borough Council	£561,000
Armagh City, Banbridge & Craigavon Borough Council	£690,000
Belfast City Council	£1,338,000
Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council	£449,000
Derry City and Strabane District Council	£529,000
Fermanagh and Omagh District Council	£342,000
Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council	£279,000
Mid and East Antrim Borough Council	£428,000
Mid Ulster District Council	£429,000
Newry, Mourne and Down District Council	£590,000
Total	£5,890,000

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities for an update on (i) the £29 million support package for the wider arts sector; and (ii) the allocation of funding through the Arts Council's individuals emergency resilience programme.

(AQW 8850/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The £29m funding package agreed by the Executive will provide a significant boost across our culture, language, heritage and arts sectors.

On 19 October I made the first allocation from that package with £3m being directed to the Individual Emergency Resilience Fund, administered on my department's behalf by the Arts Council. This will allow immediate offers of assistance to be provided to over 1,000 people working in a wide range of roles across the creative and arts economy.

My officials are working in close collaboration across central and local government, as well as with arm's length bodies and sectoral representatives to develop further programmes which will be funded through the remaining £26m. Work is well advanced and I expect to make further announcements before the end of the October.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities how the Housing Executive is addressing the maintenance backlog.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In keeping with Public Health guidance the Housing Executive were restricted to undertaking only emergency repairs between the middle of March and the eighth of July. This resulted in a significant backlog of non-emergency repairs and the Housing Executive in conjunction with their contractors are currently addressing all outstanding repair requests. The backlog in repair requests has been reduced by approximately seventy five percent over the last three months and the majority of Areas should be returning to a normal repair service within the next two months.

Prior to the Covid-19 lockdown, the Housing Executive had a planned maintenance backlog of approximately three hundred and twenty million pounds going into this financial year. This is largely a legacy of insufficient funding to meet the required investment. While the Housing Executive has been attempting to address this backlog there are financial, procurement and delivery difficulties which have hampered its ability to do so. The Housing Executive is currently procuring a new Planned Maintenance Contract that is intended to address the latter, but ensuring adequate funding for long term investment in the stock remains an issue.

The commitment within New Decade, New Approach to tackle the maintenance backlog for Housing Executive's properties reflects a much wider revitalisation programme aimed at securing the long term future of social housing stock.

The backlog of maintenance referenced in New Decade, New Approach, is significant. Estimates in 2018, showed that £7.1 billion of investment is required over the next thirty years, with £3 billion required in the next eleven years to deal with the urgent backlog.

I will be laying out my plans very soon on how I intend to take forward the very significant investment challenge with which we are faced. I have already begun working towards ending the grossly unfair situation that means the Housing Executive is the only social landlord which pays Corporation Tax and exploring the removal of historical debt.

Finally, I know the member has a particular concern regarding the properties in Clooney Terrance, Dungen Road and Duddy's Court. I can confirm that the business case for an improvement scheme for these properties has been considered by Housing Division within my Department. They are awaiting further input from the Housing Executive which should be received this week. Once this is received the business case will be sent to Department of Finance for final approval.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities following the Court of Appeal judgment in the case of McKee & Others v Charity Commission for Northern Ireland., for her assessment of the ability of the Charity Commission to carry out its statutory duties.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am currently considering the full implications of the Judgment for the Commission and the charity sector generally and hope to make an announcement on the way forward shortly.

Any remedial action will be fully ECHR compliant.

In the interim, the Commission is operating a decision making Committee in compliance with the Judgments to ensure that their oversight of the charity sector continues.

While some Commission decisions may be delayed and the volume of decisions made has been reduced, the work on applications, requests and queries is ongoing.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the Strategic Investment Board's evaluation of the Social Supermarkets Pilot Programme.

Ms Ní Chuilín: At the outset of the Social Supermarket Pilot programme the Strategic Investment Board were contracted to provide a rolling evaluation of the programme, including an OBA approach.

This has been informed by site visits, network meetings and the gathering of monthly monitoring data. In addition to this each Social Supermarket member completes an entry and exit questionnaire to track the impact of the intervention on individual Social Supermarket members.

Analysis of this information has now been completed up to 31st March 2020 and demonstrates the positive impact of the model and its potential to deliver against a range of Programme for Government outcomes. A summary of this information is available in a report card and I will undertake to share that with members.

As of the 31st of March 2020 in excess of one thousand individuals had accessed the service across the five pilot sites and the evaluation indicates that access to affordable food produce and wrap-around supports has helped to positively change the life circumstances of members and their families. Alongside evidence of increased financial security the support has increased resilience and self-efficacy.

I believe the Social Supermarket model offers a sustainable, holistic approach to tackling food insecurity. As we continue to face restrictions and the consequences of the crisis they have an important role to play in supporting those facing food insecurity/food poverty.

As a result my officials are currently undertaking a business case to roll the model out. This will be informed by a co-design process with local Councils and other stakeholders over the coming months with a view to launch a full programme for the first of April 2021.

In the interim period support to the existing five pilots has been extended.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how much of the additional £40 million support for local councils is earmarked to go to Ards and North Down Borough Council.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is carrying out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period July 2020 to September 2020 and updated estimates / actual spend for the period mid- March 2020 to June 2020.

Once my Department has carried out a due diligence exercise on the information provided by councils, the figures are to be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives. Final consultation with Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives will also take place.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations of funding will be confirmed once the due diligence exercise has been completed.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities (i) for an update on the Capital COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Scheme that her Department administered via the 11 District Councils; (ii) for a breakdown of funds available per council area; (iii) how many grant applications have been received per Council; (iv) what is the total amount sought from eligible applicants; and (v) how Tranche 2 will be administered.

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) Payments totalling almost £6m for the first Tranche of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme have been made to councils to provide much needed support to local businesses as they recover and adapt to the impact of Covid-19. The development of Tranche 2 is at an advanced stage and I hope to make further announcements about this in the near future.

- (ii) A breakdown of the funding issued to date is set out in the table below:

COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme – First tranche

Council Area	Amount Received
Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough Council	£255,000
Ards and North Down Borough Council	£561,000
Armagh City, Banbridge & Craigavon Borough Council	£690,000
Belfast City Council	£1,338,000
Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council	£449,000
Derry City and Strabane District Council	£529,000
Fermanagh and Omagh District Council	£342,000
Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council	£279,000
Mid and East Antrim Borough Council	£428,000
Mid Ulster District Council	£429,000
Newry, Mourne and Down District Council	£590,000
Total	£5,890,000

- (iii) & (iv) Councils have decided to use part of their allocations to provide small grants to local businesses. The allocation and eligibility for the grants is a matter for each council to determine and as they are at various stages of administering their grant schemes, I am unable to provide the requested information at this time.
- (v) The second tranche of the Programme will again be paid to councils using powers granted by s.29 of the Local Government (Finance) Act (NI) 2011. Each council is responsible for administering their allocation and delivering the projects set out in their Revitalisation Plan. The Plan for each council has been developed following engagement with local stakeholders and identifies the interventions planned for each tranche within the council area.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Communities what discussions she has had with National Museums NI regarding Model Engineers Society of NI remaining within the site of the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum; and what action is being taken as a result.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Whilst this is an operational matter for the Management of National Museums to decide upon it is acknowledged that their decision will have far reaching implications for the Model Engineers Society.

Officials on my behalf sought clarification from National Museums to determine what consideration had been given to resettling MESNI elsewhere on the Cultra estate as part of the decision making process.

National Museums advised that due consideration was given to the resettlement of the Society elsewhere on the estate and it was concluded this could not be achieved.

National Museums NI have since issued the Model Engineers Society with notice of termination of their licence and this will start the formal 6-month period of notice to vacate the site. NMNI are keen to work with the Society, and have offered to meet with them to discuss their relocation plans and how National Museums NI may be able to facilitate and support.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Communities, during the 4 week lockdown period and under the restrictions placed on sporting activity, how many matches will be played in (i) GAA Football; (ii) GAA Hurling; (iii) GAA camogie; (iv) Rugby; (v) Hockey; (vi) Football; (vii) Cricket; (viii) Netball; and (ix) Basketball.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The scheduling of sports competitions during the 4 week lockdown period is a matter for the respective Governing Bodies

The Department does not keep a record of matches planned by the sports Governing Bodies.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Communities what engagement her Department has had with local councils about devolution of further regeneration powers.

Ms Ní Chuilín: A number of attempts have been made to date to transfer regeneration powers and associated resources to local councils as part of the wider Reform of Public Administration (RPA) – 2011, 2015 and 2016. On each occasion this did not progress due to a lack of consensus on the issue.

Since 2016, DfC Development Offices have been working ever more closely with councils and this collaboration is working well at present, but we will seek to strengthen this further.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities whether she will propose emergency legislation to prevent street drinking by people who are circumventing regulations relating to drinking in bars and the purchase of alcohol after 8:00pm.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under the current local government structure all 11 councils have bye-laws that make it an offence to consume alcoholic drinks in council designated public places.

Enforcement of the bye-laws rests with the PSNI and councils. In practice, the police take names and addresses of offenders and councils are responsible for prosecution proceedings.

As the legislation is already in place I have no plans to propose any changes to this. The issues regarding problems associated with drinking in public places relate to enforcement of the current bye laws.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 323/17-22, for an update on her Department's engagement with key stakeholders in respect of the Sub-Regional Stadia programme for Soccer.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Sub Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer is one of the commitments in the "New Decade, New Approach" Deal and as such my Department has been working to refresh and re-engage with the programme to provide a robust evidence base on the challenges, strategic priorities and needs of soccer at all levels.

A range of primary and secondary research tools have been adopted to inform the evidence base. This work is ongoing and has utilised a club survey along with discussions with key stakeholders including governing bodies of football, Sport NI, councils and Disability Sport NI. The analysis stage has begun and will inform the shape and scope of the programme going forward.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities when her Department decided further consultation on the Sub-Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer was required.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Sub Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer is one of the commitments in the "New Decade, New Approach" Deal and my Department has begun work to refresh and re-engage with the programme to provide a robust evidence base on the current challenges, strategic priorities and needs of soccer at all levels.

There have been a number of significant changes within the football landscape since the 2015/16 consultation and the need for further consultation will depend on the impact this has had on the need and therefore the investment plans.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities when AQW 8505/17-22 will be answered.

Ms Ní Chuilín: AQW 8505/17-22 was answered on 21 October 2020.

Department of Education

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what guidance he has issued to schools regarding Parent/Teacher meetings scheduled for this term.

(AQW 7615/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): An updated version of 'Coronavirus (COVID-19): Guidance for Schools and Educational Settings in Northern Ireland' was published on 29 September 2020.

Section 1 of this guidance provides information on parent-teacher meetings with a recommendation that tele-conference or video-conference be used for parent-teacher meetings or staff meetings in schools. When face to face meetings are required, the current public health advice on social distancing must be followed.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education why clear face masks have not been provided to schools and for school transport staff where there are children who are deaf and need to see a teacher and classroom assistant's face for communication or for children with learning disabilities.

Mr Weir: Clear face masks have not been provided to schools on the basis of public health guidance that face coverings are not recommended for children in Primary schools, whilst in post-primary schools face coverings are strongly recommended to be worn where adults and young people are moving about the school in corridors and confined communal areas (including toilets) where physical distancing is particularly difficult to maintain as set in the Department's Education Restart guidance (issued 29 September)

The EA advises that in relation to Classroom Assistants, face coverings are not required when working with a deaf child if they can adhere to social distancing. If the child uses a radio aid, this should be used to overcome the effect of distance. Alternatively, one meter distance and side to side working is acceptable.

If face coverings are worn, educational services are required to make reasonable adjustments to ensure deaf children are not disadvantaged.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of pieces of official Ministerial correspondence he has issued since the restoration of devolution.

Mr Weir: Between 11 January 2020 and 1 October 2020 I have received and responded to 1145 official correspondence cases. This total does not include Assembly Questions, Executive cases, Committee Chair enquiries or press enquiries. During this period a further 1161 Treat Official cases were answered on my behalf by officials.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education how many additional school service buses have been introduced this year to allow for social distancing and COVID-19 restrictions.

Mr Weir: The operation and delivery of home to school transport is the responsibility of the Education Authority and its delivery partners, including Translink. Under current DE guidance, while pupils should always seek to maintain a social distance from each other wherever possible, the guidance for public transport on social distancing will not apply on dedicated home to school transport. This means that Education Authority buses, Translink's school only services, privately operated buses and taxis are able to operate at their normal capacity.

The Education Authority continues to work closely with Translink and the Department for Infrastructure to ensure sufficient transport capacity is available to meet the needs of pupils allocated a bus pass for use on either a public bus service or a dedicated school only service, whilst also maintaining bus service capacity for the general public. The provision of school transport whether on dedicated school buses or public buses has been provided through the flexible use of the Translink fleet.

The Department for Infrastructure has informed me that Translink has worked with the Education Authority and local schools to add additional dedicated school services and has advised that Translink is also providing over 500 additional bus services to supplement the public transport network to facilitate social distancing for all passengers, including school children.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education how many (i) teaching staff; and (ii) non-teaching staff; and (iii) pupils have been or are in self-isolation this academic year, broken down by (a) pre-school; (b) primary school; (c) P7; and (d) post-primary school.

Mr Weir:

(i) and (ii) As part of a survey currently being undertaken each Tuesday, educational settings are being asked to report teaching and non-teaching staff who have been "Identified by PHA Testing and Tracing to self-isolate". The information reported for teaching and non-teaching staff is presented in the tables below.

At present it is not possible to distinguish between primary and post-primary settings. However, a parallel survey is sent to pre-school settings. It should be noted that the information relates only to the day of the survey and individual staff members are likely to appear in the figures for more than one week. The main survey has a typical response rate of approximately 65% of schools (i.e. around 680 schools) and that for the pre-school survey is approximately 55% of settings (i.e. around 250 settings).

- (iii) Pupil attendance data by school type is captured using standard reports from the Schools Information Management System (SIMS) of all primary, post primary, special and Educated Other Than at School (EOTAS) settings. However we do not hold specific information on self-isolating. Self-isolating is recorded on SIMS using a reappropriated code. These codes continue to be used for their original purpose and therefore are not solely specific to COVID-19. Therefore it is not possible to provide the number of pupils who have been or are in self-isolation this academic year.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education how many (i) teaching staff; and (ii) non-teaching staff; and (iii) pupils have tested positive for COVID-19 this academic year, broken down by (a) pre-school; (b) primary school; (c) P7; and (d) post-primary school.

Mr Weir: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has been collecting data on the number of COVID school incidents reported to the PHA COVID School Team since schools reopened. By the 13 October 2020 they had received 1,491 reported cases by schools (both pupils and staff).

At present it is not possible to provide this information by year group, school type or distinguish between pupils and staff.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to detail how the £7 million for cleaning schools has been allocated and spent.
(AQW 8313/17-22)

Mr Weir: All grant aided schools are funded under the Common Funding Scheme in accordance with the Local Management of Schools arrangements. Schools are therefore responsible for meeting normal cleaning costs from within their delegated budgets. Cleaning costs are not separately identified, nor are they separately reported on.

To help support schools in addressing many of the new pressures arising as a result of Covid-19, I outlined a significant package of funding to help support the safe reopening of schools. To date, £18.3m has been allocated to schools to mitigate additional costs in this respect.

As Funding Authority for grant aided schools, the Education Authority has advised schools of the mechanism for recording the costs associated with Covid-19, although this does not specifically identify expenditure for cleaning. Instead, it is to allow me to continue to monitor our schools' funding requirements as the pandemic progresses in order to secure adequate funding to keep our schools open and protect our children and young people.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education to detail the total figure of COVID-19 cases in schools, broken down by constituency area.

Mr Weir: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has been collecting data on the number of COVID school incidents reported to the PHA COVID School Team since schools reopened. By the 13 October 2020 they had received 1,491 reported cases by schools (both pupils and staff). At present it is not possible to provide this information by constituency.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education (i) how many children within Upper Bann are currently waiting for a Statement of Educational Needs; and (ii) how long they have been waiting.

Mr Weir:

- (i) 119 children within the Upper Bann area are currently undergoing a statutory assessment at Stage 4 of the Code of Practice (at 9 October),
- (ii) Waiting times are:

0 – 26 weeks	96
27 – 40 weeks	20
41 – 60 weeks	1
81+ weeks	0
Total	119

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether the Engage Programme funding will include special schools.
(AQW 8425/17-22)

Mr Weir: Special schools are not included in the Engage programme as they don't receive a delegated budget; rather their staffing complement is provided according to identified and individual pupil need, often with one to one or small group adult to child ratios.

I have asked the EA to consider options for a similar model to the Engage programme, subject to securing funding, to help address the impact of school closures, in terms of lost learning, on children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 7827/17-22, what has been paid to date to the contracted party.

Mr Weir: Since the award of the contract to Fujitsu in November 2015, the Education Authority has paid a total of £17.1m to date to Fujitsu. This has included:

- the design, build and implementation of the Finance & Procurement system;
- the design, build and implementation of the Online Recruitment system;
- the ongoing design, build and implementation of the core HR & Payroll system; and
- the support for the live Finance, Procurement and Recruitment modules to date.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education (i) what was the total saving to the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) in payments to examination teams in 2020 due to the cancellation of (a) GCSE; (b) AS; and (c) A level examinations; and (ii) whether these monies were returned by CCEA to his Department.

Mr Weir: I have been advised by the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) that in 2020, against its budget it spent £945k in examination contractor costs representing a reduction of £4.33 million compared to 2019.

To date, no monies have been returned to the Department. However, CCEA has been working closely with my officials in relation to the cost and income impact of the disruption caused by Covid-19.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education whether a Sustainable Transport Plan will be developed in due course for the new Bangor Central Integrated Primary School Site at Balloo Road, Bangor[R]

Mr Weir: The Education Authority coordinates transport for eligible pupils based on the demand for services in the area and within the resources available in the greater transport network.

I am advised by the EA that at this time there are only a small number of eligible applications received for transport assistance to Bangor Central IPS. This volume of eligible applications does not warrant dedicated transport provision and applicants are awarded a parental payment to contribute to transport costs. These arrangements will continue to be reviewed should demand increase as the school relocates to the new site.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education for a breakdown of the amount of COVID-19 cases in schools; and what plans he has to mitigate the spread of the virus in classrooms.

Mr Weir: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has been collecting data on the number of COVID school incidents reported to the PHA COVID School Team since schools reopened. By the 13 October 2020 they had received 1,491 reported cases by schools (both pupils and staff). At present it is not possible to break this information down any further.

To mitigate the spread of Coronavirus within classrooms, my Department has published Coronavirus (COVID-19) guidance for educational settings. This is regularly updated to reflect changes in public health advice with the support of colleagues in the Public Health Agency for Northern Ireland and the Chief Medical Officer.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail his contingency plan for curriculum delivery and assessment in the event of even greater COVID-19 disruption to learning and teaching than at present over the winter period.

Mr Weir: In the event of a school closure, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate, my Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning. In order to support schools to take forward this work, my Department has relaxed a range of statutory requirements, for example School Development Planning, to reduce the bureaucratic burden and free up time for curriculum planning.

Practical advice and support is available to schools from their COVID-19 Link Officer and from both the Education and Training Inspectorate and Education Authority (EA) more generally.

In addition, my Department has provided guidance for schools on both Remote Learning and Curriculum Planning and Blended Learning for 2020/21. Further resources, guidance materials and case studies have also been produced by my Department's Continuity of Learning Project. The EA has developed a website to host resources and to provide access to a range of online Teacher Professional Learning sessions on issues pertinent to the COVID-19 context. New resources will be added on a regular basis.

The scheme to provide IT devices and WIFI access (vouchers or MiFi devices) to educationally disadvantaged and vulnerable learners remains open.

The changes I announced last week set out the initial arrangements for exams and assessments across GCSE and A Level qualifications. I have commissioned CCEA to consider contingency arrangements. Back-up plans are being developed and will be enacted if required. CCEA has commenced work with schools to inform its planning.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, where pregnant teachers need to take additional time off work owing to COVID-19 restrictions, whether his Department or the Education Authority will cover the substitute teacher costs centrally or whether it is taken from the school budget.

Mr Weir: I can confirm that a fund for teacher substitution costs, to support existing staff absences specifically as a result of Covid-19, is being centrally managed by the Education Authority, and will be allocated to schools based on verified costs.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the nature of the indemnification for schools in relation to COVID-19; and (ii) whether the indemnification changed in any way since March 2020.

Mr Weir: In August, schools were notified that the letters of indemnity, which they received in March 2020, remain in effect.

On the advice of the Departmental Solicitor's Office, the letters included a confidentiality clause. As such, I am unable to detail the nature of the indemnification.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education, given that up to 64 per cent of children and young people in disadvantaged areas in Northern Ireland have a communication need which is likely to be further exacerbated due to COVID-19, whether he will follow the lead from Department of Education in England to allocate funding to support language development in early years in schools.

Mr Weir: I am aware that the Department for Education in England is funding one-to-one support for Reception pupils as part of their investment in tutoring. This will deliver one-to-one and small-group support for some five-year-olds.

The equivalent programme here in Northern Ireland is the Engage Programme, which I launched on 23 September 2020. Through this programme all primary and post primary schools in Northern Ireland will receive funding to provide additional teaching resources. The programme is both targeted at those schools with the highest concentrations of disadvantage but also provides universal support across all primary and post-primary schools in recognition of the wider impact of Covid-19.

Through the Engage programme qualified teachers will provide child centred one to one, small group or team teaching support to those pupils identified by schools as most benefiting from additional support following the Covid-19 period of lockdown, including Year 1 pupils.

The programme offers a high degree of autonomy and flexibility on how schools use their funding and the content and structure of the programme delivery will be based on each school's unique circumstances and assessment of their pupils' particular needs.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Education to detail the extra costs to childcare providers in operating pod systems that ensure the maximum safety of and minimal risk to children, families and staff members.

Mr Weir: The Childcare Recovery Support Fund provided financial support to assist the re-opening of childcare provision in July and August 2020 to ensure childcare was available as far as possible for parents who needed it, to support economic recovery and return to work in line with the Executive Recovery Plan. £10.5m funding was allocated to this Fund which closed to applications on 11 September (2 October for childminders).

One of the objectives of the Childcare Recovery Support Fund was to provide a level of financial support to childcare providers to assist with the additional costs of operating within DoH Covid-19 guidance, ie operating in play pods with room dividers, maximising outdoor space etc and support their financial viability in the re-opening phase, recognising that many providers may not be able to operate at full capacity. A flat rate amount was paid to settings that applied to the Scheme based on the type of setting (i.e Day Care, School-Age Childcare, Playgroups) and the number of registered places in each setting. A tiered funding model was developed for different types and sizes of settings.

The latest version of the DoH guidance for childcare providers issued on 2 October. This guidance stated that the requirement to maintain children in Play Pods of 12 is no longer required. Instead, childcare settings are required to organise children and adults in consistently constituted groups in line with Department of Health Minimum Standards for Childminding and Daycare and to prevent the mixing of these consistently constituted groups.

Work is ongoing with sector representatives to consider any additional funding required from September onwards. This includes further funding for the ongoing sustainability of the sector due to reduced capacity and associated costs, including additional staffing, to operate in line with Department of Health guidance on infection control and prevention measures.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) current enrolments; (ii) number of applications received for 2020/21 entry; and (ii) numbers accepted for 2020/21 entry for each primary school in North Down.

Mr Weir: It is not possible to provide accurate current enrolment numbers for the 2020/21 school year until the annual census exercise completes in December 2020.

The attached table sets out the total number of applications received by each primary school in North Down for entry in the 2020/21 academic year and the number of pupils accepted. This information has been provided by the Education Authority.

School	Total number of admission applications received	Total number of P1 pupils admitted

* The total number of admissions applications received relates to all applications received by a school at any preference – i.e. not just first preference applications. As a result, totalling the number of applications in the column does not equate to the number of individual applicants.

 These figures do not include children with a statement of special educational needs, who do not apply for a school place through the competitive admissions process.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education why no mitigations will be put in place for GCSE english and maths 2021, despite the Committee for Education expression of concern on this matter.
(AQW 8665/17-22)

Mr Weir: I have decided that students will be assessed in all written units of the qualification in GCSE English Language and GCSE Mathematics, but the speaking and listening unit of GCSE English Language will not be assessed.

As I set out in my letter to the Education Committee on 9 October 2020, in taking this decision, I have had to balance the merits of reducing the assessment burden, with a need to protect the interests of our young people going forward.

GCSE English and Mathematics are key 'passport qualifications', which are required for a number of higher level qualifications, such as nursing and teaching qualifications. The risk that young people from Northern Ireland would be disadvantaged for entry to university in the future is simply too great, bearing in mind that England and Wales have made limited or no adaptations to these qualifications.

To reduce examination assessment in these two key qualifications to one high stakes exam could conversely increase pressure on young people. Under the current arrangements, young people will have the opportunity to sit some or all units in English and Maths in January 2021, and if necessary repeat them in the summer series. This has the potential to ease the assessment process for the young people.

Ms C Kelly asked the Minister of Education why his Department has made no provision for childcare since the end of August 2020.

Mr Weir: To date, no further funding has been allocated to my Department for the childcare sector post August.

My officials continue to work with sector representatives in considering the support required by the childcare sector going forward. This includes both ongoing sustainability issues such as additional staffing, reduced capacity and increased costs, in operating within Department of Health guidance on infection control and prevention, and where a provider is forced to close, either fully or partially due to Covid-19 related issues within the setting.

Further support is, however, subject to funding being made available by the Executive for the childcare sector post August and will take into consideration other government support schemes potentially available to the sector, including the recently announced Job Support Scheme (JSS) from 1 November and the ongoing Self-Employment Income Support Scheme. Other NI-wide funding support schemes for business that childcare providers may be eligible for will also be taken into account.

Ms C Kelly asked the Minister of Education whether his Department is considering guaranteeing full wages to childcare staff in the event of closures due to COVID-19, similar to that of school staff.

Mr Weir: To date, no further funding has been allocated to my Department for the childcare sector post August.

Ms C Kelly asked the Minister of Education whether his Department will take into consideration the need for additional financial support for the childcare sector, as pods require more staff to cover less children.

Ms C Kelly asked the Minister of Education to detail how his Department will support childcare settings and parents in the event of pod or setting closures.
(AQW 8700/17-22)

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education whether he will ensure all those substitute teachers on contract or hired under the Northern Ireland Substitute Teacher Register are paid for the period schools are closed during the circuit breaker lockdown, outside of Halloween holidays.
(AQW 8738/17-22)

Mr Weir: I can confirm that any substitute teacher who was booked to work during this extended half-term will be paid as normal for the period of their engagement.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education what contingency plans he is putting in place to ensure the education of children continues should the current restrictions be extended.

Mr Weir: The member will be aware that schools have closed for a 2-week period, including the half-term break, until Monday 2 November.

Schools should have plans in place to cope with such disruptions when they occur. This is detailed in the Coronavirus COVID-19) Guidance for Schools and Educational Settings in Northern Ireland.

To help manage a period of disruption to attendance at schools and educational settings, my Department and the Education Authority have provided a list of useful resources to support teachers, parents and pupils with learning. This includes specific guidance to schools on supporting remote learning.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education what support he intends to put in place for children from disadvantaged backgrounds by way of a catch-up programme to help them recover academically from the hours of lost education due to the pandemic.

Mr Weir: I secured £12m of funding from the Executive in June to support schools and pupils to address lost learning arising from the period of school closures associated with the Covid-19 pandemic. In doing so, and in putting in place support measures, I have ensured that the needs of children and young people from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds are recognised and given due prominence.

The most significant element of that funding package, the Engage programme, seeks to limit any long-term adverse impact on educational standards by supporting pupils' learning and engagement on their return to school. Launched in September, it enables every primary and post primary school to secure additional qualified teaching resource to provide high quality one to one, small group or team teaching support, thus allowing extra help to reach those pupils identified by schools as most benefiting from additional teaching support.

To ensure that children and young people from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds are supported, the level of Engage funding available to each school is weighted according to both the number of pupils enrolled and the proportion entitled to free school meals.

Children from disadvantaged backgrounds will also benefit throughout the 2020/21 academic year from the Virtual Learning programme, which enables schools to purchase online literacy and numeracy resources for current Year 7 pupils. In addition, many pupils were supported through Summer Schools which operated during July and August in those primary schools that wished to participate, enabling pupils to take part in a range of activities to get them socialising again, learning and having fun.

I have also supported the lending of digital devices to vulnerable and disadvantaged young people in order to assist with their learning from home. Many thousands of digital devices have been delivered so far.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education what contingency planning and support will be provided to assist parents and families of children with Special Educational Needs, specifically those with complex needs during and after the current restrictions.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) is maintaining support services during the current restrictions for vulnerable children and their families. These services include counselling, child protection, welfare, health & wellbeing and Special Educational Needs (SEN) specific supports.

Health services and local trusts are continuing to work with parents during the restrictions to provide therapeutic supports that best meets the child's needs, where it is safe and appropriate to do so, in line with the NI Executive's new Covid regulations and restrictions introduced on 16 October and public health guidance.

I have asked the EA to develop options for a similar model to the Engage Programme, subject to securing funding, to help address the impact of school closures, in terms of lost learning, on children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools.

The joint Health & Education oversight arrangements continue to monitor support for those families and put in place multi-disciplinary local level solutions where it is safe and appropriate to do so.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education (i) whether a development proposal is needed to enable a school to discontinue using academic selection, even for one year; (ii) how long this process will take from application to completion; and (iii) what will be involved for (a) the school; (b) the Education Authority; (c) CCMS; (d) his Department; and (e) other relevant parties.

Mr Weir: The Department has carried out an exercise to gather evidence to assess the significance of each of the 12 schools removing academic selection from their admissions criteria on a temporary basis.

Due to the temporary nature of such a decision and taking account of the current difficult circumstances that schools are operating in, created by the Covid-19 pandemic, as well as the potential impact on the children applying to these schools, the Department assessed that for these schools to discontinue using academic selection on a temporary basis was not considered to be of such significance as to require a Development Proposal.

If a school wishes to make such a change on a permanent basis, however, a Development Proposal would be required and the Department's 'Guidance on the Publication of a Development Proposal' should be followed.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether public funding from the Engage Programme can be used to procure private academic selection transfer test tutoring for some children.

Mr Weir: The Engage Programme cannot be used to procure private academic selection transfer test tutoring for children.

The programme supports schools in securing additional qualified teachers to provide high quality one to one, small group or team teaching support in primary and post-primary schools. The purpose is to limit any long-term adverse impact of the COVID-19 lockdown on educational standards by supporting pupils' learning and engagement.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what guidance he will give to post-primary schools on the use of transfer tests as a means of selection, given it may not be possible to stage these tests within public health guidance.

Mr Weir: Boards of Governors of schools are responsible for setting and applying the admissions criteria they use to select children for admission. My Department will write to post-primary schools that are using academic selection in 2021 to advise them of the importance of ensuring alternative methods of selecting children are available if required.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education what measures are being taken to ensure departmental and Education Authority staff have the necessary resources to work from home while maintaining an adequate function for schools and parents.

Mr Weir: Throughout the period of the pandemic, the health, safety and well-being of staff has continued to be a priority for my Department and the Education Authority (EA). Both organisations have continued to review working arrangements and put in place a range of measures to ensure and prioritise the delivery of services for schools, parents and young people.

Department of Education

My Department's arrangements have included, deployment of necessary IT equipment and home office items to staff homes and an increase in the NICS bandwidth provision to support robust secure remote access to the network. In addition, a number of processes and procedures have been introduced to support staff working from home, such as, audio and video meeting and conferencing facilities, regular links and interaction with line managers, a "keeping in touch" IT application, health and wellbeing sessions, learning and development opportunities, communication and information available through a COVID-19 staff hub and updates from the Permanent Secretary.

Education Authority

In order to ensure that staff can deliver services and work safely and effectively from home, a number of measures have been put in place to date and a range of other solutions are being scoped and developed to support and improve continued remote working. Working from home guidance has been developed and disseminated through line management structures. EA staff have been provided with appropriate IT equipment to enable home working, which includes a mixture of laptops and PCs. Mobile phones have been provided on a priority basis. Other office equipment such as office chairs are available and have been provided to staff to ensure the health and safety of all involved. All measures are reviewed on a regular basis to ensure that they are fit for purpose and enable staff to support schools and services effectively.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education whether, in partnership with the Department of Health, he will provide a programme of additional and intensive support for children with Special Educational Needs who have lost out many hours of education due to the pandemic in areas around (i) speech and language therapy; (ii) physio therapy; (iii) literacy support (iv) general educational catch-up; and (v) emotional health and wellbeing.

Mr Weir: (i) Speech and language therapy and (ii) physiotherapy are a matter for the Minister of Health.

I have asked the Education Authority (EA) to develop options to help address the impact of school closures, in terms of lost learning, on children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools.

The Department is currently working with EA colleagues to consider a bespoke package of support for Special Schools.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether it is correct that the Department of Education spends £4,500 per year per child with statement of special educational need in Northern Ireland compared with £29,000 in England.

Mr Weir: I would advise that the correct figure is £14,058 per year per child with a statement of special educational need in Northern Ireland compared with £29,000 in England.

It is important to note that these figures are based on 2017 data and that the structure and mechanism of the Northern Ireland funding system and how funding is allocated to schools in England is different.

Consequently, in the absence of directly comparable SEN expenditure data for England, certain proxies and assumptions were used in calculating these figures.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education to detail his contingency plans for A levels, taking account of the ongoing potential for disruption to education taking place in schools during the current academic year.

Mr Weir: My officials are working closely with CCEA to develop contingency arrangements for examinations in 2021.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what discussions he has held with counterparts elsewhere in the UK to discuss contingencies for A levels given the current and likely future levels of absence from schools due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Weir: I have ongoing discussions with my counterparts in other jurisdictions on a range of issues, including work on examination arrangements for this academic year.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what guidance he will give to post-primary schools on their use or otherwise of transfer tests as a means of selection, given the ongoing disruption and uncertainty around educational arrangements for pupils in their final year of primary school and the potential that it will not be practically possible to run such tests at all within public health guidance.

Mr Weir: Boards of Governors of schools are responsible for setting and applying the admissions criteria they use to select children for admission. My Department will write to post-primary schools that are using academic selection in 2021 to advise them of the importance of ensuring alternative methods of selecting children are available if required.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Education whether (i) the Education Authority; (ii) the Department of Education; (iii) school caretaker; or (iv) a specialist cleaning company is responsible for the deep cleaning of school premises once a positive case of COVID-19 has been confirmed.

Mr Weir: Should a COVID-19 confirmed case occur, the Education Authority (EA) cleaning service should be notified. Schools should liaise with the EA cleaning service in relation to any requirement for enhanced cleaning.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what advice he has taken on extending the compulsory wearing of masks in schools to the classroom.

Mr Weir: Public Health advice states that Coronavirus (COVID-19) usually spreads by droplets from coughs, sneezes and speaking. These droplets can also be picked up from surfaces, if you touch a surface and then your face without washing your hands first. This is why social distancing, regular hand hygiene, and covering coughs and sneezes is important in controlling the spread of the virus.

The best available scientific evidence is that, when used correctly, wearing a face covering may reduce the spread of coronavirus droplets in certain circumstances, helping to protect others. Because face coverings are mainly intended to protect others, not the wearer, from coronavirus (COVID-19) they're not a replacement for social distancing and regular hand washing.

The Department's revised Coronavirus (COVID-19): Guidance for School and Educational Settings in Northern Ireland was published on 29 September 2020. It has been informed by advice provided by the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Advisor.

The guidance provides an overarching framework for how schools and education settings in Northern Ireland can operate in an ongoing COVID environment, with the aim of ensuring broad consistency and equity across local areas, but is sufficiently flexible to allow education settings and staff to adapt and adopt approaches that best suit their needs.

Within education settings it is mandatory for all pupils aged 13 and over to wear a face covering on public transport. It is also strongly recommended that all pupils, regardless of age, should wear a face covering on all buses, trains or taxis for the journey to school where it is appropriate for them to do so and they are able to handle them as directed.

Face coverings must be worn in staff rooms and during adult to adult meetings lasting more than 15 minutes and by adults visiting the school site.

Face coverings are strongly encouraged for activities that entail large numbers of staff or pupils within an enclosed space where social distancing is not possible.

It is recommended that pupils and teachers wear a face covering in corridors and other communal areas of post-primary schools.

Given the risk mitigations in place in schools to limit and contain the spread of COVID-19, face coverings are not generally recommended for routine use in schools. Staff and pupils may wish to use them during the routine school day and this is acceptable. Schools should also be aware that some persons (including children) are exempt from wearing face coverings.

It is not mandatory for pupils to wear face coverings in school and no child will be excluded from school for not wearing a mask. Some schools have taken the decision to make masks mandatory however that is an operational issue for the individual schools.

My Department will continue to be led by the public health advice, and any guidance will be reviewed on an ongoing basis to ensure it remains in line with the wider health position.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education what process or mechanism exists within his Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals. (AQW 9003/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department holds records of all correspondence, lobbying or otherwise using the HP Records Management System.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education whether he intends to actively explore enhanced Home to School Provision to provide greater social distancing in order to limit the transmission of COVID-19 via (i) increased Translink services; (ii) utilisation of Private Coach Operators; (iii) engagement of private taxis, where relevant regulatory arrangements permit. [R] (AQW 9044/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department's current guidance states that pupils on all buses should always seek to maintain a social distance from others wherever possible, however the guidance for public transport on social distancing does not apply on dedicated school transport. A range of associated mitigating measures have been put in place to minimise the risks. This guidance was developed in consultation with the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Advisor.

Any form of social distancing on home to school transport vehicles would dramatically reduce the available capacity to a fraction of that required. As a result it would not be possible to transport over 80,000 pupils each day and it would be likely that many pupils would be unable to attend school in this scenario. The risks to pupils' mental health, social development and educational outcomes for such pupils would be significant.

The Education Authority continues to work closely with Translink and the Department for Infrastructure to ensure sufficient transport capacity is available to meet the needs of pupils allocated a bus pass for use on either a public bus service or a dedicated school only service, whilst also maintaining bus service capacity for the general public. The provision of school transport whether on dedicated school buses or public buses has been provided through the flexible use of the Translink fleet.

The Department for Infrastructure has informed me that Translink has worked with the Education Authority and local schools to add additional dedicated school services and has advised that Translink is also providing over 500 additional bus services to supplement the public transport network to facilitate social distancing for all passengers, including school children.

I believe that the range of additional services that have been put in place are sufficient to ensure the implementation of the current guidance, however I will continue to be guided by the relevant medical and scientific advice.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the total number of incidents of COVID-19 there have been in schools; and (ii) how many schools have had more than one case. (AQW 9083/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has been collecting data on the number of COVID school incidents reported to the PHA COVID School Team since schools reopened. By the 13 October 2020 they had received 1,491 reported cases by schools (both pupils and staff) with 247 schools reporting more than one case.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education (i) whether pupils, absent due to a positive diagnosis of COVID-19 or self isolating in line with Departmental and Public Health Agency advice, are coded 8, meaning that their absence is not counted against their attendance; and (ii) how many pupils have been absent under code 8 since the 24 August 2020. (AQW 9102/17-22)

Mr Weir: If a pupil is absent due to a positive diagnosis or symptoms of COVID-19 then their attendance is recorded as Code 1 – illness. If a pupil is absent due to self-isolation in line with PHA advice and they continue to work remotely, then they will be coded as Code 8, which in these cases is an Approved Educational Activity and will not adversely impact their attendance. If a pupil fails to engage in remote learning during the period of self-isolation then they will be marked as an unauthorised absence, as set out in DE Circular 2020/08.

Pupil attendance data by school type is captured using standard reports from the Schools Information Management System (SIMS) of all primary, post primary, special and Educated Other Than at School (EOTAS) settings. However we do not hold specific information on self-isolating. Self-isolating is recorded on SIMS using a reappropriated code. These codes continue to be used for their original purpose and therefore are not solely specific to COVID-19. Therefore it is not possible to provide the number of pupils who have been or are in self-isolation this academic year.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Education, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in his Department, who can work from home, are working from home. (AQW 9234/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department is consistent with the Executive position that staff who can work from home should work from home. All staff who can work from home have been provided with the capability to do so.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Education what engagement he has had with his counterpart in the Irish government in relation to potential closure of schools in border areas which enrol pupils from both sides of the border.

Mr Weir: Currently there are no plans to close schools. This would significantly undermine education provision and damage school and parental confidence.

My officials have been in contact with counterparts in the Irish government in relation to the response to COVID-19 and have shared information and guidance where this has been helpful.

I will attend an Education sectoral meeting of the North South Ministerial Council in early November which will consider a number of agenda items. This will provide a further opportunity for engagement and information sharing on the response to COVID-19.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for an update on the review of CCEA awarding arrangements for AS and A level qualifications in 2020.

Mr Weir: Arrangements for appointing a team, external to both the Department and CCEA, to take forward a review of the summer 2020 awarding arrangements are at an advanced stage. There remain a couple of final steps to be completed before the contract can be awarded.

Once the contract is awarded the review should then take six weeks to complete.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Education to outline the cleansing regime deployed in the schools' estate before the phased return of children in August 2020.

(AQO 918/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority has confirmed that the normal summer clean was undertaken in all schools throughout Northern Ireland, in preparation for schools returning in August 2020.

Department of Finance

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail his current position concerning the designation of Foyle Port as a Free Port. (AQW 8106/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): Policy on Freeports is being developed by the Treasury and I wrote to the Chief Secretary to the Treasury in August to call for substantive engagement on this so that the Executive can assess their potential.

While my department, in conjunction with relevant Executive departments, has been engaging with the Treasury, limited detail has been shared at this point. My officials continue to press for that to understand fully the implications for our economy and any potential role the Executive might have in creating Freeports locally.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 6775/17-22, why Barnett consequentials of only £6.0 million for 2020/21 arose when HM Treasury issued statement on 2 September 2020 costing Kickstart Scheme at £2 billion.

Mr Murphy: The Chancellor announced a total of £2 billion, at his Summer Economic Update, for a Kickstart Scheme for 16-24 year olds. This funding covered England, Scotland and Wales, and is phased across three years: £215 million for 2020-21, £1,670 million for 2021-22 and £110 million for 2022-23.

The Barnett consequential of the £215 million for 2020-21 is £6 million. Funding for future years to be included in the Spending Review.

Barnett consequentials are not hypothecated, meaning they do not have to be used for the purpose which gave rise to the consequential.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Finance to detail the process for completing an asset transfer between two government agencies in which the potential development of the site would lead to a land valuation in excess of the original Land and Property Services valuation.

Mr Murphy: Land & Property Services' Central Advisory Unit (CAU) administers the process of the disposal of surplus government property in accordance with the Guidance on Disposal of Public Sector Surplus Land and Property in Northern Ireland. All Government departments and bodies that are subject to public procurement rules are advised to use this process, and a list of organisations that are subject to these rules can be found in the CAU Guidance.

An asset that has been declared surplus is firstly circulated within the Public Sector to determine if there is a need to retain it within the wider public sector. A body proposing to acquire the asset must demonstrate that they meet the criteria set out in Section 6 of the guidance to purchase the asset which is:

- a strong, immediate need and/or exceptional reasons in the public interest to acquire the land;
- the allocation of available and approved funding for the purchase where applicable; and
- that it could have exercised compulsory powers of acquisition in respect of the subject land for the intended purpose; OR
- has the confirmed support of a sponsor body with the necessary compulsory purchase powers.

LPS would usually act as an honest broker between two government departments.

The disposal guidelines recommend asset owners transfer / dispose of the asset at market value as assessed by LPS.

In some instances, a clawback or overage clause may be recommended in the case of disposals involving land with development potential. This is intended to safeguard a share of potential gains and ensure maximum value to the public purse from the disposal. Chapter 12 of the guidance contains further information on the use of clawback and overage clauses.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Finance (i) to detail the number of spaces, annual costs and location of carparks provided for civil servants that are (a) leased; and (b) publically owned within city centres; and (ii) how this encourages the use of public transport and car sharing.

Mr Murphy:

- (i) There is a total of 1,027 parking spaces at buildings owned or leased by DoF in city centres – these are managed and allocated by the departments occupying the building. DoF leases collaboratively a further 287 spaces in Belfast city centre on behalf of departments. Departments are responsible for, and each holds details relating to, the allocation of spaces to their staff. The number of spaces, annual costs and location of carparks provided for civil servants by my Department in city centres is shown in tables (a) and (b) below. These tables also identify spaces allocated to DoF staff.
- (ii) Spaces utilised by my Department are allocated in line with DoF's Car Parking Policy to Essential business users and to staff with a requirement due to disability. Essential business users are required to travel as part of their role. Currently each department has its own Car Parking Policy.

My Permanent Secretary is working with the other departments to review car parking policies across the civil service with the aim of encouraging greater use of public transport, walking and cycling and reducing the requirement for spaces and I have asked that she keep me informed.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of the CBI's report which concludes that the business rates system is archaic and unsustainable.

Mr Murphy: This latest CBI report is a response to the Treasury's call for evidence in respect of the current further fundamental review of business rates in England. The CBI report recognises business rates as an important source of revenue for government, and rather than seeking its replacement, makes a series of recommendations for improvements. It also recognises that a business rates system should be predictable, stable, simple and fair.

The public consultation conducted here last year by my Department heard clear calls for the business rate multiplier to be lowered to reduce the burden of rates, with more regular revaluations to restore fairness, and ongoing reviews of reliefs and exemptions. This was the clear rationale behind the Executive's Budget decision this year to reduce the regional rate multiplier by 18%. The level of district rates must also be at a fair level. I am also in favour of regular revaluations.

While there are some issues with the current system of business rates here and there are some opportunities to make improvements, the system also has many strengths. It is based on an assessed property rental value, provides certainty for both government and businesses, is difficult to evade, and achieves fairness through regular revaluations and a tailored system of reliefs which must be kept under review.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance what recovery there has been in respect of COVID-19 assistance to businesses for which they turned out to be ineligible; and whether such recovered funds stay within the Northern Ireland budget.

Mr Murphy: The Minister for the Economy has been responsible for the recovery in respect of Covid-19 assistances paid out to ineligible businesses to date under the three schemes her Department has administered.

My Department has been assisting the Department for the Economy (DfE) in the recouping of ineligible payments of the £10,000 Small Business Support Grant.

I can advise that to date, 72 grants have been recovered in full and 3 partially with a total value of £737,000. These monies have been returned directly to DfE's budget.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether (i) he is considering a bid of £20 million for COVID-19 funding for Translink; and (ii) any such money would come from the £55 million pot established for personal protective equipment and sectoral support.[R]

(AQW 8457/17-22)

Mr Murphy: In addition to £20m allocated in the 2020-21 Budget to address Translink's underlying deficit, I understand that the Infrastructure Minister has already allocated £70 million to Translink from the additional allocations provided to her Department in response to COVID-19.

The Department for Infrastructure had originally submitted a further bid of £20 million for Translink in the recent October Monitoring Round exercise, however following the introduction of greater Covid-19 restrictions Departments have been asked to reconsider their Covid-19 bids as a matter of urgency.

It is my intention to bring all October Monitoring bids to the Executive for consideration as soon as possible once a clearer picture is known.

In light of the emerging Covid-19 situation, the Executive will also have to reconsider how much money is being held for specific purposes such as personal protective equipment and sectoral support, and how this is to be used.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Finance how many women, who were diagnosed with a perinatal mental illness, died by suicide in each year since 2015.

Mr Murphy: The information requested is not available. The Northern Ireland General Register Office's Registration System (NIROS) as analysed by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) does not hold information relating to women, who were diagnosed with a perinatal mental illness, in which deaths from suicide have occurred.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance what work has been done by Land and Property Services with local councils to develop a robust rate forecasting model in order to assess potential loss of rates income in future years as a result of the economic impact of COVID-19.

Mr Murphy: Land & Property Services (LPS) already has a well-established annual rate forecasting methodology in place. This has been developed in collaboration with District Councils and builds upon the lessons learnt from the last recession over a decade ago.

The methodology includes a detailed analysis of the next year's estimated revenue gains from growth in the Council's property tax base and the corresponding potential revenue losses arising from vacant property and bad debt write-off. This is based on LPS data trends and local knowledge from Councils on planning and building control profiles and details of possible business closures and vacancies.

This year, both LPS and Council efforts have been jointly focussed on assessing the impacts of Covid-19 on next year's Council funding by undertaking additional and more frequent modelling, and scenario framing of the potential Council revenue losses as the economic impacts of the pandemic continue to emerge and be understood.

Following the savings delivered to businesses from the non-domestic regional rate cut announced in the Executive's 2020/21 Budget, I am keen that the wider impact of the pandemic, and district rate decisions taken on foot of that backdrop, doesn't result in a rate hike at District Council level in 2021/22 which would undo that saving for business. To that end, my officials are working with counterparts in the Department for Communities to look at options to provide Councils with both greater flexibilities and options in relation to the setting of rates in the post-Covid-19 landscape.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance what communication he has had with local councils to extend the timeframe for setting the rate for 2021/22 to align with the regional rate setting process.

Mr Murphy: My officials have already started to engage with counterparts in Local Government Finance Division within the Department for Communities to consider the options around adjusting the date by which the 2021/22 district rates must be set. There is currently a statutory deadline of 15th February in each year, but I am open to providing greater flexibility for Councils in light of the challenges that face us all in the year ahead due to the pandemic.

The rate setting process for the regional rate is a distinct process and is linked with the wider Budget set by the Executive. I do, however, see a great deal of value in the district rate and regional rate processes being broadly aligned both in terms of timing and in terms of their combined effect on businesses and households. In particular, I am very keen to preserve the savings provided by the Executive to businesses through last year's Executive Budget which reduced the non-domestic regional rate by 18%. The strong message from business that there needed to be a reduction in the poundage rate was a headline finding from last year's Business Rate Review and I am determined that we collectively act to bring that about.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance what work has been done with local councils to take forward their request for a guarantee from government that rates paid to councils will be based on the estimated figure agreed as part of the rate setting process for this financial year and the next two financial years.

Mr Murphy: I have had a number of representations about this matter from individual Councils, SOLACE, and the Committee for Communities, and following consideration I am not minded to provide this guarantee. As I continue to review the emerging situation my position remains unchanged.

I have already put together a number of measures to benefit and protect Councils' non-domestic rates bases. This has included the rates holiday support package for business worth £313 million, the full cost of which is borne by the Executive and therefore protects Councils' income this year, and an emergency package of funding for Councils worth £20 million. In addition, the Executive has invested in an extensive range of schemes aimed at limiting the damage that the pandemic will cause to the economy. This support will help to reduce the number of business failures that result and, therefore, help to protect the rates revenue which Councils rely upon.

The focus for my officials now is on working in collaboration with counterparts in the local Councils to review and build on the well-established model for rate forecasting to take account of the impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic on the property tax base, to support a robust rate striking process for the 2021/22 rating year.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 7702/17-22, whether there is an opportunity to reassess means to apply for Low Income Rate Relief after the rates bill has been issued, thereby reducing the amount payable in one payment or through multiple payments in the same year.

Mr Murphy: Awards of Housing Benefit (Rates) and Low Income Rate Relief are subject to regular reassessment of claimants circumstances. While Housing Benefit Regulations allow for retrospective reassessments, for many, changes are applied going forward from the Monday after the change has been notified to the Authority.

The assessment of entitlement to Low Income Rate Relief is determined by entitlement to Housing Benefit in accordance with Regulation 7(c) of The Rate Relief (General) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2007. As Low Income Rate Relief is intrinsically based on Housing Benefit entitlement, my Department does not intend to review the Low Income Rate Relief Scheme.

New applications for Housing Benefit (Rates) and Low Income Rate Relief can be made by for non-working age citizens, those in supported accommodation and those receiving a severe disability premium as part of their benefit package.

As a result of Welfare Reform, Universal Credit has replaced six social security benefits for working age citizens seeking help through the welfare system. Housing Benefit is one of the six legacy benefits replaced by Universal Credit. Working age citizens are not eligible to make a new claim for Housing Benefit (Rates) or, by extension, Low Income Rate Relief. However, claimants in receipt of Universal Credit can apply online for help with rates through the Rate Rebate Scheme administered by Land & Property Services.

If a person believes that they may be eligible for either Housing Benefit (Rates) and Low Income Rate Relief or the Rate Rebate Scheme, an application can be made at any time. If approved, Housing Benefit (Rates) and Low Income Rate Relief awards may be backdated a maximum of one month for working age claimants or three months for non-working age claimants. Awards of Rate Rebate are linked to entitlement to Universal Credit and it may be possible for claims to be awarded for a period of up to three months prior to the date the claim was received.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Finance whether businesses supplying the hospitality sector, that have been impacted by the pandemic, are eligible for the recently announced rates holiday.

Mr Murphy: As part of the response to Covid-19, I took the decision to support all businesses here with a 4 months rates holiday from 1 April. A further 8 months rates holiday was then granted to specified business uses within the hospitality, leisure and tourism sectors which were identified, following research undertaken by the Ulster University Economic Policy Centre, as being of the greatest need of support and which were used wholly or mainly for the purposes laid out in the legislation, namely, The Rates (Coronavirus) (Emergency Relief) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 [SR 2020 No.144]. Regrettably funds were not available to extend this relief further.

I know that there are many businesses who haven't benefitted from previous support schemes. I have asked Executive colleagues to urgently bring forward proposals for sectors they have responsibility for.

Businesses may avail of the Hardship Rate Relief Scheme which provides support for businesses and organisations that are in crisis because of an exceptional circumstance and supports them by alleviating the business from payment of business rates for a period of time. In order to qualify for this relief, businesses are required to provide Land & Property Services with evidence of a significant loss of trade caused by the exceptional circumstance. Further information on this scheme can be found on the NI Business Info website at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/hardship-rate-relief>.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance whether he will extend the timeline for setting of rates by councils for 2021/22.

Mr Murphy: My officials have already started to engage with counterparts in Local Government Finance Division within the Department for Communities to consider the options around adjusting the date by which the 2021/22 district rates must be set. There is currently a statutory deadline of 15th February in each year, but I am open to providing greater flexibility for Councils in light of the challenges that face us all in the year ahead due to the pandemic.

The rate setting process for the Regional Rate is a distinct process and is linked with the wider Budget set by the Executive. I do, however, see a great deal of value in the District Rate and Regional Rate processes being broadly aligned both in terms of timing and in terms of their combined effect on businesses and households. In particular, I am very keen to preserve the savings provided by the Executive to businesses through last year's Executive Budget which reduced the non-domestic regional rate by 18%. The strong message from business that there needed to be a reduction in the poundage rate was a headline finding from last year's Business Rate Review and I am determined that we collectively act to bring that about.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance what guarantee he can give that rates income paid to councils will be protected for 2020/21.

Mr Murphy: During 2020/21 Councils will continue to be paid in twelve equal monthly instalments based on what they determined was required during the rate setting process. As in previous years, at the end of the rating year, my Department will calculate how much rate revenue has actually been raised and where this exceeds the estimate, a balancing payment will be made; conversely, where the estimate is higher than the actual amount raised, the shortfall will be clawed back.

Officials in Land & Property Services prepare monthly forecasts of the actual revenue which is expected to be raised and provide these to Councils. This arrangement has been well received by Councils. I am pleased to advise that as at the end of September the position for all Councils looks promising. This positive result is largely due to the business rates support package that I have put in place during the current year. You will be aware that this package provides for a four month rate holiday to all non-domestic properties excluding public bodies and utility companies, and a full annual exclusion from paying rates for those businesses operating in the childcare, retail, leisure, hospitality or tourism sectors, as well as the 3 airports. This package could cost up to £317 million and is being met completely by the Executive and as such Councils face no revenue reduction as a result.

My officials will continue to monitor the revenue position for all Councils and to engage and update the relevant Council officials accordingly.

Dr Aiken asked the Minister of Finance what bids he has received from the Minister for the Economy for additional COVID-19 support.

Mr Murphy: The COVID-19 related bids submitted by the Department for the Economy are detailed in the attached Annex.

In addition the Department received initial allocations of £411.4 million for business support schemes. There have been some reduced requirements in relation to these schemes and the position at 22 September is shown, along with other COVID-19 allocations, in the table published by my department at https://www.finance-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/dfp/Covid-19%20funding%20allocations%20table%2022.09.20%20D9_0.pdf

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance whether the Barnett consequentials scheduled to be received in regard to renewable heat provision will be available for new renewable heat programmes after this financial year, if a new scheme is not yet in place.

Mr Murphy: Energy is a devolved matter and as such, additional spend in England would normally attract a Barnett consequential in Departmental Expenditure Limits (DEL) for the Executive. In that circumstance consequentials are unhypothecated meaning it is for the Executive to decide how to allocate based on local needs and priorities.

The exception to this is the funding for the Renewable Heat Incentive which does not attract a Barnett consequential but has a population based cap within Annually Managed Expenditure.

A new renewable heat incentive scheme will be informed by the wider Energy Strategy which is anticipated to be coming before the Executive shortly. It is anticipated that a new scheme will be able to utilise the population-based funding in AME.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of the advice to governments from the International Monetary Fund to accelerate capital projects to create jobs in response to the Coronavirus crisis; and how that advice will influence his public spending plans.

Mr Murphy: The IMF report refers to the reduction of public investment to manage the COVID-19 response as well as accelerating investment as part of government response to recovery.

The Executive is unable to unilaterally set its Capital Budget. It is the British Government Spending Review which will determine both the Resource and Capital funding envelopes available to the Executive for 2021-22 and potentially future years.

Within the context of the funding envelope, the Executive will develop its Capital investment programme. In doing so the Executive will take local decisions in line with local needs and priorities and consider all relevant factors in its social and economic response to COVID-19.

In considering its investment programme the Executive will continue to make decisions based on strong prioritisation and project selection processes in light of clear policy objectives.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he will lobby the Westminster government for increased corporation tax; and whether he will lobby his Executive colleagues to support devolved corporation tax powers.

Mr Murphy: Increases in public spending under the Barnett Formula are based on changes in planned spending on comparable public services in England, not taxation levels. Therefore an increase in Corporation Tax would not increase the block grant.

The devolution of Corporation Tax is best considered not in isolation, but as part of a comprehensive review of taxation in the north.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he plans to provide financing for free face masks for the public to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

Mr Murphy: To date, no Executive Ministers have put forward proposals to provide free face masks to the wider public. Should a bid for such funding be proposed, it would be a matter for the Executive to consider alongside other competing priorities.

I would however draw your attention to the initiative to provide up to 40,000 face coverings to vulnerable groups which is supported by the Department for Communities.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Finance to detail the October Monitoring Round bids submitted by the Department of Health.

(AQW 8705/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Department of Health submitted four resource bids and two capital bids as part of the October Monitoring Round.

The four resource bids are: Provision of Critical Health Services (£15m); Non – Agenda for Change (AfC) pay (£6.3m); Palliative and End of Life Care (£1.5m); and, Elective Care (£1.5m).

The two capital bids are: COVID response and Rebuilding Services (£32.4m); and, General Capital and Serious Risks (£6.7m).

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance for an update on engagement with district Councils concerning restructuring of loans to aid financial circumstances being experienced as a result of the pandemic. [R]

(AQW 8717/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Any engagement around this issue would be with the Communities Minister, who has responsibility for the sector. I would be happy to consider any proposal that is brought forward by the Minister for Communities.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether consideration has been given to assisting district Councils with the cost of Voluntary Severance Schemes via utilisation of Capital Borrowing Powers. [R]

Mr Murphy: It would be for the Department for Communities to bring forward any proposals in relation to District Councils' borrowing powers. I would be happy to consider any proposal that is brought forward, although this would also require Treasury agreement.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether he will publish the advisory guidance and regulations for commercial tenants and commercial landlords on rent collection while COVID-19 public health restrictions are in place.

Mr Murphy: Both the regulations and the guidance have been published.

My Department inserted a special provision into the Coronavirus Act 2020 to ensure that business tenants here are protected from the threat of eviction because of non-payment of rent at this difficult time. The special provision initially applied during the period from 25 March 2020 to 30 June 2020; I subsequently extended the protection by legislation until 30 September and then recently under to 31 December 2020 under The Business Tenancies (Coronavirus) (Restriction on Forfeiture: Relevant Period) (Northern Ireland) (No 2) Regulations 2020. The regulations have been published at <https://www.legislation.gov.uk/nisr/2020/209/contents/made>.

In my Press Release on 19 June I welcomed and referenced the publication of the voluntary Code of Practice for landlords and tenants by the Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government, which seeks to promote good practice between tenants and landlords, working together to get through the pandemic. The published guidance remains available at: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/code-of-practice-for-the-commercial-property-sector>

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether he will be recommending that the £200million in Barnett consequentials announced by the UK Government on the 9 October 2020 be allocated to economic support for businesses affected by COVID-19 public health restrictions.

Mr Murphy: The additional funding of £200 million allocated to the Executive on 9 October 2020 is an uplift to the guaranteed amount of additional Resource DEL funding for 2020-21 announced in the Spring Economic Update. This brings the total funding made available by the British Government to the Executive for its COVID-19 response to £2.4 billion.

It will be for the Executive to decide on how the additional funding is allocated, based on assessments of need from all Ministers, including the Economy Minister.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance how much public money has been paid to employment agencies recruiting on behalf of the Civil Service since 2015.

(AQW 8799/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Corporation Tax

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance what are the Barnett consequentials of a 10 per cent corporation tax increase.

Mr Murphy: I refer the Member to the answer previously provided to Assembly Question, AQW 7969/17-22.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Finance what role his Department had in the tendering of the Department for the Economy research into the economic, societal and environmental impacts of future onshore petroleum exploration and production, including Unconventional Oil and Gas.

Mr Murphy: The Minister of Finance was not involved at any stage during the tendering process.

Construction and Procurement Delivery (CPD) within the Department of Finance provide procurement related services in line with the Executive's Public Procurement Policy. This is typically for requirements valued at above £30,000 and procurement services are delivered to a large number of public sector organisations, including the Department for the Economy (DfE).

CPD's role was to facilitate the competitive tender process for the procurement titled: Research study into the potential economic, societal and environmental impacts of onshore petroleum exploration and production in Northern Ireland.

CPD is required to provide this service regardless of the Minister's views on the procurement and the Minister was not consulted at any stage.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister of Finance to detail his role in the tender process for the specification for research into the economic, societal and environmental impacts of onshore petroleum exploration and production in Northern Ireland by the Department for the Economy.

Mr Murphy: The Minister of Finance was not directly involved at any stage during the tendering process.

Departments are obliged to come to CPD to facilitate the procurement of any goods or services required over a whole life cost value of £30k.

CPD is obliged to facilitate that tender on behalf of Departments regardless of the Finance Minister's personal views on the tender.

On the 11 May 2020, the DfE contacted CPD Supplies and Services division in relation to progressing a procurement titled: - Research study into the potential economic, societal and environmental impacts of onshore petroleum exploration and production in Northern Ireland.

CPD's role was to facilitate the competitive tender process. The tender award process has now been completed on behalf of DfE.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the Translation Hub provided for in New Decade, New Approach.

(AQO 934/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The establishment of a central Translation Hub to provide language translation services is a key action in the New Decade New Approach (NDNA) agreement. My Department has completed a review to assess the options for establishing a Translation Hub, including looking at how others provide these services, for example in Wales, Scotland and the South of Ireland as well as in local government here. I have recently circulated a draft Executive Paper with the recommendations from this review and I look forward to working collectively with my Executive colleagues to deliver this important NDNA commitment.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the work of the Renewable Heat Incentive Executive sub-committee. (AQO 933/17-22)

Mr Murphy: In line with the NDNA commitment, the Executive Sub Committee on Reform was established to consider the recommendations of the RHI Report in full, and to oversee their implementation. The Subcommittee met for the first time in July 2020 and was scheduled to meet again on 14th October. This meeting was postponed and will be rearranged.

The recommendations have been brigaded under seven key themes and at the October meeting the Subcommittee heard from each theme lead. The Leads highlighted the significant work already done and presented for approval an Action Plan detailing the work ahead.

The Executive Sub-Committee plans to bring a full report on the actions taken and proposed for each recommendation to the Assembly before the Christmas recess.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Finance what additional financial support has been requested from HM Treasury in this financial year to deal with COVID-19.

(AQO 932/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Following the Chancellor's 9 October announcement of the extension of the Treasury guarantee the Executive has now received £2.4 billion in funding related to COVID-19.

As set out in my 24 September statement to the Assembly, some £1,670 million has been allocated to departments including £120 million of Executive funding.

A further £35 million was allocated on 15 October for lockdown support measures.

No additional funding has been requested from Treasury, however I have pressed Treasury Ministers for a continuation of the British Government support schemes.

Department of Health

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health how many cases of Metastatic spinal cord compression have been diagnosed in the last five years.

(AQW 3024/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): The tabulated information overleaf details the number of diagnoses of Spinal Cord Compression in Northern Ireland in the last five years 2015/16 to 2019/20. (Table A). For the diagnosis of metastatic spinal cord compression, there is no ICD-10 code which denotes whether the episode was related to cancer or not, due to this ICD-10 code G95.2 was used to identify a diagnosis of Spinal Cord Compression.

¹Admissions where there was a recorded diagnoses of ²Spinal Cord Compression in each of the last 5 years 2015/16 - 2019/20

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health whether his Department has accepted and implements NICE CG75 Metastatic spinal cord compression in adults: risk assessment, diagnosis and management; and, if so, on what date it was adopted.

Mr Swann: I can advise that my Department on 22 September 2009 endorsed for implementation NICE Clinical Guideline CG75 on Metastatic spinal cord compression in adults: risk assessment, diagnosis and management.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of face-to-face GP appointments held each month between 1 January 2019 and 31 August 2020.

(AQW 6376/17-22)

Mr Swann: As independent contractors, GPs are responsible for the day to day management of their practice, including patient appointment arrangements. Information on the number of GP face-to-face appointments held each month is not collated centrally and is consequently not available.

GP practices are open and are providing face to face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the current pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how best to prioritise patients to provide this core service whilst maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are currently operating a telephone first triage system which allows patients to seek medical advice from their GP for both routine and urgent problems. The GP then uses their clinical judgement to decide if the patient can be safely managed over the telephone or whether a face to face appointment is required. This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential. This helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face to face assessment to one of the Primary Care COVID-19 centres. This ensures that these patients do not attend the GP Practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimal disruption.

GPs are still expected to clinically assess for risk of serious illness and refer as clinically appropriate for diagnostic tests and to specialist services, such as an outpatient clinic, as they have always done.

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. Practices were advised to communicate to patients about the practice services that are available and how to access them with the recommendation that these communications make clear that GP practices are open.

On 7 September, GP leaders from the Health and Social Care Board, the Royal College of General Practitioners and the British Medical Association issued a statement to reassure patients that, whilst patients may be seen in a different way, by phone or video-link, GP practices are still open to treat patients, provide advice and issue prescriptions. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary. If people have symptoms or an unexplained illness or have any reason to be concerned, they should in the first instance contact their GP who will be able to provide advice.

A letter was also issued to MLAs and other local political representatives on 7 September providing an update on the current arrangements and asking that they share the key message with constituents that GP practices are open, but working differently.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health what is the current timescale for the availability of Kaftrio for people living with cystic fibrosis.

Mr Swann: Kaftrio is now approved for use in the HSC and is therefore added to the range of cutting-edge medicines available to treat cystic fibrosis. In effect, this means that potentially all cystic fibrosis patients in Northern Ireland who are clinically suitable for treatment may now have access to one of the novel therapies produced by Vertex. This includes Kaftrio as well as Kalydeco, Orkambi and Symkevi. I am assured that all necessary arrangements are now in place and patients have begun to get access to this therapy.

However, there are over 500 children and adults who suffer from cystic fibrosis in Northern Ireland. Not all will be clinically suitable for treatment with Kaftrio and not everyone can be treated immediately. Clinical teams are working on the prioritisation of those patients most likely to see the greatest benefit. I have asked Trusts to contact cystic fibrosis patients as soon as possible to let them know what steps are being put in place to assess and prioritise patients, and so avoid unnecessary worry.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health whether people diagnosed with cystic fibrosis will be able to avail of Kaftrio through the Health Service.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of times he has officially visited each constituency in his role as Minister, broken down by (i) month; and (ii) constituency since January 2020.

(AQW 6709/17-22)

Mr Swann: As Minister of Health, I have visited each constituency as detailed in the table below. Unfortunately, a significant number of other visits that had already been planned during the period March-June had to be unavoidably postponed.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health at what capacity hospital outpatient appointments are currently operating.

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Board has advised that, compared with the June – August period in 2019, there has regionally been a 40% reduction in new outpatient activity; and a 23% reduction in review outpatient activity.

The Strategic Framework for Rebuilding Health and Social Care (HSC) Services which I published in June recognised the severe impact of COVID-19 on waiting times. Under this Framework each Trust has produced plans to rebuild services as quickly as possible in an environment which is safe for both staff and patients, however it is now likely that these plans will be set back by the current surge in hospital admissions due to COVID-19. In response to this I have also published a new Surge Planning Strategic Framework and individual Trust Surge Plans, which aim to respond to additional demand pressures arising during winter and any subsequent waves of transmission of COVID-19 waves.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health whether there is a disparity between the resumption of Health Service and private appointments within dental practices; and whether he will ensure that this disparity is addressed.

Mr Swann: As part of the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) commission, dental treatment provided on behalf of the Health Service in primary care setting is closely monitored. Dental care provided under private arrangements between the dentist and the patient is not monitored on an ongoing basis, as it does not come under the purview of the HSCB.

If a patient is registered with the practice as a Health Service patient they are entitled to Health Service treatment as required, however the restrictions placed upon practices have reduced the number of patients that can be treated each day. As a result, practices are following HSCB guidance in terms of treating patients with the greatest oral health needs.

The HSCB are aware that a number of complaints have been received from patients regarding access to Health Service dentistry and being referred to private care as an alternative. In response the HSCB have written to the General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) about whom complaints have been received and reminded them of their duty to Health Service patients, the conditions of the considerable financial support that has been provided to date and the consequences of not providing the required level of service.

The HSCB have also reminded the profession that other associated payments, such as the practice allowance, will not be payable to dentists who do not continue to provide health service dental care to the full range of their registered patients in line with HSCB guidance.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the (i) working; and (ii) required, ambulance crews for the months of August 2020 and September 2020, broken down by location.

Mr Swann: Please find detailed below data based on planned versus actual resource cover for Accident and Emergency (AE) ambulances (with a crew of two) and Rapid Response Vehicles (RRV) (with one paramedic). Since figures for the entire month of September are not available, three weeks data has been provided from 1 September 2020 to 21 September 2020.

The Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) are taking all possible steps to address any occasions of shortfall, such as managing calls dynamically across the region, extending rapid response paramedic hours, using non-emergency crews, employing private ambulance services and providing telephone support to callers.

While NIAS are continuing to recruit and train additional staff, I have made it clear that only significant additional investment will address these ongoing issues.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Health what support, financial or otherwise, is in place for private dental practitioners.
(AQW 7276/17-22)

Mr Swann: At the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, I established a General Dental Services Financial Support Scheme (FSS) to support the industry. Since the inception of the scheme the combined level of FSS and net Item of Service (IoS) payments made to GDPs is approximately £32 million. This compares with the £24 million worth of net IoS payments made in the same period in 2019-20. Further, I have approved the availability of a further £5m to address the reduction in revenue from patients, resulting in an additional investment of £13m.

Most dental practices in Northern Ireland provide both private and Health Service Dentistry. There are only a small number of fully private dental practices in Northern Ireland and as such most General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) have been able to avail of the FSS.

In terms of the private proportion of dental activity, my Department does not have the legal authority to provide a similar scheme, only having powers to do so in respect of General Dental Services.

I have written to the Minister for the Economy however suggesting that consideration be given to establishing a grant scheme to assist practices in respect of private dentistry. I have made clear I am happy however for my officials to work with their colleagues in the Department for the Economy to develop support arrangements and for Business Services Organisation to help administer such a scheme.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Health what discussions he has had with the Health Service Executive in order to find an all-island approach to dealing with hospital waiting lists.

Mr Swann: My officials held an exploratory discussion on this issue with the Department of Health, Ireland, in early 2020, however, at that stage they were advised that the Health Service Executive was not in a position to support an all-island approach due to similar challenges of demand exceeding capacity. This has been exacerbated by the detrimental impact of COVID-19 on waiting times for elective care, which prior to the pandemic were already unacceptable.

My Department will consider all feasible options to reduce waiting times in Northern Ireland, however I have made it clear that only significant additional investment will address these ongoing issues.

My focus now is on the rebuilding of services and to increase health service activity as quickly as possible across all programmes of care, including elective services. However, this remains extremely challenging as we face a further peak in community transmission of COVID-19, due to the need for our health service to respond to the current surge in hospital admissions.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health why access to the anti-fibrotic drugs, Pirfenidone and Nintedanib, is delayed for people diagnosed with pulmonary fibrosis until lung function has declined to 80 per cent.

Mr Swann: I refer to my answer to AQW 7217/17-22 & AQW 7218/17-22 combined.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what steps he is taking to assist people diagnosed with pulmonary fibrosis to obtain early and effective access to the anti-fibrotic drugs, Pirfenidone and Nintedanib.

Mr Swann: I refer to my answer to AQW 7217/17-22 & AQW 7218/17-22 combined.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health how many women are currently on a waiting list for a hysterectomy, broken down by (i) Health and Social Care Trust; and (ii) length of waiting time.

Mr Swann: On the 30th June 2020, there were 1,239 patients waiting for a hysterectomy. These cases are broken down by HSC Trust and number of weeks waiting in Table 1 overleaf.

Table 1: Number of patients waiting for a hysterectomy as at 30th June 2020

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what plans he has to extend access to Pirfenidone and Nintedanib drugs for people diagnosed with pulmonary fibrosis, regardless of lung function.

Mr Swann: I refer to my answer to AQW 7217/17-22 & AQW 7218/17-22 combined.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health whether the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust are on target to reopen the Downe Hospital Emergency Department on 19 October 2020 as planned; and whether the rise in COVID-19 cases will impact on the planned opening.

Mr Swann: I refer you to the statement published by the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust on 6 October 2020 regarding the Downe Hospital Emergency Department.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what is the quantified impact on prostate cancer diagnoses in 2020 of the focus on COVID-19.

Mr Swann: The NI Cancer Registry (NICR) reported in August 2020 that, for the period from 1st March to 15th August 2020, the number of patients with first pathology samples indicating prostate cancer is 22% lower than the annual average in 2017-2019. This is mainly due to a 34% reduction in referrals for urology cancers over the COVID-19 surge period up to August 2020.

Cancer diagnostic services have been restarted as part of Trust plans under the Strategic Rebuilding Framework which I published in June. This recognised the severe impact of COVID-19 and challenged Trusts to reset these services as quickly and as safely as possible. Red flag cancer referrals are now recovering to near usual levels and this is being monitored.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health to detail the services that are (i) located in; and (ii) planned to be located, in the Mid-Ulster Hospital.

Mr Swann:

(i) The following services are provided at Mid Ulster Hospital:

(ii) There are no plans to change the service provision on the Mid-Ulster site at present.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health what plans he has to protect rehabilitation services as the pandemic enters its next phase and to address the issues faced by people indirectly impacted by COVID-19.

Mr Swann: My Department continues to work closely with health service colleagues to ensure the delivery of rehabilitation services during the pandemic. Innovative practices such as virtual technology have been used, where appropriate, across the HSC Trusts to deliver rehabilitation services to meet service-users' needs.

All HSC Trusts will continue to monitor the ever-changing challenges arising from the pandemic and they have robust mechanisms in place to assess their capacity to deal with the number and acuity of COVID-19 cases amongst patients and service users and the number of staff absences as a result of COVID-19.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how he will improve access to rehabilitation for people with neurological conditions like multiple sclerosis.

Mr Swann: The Regional Review of Neurology Services is tasked with identifying the optimum configuration of neurology services for the next 10-15 years. As outlined in the Review's interim report a work stream, chaired by Dr Gavin McDonnell, has been established to improve care pathways for people with long term neurological conditions. This includes MS, Epilepsy, Parkinson's and Functional Neurological Disorders. As outlined in the Rebuilding HSC Services Strategic Framework, however, the Regional Review is currently paused, with resources redirected to rebuilding and surge planning.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Health what action he is taking to help older people who are more likely to be at risk from extended periods of loneliness as a result of COVID-19 restrictions.

Mr Swann: Addressing loneliness and social isolation is a vital theme within a number of existing Department of Health policies which have the overall objective of improving the health and wellbeing of the population.

The Department is represented on the All Party Group on Loneliness which was formed following a series of all-party roundtables and policy events at Stormont in 2019 and 2020. In addition the Department is now part of a 4-country Group in the UK and we are liaising with counterpart policy leads to learn and share best practice.

The Department are also seeking partnership with counterparts in ROI, and beyond, to learn and share from others experiences and innovative approaches to tackle loneliness and social isolation in relation to health and wellbeing.

The Institute of Public Health in Ireland is represented on my Department's Reform Board for Adult Social Care. They have carried out research into loneliness on an all island basis. We are liaising with them to further investigate their research and specifically the research that relates to Northern Ireland.

The Department has set up monitoring of loneliness via different surveys for adults and children. This will allow us to look at loneliness in conjunction with other health information, including general health and mental health as well as health behaviours.

A scoping exercise within the Department's policy areas and across the HSC including Trusts and DOH ALBs, is underway, to further identify policies; strategies, programmes and initiatives in place (including funding/investment) and those that are under development that contribute to addressing loneliness and isolation that impact on health and wellbeing, linked to the Department's priorities and outcomes.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health why there is a delay in the roll out of the winter flu vaccine.

Mr Swann: There is no delay. The seasonal flu vaccination programme commenced on time in keeping with its official start date of 1 October. Some elements of the programme commenced slightly earlier as an amount of vaccine stock was received in the latter half of September.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health what measures are in place to monitor the other impacts of lockdown, in terms of issues such as mental health and economic wellbeing.

Mr Swann: The potential impact of lockdown on the mental wellbeing of our population is addressed in the Covid 19 Mental Health Response Plan published on 19 May. A mental health and resilience work stream has been created to ensure a coherent, cross-departmental and cross-sectoral strategic approach, and the need to respond using evidence based support and interventions is a theme of the plan.

To ensure that the response to the impact on mental health is evidence based my Department are monitoring key statistics in mental health services, such as referrals to secondary care, waiting lists, the number of in-patient admissions and discharges and daily receive updates of mental health bed usage. My Department is also working closely with the HSC Board and HSC Trusts to understand the demand on services.

Further to this, my Department has close relationships with external actors that are actively engaging in research into the impact of the pandemic on mental health. Data from such research help to inform the development of my Department's mental health response.

My Department also works with key stakeholders to ensure that the most relevant new research and analysis is being considered.

In terms of economic wellbeing, this is a matter for the Department of Economy.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Health what capital investment is planned for (i) Craigavon Area Hospital; and (ii) Lurgan Hospital, in each of the next five years, broken down project.
(AQW 8076/17-22)

Mr Swann:

(i) The table below details the planned capital investment at Craigavon Area Hospital in each of the next 5 years;

Project	21/22 £'000	22/23 £'000	23/24 £'000	24/25 £'000	25/26 £'000
Low Voltage Works	1,500	2,000	1,500	1,500	644

The Trust has also identified £8.3m of refurbishment and estates projects at Craigavon Area Hospital to be progressed over the next 5 years from general capital allocations, subject to future budget availability.

In response to the Department's 10 year capital planning exercise earlier this year, the Southern Health and Social Care Trust submitted the following proposals for Craigavon Area Hospital:

- Redevelopment of Craigavon Area Hospital Phase 1
- Additional bed Capacity
- Re-provide Day Surgery Unit.

I will consider these proposals alongside other capital investment priorities. However the ability to take forward new capital projects will only be possible if significant additional capital resources are made available.

- (ii) The Trust has also identified £1.4m of refurbishment and estates projects at Lurgan Hospital to be progressed over the next 5 years from general capital allocations, subject to future budget availability.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health, in light of residents' concerns of noxious gas odours in the Colin area, West Belfast, for his assessment of the associated health risks.

Mr Swann: Neither the Public Health Agency nor my Department have received any information regarding odours in the Colin area of West Belfast.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to develop an autonomous surgical podiatry service.

Mr Swann: I have established a Regional Orthopaedic Network which is working to rebuild and transform elective orthopaedic services across Health and Social Care Trusts and to ensure all available theatre capacity is used as effectively as possible. As part of that work, the Network will consider new models of care for Orthopaedic Surgery, and has agreed to establish a work stream which will consider the potential to establish a podiatric surgery service in Northern Ireland. The most appropriate model for the service will be subject to clinical advice.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health how effective face coverings are in preventing the spread of viruses other than COVID-19.

Mr Swann: Face coverings are one element in the range of public health measures that everyone is advised to adhere to in order to minimise the risk of infection from the spread of the Covid-19 virus. Face coverings provide additional protection in combination with hand washing, social distancing and contact surface hygiene in preventing the spread of any viruses. They can help on occasions when social distancing may not be possible or practicable.

However it is still very important to follow existing guidance to:

- maintain social distancing
- wash your hands frequently
- don't touch your face
- avoid touching shared surfaces if you are out of your home and wash your hands afterwards if this has been unavoidable.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Health what guidance his Department or the Public Health Agency has given to GPs regarding the part they play in risk assessments for the return to school of clinically vulnerable children, or children from households with a clinically vulnerable individual residing there.

Mr Swann: The Department of Education has published 'Coronavirus (COVID-19): Guidance for School and Educational Settings in Northern Ireland'. The guidance is available at the link below:

<https://www.education-ni.gov.uk/publications/coronavirus-covid-19-guidance-school-and-educational-settings-northern-ireland>

The guidance provides information to help mitigate risk in schools and includes the requirement for risk assessments of individual school settings to ensure that health and safety legislation and guidance is fully adhered to. The responsibility for the risk assessment lies with the school.

Section 7 of the guidance - 'Pupil Attendance' - underlines the general expectation that all pupils should return to their school setting even if they are clinically extremely vulnerable and were previously shielding or have family members who are clinically extremely vulnerable who were previously shielding.

The guidance states that if pupils who have been previously shielding or those with a family member who was previously shielding have particular concerns, advice may be sought from the pupil's/their family member's GP or hospital consultant. This may be shared with the school so that the school can determine whether it is appropriate to take any additional actions over and above those already in place in order to reduce the risk further or if the existing actions that are in place within the school setting are sufficient.

Whilst a GP/clinician can advise an extremely vulnerable person about their own medical condition, particular risks related to this and how these might be mitigated by the individual themselves, it is not for the GP/clinician to assess the level of risk within the school setting in relation to a clinically extremely vulnerable pupil or to their household contacts. Nor is the extremely vulnerable person's GP/clinician in a position to advise school principals/leaders on specific actions to be implemented in the school setting.

The DE guidance recognises that there will be a small number of children where medical guidance would be to refrain from attending school. The vast majority of these children would routinely be advised not to attend school even outside pandemic period due to the risk of infections other than COVID-19.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health whether group training sessions for City of Derry Swimming Club can continue under the new restrictions introduced in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area.

Mr Swann: The restrictions introduced in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area on 6 October prohibited group indoor training sessions in that area. The Northern Ireland wide restrictions introduced on 16 October replace the Derry City and Strabane restrictions and these new restrictions also prohibit group indoor training sessions, including in swimming pools.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health, in light of the ending of early medical abortion provision by the Northern Health and Social Care Trust on 5 October, whether he will commission abortion services to which women are legally entitled.

Mr Swann: The Ministerial Code requires me to bring the commissioning of Abortion services to the attention of the Executive Committee as it is a significant and controversial matter and outside the scope of the Programme for Government. It also cuts across the responsibilities of two or more Ministers. As such, it is a matter to be discussed and agreed by the Executive Committee.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Health what is the current overall waiting time for outpatients.

Mr Swann: Outpatient waiting times are reported by my Department on a monthly and quarterly basis. These publications refer to the position at the end of a given month/quarter, detailing how many patients are still waiting for a first consultant led outpatient appointment broken down by HSC Trust, Specialty and length of time waiting.

Provisional monthly Outpatient Waiting Times information is published at the following link:

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact self-isolation has had on peoples' mental health, especially those already suffering from mental illness.

Mr Swann: I am fully aware of the impact self isolation has had on people's mental health, especially those already suffering from mental illness during Covid-19 restrictions. Since the beginning of the pandemic I have been mindful that the measures that we have needed to impose to control the spread of the virus need to be mitigated as much as possible in order to protect from the effect of restrictions, including self isolation, on people's daily lives. I have also clearly indicated, along with my Executive colleagues, that mental health is a priority, and that the restrictions will not be kept in place for any longer than is absolutely necessary.

To mitigate the effect of restrictions including self isolation, a mental Health and Resilience Strategic Working group has been established to coordinate, support and drive the short, medium and longer term response to the psychological impact of the pandemic. A Mental health and Emotional Wellbeing Surge Cell is also in place with partners from statutory and non-statutory sectors.

In acknowledgment of the extra pressure placed on the population's mental health during the pandemic, I published the Mental Health Action Plan on 19 May. I included a dedicated Covid-19 Mental Health Response Plan. This plan set out the mental health response to the pandemic and outlined specific actions, such as:

- public health messaging to support people to look after their mental wellbeing while staying at home, and the provision of updated mental health support and advice on the mindingyourhead.info website;
- the development of an online apps library to help and support self-help;
- rollout of psychological first aid training to staff and volunteers on the front line;
- provision of free Stress Control classes online, which have been available since May and will continue to be available until the end of the year;

- bereavement guidance; and
- a workforce wellbeing framework and dedicated psychological helplines for front line staff.

This support remains in place as we continue to battle Covid-19 and the impact of the pandemic on our communities' mental health. A key element of responding to the emerging mental health need resulting from the pandemic is the implementation of the Mental Health Action Plan, including the development of a new Mental Health Strategy. Work on this is currently ongoing.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on bringing uplifts in dental pay into line with the rest of the UK.

Mr Swann: I am unable to make any announcement on pay uplifts until the appropriate funding has been secured and approved by the Department of Finance.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health whether staff at Altnagelvin, who are employed by the Western Health and Social Care Trust, have to use their annual leave in instances where they are required to self-isolate for 14 days; and to detail the policy in terms of taking leave in this regard.

Mr Swann: Staff who are employed by the Western Health and Social Care Trust and who have to self-isolate are not expected to use Annual Leave. Line Managers will record this absence as COVID Special Leave.

Staff must contact their Manager as soon as they are symptomatic. If this occurs at work, staff should self-isolate and immediately telephone their Manager before they go home. Staff will be advised of local testing arrangements for COVID-19 by their Line Manager.

Staff are advised that they must comply with the COVID advice and isolate for the required duration.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health what bids he is planning to submit for the October Monitoring round which will assist, support and enhance mental health and suicide prevention work.

Mr Swann: I have bid for Covid-19 funding for mental health and suicide prevention - this process runs alongside, but is separate to, the October Monitoring Round. This includes £222k for an adult acute mental health bed management network, £1m for additional nurses and £0.98m for psychological therapies waiting lists.

This bid builds on my successful bid the June Monitoring round for approximately £2m for mental health and suicide prevention. This includes funding for the Mental Health Action Plan published on 19 May 2020.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many ambulance staff in each Health and Social Care Trust have tested positive for COVID-19.

Mr Swann: Information provided by the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) indicates that 69 of their staff had tested positive for COVID-19 up to 14th October 2020. This information is not available broken down by Health & Social Care Trust.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health (i) how much Personal Protective Equipment is stored in Health and Social Care facilities; (ii) how much is being stored in private/rented storage; and (iii) what is the cost of such storage.

Mr Swann: Due to the volumes of PPE required, particularly during the current Covid-19 pandemic, it has been necessary for Health and Social Care (HSC) organisations to store goods in both health owned premises as well as commercially rented property. While there has been an increase in the use of commercially rented storage facilities, HSC organisations also rent commercial premises for storage as part of normal business. Therefore, the costs presented below include normal business costs as well as those costs incurred specifically as a result of Covid-19.

Stock in hand of PPE is currently 368 million items of PPE of which 97% is centrally stored for onward distribution..

The split of storage of PPE and commercial cost of storage is as follows:

Organisation	Percentage (%) PPE in HSC owned storage	Percentage (%) PPE in Commercial Storage	Commercial Rent Costs per annum (£000)
Belfast Trust	100	N/A	N/A
Business Services Organisation	-	100*	1,608
Northern Trust	12	88	90
NI Ambulance Service Trust	-	100	19

Organisation	Percentage (%) PPE in HSC owned storage	Percentage (%) PPE in Commercial Storage	Commercial Rent Costs per annum (£000)
South Eastern Trust	100	N/A	N/A
Southern Trust	-	100	40
Western Trust	6	94	37

* includes PPE stored in business as usual properties

 includes rates costs where applicable/known

 Southern Trust is currently in the process of moving all PPE stocks to commercial storage as a temporary measure

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will sign off on overtime rates to be paid to Community Dentists who were redeployed to work in urgent dental care centres since the start of the pandemic.

Mr Swann: The Department is currently looking at a proposal to make a temporary amendment to Community Dentists Terms and Conditions of Service, which will allow for the payment of an additional hours rate. A proposal has been sent to the Department of Finance and correspondence is continuing between officials to come to a resolution.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health to detail the support and advice available for people living with diabetes and their carers during the period of the Surge Plan.

Mr Swann: Support and advice continue to be available for people living with diabetes during the current pandemic and diabetes services continue to be provided, although as in other areas of health and social care, these may be delivered differently with greater use made of technology and virtual clinics.

In respect of patient education to support people living with diabetes to self-manage their condition, educators have been trained to deliver more patient education programmes remotely and various online platforms are used to facilitate this, such as MyDESMOND, remote DAFNE and CHOICE programmes delivered via Zoom.

Dietetic input to treatment and care has continued via virtual clinics or follow-up on-line or via telephone, with urgent face to face contacts where necessary. In terms of podiatry, arrangements are in place to ensure that emergencies are seen within 48 hours, face to face contacts have also continued in addition to virtual contacts.

New and review appointments in Secondary Care have been uncompromised by COVID-19 and have continued as necessary. Newly diagnosed patients continue to be seen face to face with information and advice available through virtual and telephone follow-on reviews. Consultants can refer patients to a Diabetes Specialist Nurse and Diabetes Specialist Dietitian for follow-up. In antenatal/ gestational diabetes care, effective use has been made of virtual/remote sessions with speciality doctors to provide support and information to patients.

Insulin Pumps/Continuous Glucose Monitoring services have continued or re-commenced with virtual pre-pump assessments, pump starts and follow-ups in place and with home delivery for consumables where possible. Virtual sessions are in place to support the use of Freestyle Libre glucose monitoring system.

Any patient who has concerns about their diabetes can also engage with their GP, District Nurse or Health and Social Care Trust Diabetes team for support and information as necessary.

During the initial surge period, a Regional COVID-19 Diabetes Clinical Helpline was put in place to provide advice and support to people living with diabetes. The helpline, which operated between 7 April and 28 June, supported over 400 people and also provided advice and information to support health and social care professionals. The helpline is an example of the flexible and timely response of health and social care to ensure resilience in diabetes services. The potential to reinstate the helpline in the future is being kept under review.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail each occasion he formally agreed that the Westminster government would introduce a statutory instrument since taking up office.

Mr Swann: The information requested is provided in the table below:

Date Agreed	Title of Statutory Instrument
24 Jun 2020	The European Qualifications (Health And Social Care Professionals) (EFTA States And Miscellaneous Amendments) (EU Exit) Regulations 2020.

13 Oct 2020	The Human Medicines (Amendment etc.) (EU Exit) Regulations 2020.
13 Oct 2020	Human Medicines (Coronavirus and Influenza) (Amendment) Regulations 2020.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail each occasion he has formally discussed the impact of Brexit with the Department of Health and Social Care.

Mr Swann: Engagements of this nature take place at official level, are frequent, and cover all areas in relation to the delivery of Health and Social Care in Northern Ireland following the end of the Transition Period.

My officials brief me as to progress on these matters, and in turn, I and my Department provide regular updates to both the Northern Ireland Executive and the Northern Ireland Assembly Committee for Health.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health what his Department will do to support the Southern Health and Social Care Trust to recruit surgeons in order to sustain long-term surgical cover for Daisy Hill Hospital.

Mr Swann: The general Surgical Department in Daisy Hill Hospital has funding for 6 consultant surgeons. Currently there are 5 substantive and one locum surgeon in post.

Acknowledging this position is set to change in the coming months, the Southern Trust have confirmed that they have made offers to 3 locum surgeons who were deemed to be suitable. The Trust is also proceeding to advertise 3 permanent posts.

In addition, under the Strategic Rebuilding Framework which I published in June, my Department oversees collaboration across all Trusts in order to maximise the continued delivery of surgical services on an equitable basis across the region within the prevailing COVID-19 challenges.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Health what assurances he can give that the Emergency Department at the Royal Victoria Hospital is fully compliant with COVID-19 control measures at all times, including PPE and deep cleaning.

Mr Swann: All staff working in the Emergency Department in the Royal Victoria Hospital have been trained in the principles of good infection control, personal protective equipment and are aware of the importance of deep cleaning.

The Emergency Department is reviewing its compliance with COVID-19 control measures on an ongoing basis.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how many influenza vaccines will be administered this year.

Mr Swann: Just over one million doses of influenza vaccine have been procured this year for use in the public flu vaccination programme. Additional support has been provided to help ensure that these vaccines are administered to those in the eligible groups. The programme commenced formally on the 1st of October. Ultimately, the number of doses administered will depend on the level of demand.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health to outline (i) what acute psychiatry services are currently delivered at the Downe Hospital; (ii) whether there is any plan to reconfigure acute psychiatry services in the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust area; and (iii) how this reconfiguration will impact upon acute psychiatry services currently located in Downpatrick.

Mr Swann:

- i There is an acute Mental Health Inpatient Unit (MHIPU) located within the confines of the Downe Hospital in Downpatrick. This unit was purpose built and opened in 2009, comprising 25 individual bedrooms with ensuite facilities.

- ii. The South Eastern Health and Social Care Board have submitted an Outline Business Case (OBC) for the relocation of all three of its geographically separate acute mental health inpatient units and its Psychiatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU) onto the Tor Bank site in Dundonald, adjacent to the Ulster Hospital. The vision of this OBC is consistent with the mental health reform and modernisation agenda, in line with best practice developed elsewhere in the UK and the Trust continues to work with Commissioners and the Department of Health to bring this plan to fruition. No reconfiguration of community and outpatient services is planned.
- iii. It is planned that when the new single Inpatient Service is established, the MHIPU in Downpatrick will be used for the relocation and further development of the low secure/rehabilitation inpatient service, ensuring the continued presence of inpatient mental health care at the Downe Hospital.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health how many women were referred out of the jurisdiction of the Health and Social Care area in which they live for perinatal mental health inpatient services in each year since 2015.

Mr Swann: At present in Northern Ireland, mental health support for new or expectant mothers is provided in the community through general mental health services.

One patient transferred on an Extra Contractual Referral to a facility in Scotland for perinatal care and treatment in 2016/17. Trust information systems do not hold the level of detail required to provide a response to the number of out of trust admissions within Northern Ireland.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the facilities and arrangements in place in each Health and Social Care Trust for mental health inpatient services to cater for new mothers and fathers who are seeking treatment to continue to have access to their children.

Mr Swann: The information that you have requested is detailed in the table below.

HSC Trust	Facilities
Northern	Each of the 4 acute admissions wards have a designated family room.
Southern	Within the inpatient wards in Bluestone Hospital (with the exception of the Psychiatric Intensive Care Unit), there is a designated family room. Specialist teleconferencing equipment has been purchased and installed in Silverwood ward for the specific purpose of promoting post-natal visiting within the Unit. There is also virtual visiting equipment available through the Virtual Visiting Service in Craigavon Area Hospital, which has been accessed by patients in the Bluestone Unit.
Western	Grangewood Hospital and the admissions wards at Tyrone and Fermanagh Hospital each have dedicated family rooms. In addition, there is one dedicated single en suite bedroom with a living room and enclosed outdoor area at Grangewood for mother and baby admissions.
South Eastern	There are designated family rooms within each ward. Although unable to accommodate overnight stays, all new mothers are allocated a single room to facilitate regular and extended bonding visits.
Belfast	A child contact room is available in both Shannon Clinic and the Adult Mental Health Inpatient Centre at Belfast City Hospital. CAMHS regional facility Beechcroft, has a parents' overnight room and a family flat.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 2222/17-22, whether he plans to review the funding arrangements for hospice and palliative care services, including plans to fully fund adult and children's hospice care.

Mr Swann: Guidance put in place in 2004 introduced 50/50 funding for agreed adult inpatient hospice services with effect from 2004/05 and 50% funding for agreed adult community hospice services with effect from 2005/06.

The Health and Social Care Board has recently completed a review of its contract funding for adult hospice services as a result of which a total funding shortfall of £867,360 was identified between the 2019/20 funding provided to hospices when compared against benchmarked costs assessed as part of the review process. This additional funding will be provided to hospices backdated to 1 April 2019 and uplifted in line with annual inflationary uplift thereafter. The review also proposed that any uplift to the baseline contract funding based on the review analysis should be applied to those contracts that are in place with Health and Social Care Trusts.

The Health and Social Care Board has recently approved a 4% uplift for 2020/21 to the value of its Service Level Agreements held with hospices in Northern Ireland (for Northern Ireland Hospice this includes both adult and children's services).

The 50/50 funding arrangement does not apply to children's hospice services. Separate commissioning and funding arrangements are in place with the Northern Ireland Children's Hospice for children's services. In addition to the core contract funding, following the closure of the Horizon West children's hospice, my Department agreed to fund an additional bed at the NI Children's Hospice at Horizon House for 3 years from 2018/19 on a 50:50 basis.

Since 2018, a Paediatric and Life Limited Service (PALLs) has been commissioned from the NI Children's Hospice. The service provides a specialist nursing role to support children, families and clinicians in recognising and managing end of life needs as well as access to a dedicated bed in the NI Children's Hospice or in the child's own home. The funding for the PALLs service was made available initially through Confidence and Supply transformation funding. My Department has made this funding available for a further year in 2020/21 to ensure the continued delivery of the service by the NI Children's hospice.

Given the current funding arrangements for adult hospice services date back to 2004, consideration will be given to reviewing these in light of the changing context and demographics for palliative care.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health for an update on discussions on updated advice for individuals who were shielding until 1 August given the increase in COVID-19 cases recently.

Mr Swann: At this point in time, there is no change to the decision to pause shielding which came into effect from 1 August 2020. It is important to note however, that those who were shielding still need to be extremely careful because they remain more vulnerable than the general population.

I am very mindful of the increasing risk posed by the level of community transmission we now have and of the need to reduce this to help protect those who are most vulnerable. As the rate of infection has begun to increase, a range of actions have been taken to address this, including introducing the restrictions that are now in place across Northern Ireland

My Department continues to monitor the situation and the need for further advice for those who were shielding is being kept under continuous review. The Chief Medical Officer and his team are working to assess our approach to the current risks presented by COVID-19 and advice will be updated as appropriate if necessary.

In the meantime, people who are clinically extremely vulnerable should continue to scrupulously follow the advice we have given to help keep themselves safe, including limiting household contacts, social distancing, hand washing and wearing a face covering. In addition, it is vital that everyone in our community plays their part in keeping themselves and others safe by following the public health advice and adhering to the regulations and guidance.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health on what date was he made aware of the proposal for an urgent care centre at the Downe Hospital.

Mr Swann: My Department was advised on 2 October of the plans to open an urgent care centre at the Downe Hospital.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health for the location of the new acute psychiatric unit in the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust; and whether its opening will result in the closure of other units in the area.

Mr Swann: The South Eastern Health and Social Care Board have submitted an Outline Business Case for the relocation of all three of its geographically separate acute mental health inpatient units and its Psychiatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU) onto the Tor Bank site in Dundonald, adjacent to the Ulster Hospital.

The Trust's Business Case is currently with Department of Finance for approval but this will not be approved until an updated commissioner's support letter is received into the Department. The project will be funded on a phased basis subject to availability of funding.

The acute mental health wards in the Downe Hospital, Lagan Valley Hospital and Ulster Hospital, and the PICU in Downshire Hospital will relocate to the new unit.

The existing low secure / rehabilitation provisions in the Downshire Hospital will be moved to the mental health unit in the Downe hospital, ensuring the continued presence of inpatient mental health care at the Downe Hospital.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health to detail the cost to his Department of procedures and treatments on patients carried out by each private health provider in Northern Ireland in (i) 2015; (ii) 2016; (iii) 2017; (iii) 2018; (iv) 2019; and (v) 2020 to date.

Mr Swann: HSC Trusts contract directly with private health care providers. My Department can supply information on the total amount paid to the private health care sector in each of the last five years, and to date in 2020/21. Details are provided in the table below:

	2015/16 £m	2016/17 £m	2017/18 £m	2018/19 £m	2019/20 £m	2020/21 (to date) £m
Total	35.15	23.53	8.29	17.41	9.39	C16.42

Note: includes costs for assessments, diagnostics and treatments.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Health whether nurses and Health Service staff, on any kind of employment contract working with the Health Service, including those working on the ward and administrative workers, and who have been in contact with a positive COVID-19 person, will be instructed to self-isolate for 14 days.

Mr Swann: If a nurse or other healthcare worker has had close recent contact with someone in the community who has COVID-19, they will be contacted by a representative from the Public Health Agency.

If as a consequence they are advised by the Public Health Agency to self-isolate for 14 days, they must do so. It is important that they notify their line manager and Occupational Health as soon as possible. Where they can be facilitated to work from home, they should do so.

If a HSC work colleague has received a positive COVID-19 test result and following a risk assessment the healthcare worker is deemed to be a close contact, they will be contacted by their employer's contact tracing team.

The same guidance applies, where if they are advised to self-isolate for 14 days they must do so. Again it is important that they notify their line manager and Occupational Health as soon as possible. Where they can be facilitated to work from home they should do so.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether he will consider a dedicated dual diagnosis team, along with smaller assertive outreach team in each Health and Social Care Trust.

Mr Swann: Patients with a dual diagnosis of mental health and addiction have access to the same mental health and addictions services as those with a single diagnosis. In both mental health and addiction services, the level and kind of care and treatment are professional decisions based on the clinical needs of the patient.

To ensure that those with dual diagnosis get the best care and treatment available, both the upcoming substance use strategy and mental health strategy will consider the issue of dual diagnosis.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether his Department intends to carry out a full needs analysis for those seeking help for poor mental health, mental health crisis, and drug and alcohol addiction.

Mr Swann: My Department is aware of the significant mental health needs here in Northern Ireland.

On Monday 19 October results of The Mental Health of Children & Parents in Northern Ireland Youth Wellbeing Prevalence Study will be launched. This is the first ever prevalence study for children and young people in Northern Ireland. The findings will help support the work to develop the new mental health strategy and inform new service provisions.

For adults, the Mental Health Action Plan, action 15.2, calls for a prevalence study for adults. This will help future developments of new services.

Overall, the work to develop a new mental health strategy is evidence based, and include stakeholders from a large set of groups, including people with lived experience, professionals, community and voluntary sector, academics and others. This will ensure that the future of mental health services are based on analysed need and on recognised best practice.

As reflected in New Decade, New Approach, my Department is also leading on the development of a new substance use strategy to tackle the harm from alcohol and other drugs. Work to co-produce this new strategy has been undertaken and, subject to the demands placed on my Department by COVID-19, I plan to publish this document for formal public consultation in the near future.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health what assessment has been made of the impact on non-COVID-19 illnesses due to the first lock down earlier this year, including cancelled appointments and surgeries as a result of decisions to prioritise COVID-19 health care.

Mr Swann: My Department began the routine publication of monthly Management Information reports to highlight the impact of COVID-19 on various aspects of service, including waiting times and cancer treatments. These reports can be found at:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/interim-waiting-times-reports>

Further to this, my Department has been monitoring the levels of elective inpatient, day case and regular attender appointments cancelled due to COVID-19 and related pressures. As at 16th October 2020, there had been 12,883 elective appointments cancelled up to 15th October. These data include appointments for surgeries and other procedures such as diagnostic tests.

The Strategic Rebuilding Framework which I published in June recognised the severe impact of appointment cancellations and challenged Trusts to reset these services as quickly and as safely as possible.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health what telephone answering resources are available to the Public Health Agency. (AQW 8670/17-22)

Mr Swann: PHA Reception can be contacted at 0300 555 0114 for Public Health Agency Headquarters and for all PHA sites apart from the Lisburn office, which can be contacted on 028 9266 5181. Call volumes to PHA Reception for the period 5 October to 11 October were 4,088 received calls.

The PHA Duty Room, whose role is to take calls from health professionals to deal with all public health outbreaks, including COVID-19 in care homes, schools and in the wider community operates from 9:00-17:00, followed by an out-of-hours on-call rota. The PHA Duty Room has 7 telephones, and 7 telephone lines - all with voicemail capability - for use during working hours. The out-of-hours on-call rota is managed by a single telephone. Approximately 1,000 calls per week are received by the PHA Duty Room.

If a call is made to the PHA Duty Room out-of-hours, a voicemail message informs the caller to contact Ambulance Control and to ask for the out-of-hours Public Health Doctor to be paged. The average number of calls to the out-of-hours Public Health Doctor at the weekend is 20 per day.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what additional funding his Department has received, and what subsequent plans are in place, to increase the number of available inpatient beds for the treatment for COVID-19. (AQW 8671/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Surge Planning Strategic Framework and the individual Trust surge plans, which I published on 6 October 2020, ensure that there are comprehensive plans in place to address both further COVID-19 surges and winter pressures.

As part of this surge planning, the Critical Care Network's regional surge plan provides the ability to flex ICU capacity to a maximum of 158 ICU beds. In addition, to lift pressures from across the system, I have commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. This will be an intermediate care facility, providing 100 additional 'step down beds', which will be operational on a phased basis from mid-November 2020.

The resource costs associated with the Nightingale hospital at Whiteabbey have been included in the bid to the Department of Finance (DoF), which the Department made in respect of the £600m being held centrally for Health. The capital costs have been included in a bid to DoF as part of the October monitoring round. The Department is waiting for the outcome of these bids.

It is important to note that the key limiting factor on additional beds is the availability of staff. While we are taking steps to address this, including relaunching the workforce appeal, we know that operating at peak surge levels, particularly in ICU, is not sustainable for long and will have a major impact on HSC services, including complex elective surgery.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health for an update on the development of a surgical podiatry service. (AQW 8675/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have established a Regional Orthopaedic Network which is working to rebuild and transform elective orthopaedic services across Health and Social Care Trusts and to ensure all available theatre capacity is used as effectively as possible. As part of that work, the Network will consider new models of care for Orthopaedic Surgery, and has agreed to establish a work stream which will consider the potential to establish a podiatric surgery service in Northern Ireland. The most appropriate model for the service will be subject to clinical advice.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many hospital patients who have tested positive for COVID-19 had been admitted for other reasons. (AQW 8683/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the number of hospital patients who have tested positive for COVID-19, but were admitted for other reasons, is not available.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health to detail the average number of available inpatient and day case beds across health and social care, for each of the last seven months. (AQW 8686/17-22)

Mr Swann: The average number of inpatient and day case beds available is provided in Table 1 overleaf.

Table 1: Average number of inpatient and day case beds available, March – October 2020¹

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for an update on the personal protective equipment (PPE) acquired by the Business Services Organisation between August and October 2020; and what type of PPE has been acquired during the same period.

Mr Swann: Table 1 below reports on volumes of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) product by type, for orders placed between 1 August 2020 and 18 October 2020. Table 2 reports on volumes of PPE product by type, which have been delivered to BSO stores during the same time period.

It should be noted that orders and delivery schedules are such that they will not neatly align to specified time periods. In addition, there can be lead times for deliveries and delivery schedules associated with each order, for example while an order may be placed, product may be delivered on a monthly basis for 12 months.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health how he will ensure that the suspension of short break provision in the Western Health and Social Care Trust is restored; and when these services will be reopened.

Mr Swann: Short break provision at The Cottages in the Western Health and Social Care Trust has been temporarily suspended due to COVID-19 related staff absence and isolation. The Western Trust have taken this decision in line their Winter Surge Plan.

I understand this decision will be kept under regular review and the Trust are seeking to recommence the service as soon as they possibly can. I understand how critical these services are to families and my officials are working with the Western Trust to ensure that every possibility which would allow the centre to re-open has been explored.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) what current information about adoption support services are issued by his Department; and (ii) when the Adoption and Children (Northern Ireland) Bill will be introduced to the Assembly.

Mr Swann:

- (i) My Department does not issue information about adoption support services. The HSC NI Adoption and Foster Care service provides current information about adoption support services. <https://adoptionandfostercare.hscni.net/>
- (ii) I intend to seek the Executive's agreement to introduce the Adoption and Children (Northern Ireland) Bill in the Assembly in the current mandate. Strategy for Reducing Suicides amongst Students and Young People

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Health for an assessment of his Department's strategy for reducing suicides amongst students and young people.

Mr Swann: Support services for students are primarily a matter for the Department for the Economy. However the health system is collaborating with higher education bodies to improve mental health outcomes for students.

The Public Health Agency provides support through its role in the Student Wellbeing Network Forum and by funding the production, print and distribution of Minding Your Head: Student Guide to Mental Health booklets. These have been updated and circulated electronically this year due to COVID. In addition £13,800 was allocated by the PHA in 2019/20 towards mental health resources and services for students.

The Belfast Health and Social Care Trust is also part resourcing a pilot with Queens University Belfast and the University Of Ulster for students with a term time Belfast post code to provide a dedicated and responsive student mental health service, with the aim of better engagement and better clinical outcomes through early intervention.

Finally, it is important to note that mental health services are available to anyone that requires support and this has continued throughout the pandemic.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health how many scheduled operations have been cancelled in each Health and Social Care Trust since March 2020.

Mr Swann: Information on the number of operations cancelled due to COVID-19 is not available.

Information is available however on hospital appointments cancelled between 18th March and 15th October 2020. During this period some 12,883 elective appointments were cancelled due to COVID-19 and related pressures. These data include appointments for surgeries and other procedures such as diagnostic tests and are broken down by HSC Trust in Table 1 overleaf.

Table 1: Elective Hospital Appointments Cancelled, 18th March – 15th October 2020

HSC Trust	Elective Appointments Cancelled
Belfast	4,558
Northern	1,803
South Eastern	2,818
Southern	1,780
Western	1,924

The Strategic Rebuilding Framework which I published in June recognised the severe impact of appointment cancellations and challenged Trusts to reset these services as quickly and as safely as possible.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether he has returned any funds under any budgetary monitoring rounds this year.

Mr Swann: £2.5m of Capital funding was returned from the Mother and Children's Flagship project in June monitoring.

£6.3m of Resource funding was returned in October monitoring relating to a reduction in Agenda for Change pay pressures.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health whether patients, who are admitted to hospital for non-COVID-19-related symptoms but test positive on arrival, are classified as COVID-19 hospital admissions for statistical reporting purposes.

Mr Swann: Patients admitted to hospital for non-COVID-19 reasons but who subsequently test positive are classified as COVID-19 admissions for statistical reporting purposes.

Information on COVID-19 hospital admissions is published daily on the Department's COVID-19 dashboard and is available at the link below:

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health to detail his contingency plan for the Western Health and Social Care Trust when Altnagelvin hospital reaches capacity in terms of COVID-19 admissions.

Mr Swann: On 6th October 2020, the Surge Planning Strategic Framework and individual Trust surge plans were published on the Department's website.

As during the first wave of COVID-19, these plans include measures to increase ICU surge capacity in incremental stages, using the Belfast City Hospital Tower as the regional ICU Nightingale facility. Should it be required, the Critical Care Network's regional surge plan provides the ability to flex capacity to a maximum of 158 ICU beds.

I have also commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. This will be a regional intermediate care facility, providing 100 additional 'step down beds', which will be operational on a phased basis from mid-November 2020. Nightingale two will aim to improve patient flow from hospitals into the community and to free up acute bed space, easing wider pressures on the system.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health how many (i) inpatient; and (ii) day case beds were available at Causeway Hospital on (a) 1 March 2020; (b) 1 July 2020; and (c) 1 October 2020.

Mr Swann: Information on the number of beds available at Causeway Hospital on 1st March is not centrally available. A data collection was developed from 10th March 2020 to monitor the impact of COVID-19 on bed occupancy levels, however this does not distinguish between inpatient and day case beds. Table 1 presents the number of beds available at Causeway Hospital on 10th March, 1st July and 1st October 2020.

Table 1: Number of beds available at Causeway Hospital

Date	Number of beds available
10th March	172
1st October	172

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the rebuilding process for the health and social care services within the prevailing COVID-19 situation.

(AQW 8879/17-22)

Mr Swann: When I launched the Rebuilding HSC Services Strategic Framework on 9 June 2020, I was very clear that restarting services would be very much tempered with any future surges of Covid-19, but that we had to maximise service delivery in the prevailing Covid-19 context.

Under the rebuilding agenda we have, to date, published the way forward for Daycase Elective Care Centres, Orthopaedics and proposals for changes to our Urgent and Emergency Care system which were long overdue.

We have also restarted many services that were paused during the first wave of the pandemic building up service provision incrementally each month since June. Indeed, at a regional level, Trusts exceeded their planned activity for the months of July and August. For example, Trusts had planned for 52,584 outpatient procedures but delivered 63,971.

Given the precarious current situation, I have decided not to publish Rebuild Plans for October to December. I recently published a Strategic Surge Framework and individual Trust Surge Plans. These set out how the HSC system will manage further Covid-19 surges, whilst still trying to maintain as many essential services as possible.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what data his Department holds regarding children with malnutrition.

Mr Swann: My Department holds data on children that have been admitted to hospital with a diagnosis of malnutrition. There have been 17 cases of children aged under 18 years that have been admitted to hospital for this condition over the last five years, from 2015/16 to 2019/20.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health whether businesses designated as close contact services, who also function as a retail business, can continue to operate under the new Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No2) (Amendment No. 9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020, provided they open solely for retail purposes and do not offer any close contact services.

Mr Swann: Under the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No2) (Amendment No. 9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020, close contact services such as the provision of beauty and aesthetics treatments, hairdressers, massage therapies, tattooing, body piercing and services in spas were required to close on Friday 16 October 2020.

Businesses providing close contact services that also function as a retail business will be permitted to continue operating for retail purposes. However, the business must not offer or provide any close contact services or any other business or service required to close under the Regulations.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Health what discussions he has had with Parkinson's UK about their Get It On Time campaign, to ensure people with Parkinson's disease in hospital and care settings receive their medication when required.

Mr Swann: I have not yet had any discussions with Parkinson's UK regarding their "Get it On Time" campaign. I had agreed to a meeting with representatives of the organisation on 19 March but unfortunately that meeting had to be postponed due to the onset of COVID-19 to allow me and the health service to concentrate on our response to the pandemic. My officials continue to work closely with the Northern Ireland Neurological Charities Alliance who represent a number of charities, including Parkinson's UK.

Health and Social Care Trust clinical pharmacy teams work to promote awareness of the list of critical medicines among medical and nursing staff and that every effort should be made to avoid omitted and delayed doses of critical medicines for people with Parkinson's. Patients may also undertake routine self-administration of their medicines where a specific local procedure approved by the Trust's Drugs and Therapeutics Committee.

As part of the Regional Review of Neurology Services, a specific work stream has been established to determine how care pathways for those with long-term neurological conditions, including Parkinson's, can be improved. My Department will ensure that the voice of service users and carers is central to the Review of Neurology Services and importantly, the Northern Ireland Neurological Charities Alliance are members of the Neurology Review Team.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister of Health when attention deficit disorder and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder assessments for children of primary school age will recommence.

Mr Swann: The information regarding how many cancer patients awaiting treatment in each Health and Social Care Trust have had appointments cancelled since March 2020 is not centrally available.

I can say that, in relation to appointments, between 18th March 2020 and 13th October 2020, there were 14 confirmed cancer and a further 2,970 red flag suspect cancer cancellations in relation to elective inpatient, day case and regular attender appointments.

While most cancer diagnostics continued throughout the surge period, measures put in place to ensure patient safety in the context of COVID inevitably impacted capacity and, when compounded with patient reluctance to attend hospital for diagnostic appointments, has led to an increased back log.

One of my primary aims in the difficult weeks ahead will be to ensure the continued delivery high quality diagnosis and cancer services, in COVID-19 safe spaces and using the independent sector hospitals where appropriate, providing of course it is safe to do so.

However, we should be under no illusions that these are challenging times. Services are already coming under pressure and as the number of COVID positive in-patients increases, this will have a negative impact on our ability to maintain other services.

Mr McCann asked the Minister of Health whether existing supply lines for personal protective equipment are adequate to meet the needs of the Health Service during a second COVID-19 surge.

Mr Swann: I am indebted to frontline health and social care staff who are working tirelessly to provide services in very challenging conditions. Their safety remains an absolute priority for me.

Led by my Department, the Business Services Organisation with the support of other government Departments and agencies has undertaken significant work to ensure reliable and sustainable PPE supply chains are in place now, and in the event of a second wave of Covid-19.

Excellent progress has been made in securing local sustainable PPE supply, and work continues across government to promote opportunities for home-grown manufacturers and suppliers.

My Department continues to work with the UK Government and the devolved nations to seek out options where it is beneficial to procure on a bi-lateral or 4 nation basis. A recent example of this is a supply of clear face masks, purchased by the UK Government, to support those with hearing or other impairments who would rely on lip reading.

And you will know I have successfully opened up a confident supply chain with China which has supplied products such as gloves that are more difficult to source locally in bulk.

I commissioned a rapid audit which outlined a need to improve infrastructure. The findings have led to a number of key changes including an improved and more robust process for stock handling with a new process for supply to care settings.

A new modelling system has been developed to predict projected demand for PPE as we not only begin to rebuild services in the context of winter pressures, but prepare for an anticipated second surge.

Stock holding has been extended to 12 weeks to minimise risk associated with global disruption, with arrangements in place to warehouse the additional stock levels.

And, I have approved the introduction of an electronic Dynamic Purchasing System (DPS) which has improved the ease and speed by which potential suppliers tender for contracts. This will support supply of PPE not just in Health but across the Northern Ireland public sector.

I cannot say the process to date has been easy. We have effectively been in competition with every other country for a limited supply of PPE. That said, I am proud of what has been achieved to date and, whilst we can never be complacent, I am confident of our position as we face down the prospect of a second surge.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many abortions have been performed since the change in the law on 31 March 2020.

Mr Swann: At 14 October 2020, my Department had received 719 notifications of termination.

Dr Aiken asked the Minister of Health for an update on the Workforce Appeal.

(AQO 945/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Workforce Appeal was launched in March 2020 and generated a total of almost 19,000 expressions of interest. Almost 12,000 of these converted into formal applications based on their occupation, experience and the demand from Trusts.

This was a phenomenal response, at such a challenging time, and I thank each and every one of those applicants for stepping up to offer support and help to our Health and Social Care Trusts.

We are now experiencing a second wave of infections, and, as a result, we have re-opened the Workforce Appeal in an effort to try and build capacity again with particular focus on certain roles and positions. I am encouraging anyone with the relevant skills and experience who is interested in joining or returning to the health service to consider applying.

So far through the Workforce Appeal 1,702 people have been successful in their application to work for the health service, spread across a number of disciplines including clinical and support staff.

Of those 1,702 people, 899 are appointed and deployed in the service, 658 are on stand-by in the Health and Social Care Trusts' corporate staff banks. A further 145 have been offered a job and are pending their acceptance.

This time, the appeal is more targeted in nature and we would particularly welcome applications to meet demand in the following areas;

- Medical, all disciplines and grades;
- Nursing;
- Social Care;
- Allied Health;
- Pharmacy;
- Administrative; and
- Support Services.

Yet again the response has been exceptional with a total of 2,635 applications already made since the Workforce Appeal was relaunched at the end of September. This is a true example of our community pulling together to face the demands being placed on our health service as result of the virus.

We are in an evolving situation that may require further recruitment drives going forward and we will continue to monitor the situation closely.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the adequacy of the current travel regulations in protecting public health.

Mr Swann: The international travel regulations impose requirements on individuals arriving in Northern Ireland who have been in a country outside the common travel area within the previous 14 days. Specifically they require them to provide contact details and details of their intended onward travel, and to self-isolate for a period of 14 days following their arrival in Northern Ireland.

The regulations provide a list of exemptions or “travel corridors” where self-isolation is not required due to a lower risk of imported cases from those countries. This provision allows those who want to travel to an exempt country to do so without the need to self-isolate on their return, and also provides a vital lifeline for travel operators and those whose jobs rely on the travel industry. This list is continually reviewed and is informed by a risk assessment developed by the Joint Biosecurity Centre, in close consultation with Public Health England. Devolved administrations also take into account local factors in their decision making.

For practical reasons certain categories of person are also exempt from the need to self-isolate. Examples include those working on essential border security, non-UK diplomats, flight crew and some other transport staff.

Covid-19 is of course a global pandemic and local situations can change quickly. Therefore travellers need to be alert to this risk and plan for it. They should make sure they are checking travel advice regularly and be prepared to self-isolate if it is necessary. Any symptomatic travellers are required to self-isolate regardless of the country they have travelled from.

Public Health remains my top priority and I reiterate that the position with international travel and the risks posed by travel to specific countries is kept continually under review. I consider that the current travel regulations provide appropriate protection of public health at this time.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Health for an update on the work of the interim Mental Health Champion for Northern Ireland.

Mr Swann: Professor Siobhan O'Neill took up the post of interim Mental Health Champion, on 10 August 2020. During this relatively short period of time she has focused on raising awareness of the need to care for our mental health and highlighted the support available. To raise awareness she has spoken to a wide range of media across TV, radio, print, podcasts and online, participating in public discussion about topical issues.

Professor O'Neill has met with a broad range of stakeholders across charity, education, research, commissioning and health and wellbeing, as well as undertaking work across public advocacy within Departments, meeting Ministers and officials, groups and panels to gain an insight into the current situation.

Professor O'Neill sits on the Department's Mental Health Strategic Reform Board and Strategic Advisory Panel, relaying views of stakeholders with whom she has met, to inform the development of the Mental Health Strategy.

To address Covid-19 mental health concerns, Professor O'Neill has also been involved in the delivery of a regional social media campaign to promote positive mental health and wellbeing of people across the Public Health Agency, NI Health and Social Care Trusts and Northern Ireland Ambulance Service.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health, given COVID-19 restrictions, how women in North Antrim are able to access abortion care safely.

(AQO 948/17-22)

Mr Swann: Until such time as my Department directs the Health and Social Care Board to commission abortion services, women who choose to use abortion services can contact the British Pregnancy Advisory Service for access to services available in England. They may also contact their General Practitioner.

I would strongly advise women who wish to have an abortion against contacting unregulated online services.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health how many cancer patients awaiting treatment in each Health and Social Care Trust have had appointments cancelled in since March 2020.

Mr Swann: The information regarding how many cancer patients awaiting treatment in each Health and Social Care Trust have had appointments cancelled since March 2020 is not centrally available.

I can say that, in relation to appointments, between 18th March 2020 and 13th October 2020, there were 14 confirmed cancer and a further 2,970 red flag suspect cancer cancellations in relation to elective inpatient, day case and regular attender appointments.

While most cancer diagnostics continued throughout the surge period, measures put in place to ensure patient safety in the context of COVID inevitably impacted capacity and, when compounded with patient reluctance to attend hospital for diagnostic appointments, has led to an increased back log.

One of my primary aims in the difficult weeks ahead will be to ensure the continued delivery high quality diagnosis and cancer services, in COVID-19 safe spaces and using the independent sector hospitals where appropriate, providing of course it is safe to do so.

However, we should be under no illusions that these are challenging times. Services are already coming under pressure and as the number of COVID positive in-patients increases, this will have a negative impact on our ability to maintain other services.

Department for Infrastructure

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an updated timeframe for the completion of additional works on the North-West Transport Hub, Derry.

(AQW 7949/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): The North-West Transport Hub is designed to act as a gateway to the North-West region, as well as promoting active and sustainable travel, bringing together a wide range of transport modes and providing enhanced customer and staff facilities. It will also allow for improved co-ordination between rail and local and cross-border bus services, as well as a Greenway link to the city centre and Foyle Street Bus Centre via the iconic Peace Bridge

The first phase of the new hub with enhanced passenger facilities opened on 21st October 2019.

The completion of the second phase of the works, including the park and ride site, enhanced public realm and bus turning circle, has been delayed by Covid 19 and is now scheduled to be completed before the end of the year.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure how often public transport vehicles are deep cleaned, including when a suspected COVID-19 case has been detected.

Ms Mallon: I am advised by the Chief Executive that Translink takes very specific steps to ensure that vehicle cleanliness not only reflects public health and health and safety advice but also meets the high standards expected by customers.

Translink informs me it has been undertaking regular deep cleaning of its fleet in light of the COVID-19 pandemic with vehicles cleaned daily, weekly and monthly in each depot.

Daily cleans involve a general internal clean followed by sanitisation of all multi-touch hand points. A further weekly clean includes the use of a long lasting industrial grade antiviral and anti-bacterial cleaning agent, which is sprayed throughout the vehicle with an electro static sprayer. In addition to this, on a monthly basis, each vehicle undergoes an extensive interior deep clean. The deep cleaning of all vehicles in each depot is recorded.

In the event of a suspected or positive case of COVID, the vehicle is immediately taken out of service and a deep clean of the vehicle is performed in line with public health and health and safety advice. The vehicle is then checked prior to re-entering service.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she plans to reduce the waiting list for driving tests by ensuring that the Driver and Vehicle Agency has the capacity to provide a greater number of driving tests each month than would have previously been provided before the COVID-19 pandemic.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure what additional overtime hours are planned for Driver and Vehicle Agency driving Instructors to reduce the driving test backlog.

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) is taking a range of measures to increase its driving test capacity, including recruiting additional examiners.

Once driver testing services resume again the DVA will offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test.

Where necessary, the DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to grants for home owners within flood risk zones who are wishing to increase the flood resilience of their property, to outline how grants support in Northern Ireland compare to those available in the rest of the UK.

Ms Mallon: You will be aware of my Department's Homeowner Flood Protection Grant Scheme. However, the approach to similar work varies across England, Scotland and Wales where local councils have discretionary powers to fund grants including for Property flood resilience.

In England and Scotland, central government funding provided to local authorities can be used for property resilience schemes. This can be either on a partnership basis where the grant does not cover the full cost and a local contribution can be made, or exceptionally, after severe flood events through property flood resilience recovery support schemes. The recovery support schemes provide grants up to £5,000 available towards additional costs of householders and businesses impacted by these events making their property flood resilient. It is my understanding that there isn't currently an individual property level resilience grant offered in Wales.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of views expressed as a result of consultation previously undertaken, what design elements of the proposed park and ride site at Tillysburn, Belfast, will be amended.[R]

Ms Mallon: In March 2018, a public consultation on this Park & Ride proposal was undertaken. The Planning Application, that was intended to follow the consultation, was delayed to allow for design changes identified from that process to be incorporated. The design has subsequently been amended to address the access and traffic concerns raised in the consultation, specifically in relation to inclusion of a second entrance from the Sydenham By-pass to supplement the main Hollywood Road entrance. This will allow vehicles travelling on the A2 Belfast Road to directly access the Park & Ride facility.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will explore designation of the area in the vicinity of Foyle Port as an Enterprise Zone.

Ms Mallon: Whilst my Department has the power to designate Enterprise Zones under The Enterprise Zones (NI) Order 1981, the post project evaluation of such designations, here and in Britain in the 1980s and 1990s, found only limited success and that it was an ineffective policy that merely displaced business activity, and also resulted in poor quality development.

You will be aware of the British Government's recent consultation on free-ports. Officials from my Department, the Departments for the Economy and Finance have been engaged with HM Treasury to inform the development of a 'Freeports' policy. The Department of Finance (DoF) is the lead Department in NI and, once the policy has been fully developed and agreed, there will be a competitive process to award Freeport status.

I am committed to continuing to work with my Executive colleagues to explore the possible establishment of a Freeport in the North and will continue to provide support to our ports at this unprecedented time.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on work to increase driving test capacity.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) whether any road or other construction projects funded by her Department has used sand sourced from Lough Neagh; and (ii) to detail the volumes used; in each of the last three years.

Ms Mallon: As Lough Neagh is a significant source of sand in Northern Ireland, my Department will have used sand from Lough Neagh in construction projects. However, only small quantities of 'raw' sand are used in the Department's construction projects. Sand is normally a constituent part of other products, such as concrete, road surfacing, bricks and blocks.

For construction projects, my Department, uses industry standard contracts incorporating specifications which meet the relevant legislation and mandatory requirements. As such, it does not directly purchase sand or products made using sand and does not hold information on the sources or related volumes of sand used.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has any plans to develop a taxi rank area for Ballyclare town.

Ms Mallon: My Department has not received any requests to provide a Taxi Rank in Ballyclare and has no current plans to introduce one as provision of such a facility would adversely impact on the already limited availability of on-street parking within the town.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to provide additional safety to vulnerable road users such as cyclists, whether she intends to bring forward legislation around minimum safe overtaking distances.

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to pay particular attention to the safety of the most vulnerable road users, that is, people who choose to walk and cycle.

I am very keen to continue to make clear the need for drivers to be aware of cyclists and other vulnerable road users on the road and particularly the need to take care when overtaking them. The Highway Code advises drivers to give cyclists at least as much room as you would when overtaking a car.

I am very alert to the fact that the Highway Code in GB is currently out to consultation and a number of changes are proposed including rules on giving enough space when overtaking (1.5m space if driving under 30mph and at least 2m if driving over 30mph). While I have no current plans to bring forward legislation, I have asked my officials to monitor this closely and keep me updated as I consider this and other road safety issues.

My Department has a full programme of road safety public information campaigns including those promoting the safety of people cycling. These campaigns are communicated using multimedia channels including TV, radio, bus rears and social media. The cycling safety campaigns provide advice to both drivers and cyclists to increase cyclist safety awareness, including advice to drivers on leaving space of a minimum of 1.5 meters when passing people cycling.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the status of the European Commission's Pilot Case 7640/15/ENVI: Environmental Enforcement in Northern Ireland (i) currently; and (ii) after the transition period for leaving the European Union ends on 31 December 2020.

Ms Mallon: Pilot Case 7640/15/ENVI is ongoing and will continue regardless of the Transition Period ending on 31 December 2020. The future status of the case will be a matter for the Commission.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will issue guidance to provide clarity to local councils around the use of parking bays as locations considered for a pavement cafe licence.

Ms Mallon: The Licensing of Pavement Cafés Act (Northern Ireland) 2014 empowers District Councils to manage Pavement Café requests. The Department for Communities (DfC) has published guidelines to assist district councils with the implementation of this statutory licensing scheme, however, my Department plays an active role and is a key partner in that process.

I think it is safe to say that at the time the Act was enacted it was not envisaged that Pavement Cafés would ever be set up on the road, however I do appreciate that circumstances have changed due to the pandemic and I am content that parking bays are considered for Pavement Café purposes. My department is currently drafting more detailed guidelines intended to be used to assess individual pavement café applications.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in respect of the Planning Forum, to detail (i) membership; (ii) purpose; (iii) the number of meetings held; and (iv) outputs thus far.

Ms Mallon: The Planning Forum membership is made up of the main statutory consultees. It is chaired by a Deputy Secretary with responsibility for DfI Planning, and its other members include senior staff from DfI Regional and Strategic Planning Directorates; DfI Roads & Rivers; NI Water; DfC Historic Environment Division; DAERA Environment, Marine & Fisheries; DfE Geological Survey of NI and the NI Housing Executive.

The purpose of the Forum is to help improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the planning system by agreeing, prioritising and monitoring the implementation of recommendations and actions which emerged from the report into the role of statutory consultees in the planning process, which was completed in 2019. The Forum also monitors the performance of central government statutory consultees in relation to live major planning applications and takes forward any other related tasks identified.

The Forum meets broadly on a quarterly basis and it has now had three meetings since its inception in December 2019. In addition to the establishment of the Forum itself, actions completed include a review of resourcing for statutory consultations within DfI Rivers; and ensuring that the requirements for effective monitoring and reporting of statutory consultations have been included within the specification for the new regional IT system. The Forum will continue to work through a number of areas which involve looking critically at existing practice, procedures and resources with a view to finding ways to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of the planning process.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure what measures she can put in place, including overtime, to create extra driving test slots to help reduce waiting times.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for Infrastructure why a planned speed reduction on the Derrymacash Road, Craigavon, which received no objections and which was put before the Committee for Infrastructure on 24 June 2020, has still not been implemented.

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that the Order for the new speed limit at Derrymacash came into effect on 7th September. The 30mph signs have been ordered and are expected to be erected within the next 2 weeks.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure when she expects to be in a position to make a planning decision on the ARC21 Hightown Incinerator proposal.

Ms Mallon: I am keen to bring a resolution to this long standing application for all involved, but if a sound decision is to be reached it is important the planning process is completed correctly. My officials are continuing to progress the application at pace in line with planning policy to a point where a decision is ready to be made.

A number of consultation responses are awaited and, when received and all statutory processes satisfactorily completed, a recommendation will be brought forward by my officials; however at this time I cannot confirm when a recommendation will be made.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the targets; (ii) timescale; and (iii) investment set for the conversion of the public transport network fleet from fossil fuels to renewable or regenerated energy.

Ms Mallon:

- (i) My Departmental officials have been working with Translink on a fleet replacement strategy that potentially would see the full transition to net zero carbon bus and rail public transport in Northern Ireland.
- (ii) The current timescale for the transition of all public transport services from fossil fuels to renewable energy sources is currently planned to be achieved by 2040.
- (iii) It is currently estimated investment of circa £1.6bn will be required. However, given the severe budget pressures facing my Department during COVID-19 and the funding required to ensure the viability of Translink, there will be significant challenges in providing new public transport infrastructure without additional funding being allocated from the Executive. Nevertheless, this is an area that I remain committed to, and I will continue to seek support from my Executive colleagues to deliver on my ambitions.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many primary schools in the South Antrim constituency accessed (i) the Active School Travel Programme; and (ii) the Cycling Proficiency Scheme, in the last year.

Ms Mallon: My Department does not hold participation figures for Active School Travel Programme and Cycling Proficiency Scheme on a constituency level but rather as a whole across Northern Ireland.

The most recent set of participation figures of schools before the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic are for the financial year 2019/20 and are detailed below;

Figures for 2019-2020

Cycling Proficiency Scheme	348
Active School Travel Programme	180

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) to detail the length of time unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development had been permitted to take place from the date of service of enforcement notices on the sand extraction operations in Lough Neagh Special Area of Conservation; (ii) whether any unauthorised EIA development was permitted to become immune from enforcement action during that time; and (iii) whether she intends to retrospectively regularise unauthorised EIA development.

Ms Mallon: My Department issued an enforcement notice on 27 May 2015 in respect of unauthorised sand dredging and I have recently announced my intention to grant planning permission for future dredging operations. This will likely issue in the coming weeks. You will also be aware that operations since November 2017 have been undertaken subject to a series of interim control measures and monitoring.

Given the statutory restrictions on time limits associated with enforcement action, there is a period of several months in 2015 where enforcement action is not possible.

The Lough Neagh Sand Traders made an application for the retrospective extraction of sand through the Planning Appeals Commission appeals process and this was refused in May 2019. I am not aware of any further retrospective application having been made.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 6711/17-22, to detail (i) the number of statutory consultees' responses to consultation requests for planning applications and; (ii) the percentage of those which were within the statutory time limits, broken down by statutory consultee, for each of the last three years.[R]

Ms Mallon: The following responses were returned to planning application consultations in line with the statutory requirement of 21 days for the reporting periods in question.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the losses that Translink has suffered that can be attributed to the onset of COVID-19 from March.[R]
(AQW 8281/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Analysis of Translink's results to date for the current financial year indicates an estimated loss of revenue due to the impact of COVID-19 of £110m for the whole year. This figure is subject to change, reflecting the impact of COVID-19 in the remaining months of the financial year.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many street light columns have been replaced, broken down by local council area, in the last year.

Ms Mallon: The following table provides details of the number of new street lighting columns installed by my Department, during the period 1 October 2019 until 1 October 2020, broken down by local council area:

Council Area	Number of columns replaced
Antrim & Newtownabbey	295
Ards & North Down	220
Armagh, Banbridge & Craigavon	380
Belfast	832
Causeway Coast & Glens	280
Fermanagh & Omagh	256
Lisburn & Castlereagh	276
Derry & Strabane	485
Mid & East Antrim	304
Mid Ulster	396
Newry, Mourne & Down	240

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much has been spent on street light column replacements, in each of the last five years.
(AQW 8300/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Details of my Department's expenditure on street lighting column replacements in each of the last five years are provided in the following table:

Financial Year	Expenditure
2015/2016	£7.5m
2016/2017	£6.3m

Financial Year	Expenditure
2017/2018	£4.1m
2019/2020	£4.7m

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the maximum number of people there were waiting to book a driving test appointment on line at any one time after the official opening of the online booking system on 5 October.

Ms Mallon: The Driver and Vehicle Agency's (DVA) online booking service is used to book both driving and vehicle tests. The online booking system was reinstated on a phased basis with bookings for HGV and trailer tests resuming from 1 October.

Following the official reopening of the online booking service for driving tests on 5 October, the peak number recorded in the queue was 3,805. While the majority of those in the queue will have been waiting to book a driving test, a small number will have been waiting to book vehicle tests for HGVs and trailers. This figure may not accurately represent the number of individual people waiting, as some customers may have used multiple devices to try and book a test. The DVA has also now introduced separate queueing systems for driver and vehicle test bookings.

Since the driving test booking system reopened thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the number of driving tests that can currently be completed weekly.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these new restrictions. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The number of driving test slots that are available on any given day is not collated by the Driving and Vehicle Agency (DVA) as these figures can vary significantly depending on a range of factors including the demand for tests and the availability of staff. However, the number of driving test applications and driving tests conducted are National Statistics and as such are released in accordance with the UK Official Statistics Code of Practice.

The 'DfI Driver, Vehicle, Operator and Enforcement National Statistics' report is published on a quarterly basis with the latest edition covering the period from 1 April to 30 June 2020. Driving test statistics are presented in quarterly or monthly schedules, dependent on the volumes in question.

Given recent public interest in these statistics, the Department has recently introduced a new publication providing provisional monthly statistics on vehicle, driving and theory tests conducted. DVA statisticians published the first edition on 15 October, relating to September 2020, which is available on the Department's website. Application statistics will be added to the November publication and will include figures for the October period.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many driving tests were booked on the online system prior to the system officially opening on 5 October at 8:00am after being open on the evening of Sunday 4 October.

Ms Mallon: The number of driving test applications is a National Statistic and as such must be released in accordance with the UK Official Statistics Code of Practice. To comply with this code, the Department cannot publicly release figures that are within the scope of National Statistics reporting beyond the latest published statistics.

The 'DfI Driver, Vehicle, Operator and Enforcement National Statistics' report is published on a quarterly basis with the latest edition covering the period from 1 April to 30 June 2020. Driving test statistics are presented in quarterly or monthly schedules, dependent on the volumes in question.

Given recent public interest in these statistics, the Department has recently introduced a new publication providing provisional monthly statistics on vehicle, driving and theory tests conducted. DVA statisticians published the first edition on 15 October, relating to September 2020, which is available on the Department's website. Application statistics will be added to the November publication and will include figures for the October period.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) how many test centres are currently available for theory tests to be undertaken; and (ii) how many individuals can be accommodated in each centre.

Ms Mallon: From 6 July, driver theory tests resumed at all six theory test centres at locations in Ballymena, Belfast, Derry, Newry, Omagh and Portadown, at reduced capacity in order to comply with PHA advice and guidance on social distancing.

Since then, a number of steps have been taken to increase capacity for customers, including extending opening hours, and decreasing social distancing requirements from 2m to 1m+, in line with revised PHA guidance.

The table below outlines the current position across the 6 theory test centres.

Test centre	Total work stations Open
Ballymena	10
Belfast	15
Derry	5
Newry	7
Omagh	4
Total	46

The DVA is continuing to work with the theory test provider to monitor availability, in order to identify further measures as required.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many vehicle damage claims have been made against her Department in the Lagan Valley constituency, in each of the last three years.

Ms Mallon: My Department does not maintain records of claims by Assembly constituency area but instead records claims by Roads Section Office area, which broadly align with Council areas.

The table below provides details of the number of vehicle damage claims received by my Department for the Lisburn and Castlereagh Section Office area in each of the last three financial years:

	2017/2018	2018/2019	2019/2020
Number of vehicle damage claims received	455	383	264

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much of the recently announced £15 million being given to NI Water to upgrade sewers, waste water treatment work and pumping stations will be going to the Limavady area.

Ms Mallon: The recently announced additional £15 million funding was allocated to NI Water to accelerate specifically named and planned projects which had been deferred or delayed this year due to the mandatory cessation and change of many business activities during the ongoing Covid pandemic.

While this funding was not specifically intended to be used for wastewater treatment works in Limavady, I am advised that NI Water has planned a wastewater system upgrade for the Limavady area, to be taken forward during the next Regulatory Price Control period, PC21 (2021-27). As part of this undertaking, £63k will fund project preparation work during 2020/21. I should note however that certainty for this opportunity to improve the Limavady wastewater network, will depend on NI Water being fully funded for PC21.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department is considering resurfacing a section of the Moyra Road in Burnside village once utilities work for Douglas Hill is completed.

Ms Mallon: An inspection of this road was recently carried out and while it is acknowledged that there have been some utility works carried out in recent years, the road is considered to be structurally sound and not requiring resurfacing at this time. I can assure you that this road will continue to be routinely inspected and any defects which are actionable under the current maintenance policy will be programmed for repair.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to the requirement of section 1 of the Planning Act (NI) 2011 for a consistent planning policy, whether she can confirm that permitted development rights will not be reduced on a geographical basis.

Ms Mallon: Permitted Development rights conferred by the Planning (General Permitted Development) Order (Northern Ireland) 2015 (GPDO) may be removed for any particular development or class of development within a specified geographical area by direction under Article 4 of the GPDO. The result is that an application must be submitted to, and planning permission obtained from, the relevant district council for such development to proceed.

An Article 4 Direction may be made by a council, or the Department, if it is satisfied that it is expedient to restrict permitted development rights in this way.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure why are applications for Certificates of Lawfulness (i) not advertised; (ii) placed on the Planning Portal; or (iii) subject to consultation.

Ms Mallon: The legislation in Northern Ireland, in line with other UK jurisdictions, does not require councils to advertise on the planning portal (or elsewhere) or to consult on applications for certificates of lawfulness.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what development orders have been made pursuant to Section 171 of the Planning Act (NI) 2011.

Ms Mallon: One development order has been made pursuant to section 171 of the Planning Act. This order is Article 11 of the Planning (General Development Procedure) Order (Northern Ireland) 2015 [<https://www.legislation.gov.uk/nisr/2015/72/made>].

Article 11 sets out the procedure for making an application, for a certificate that an existing, or proposed, building/use is lawful and the procedure for determining the application. In particular, Article 11 specifies the information (and supporting evidence) which the applicant must provide and how the council must process the application.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what spare sewerage capacity there is in (i) Armoy; (ii) Bushmills; (iii) Dervock; (iv) Mosside; and (v) Stranocum.

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised me that capacity at the five named waste water treatment works is as follows;

- (i) Armoy - there is no spare capacity
- (ii) Bushmills - there is approximately 33% spare capacity
- (iii) Dervock - there is no spare capacity
- (iv) Mosside - there is no spare capacity
- (v) Stranocum - there is no spare capacity

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure when the extensive and long-term shrubbery growing and protruding from within the structure of Dee Street bridge will be killed at the root and the shrubbery removed.

Ms Mallon: Work to remove the vegetation on Dee Street bridge is currently being arranged. As part of the structure spans the railway line it requires specialist equipment, specially trained staff and must be programmed in order to minimise disruption to both railway and road users. I have asked my officials to keep you updated on progress with this work.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) what measures are being implemented to remove the backlog in driving test appointments; and (ii) what measures are being implemented to ensure there is an adequate number of driving test assessors available to carry out driving tests from the Omagh test centre.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given that many housing estates were constructed decades ago when vehicle ownership was not as widespread as it is currently, whether her Department has given consideration to addressing lack of parking areas in such estates.

Ms Mallon: I am aware of the impact that increased levels of car ownership have on many older housing developments and specifically the additional demand for parking facilities generated.

My Department is available and willing to work to develop solutions in partnership with housing representative groups, where available, where road safety or traffic progression issues are evident. The delivery of practical solutions will be dependent upon the availability of land and funding.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the rationale for her Department's Planning Environmental Governance Work Programme; (ii) the purpose of the Programme; and (iii) the implications of not achieving compliance.

Ms Mallon: The rationale and purpose of my Department's Environmental Governance Work Programme is to improve environmental governance and practice across the planning system.

Non-compliance with environmental obligations could have reputational and financial implications for planning authorities but more importantly could result in environmental harm or badly planned development.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given her decision to approve sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area, for her assessment of whether her Department's decision to allow unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment development compromises its position to oversee and deliver assurances to the European Commission in respect of Pilot Case 7640/15/ENVI: Environmental Enforcement in Northern Ireland.

Ms Mallon: My decision to grant planning permission for the extraction of sand and gravel from Lough Neagh relates to proposed future dredging. My Department has fully co-operated with the European Commission in respect of Pilot Case 7640/15/ENVI: Environmental Enforcement in Northern Ireland and I am satisfied that my recent announcement does not alter the position that the decision to implement the comprehensive interim measures was taken in line with the correct approach to the precautionary principle and as directed by the Northern Ireland Court of Appeal.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether consideration has been given to introduction of part time 20mph speed limit zone in the vicinity of Eglinton Primary School.

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. I believe that reducing the maximum speed traffic can travel at on some of our roads, particularly those near schools, can help in this regard.

I am therefore delighted to have committed funding in this year's capital budget towards introduction of part-time 20 mph speed limits at around 100 schools. These measures will increase driver awareness and achieve reductions in vehicle speeds outside and near these schools ensuring that parents, children and staff will be safer as they go to and from their schools on a daily basis.

I am determined that using the roads around all of our schools will be safer for everyone, and it is my intention that through future programmes many more schools will benefit from a part-time 20 mph speed limit on the roads outside their gates.

Given the restricted budgets for works of this nature, as well as the practicalities of delivery, it was necessary to limit the number of schools to 100 in this year's programme. Unfortunately based on its assessment score Eglinton Primary School was not ranked as highly as other schools included within this year's programme. However, I do intend to take forward a further tranche of part-time speed limits at schools and it will be considered for inclusion in future programmes.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of concerns expressed by local residents in relation to speeding, whether she will consider erecting additional signage on (i) Craigdarragh Road; and (ii) Fort Road, Helen's Bay, to warn motorists of the 30mph speed limit.

Ms Mallon: The Highway Code for Northern Ireland states, at rule 124, that the presence of street lights indicates that a 30mph speed limit exists, unless otherwise specified. As Fort Road is within this street lit urban setting, repeater 30mph signs would not be considered appropriate.

Leaving Helens Bay, the Fort Road becomes the Craigdarragh Road and the speed limit changes along this road. I have asked officials to review signage on the Craigdarragh Road in the coming weeks to ensure that the speed limits are signed appropriately.

Where residents have concerns about speeding, I would encourage them to contact the PSNI who are the enforcement authority and can be contacted on their non-emergency number, 101.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will include a roll out of further 20mph school speed restriction zones, including North Down schools, within budgets for the next financial year 2021/22.

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. Given the restricted budgets for works of this nature, as well as the practicalities of delivery, it was necessary to limit the number of schools to 100 in this year's programme. Unfortunately based on the assessment scores none of the schools in the North Down area were ranked as highly as the other schools included within this year's programme. However, I do intend to take forward a further tranche of part-time speed limits at schools and the schools in North Down will be considered for inclusion in future programmes the extent and scale of which will be dependent on the funding available to me.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will carry out assessments for traffic calming measures at (i) Acorn Hill, Bessbrook; and (ii) Courtney Hill, Newry.

Ms Mallon: My Department recognises the importance of traffic calming and road safety measures and is committed to exploring solutions that deliver better for communities and improve lives across Northern Ireland. I have instructed officials to carry out assessments of Acorn Hill Bessbrook and Courtney Hill Newry for traffic calming measures.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of what additional safety measures her Department could put in place to help pedestrians cross Rathgael Road, Bangor.

Ms Mallon: A road improvement scheme was completed in 2019 on the Rathgael Road in Bangor. This scheme was carried out by a housing developer and involved road widening and the provision of four pedestrian refuge islands. I am advised that these measures have improved crossing facilities for the local community and improved road safety on this busy part of the road network.

I have however asked officials to carry out an assessment for the provision of a pedestrian crossing at this location and this assessment will be carried out in the coming weeks.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure when she will roll out a 20mph speed limit restriction for Millisle Primary School.

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. I believe that reducing the maximum speed traffic can travel at on some of our roads, particularly those near schools, can help in this regard.

I am therefore delighted to be able to commit funding in this year's capital budget towards introduction of part-time 20 mph speed limits at around 100 schools. However, I do intend to take forward a further tranche of part-time speed limits at schools and Millisle Primary School will be considered for inclusion in future programmes the extent and scale of which will be dependent on the funding available to me.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure what discussions she has had with the Minister of Finance to increase the level of roads maintenance funding for North Down in the 2021/22 year.

Ms Mallon: My Department has submitted capital bids to the Department of Finance for the next 4 years as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review process. This budget process is ongoing a Ministerial bilateral between myself and the Minister of Finance is to be scheduled towards the end of October to discuss priorities and departmental budget requirements in 2021/22 and beyond.

I will use this opportunity to stress the need for additional funding for road maintenance across the North as I continue to strive to fully fund the independently assessed annual investment requirement of £143m for road maintenance. Subject to the outcome of this on-going Budget process, funding will be allocated equitably across the North to reflect need, including in North Down.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to and subsequent to the COVID-19 restrictions imposed on the Derry City and Strabane District Council area, what actions are being taken to protect Driver and Vehicle Agency staff and to ensure that MOT testing can continue to be provided.

Ms Mallon: The Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) has carried out an extensive review of its risk assessments to ensure that all relevant control measures relating to Covid-19 have been incorporated into its driver and vehicle testing processes to enable MOT centres to safely reopen for vehicle testing from 20 July and, from 1 September, to resume practical car and lorry driving tests. The control measures the DVA has implemented at their MOT test centres are in line with PHA advice and guidance and have been endorsed by the Department of Health as both necessary and proportionate to mitigate against the risk of Covid transmission.

I can assure you it remains my top priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health advice and will regularly review its risk assessments to ensure driver and vehicle testing services can continue to be conducted safely.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 7597/17-22, given that I was informed at a site meeting five years ago that it was being processed through the courts, for an update on the current status of land acquisition.

Ms Mallon: In February 2015, initial meetings were held with landowners to discuss this footway scheme at Brocagh to establish if land could be purchased by agreement. Although compulsory purchase of land (vesting) is one of the options available for a scheme of this nature, I am advised that no decision about commencement of the vesting process, which leads to a financial commitment, was taken at that time.

In recent years, funding for Local Transport and Safety Measures has reduced significantly and consequently it has become more difficult to deliver larger scale schemes such as this one in Brocagh. However, I can assure you the scheme remains on the Local Transport and Safety Measures Programme for the Mid Ulster District Council Area and the Department remains committed to delivering the footway although you will appreciate that this will be subject to the availability of funding.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on practical driving tests in Omagh town.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) whether PSV driver tests have restarted yet; and (ii) if not, when they will restart.

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

Taxi driver practical driving tests had not been reinstated before this period of increased restrictions took effect. The DVA is working hard to reinstate these tests as soon as possible after the restrictions end, however due to the longer duration of the on road driving element of this test, it must be fully risk assessed to ensure it can be delivered safely in line with PHA advice and guidance. Whenever the DVA is in a position to resume this service I will ensure this is clearly communicated to all affected customers.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the resumption of approved driving instructor tests.

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what (i) strategies; and (ii) plans her Department intends to publish during this mandate.

(AQW 8475/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department intends to publish the following strategies and plans during this mandate:

- Road Safety Strategy for Northern Ireland
- Equality Scheme and Audit of Inequalities
- Disability Action Plan
- DfI Roads and Rivers Group Procurement Plan
- Strategic Drainage Infrastructure Plan for the Greater Belfast Area
- Integrated Drainage Investment Planning Guide for Northern Ireland
- Flood Risk Management Plan (2021-2027)
- The Belfast Bicycle Network

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on review of old mineral permissions.

(AQW 8476/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Officials in my Department are preparing a briefing paper on issues on the implementation of the review of old mineral permissions (ROMPs). This will require an up to date assessment of the operational effectiveness of the legislation, as well as further engagement with stakeholders to consider the practical impacts of ROMPs, including the resourcing implications for planning authorities and operators. Once this paper is complete, I intend to look at all options and will decide on the best course of action to take as soon as is reasonably practicable.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail winter service funding, broken down by local council area.

Ms Mallon: The average normal budget requirement for provision of Winter Service is £7m but has in the past been as much as £10m for a severe winter as was the case in 2017-18.

I welcome the recent £5m allocation for winter service from the Covid bids exercise which will make a much needed contribution and my Department has prudently bid for the remaining £2m as part of October Monitoring.

We do not maintain a record of expenditure in the format requested however, based on gritted road lengths across Divisions, I plan to allocate the £5m funding as follows:

Division	Allocation
Eastern	£670k
Northern	£1,240k
Southern	£1,309k
Western	£1,421k
Total	£5,000K

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she is considering extending the special circumstances for driving tests to those people who are included in the vulnerable category.

(AQW 8480/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Prior to driving test bookings reopening to all customers, priority driving tests were provided for high priority critical workers and for those customers whose driving test had been cancelled between March and June. Priority tests were not offered to other customers, such as those in vulnerable categories because, as I am sure you will understand, for prioritisation to be effective it needs to be focused and be able to be managed by the DVA.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the annual cost of roadworks not being completed on schedule, in each of the last five years.

Ms Mallon: Pursuant to AQW 7132/17-22 there were three major road projects which were not completed on schedule in each of the last five years.

In regards to the M1/M2 Busways and A5/B48 Strathroy Link Road projects there were no additional costs to my Department directly associated with the delay.

In the case of the Malcolm Road / Gilford Road (Millennium Way) Lurgan project, the delay and increase in tendered cost was primarily due to re-design arising from buildability issues associated with uncharted underground electric cables. Whereas the final works cost of £1.98m exceeded the tendered cost of £1.37m it is important to note however that the scheme is forecast to outturn less, at £5.6m, than the economic appraisal estimate of £6.1m approved by the Department of Finance in 2015.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the number of minor and major roadworks completed by her Department; (ii) how many of those have not been completed on time; (iii) how long is the average delay; and (iv) the shortest and longest delay, in each of the last five years.

Ms Mallon: The major road works elements of your question were addressed in my response to your previous query on this matter, reference; AQW 7132/17-22.

In addition to investing in the strategic road network, the Department undertakes minor road improvements through its annual programme of Local Transport and Safety Measures (LTSM) schemes. The LTSM programme is wide ranging and typically includes a number of small schemes that are normally progressed within each financial year and as such information is not held on delays.

Details of completed LTSM schemes are reported in the DfI Roads Divisions Spring and Autumn Council Reports which can be accessed via the following link:-

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the long-term impact Translink cuts will have on rural transport provision.

Ms Mallon: Translink plays a major part in meeting the social and economic needs of our society, in both urban and rural areas. It operates a range of services to meet these needs which we must fund as part of our commitment to the provision of a public transport network and to Translink's future.

I am committed to working with Translink to maintain socially and economically necessary services as we respond to customer demand. Indeed, over the course of the pandemic, I have approved a number of service changes to allow resources to be concentrated on essential services.

I am very much aware of the pressures we face, as is the NI Transport Holding Company Board, and, in light of the impact of COVID-19 on its business, it has brought forward a business efficiency programme that is estimated to deliver £20m of savings in this financial year. This programme builds on ongoing efficiencies that the Company has delivered over the past number of years and focuses on actions across the business.

I have been assured by Translink's Chief Executive that these savings will not impact on front line services delivered through the Public Service Agreement between the Department and Translink. However, these savings alone will not bridge the current funding gap created by lost income as a direct result of Covid-19, and I am continuing to bid for additional resource budget to ensure all services can be maintained. Across the world governments are investing in public transport in order to better connect communities and help tackle climate change. Northern Ireland needs to do the same and I will continue to make this case at the Executive so we can protect our public transport network but also expand it given all of the social, economic and environmental benefits it brings.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) what pavements in North Down are due to be upgraded and repaired in this financial year; and (ii) when unsafe pavements on (a) Henderson Drive; and (b) Sinclair Road, Bangor will be upgraded and repaired.

Ms Mallon: My Department does not maintain such records by constituency area, however, listed below are details of footway upgrade schemes being progressed within the Ards and North Down District Council area during this financial year:

- U8001 Church Drive/ Crescent, Bangor;
- U0103 Tower Crescent, Bangor; and
- U0132 Cultra Avenue, Holywood.

The Department is currently finalising details of its works programmes which includes further schemes, details of which will be included in the DfI Roads Southern Division report to Ards and North Down Borough Council which will be issued shortly.

My Department's budget available for this type of work is very limited and therefore work has to be prioritised and targeted at those footpaths which are in the poorest condition where the greatest benefits can be accrued. Recent inspections indicate that although cracks may be evident in a number of the flagstones, the footways in both Henderson Drive and Sinclair Road remain in a serviceable condition and upgrading is not required at present under current Departmental maintenance guidelines.

While there are currently no immediate plans to carry out any reconstruction work on these footpaths, I can confirm that Henderson Drive and Sinclair Road are on the reserve list of schemes that will compete along with other similar schemes for inclusion in future works programmes.

In the interim these footways will continue to be subject to routine safety inspections on a scheduled basis, and all defects meeting the Department's current intervention levels will be recorded and actioned for repair within the established timescales.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to a recent Nikkon Gas UK & Ireland development, whether Newry, Mourne and Down District Council were obligated, under EU transnational planning directives, to notify or consult with Louth County Council.

Ms Mallon: Transboundary notification and consultation required under the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2017 is undertaken when a council, in its role as local planning authority, becomes aware that an application made to it is for proposed development which is likely to have significant effects on the environment in another EU Member State or any other state which is a party to the European Economic Area agreement.

In such circumstances the council is required to provide my Department with specific information and then my Department would engage directly with that state. In relation to the application by Nippon Gases (which was granted planning permission by the council in 2015) no such notification was given to my Department by Newry, Mourne and Down District Council.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether local councils are permitted to adopt Local Development Plans and Policies contrary to the Strategic Planning Policy Statement for Northern Ireland.[R]

(AQW 8532/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The provisions of the Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS) apply to the whole of Northern Ireland and as stipulated in the Planning (NI) Act 2011 these must be taken into account in the preparation of Local Development Plans. However, councils may tailor their operational policies to suit their own local circumstances.

My Department is one of a number of statutory consultees within the Local Development Plan process that engages with councils throughout plan preparation and has responded to each of the 7 published draft Plan Strategies, highlighting where regional policy has not been followed.

Where a Council deviates from the SPPS they must ensure that they have robust evidence to show reasoned justification for such a departure. This will be considered at Independent Examination where the Development Plan Document (draft Plan Strategy and draft Local Policies Plan) will be tested for soundness.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the extent to which visual impact is a consideration in determining regionally significant planning applications concerning the erection of wind turbines.[R]

Ms Mallon: Planning policy is a material planning consideration which must be taken into account in the determination of all planning applications, including those which are regionally significant. Regional planning policy for renewable energy development in Northern Ireland is contained within the Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS) and Policy RE 1 of Planning Policy Statement 18 – Renewable Energy. PPS 18 is also accompanied by a Supplementary Planning Guidance document entitled 'Wind Energy Development in Northern Ireland Landscapes'.

Both the SPSS and PPS 18 advise that development that generates energy from renewable resources will be permitted where the proposal and any associated buildings and infrastructure, will not result in an unacceptable adverse impact on a number of planning considerations which includes visual amenity and landscape character.

Accordingly, the assessment of visual impacts is a significant consideration in the determination of all regionally significant applications for wind energy developments.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether he will deliver a capital programme for greenways in 2020-21.
(AQW 8542/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The delivery of greenway capital projects is, in general terms, the responsibility of local Councils. However, since I became Minister, I have indicated my willingness to provide financial support to Councils for greenway schemes.

My Walking and Cycling Champion wrote to Councils in July seeking an update on the status of their greenway projects. Following consideration of the proposals put forward by all Councils, I announced £2.8 million funding investment towards the development of six greenway projects, where construction could begin this financial year. I also indicated that I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in the future. Decisions on the extent of funding for any future greenway projects will depend on the budget provided to my Department for 2021/22.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the extent of the alternative approaches devised by NI Water to maximise the use of capacity in sewer networks.

Ms Mallon: NI Water is pursuing a range of alternative approaches which focus on both the immediate and longer term wastewater system capacity issues and associated solutions.

In the event of a planning application where sewer network constraints have been identified, NI Water is working with the applicants to determine whether alternative drainage/treatment solutions can be agreed, to mitigate any impact and potentially allow the development to continue.

The alternative drainage/treatment solutions being pursued by NI Water include:

- Wastewater treatment package plants;
- Stormwater separation and/or Sustainable Drainage Solutions (SuDs) on a site, to create hydraulic capacity in combined sewer systems;
- Investigating with other key stakeholders (NIEA and DfI Rivers) the use of stormwater offsetting within pilot drainage catchments, to create hydraulic capacity in the combined sewer system, to accommodate sewage flows from a proposed site(s); and
- The use of innovative modelling approaches in pilot catchments, to optimise flow patterns in sewer networks with pumping stations, and thereby reduce the size of sewer flow peaks and improve their operational capacity.

Various approaches may be combined to maximise the use of capacity in sewer networks. Furthermore, applicants for new and on-going developments are encouraged to consult directly with NI Water and to discuss the scope of their proposals and the potential for alternative approaches, to enhance the available sewer capacity.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail what engagements she has had with her ministerial counterpart Eamon Ryan over the Bus Éireann service reductions.

Ms Mallon: I am committed to securing island wide services between Belfast and Dublin and as I previously advised in AQW 7777/17-22, I did raise the matter with Minister Ryan at the NSMC Transport meeting on 7 October 2020.

My Department will continue to work to provide services for our communities North-South and will work with Translink to minimise the overall impact to passengers.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to outline the maintenance budgets for the Roads (i) Eastern Division; and (ii) Southern Divisional Offices, in each of the last three years.

Ms Mallon: My Department's Road maintenance outturns in the last three years for DfI Roads Eastern and Southern Division is provided in Table 1 below.

	2017-18 £k	2018-19 £k	2019-20 £k
Eastern Division	16,954	23,966	23,741
Southern Division	28,337	40,870	39,896

The outturn in each Division will have been determined by budget availability and capacity in that particular year. In relation to boundaries, Eastern Division is coterminous with the District Councils of Belfast City, and Lisburn and Castlereagh City. Southern Division is coterminous with the District Councils of Ards and North Down; Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon; and Newry, Mourne and Down.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether the governance mechanisms used to ensure that NI Water changes to policy and service delivery are assessed to ensure compliance with the duty to have due regard to rural needs under the terms of the Rural Needs Act.

Ms Mallon: My Department is responsible for the oversight of NI Water as a Non Departmental Public Body, and my officials engage closely with the company at a policy and operational level to ensure it complies with governance requirements expected of it as an Arm's Length Body.

In terms of the Rural Needs Act (Northern Ireland) 2016, I am advised by NI Water that the company does not appear in the Schedule to legislation and, as such, has no specific obligations under the Act. However, the company is mindful of the principles contained within the Act and gives due consideration to them when designing and delivering its services.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether the governance mechanisms used to ensure that Translink/NI Transport Holding Company changes to policy and service delivery are assessed to ensure compliance with the duty to have due regard to rural needs under the terms of the Rural Needs Act.

Ms Mallon: Whilst Translink is not included in the schedule to the Rural Needs Act (NI) 2016, the Department wrote to Translink on 28 February 2018 highlighting good practice to pay 'due regard' to rural needs and further recommended that it commits to rural proofing practices in future. More recently, DAERA has launched a review to look at the list of bodies set out in the Schedule to the Rural Needs Act (NI) 2016 (the Act) and consulting on the review to seek views from stakeholders.

All Translink's rural services are provided under contract to the Department for Infrastructure. As a Government Department, DfI is subject to the Rural Needs Act and has regard for rural needs when developing, adopting, implementing or revising policies, strategies and plans, and when designing and delivering public services, including the public transport services defined in the Public Service Contract between DfI and Translink. Given the Public Service Agreement signed by the Department and Translink, any changes to the level of the public transport network coverage would have to be approved by the Department and therefore be given consideration under the Act.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW7237/17-22, what oversight of the current planning system her Department has undertaken since Local Government Reform in 2015 that indicated (i) greater inclusivity; (ii) stronger third-party engagement; and (iii) greater local democratic accountability would be delivered.

Ms Mallon: Local democratic accountability and community engagement were central to the reform of the planning system in April 2015. The majority of planning applications are now decided at local level and early community engagement has been introduced, such as pre-application community consultation on major planning applications and publication of a Preferred Options Paper to assist early community engagement in the local development plan process.

My Department regularly engages with councils and other stakeholders to understand how the planning system is working and to assist with its operation. This includes engaging with councils on planning matters through the Strategic Planning Group (with Heads of Planning), the Development Plan Working Group and regular meetings with council Chief Executives. Through the Planning Forum the Department engages with statutory consultees to the planning process and regular meetings also take place with the community, environmental and business sectors, all of which provide ongoing insight into how the transferred and reformed planning system is working.

In addition, I have recently announced the establishment of a Planning Engagement Partnership, including representatives from local councils and other planning stakeholders, which will look at how to enhance the quality and depth of community engagement in the planning process at both the regional and local planning levels. The forthcoming Review of the implementation of the Planning Act 2011 will also provide valuable insight on how the planning system is working.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the location; and (ii) dates when bridges on NI Railways network have been subject to a bridge strike on more than one occasion, in each of the last three financial years. [R]

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the rationale for only seeking £1 million in the October 2020 Monitoring Round to cover (i) minor works; and (ii) local transport and safety measures.

Ms Mallon: My Department has recently submitted a capital bid in October monitoring for £5.5m of which £4.5m is in relation to structural maintenance for resurfacing and £1m for minor works / Local Transport and Safety Measures (LTSM).

The Department's bid for minor works and LTSM reflects the uncertainty around delivery given the current COVID 19 conditions, the longer lead-in times required for this type of work and our capacity to successfully deliver those schemes by the end of this financial year.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to a recent road traffic accident involving a child, whether she will agree to road calming for Beechfield Drive, Donaghadee.

Ms Mallon: I am very sorry to hear of a collision involving a child and I hope the young person is recovering from this unfortunate incident. I have asked my officials to contact the PSNI to obtain further information on this collision to help inform a decision on next steps.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will consider a reduction of the speed limit to 40mph in Cotton, North Down.

Ms Mallon: The need for a change in the speed limit on a road is assessed in accordance with the Department's guidelines, entitled Roads Service Policy and Procedure Guide (RSPPG) E051 'Setting Local Speed Limits in Northern Ireland.'

I can confirm that my Department will carry out a speed limit review along this stretch of road using the criteria set out in this policy document and I have asked officials to advise you of the outcome of the review.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure how to access the detailed stadium crowd safety plan related to the Casement Park planning application reference: LA04/2017/0474/F.
(AQW 8646/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The detailed stadium crowd safety plan should be requested from the Safety Technical Group which was established by the Department for Communities to review, challenge and advise on all aspects of spectator safety, and to ensure that best practice was embedded appropriately within the final designs of the stadium.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure why it has taken so long for her Department to resolve the ownership of the land at the junction of Rann Road and Annacloy Road, Downpatrick.

Ms Mallon: My Department has declared surplus to requirements 355 sq. metres of land at the junction of Rann Road and Annacloy Road, Downpatrick. There is no issue with the Department's title to this land. However, the adjoining landowners have incorporated this land into their driveway and garden and are claiming possessory title.

The Member will appreciate that, in line with Government Disposal Procedures, when offering any land for sale, the Department must provide vacant possession for any successful bidder. This is a long running case that is proving to be difficult to resolve quickly to the satisfaction of all interested parties. My Department has recently withdrawn the land from sale until such times as vacant possession can be secured.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 7697/17-22, which specific piece of legislation gives her Department legislative power and competence to take forward or approve a scheme to bridge the Bannfoot.

Ms Mallon: Under Article 3 of the Roads (NI) Order 1993, my Department may construct a new road, including any bridge over which a road passes, where it appears to the Department expedient to do so for the purpose of facilitating road traffic.

As I advised the Member in my answer to his recent Assembly Question (AQW 7697/17-22), any proposal to build a bridge at this location would be for the local Council to consider in the first instance, in consultation with the local communities and stakeholders. Should the Council decide to take forward a bridge scheme in the future and the proposed bridge is to be located at a location on the river considered navigable, the Council would have to apply to my Department for the necessary Bridge Orders to be made, as required under Articles 4, 5 and 6 of the Roads (NI) Order 1993.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has the (i) in-house capacity; and (ii) necessary budget to employ external contractors to carry out street light repairs over the upcoming winter period.

Ms Mallon: I am pleased to be able to confirm that I have allocated a budget of £5m for street lighting maintenance for the current financial year. This funding will allow for the provision of a full street lighting repair service that will be delivered by my Department's internal contractor and external contractors.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to outline whether she intends to bring forward a grants scheme for greenway schemes.

Ms Mallon: In September, I announced £2.8 million of capital grants towards the development of six greenway projects, where construction could begin this financial year. I also indicated that I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in the future out of the blue /green infrastructure fund. Officials have already written to Councils encouraging them to submit their business cases for projects where construction could start next year.

Decisions on the extent of funding for any future greenway projects will depend on the budget provided to my Department for 2021/22 and beyond.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to the Minister for Transport's response to Oireachtas parliamentary questions 29301/20 & 29305/20 where he only specified a study of rail speeds around the Belfast-Dublin-Limerick Junction-Cork line, with no mention to Derry, to outline (i) why, on 7 October, she announced plans to progress a feasibility study into high speed rail for Derry-Belfast-Dublin-Cork-Limerick; (ii) whether improved connectivity of rail for Derry on the agenda; and (iii) whether it was agreed.

Ms Mallon: Minister for Transport, Eamon Ryan T.D and I agreed at the NSMC meeting on 7 October 2020 to progress the feasibility study for high speed rail, a commitment in New Decade, New Approach (NDNA).

In addition to the commitment in NDNA to conduct a feasibility study into high speed rail between Belfast – Dublin – Cork, we also agreed that the feasibility study will be extended and will now include Derry and Limerick in the terms of reference.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will engage with Mooreland and Owenvaragh Residents Association in relation to the Casement Park development.

Ms Mallon: You will be aware that I announced my decision to recommend planning approval for the new stadium at Casement Park on 13 October 2020. However, before a final decision issues a Notice of Opinion to approve will first issue to Belfast City Council and the applicant. There is a right to a hearing before the Planning Appeals Commission should either the Council or the applicant disagree with the Department's opinion. As such I do not consider it appropriate to engage with any party at this time.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on MOT services in light of the new COVID-19 restrictions.

Ms Mallon: Vehicle testing services at all 15 Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) test centres are unaffected by the new COVID-19 restrictions that came into effect on Friday 16 October.

The DVA has carried out an extensive review of its vehicle testing risk assessments to ensure that all relevant control measures relating to COVID-19 have been incorporated into the testing process to allow vehicle testing to continue. These control measures are in line with public health advice and guidance and are both necessary and proportionate to mitigate against the risk of COVID-19 transmission.

I can assure you it remains my top priority to ensure that staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health advice and will regularly review its risk assessments to ensure vehicle testing services can be safely conducted.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the ramifications of not implementing the Interbus agreement by the end of the year.

Ms Mallon: The Department for Transport in Great Britain are making the necessary arrangements for the UK to accede to the International Interbus Agreement. This Agreement will permit occasional services only.

A Protocol to expand the Agreement to include regular and special regular services has been agreed by its contracting parties, however three contracting parties must sign the Protocol before it is ratified. Once ratified my Department will bring forward Regulations to give effect to this new legislation.

In the event of a non-negotiated outcome the UK will accede to the Interbus Agreement for occasional services. If the Protocol to the Agreement is not ratified and legislated for by 31 December 2020 passenger transport operators will not have the necessary legislative cover to provide international regular and special regular services from 1 January 2021. My Officials have raised this issue with DfT to ensure a solution can be put in place. I have also written to Executive colleagues and the SOS for Transport to ensure that services right across our island are protected.

I am also aware that in the event that no agreement is reached between the EU and the UK, and the UK does not accede to the Interbus Protocol before 31 December 2020, that the Irish Government will engage with the European Commission on the possibility of an EU Contingency Regulation to facilitate appropriate levels of cross border bus services post-transition.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she intends to actively explore enhanced Home to School Provision to provide greater social distancing in order to limit the transmission of COVID-19 via (i) increased Translink services; (ii) utilisation of private coach operators; and (iii) engagement of private taxis, where relevant regulatory arrangements permit.^[R]

Ms Mallon: I have engaged with the Education Minister on various school transportation issues throughout the pandemic, including how best to provide additional capacity on school services in a way that protects other passengers on our public transport network. As a result of this engagement, Translink agreed to provide an additional 500 school buses, and has also designated some of the public timetabled services as “schools only”.

I have also raised with Minister Weir the potential to utilise private buses and coaches and taxis to provide additional school transport capacity. However, the responsibility for making any such arrangements lies with his Department.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will relax the operation of traffic attendants to support our town centre retailers during the current restrictions.

Ms Mallon: Traffic attendants perform an important role in local towns and cities helping to ensure that drivers park safely and legally. Parking enforcement ensures that parking spaces are available for shoppers and commuters, which will help support the local economy during these difficult times. I am therefore satisfied that traffic attendants should continue to deliver parking enforcement services across the north at this time.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the (i) condition of; and (ii) plans for MV Portaferry II currently berthed in Strangford.

Ms Mallon: The MV Portaferry II is in generally good condition but has been temporarily taken out of service due to a mechanical fault. Unfortunately there has been a delay in the delivery of the specialist parts required to complete the necessary repairs. I can confirm the MV Portaferry II will return to normal service when these repairs have been completed. In the interim normal service continues with the MV Strangford II.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure how she will proceed following receipt of the Ministerial Infrastructure Advisory Panel report and recommendations.

Ms Mallon: You will be aware that the Ministerial Advisory Panel presented their final report and recommendations to me on 2 October 2020.

The report reflects the extensive stakeholder engagement undertaken by the Panel and sets out a number of detailed findings and recommendations in respect of infrastructure planning and delivery here.

I am engaging with Executive colleagues on the final report and also look forward to discussing the report with the Infrastructure Committee to consider how we might best move forward to support the long term planning and delivery of infrastructure, a critical component in the Executive's Brexit planning and Covid recovery.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the number of drivers waiting for a taxi driver practical test.

Ms Mallon: Before undertaking a taxi driver practical test a driver must first pass the taxi theory test. The Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) has confirmed that as of 7 October 2020, 114 candidates hold a valid taxi theory test certificate and have not yet taken a taxi driver practical test.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans she has to increase funding for roads maintenance in North Down.
(AQO 956/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Budget process in relation to 2021/22 and beyond is ongoing and I understand that bilaterals between departmental Ministers and Minister of Finance are to be scheduled towards the end of October to discuss priorities and budget requirements in future years.

Having well maintained roads, cycle paths and footpaths is critical if we are to support public transport, encourage active travel and facilitate the transport of critical goods.

I will of course therefore be making the case for additional funding for maintenance and to ensure that additional funding is allocated fairly across all parts of the north, including of course the member's own constituency.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of the challenges created by the COVID-19 crisis, for an update on Translink's School Transport Services.

Ms Mallon: While home-to-school transport is the responsibility of the Education Minister, I recognise that many pupils also rely on our public transport network to travel to and from school. The safety of passengers on our buses and trains remains a key priority for me as we tackle the worrying increase in COVID-19 cases, and, most likely, a challenging winter ahead.

The scientific evidence currently suggests that coronavirus poses a low risk to children, but the risk that infected children pose to adults is not yet clear. Until this is known, we must do everything we can to minimise opportunities for transmission between children and adults.

A key way to do this is to reduce the number of school children travelling on public transport alongside other passengers. This is why I encourage those who can to travel to and from school by active travel, such as walking or cycling, or to use 'park-and-stride' facilities. Translink is also providing over 500 additional bus services to supplement the public transport network to facilitate social distancing for all passengers, including school children.

At present, dedicated school transport services are exempt from the Face Coverings Regulations. However I have been engaging with the Education Minister as I feel the most effective approach would be a simple, uniform mandatory face coverings policy across the board, on school services as well as on public transport.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on cycling infrastructure in West Belfast.

Ms Mallon: My Department carried out a feasibility study to identify possible walking and cycling routes through and to the Colin area of west Belfast in 2018. Since that time officials have been working with Belfast City Council, Department for Communities and NI Housing Executive to consider a number of routes that could be built and this work is ongoing. Progress on these projects is reported through the Colin Town Centre Stakeholders Group.

Building on the Colin report, a further report was commissioned by my Department on the feasibility of active travel routes throughout north and west Belfast with a view to feeding into a final Belfast Bicycle Network document, which I plan to publish later this year.

Last year my Department completed a linkage at the Broadway Roundabout which ultimately connects the Falls Road through Bog Meadows to Belfast city centre. My Department is also assisting in delivering crossing points for the Belfast City Council's Peace IV project, which aims to connect shared civic space in the west of the city and, in September, I announced part funding for an element of this greenway scheme.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps are being taken, in liaison with the Department for the Economy, to advance hydrogen bus development.

Ms Mallon: I fully recognise the urgent action needed to address the climate emergency we face and the role that my Department has to play in reducing Northern Ireland's carbon footprint in the transport sector. On wider climate change mitigation, I will continue and advance work to facilitate a modal shift to walking and cycling; increase the use of clean public transport including the introduction of 3 Hydrogen Fuelled Buses announced earlier this year and encourage people to switch to greener transport options.

I also recently announced a £30m investment in both Zero Emission Hydrogen and Battery Electric buses that will enter service in 2021/22 and further opportunities to invest in zero emission bus technologies are being assessed.

My focus will be on using available resources to green our infrastructure and deliver sustainable transport that connects our communities, availing of the opportunities that arise when we collaborate within and beyond government. My officials are working closely with the Office for Low Emission Vehicles on the development of UK wide transport decarbonisation plans and with the Department for the Economy on the transport elements of the proposed new Energy Strategy to inform how best this can be achieved for the North. This will include input from experts and stakeholders in relation to alternative fuels and supporting infrastructure.

I also recently met with Ministers Dodds, Poots and Murphy to discuss opportunities for developing the Hydrogen economy in Northern Ireland.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to outline the work her Department has carried out to improve road safety in East Belfast since 2017 as a result of road traffic collisions involving loss of life or serious injury.

Ms Mallon: I can assure you that my Department takes the issue of road safety very seriously and has commenced work on the successor to the current Road Safety Strategy which expires on 31 December 2020.

The road network is monitored on a yearly basis and for this purpose my Department receives information on road traffic collisions involving personal injury from the PSNI to be used for engineering reasons in the consideration and bringing forward of improvement schemes.

Specific funding for collision remedial schemes is only considered at locations where there are four or more personal injury collisions within a three year period and there is an identifiable collision pattern which can be addressed by engineering measures.

I can confirm that since 2017 no Collision Remedial Schemes have been identified for the East Belfast area however officials have taken forward many other schemes that have benefits in terms of road safety.

In the period identified my Department has implemented a traffic calming scheme at Rochester Road and a further traffic calming scheme is being progressed at Connsbrook Avenue and is currently at the detailed design stage. Two other notable schemes that have been carried out and provide safety benefits are the widening of the Comber Greenway and the upgrading of the signalised crossing at the A55 Knock Road / Glen Road junction.

You will also be aware that I am taking forward a programme of part time 20mph speed limits at schools to improve safety in the vicinity of schools and I am pleased to advise that Knocknagoney Primary School and Leadhill Primary School, both within your constituency area, are included within this year's programme.

A full list of schemes carried out across the East Belfast Constituency area are included within our annual reports to Belfast and Lisburn and Castlereagh City Councils.

These reports can be viewed on the Department's website under "Publications – Corporate Reports":

Department of Justice

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice to detail the scale of the current underrepresentation of Protestants within the Planning Appeals Commission; and what steps are being taken to address the issue.

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): The current breakdown by community background within the Planning Appeals Commission (PAC) is 64% Roman Catholic, 36% Protestant/Other.

Appointments to the Planning Appeals Commission (PAC) are made on the basis of merit in publicly-advertised recruitment competitions. As the sponsor body for PAC, my Department is alert to its current community background composition and, where appropriate, positive action advertising has been used to encourage applications from under-represented groups. Accordingly, the past three external competitions have included an equality opportunity statement that welcomes applications from men, people with a disability, those from ethnic minorities and those from a Protestant community background as these groupings are currently under-represented within the Commission.

Outreach exercises have included standard newspapers, the Section 75 groups, an e-mail to all those registered with the Royal Town Planning Institute in NI, and publication on The Planner and PAC website.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Justice what treatment and support is available to prisoners with dual diagnosis.
(AQW 8292/17-22)

Mrs Long: Healthcare services, including mental health services, are provided to prisoners in Northern Ireland through the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust (the Trust).

Mental Health teams are in place at each establishment, staffed by the Trust, and are comprised of mental health nurses, psychiatrists, mental health occupational therapists and clinical psychologists.

The diagnosis, treatment and support of prisoners with a dual diagnosis is provided by the Trust, and this information is held confidentially by the Trust.

The Northern Ireland Prison Service does not hold, nor have access to, the information to answer this question. We respectfully suggest that the question is redirected to the Department of Health.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Justice (i) what action she has taken to ensure victims are made aware of the Victims Charter; and (ii) to detail what reporting mechanisms she has put in place to ensure this Charter is being communicated to victims.

Mrs Long: The Victim Charter is currently accessed through NI Direct, my Department's website and those of our key criminal justice and voluntary sector partners. It is also referenced in leaflets and guidance which should be provided to victims when they come into contact with the criminal justice system.

However I welcome the recommendations in the CJINI Report on the Care and Treatment of Victims and Witnesses by the Criminal Justice System which indicate that although some work has been done to provide victims with access to the Charter, there is a need to improve victims' awareness of their rights and entitlements under the Charter, so they are assured about how they will be supported and informed. I also agree with the recommendation by CJINI that, across the criminal justice system, we need to ensure that service providers who have a duty to provide services to meet victims' entitlements are fully aware of their obligations under the Charter.

My Department is working with partners on the Victim and Witness Steering Group (VWSG) to develop a multi-agency Action Plan that will deliver on the recommendations in the CJINI Report. This will include the development of a cohesive and joined up information and communication plan to improve what information is provided to victims and witnesses, how it is provided and to make it more accessible. It will also include raising both public and organisational awareness of the Victim Charter and the key entitlements under it. The VWSG will report to the Criminal Justice Board on delivery against the Action Plan.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Justice what discussions or other steps she or her officials have undertaken with the Northern Ireland Office with regard to ending the segregated regime in our prisons.

Mrs Long: I remain in contact with the Secretary of State regarding separation and have discussed the issue with him on a number of occasions.

Separation within prisons is both a sensitive and challenging issue. Fundamentally, it exists because of conditions in wider society. Bringing about an end to the separated regime is highly dependent on our collective success at tackling paramilitarism, criminality and organised crime.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Justice whether she has made any assessment of the preconditions that need to be met before the segregated prison regime can be ended.

Mrs Long: Separation exists because of the prevailing conditions in wider society; bringing about an end to the separated regime, therefore, also depends on our collective success at tackling paramilitarism, criminality and organised crime.

It is my duty to ensure that the safest possible conditions exist for both staff and prisoners, both in the general and separated regimes.

Ending separation would have significant implications for the good order, discipline and security of prisons as a whole. It could also contribute to a greater level of threat to prison officers.

On that basis it is not something which should be embarked upon without careful consideration of all of those issues.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice what measures her Department has put in place for staff working within the Northern Ireland Prison Service to be tested for COVID-19 on a regular basis.

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Prison Service has well developed and embedded procedures for staff to be tested for COVID-19.

Department of Health testing guidance was updated on 9 April 2020 to designate prison staff as key workers. NIPS staff and their household members, who are displaying COVID-19 symptoms, can be tested through an agreement with Health Trusts.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice (i) for her assessment of; and (ii) to detail any relevant data regarding reduced offending behaviour among children and young people whilst in foster care.

Mrs Long: Whilst my Department has responsibility for producing reoffending statistics, looked after children are not identified as a separate cohort of all children who offend, so no data is available for those in foster care. It is therefore not possible for any assessment to be made.

I am aware, however, that the Department of Health collects and reports information on children in care, including data on children cautioned or convicted. It may be, therefore, that the information you require is held by that Department.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) how many prison officers have been subject to physical assaults each year for the last five years; and (ii) which house these assaults originated.

Mrs Long: The number of prison officers who have been subject to physical assaults each year for the last five years, and the location where these assaults are recorded as occurring, is shown in the table below.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice for a breakdown of the annual costs of segregation in our prisons.
(AQW 8508/17-22)

Mrs Long: The annual estimated cost of administering separation in the Northern Ireland Prison Service is £2.404m. The cost is broken down as follows:

Hydebank Wood staffing Costs:	£0.355m per annum
Maghaberry Staffing Costs:	£1.864m per annum
Maghaberry Accommodation Costs:	£0.185m per annum

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice what safety measures are in place to protect G4S security staff working at police stations from potentially contracting COVID-19.
(AQW 8546/17-22)

Mrs Long: Decisions relating to health and safety measures, and in compliance with COVID-19 guidance, within police stations are an operational matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board (NIPB). I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the NIPB. You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

As an employer, G4S also has a responsibility to comply with Government COVID-19 guidance to ensure the well-being and health and safety of their employees.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice for an update on addressing paramilitarism in North Down.
(AQW 8606/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Executive Action Plan, which is co-ordinated within my Department, takes a holistic approach to tackling paramilitary activity, criminality and organised crime. It includes 38 commitments aimed at preventing people from becoming vulnerable to paramilitary influence, providing support to enable transition away from paramilitary structures, building confidence in the justice system, and implementing new powers and strategies to deal with paramilitary activity.

Ending the harm caused by paramilitarism cannot be the sole responsibility of the criminal justice system. We are working in partnership across the Executive to address the systemic issues that build strong, resilient communities where there is no place for paramilitary organisations and activity.

There are a number of projects currently operating in North Down to address the harm caused to communities and individuals by paramilitary organisations. These include: the Education Authority is delivering the START project, a youth outreach scheme which aims to build relationships with young people who could be considered as being at higher risk of involvement in paramilitary activity; the Probation Board is delivering the ASPIRE project, which works with marginalised young men (aged 16 to 30) who are most at risk from being involved in paramilitarism and criminality; the Department for Communities is delivering a women's programme which seeks to increase the participation and influence of women in community development; and The Executive Office is delivering the Communities in Transition project which has developed projects in specific areas where there has been a history of paramilitary activity and coercive control. In addition, the PSNI / NCA / HMRC Paramilitary Crime Task Force is targeting criminality associated with paramilitary organisations and has had a number of successful operations in the North Down area.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice whether the Northern Ireland Prison Service intends to grant prisoners Christmas home leave, in light of the latest COVID-19 surge.

Mrs Long: A decision about Christmas Home Leave will be taken in due course. This decision will take account of a number of factors including the public health situation over the coming weeks.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice, in light of the Policing Board's Human Rights Annual Report 2019/20 which states that of 5,654 uses of the Justice and Security Act (JSA) power, no further action was taken in 96 per cent of cases, to detail how much public money was spent in policing the usage and implementation of the JSA power on these occasions.

Mrs Long: This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable, for which he is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 7798/17-12 (i) who accompanied the Minister on her visit to Dublin to meet the Irish Foreign Minister; and (ii) in what capacity.

Mrs Long: I was not accompanied on the visit.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 7890/17-22, (i) who covers the cost of her security when she visits the Irish Republic in her capacity as (a) the Minister of Justice; (b) the Alliance Party leader; and (ii) who covered the cost of her recent visit to meet the Irish Foreign Minister in Dublin on the 24 September 2020.

Mrs Long: As previously indicated in response to AQW 7890/17-22, I do not comment on matters relating to my personal security.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the Covert Human Intelligence Sources (Criminal Conduct) Bill 2019-21.
(AQW 8894/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Covert Human Intelligence Sources (Criminal Conduct) Bill is a UK wide Bill which relates to reserved or excepted matters in Northern Ireland and is therefore outside the scope of the Department of Justice.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 8645/17-22, to detail how much was spent on stop and search activities in relation to the Justice and Security Act.

Mrs Long: The Department of Justice does not hold this information. This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice whether she has ever received a bid for funding for body scanners to use in prisons.
(AQW 9111/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Prison Service are currently examining how X-Ray Body Scanners can be implemented within establishments.

The Northern Ireland Prison Service has funding available for the implementation of this technology.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of (i) hotels; (ii) restaurants; (iii) bed and breakfasts; (iii) barbers and hairdressers; and (iv) beauticians, which were prosecuted for breaches of the COVID-19 regulations, broken down by council area.

Mrs Long: There have been 12 cases completed at courts up to 16 October 2020, for offences under Coronavirus regulations. Of these cases, 10 resulted in a conviction, though none of the defendants, from case result data held by the Department, are recorded as being hotels, restaurants, bed and breakfasts, barbers, hairdressers or beauticians.

Additionally, there are currently 13 cases currently being prosecuted in courts in relation to offences under Coronavirus regulations.

Aside from those cases dealt with at, and proceeding through, court, individuals who breach Coronavirus regulations may be issued with Prohibition Notices, Penalty Notices and Community Resolution Notices. It is important to note that the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) is not the only organisation with the power to issue these notices in respect of breaches of COVID regulations. Local councils, Border Force and any other body designated by DoH can also issue such notices.

The issue of the above notices by the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI, Border Force, Councils or to other designated organisations, in relation to those particular figures.

Department for the Economy

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how she will ensure that people furthest from the labour market continue to receive support to access employment after the ending of the current European Social Fund Programme funding period in 2022.

(AQW 8410/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): The European Social Fund Programme currently provides important support to a large number of individuals who face a range of barriers to employment. The current projects are due to conclude in March 2022 and a joint project with the Department for Communities has been established to consider the range of policy and delivery options.

A key consideration for any replacement programme will be access to the necessary funding. This is being progressed by the Department of Finance on behalf of the NI Executive.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy (i) for her assessment of current health protection regulations and restrictions on the local music industry; and (ii) whether she will bid for financial resources for those who are adversely affected.

Mrs Dodds: As this question is specific to the local music industry I have been asked by the Minister for Economy to respond.

I value the role of the arts and culture in our society and to our well-being and I recognise the importance of live music within that. I, and my officials, have met with representatives from across the local music industry. Through that engagement, and from the correspondence I have received, I am aware of the impact of the current regulations on those who make their living through music. The current restrictions and limitations will be revised and ultimately removed when circumstances allow.

I have welcomed the £29m allocation from the Executive which will provide support across the broad arts, language, culture and heritage sectors.

My officials are engaging with partners across central and local government, as well as arm's length bodies and sectoral representatives to ensure the funding is distributed quickly, fairly and to maximise its impact. Work on the programmes of support is well advanced and details of the new funding schemes, including guidance, eligibility and application information will be available shortly. Relevant programmes will be open for application from those working within the music industry.

This funding is in addition to the £5.5m Creative Support Fund previously established by my Department. To date, £1.9m has been paid to small to medium organisations in addition to just over £0.5m to individuals, including musicians. A further round of awards from that fund is anticipated in the coming days.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy what action she will take to address the imbalance between the financial support available to students from Northern Ireland studying medicine at university in England compared to that available to students from England on the same courses.

Mrs Dodds: Health and student finance are devolved matters. The financial support available to healthcare students varies across the regions of the UK, depending upon where the student is ordinarily resident. Policy reflects the resources available to each administration, and their assessment of workforce supply priorities.

My Department pays tuition fees for fifth year medical and dental students from Northern Ireland studying a primary degree at any of the medical schools throughout the UK. These students may also be entitled to a means-tested bursary and specific maintenance allowances. I have no plans to change these arrangements.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy (i) why her Department raised the level of financial support available to smaller, standalone wind turbine based generating stations in 2014; (ii) to detail the number of these type of generating stations that joined the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) scheme each year, for the duration of the scheme; (iii) to detail the extent of the increase in number of these stations in the last few years of the NIRO scheme; and (iv) what actions her Department took to pre-empt and manage a surge in applications.

Mrs Dodds: The Department did not raise the level of financial support to small-scale onshore wind in 2014. The level of support available for onshore wind generating stations up to 250kW was set in April 2010 and was subsequently reviewed in 2014. Despite evidence that technology costs for small-scale onshore wind had increased from 2010, the Department did not increase the level of support in 2014 and maintained the level at 4 ROCs.

The number of accreditations each year has been received from Ofgem, as administrator of the scheme, and is detailed below. The NIRO closed to small scale onshore wind on 30 June 2016, with grace periods for generators that met certain criteria, and the numbers reflect an urgency for accreditation pre-closure.

Year	Number of accreditations
2006/07	27
2007/08	57
2008/09	161
2009/10	46
2010/11	70
2011/12	30
2013/14	95
2014/15	128
2015/16	128
2016/17	248
2018/19	2

Closure of the NIRO was announced in May 2012 and the Department initially consulted on closure in August 2015. The Department established a steering group to manage the process which included membership from all of the main stakeholders. The group identified and progressed key issues including NIRO accreditation.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy for a financial and institutional breakdown of the £5.8 million allocated to university research and development.

Mrs Dodds: The £5.8 million was allocated to university research and development as follows ;

Queen's University Belfast	£3,944,000 (68%)
Ulster University	£1,856,000 (32%)

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy, in respect of the internal review into petroleum licensing policy which the Department completed in 2019, (i) to detail commencement dates and reporting dates of that internal review; (ii) to lay a copy of the internal review in the Assembly Library, including its scope and findings; and (iii) why the findings of this internal review have not published prior to tender being initiated, given those findings are being used to justify the rationale and business case for the funding of the tendered research currently being considered.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The response to AQW 7567/17-22 sets out the timeframes of the internal review of petroleum licensing;
- (ii) This was a high level internal review, the findings of which were set out in a submission to the Permanent Secretary attaching a draft strategic scoping and discussion paper. The submission recommended the need for an independent study of existing research on the impacts of petroleum licensing and its application to Northern Ireland to provide a solid regional evidence base. The Department will use the information gathered to consider options and develop, through stakeholder engagement and consultation, evidence based petroleum policy proposals.

The specification for the research study sets out the strategic context and rationale for commissioning this piece of work and is available on the Department's website at: <https://www.economy-ni.gov.uk/articles/specification-research-economic-societal-and-environmental-impacts-onshore-petroleum-exploration-and>

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what is the estimated per capita cost to Northern Ireland electricity consumers of the support given to renewable electricity production.

Mrs Dodds: Support for renewable electricity production comes from the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation. The estimated annual cost of this to the typical NI domestic consumer in 2019 was £31.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department will carry out a review on all types of renewable generators, to ensure that current levels of financial support and the actual rates of return, that are being achieved, are compatible with the original projections, as recommended in the Northern Ireland Audit Office report into generating electricity from renewable energy.

Mrs Dodds: All of the recommendations included in the Northern Ireland Audit Office report that are specific to my Department have been accepted. The Department will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy why smaller wind turbines were incentivised when such provided poorer value for consumers.

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) is technology neutral and provides support for a range of renewable technologies and size bands.

This is consistent with the rest of the United Kingdom, which also provides support for small-scale onshore wind through both the Renewables Obligations and the Feed-in Tariff.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy whether the decision not to reduce subsidies to small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters in or about 2015 was subject to EU State Aid approval.

Mrs Dodds: The decision was that Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation Certificate (NIROC) banding levels should be retained at their existing level. EU State Aid approval was not required.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy whether the decision to increase subsidies to small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters in or about 2011 was subject to EU State Aid approval.

Mrs Dodds: The decisions to increase Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation Certificate support for small scale onshore wind and generating stations fuelled by biogas produced through the anaerobic digestion process, were both subject to EU State Aid approval.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Carroll asked the Assembly Commission whether it has considered the merits of making available non-contact thermometers at the entrances of Parliament Buildings.

Mr K Buchanan (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Member will be aware that the Assembly Commission established a COVID-19 Response Group at the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, chaired by the Director of Corporate Services, with responsibility for overseeing our response and determining measures required to deal with the effects of the pandemic in Parliament Buildings.

These measures have included changes to the entrance arrangements and the provision of screens and hand sanitisers at those locations. Consideration has also been given to the merits of providing non-contact thermometers at the entrances but this has not been identified (either through advice from the Public Health Agency or through guidance issued by the Executive) as a requirement at this time.

The Response Group continues to meet on a weekly basis and will continue to implement such measures as are necessary to mitigate the risk of infection in Parliament Buildings.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission why there is water ingress in corridor ceilings on the third floor of Parliament Buildings.

(AQW 8506/17-22)

Mr O'Dowd (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Member will be aware that the Assembly Commission undertook a major construction project, aimed at refurbishing the roof of Parliament Buildings, in 2014. This work, which included the installation of a new waterproof roof covering, was successfully completed in 2015.

As is normal for projects of this nature, a number of minor defects were identified, investigated and, where appropriate, addressed by the contractor.

The Commission is aware of issues that appear to relate directly to the works undertaken during the roof project and these are currently being investigated by the design team and contractors.

One such issue is the recurrence of a water leak in the 3rd floor corridor at the south east side of the building.

Several additional issues which resulted in water ingress on parts of the 3rd and 4th floors emerged following Storm Francis on 25 August 2020. These new issues may be outside the scope of the work of the roof project. If this is found to be the case, they will be addressed separately by Building Services Branch.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission for its assessment of whether the manner in which the railings on the roof of Parliament Buildings were installed is the cause of water ingress.

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Member will be aware that the Assembly Commission completed a major construction project, aimed at refurbishing the roof of Parliament Buildings, in 2015. Included in this project was the installation of a new safety barrier/handrail system at roof level.

The Commission is aware of issues that appear to relate directly to the works undertaken during the roof project including problems with the handrail system that was installed and with water ingress.

As is the normal procedure where such situations arise in complex construction projects, these issues are now the subject of an investigation by the design team and contractors, seeking to determine the cause of the problems, to identify responsibility for the issues and to propose a methodology for addressing them effectively. The Commission will be represented throughout this investigation process.

It is too early in the process for the Commission to come to a view on whether the manner in which the railings were installed on the roof is the cause of the water ingress.

Mr Carroll asked the Assembly Commission whether it plans to introduce technology in the Chamber to allow Members who are self-isolating to partake in Assembly business

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Assembly's Standing Orders do not currently provide for Members to participate remotely in plenary business. If the Assembly was to amend Standing Orders to allow for this, the Assembly Commission would provide the Assembly with the necessary infrastructure and technology.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission whether the installation specification for the railings on the roof of Parliament Buildings was approved by and on behalf of the Commission.

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Member will be aware that the Assembly Commission completed a major construction project, aimed at refurbishing the roof of Parliament Buildings, in 2015. Included in this project was the installation of a new safety barrier/handrail system at roof level.

The Commission appointed an integrated design team to undertake the scheme design and to oversee the works on site, following the appointment of the successful contractor.

The Commission is aware of some issues that appear to relate directly to the works undertaken during the roof project, including problems with the new safety barrier/handrail system that was installed and also with water ingress.

As is the normal procedure where such situations arise in complex construction projects, these issues are now the subject of an investigation by the design team and contractors, seeking to determine the cause of the problems, to identify responsibility for the issues and to propose a methodology for addressing them effectively. The Commission will be represented throughout this investigation process.

The Commission approved the scheme design brought to it by the design team and subsequently approved the appointment of a main contractor to undertake the works on site.

The Commission's contract, as is common with complex construction contracts, contains contractor and/or supplier-designed work elements. The aforementioned investigation is working to establish where responsibility for the relevant work elements in our contract lies. Until the investigation is concluded, it would not be possible or appropriate for the Commission to comment on the specific detail of the specification for the handrail installation.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission (i) whether there are outstanding claims against the contractor who did the work on the roof of Parliament Buildings; and (ii) if so, how are these being progressed.

Mr K Buchanan (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Member will be aware that the Assembly Commission completed a major construction project, aimed at refurbishing the roof of Parliament Buildings, in 2015.

The Commission is aware of some issues relating to the roof project and these have been brought to the attention of the design team and contractors who are currently investigating the issues. The Commission will be represented throughout this investigation process.

There are no outstanding claims against the contractor.

Northern Ireland Assembly

Friday 30 October 2020

Written Answers to Questions

The Executive Office

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQW 4183/17-22, by what means can Ms Brenda King lawfully perform functions arising under Section 14(2) of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 which are expressly bestowed on a named office holder, namely the duly appointed Attorney General.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): Section 22 of the Justice (Northern Ireland) Act 2002 (as amended) provides the First Minister and deputy First Minister (acting jointly) with the power to appoint an Attorney General for Northern Ireland and with the power to make arrangements for the discharge of the functions of the Attorney General for Northern Ireland during any vacancy in that office.

Miss Woods asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the establishment of a dedicated fund for restorative justice initiatives to provide enhanced levels of resource over longer periods of time to deliver positive outcomes for individuals and communities, as outlined in A9 of the Tackling Paramilitarism Activity, Criminality and Organised Crime Programme.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: An options paper for the establishment of a dedicated fund for restorative justice initiatives is being developed by officials for consideration by Ministers.

In parallel with this, through Action B4 (the Communities in Transition Project), a contract to the value of £1.4m has been awarded to deliver a regional programme to expand the use of restorative practices in non-justice settings across the eight Communities in Transition areas of focus.

Mr O'Toole asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail what progress has been made on implementing Article 11 of the Protocol to ensure the protection of the all-island economy, clarifying how they intend to address gaps on (i) mobility rights on the island; (ii) mutual recognition of professional qualifications; (iii) data flows; and (iv) barriers to all-island trade in services.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Withdrawal Agreement, of which the Ireland/Northern Ireland Protocol is part, is an agreement between the United Kingdom and the European Union. As International Relations is an excepted matter under the terms of the Northern Ireland Act 1998, the implementation of the Protocol is a responsibility of the UK Government.

At the recent meeting of the North South Ministerial Council (NSMC) Ministers discussed the implications of the UK's withdrawal from the EU. Both jurisdictions share a common interest of minimising disruption to trade and economic activity and there will be further engagement on this topic at future NSMC Sectoral meetings and bi-laterally between Ministers, where appropriate.

In relation to mobility rights on the island, Immigration and the Common Travel Area are the responsibility of the UK Government. Under the Common Travel Area (CTA) Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) agreed by the UK Government (UKG) and the Government of Ireland on 8 May 2019, British and Irish citizens remain able to move freely and to work, including on a self-employed basis, within the CTA.

EEA citizens who do not qualify for settled / pre-settled status or as frontier workers wishing to enter Northern Ireland or any part of the UK for activity under Article 11 of the Protocol will be required to obtain the necessary immigration status under the points-based immigration system from 1 January 2021.

In relation to services, including the mutual recognition of professional qualifications and the continued free flow of data, the most effective way of ensuring strong trade links is through a robust UK/EU agreement.

Miss Woods asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they will make representations to the Northern Ireland Office to request that the voting age in Northern Ireland be lowered to 16 years old.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: In the absence of a consensus on this matter it would not be appropriate for us to make such representations on behalf of the Executive.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their assessment of the impact of the Executive Committee (Functions) Bill on the bringing of all proposed departmental legislation before the Executive.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Executive has agreed procedures for consideration of, and agreement to, legislative proposals. These will not be affected by the enactment of the Executive Committee (Functions) Bill.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to publish the list of persons designated by the parties with whom papers can be shared relating to the Brexit sub-committee.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Designated party colleagues with whom papers relating to the Executive Committee dealing with EU Exit matters can be shared, as notified to the Secretariat, are detailed in the table below.

Party	Name
Alliance	Stephen Farry
	Sorcha Eastwood
DUP	Nigel Dodds
	Timothy Johnston
SDLP	Matthew O'Toole
	Sinead McLaughlin
Sinn Fein	Chris Hazzard
	Caoimhe Archibald
UUP	Steve Aiken
	John Stewart

Mr Beattie asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when the revised Ministerial Code will be brought before the Assembly.

(AQW 8496/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: We are currently considering proposed amendments to the Ministerial Code to reflect the changes in the law introduced by the Executive Committee (Functions) Act 2020. Following Executive agreement we will table a motion for their approval by the Assembly at the earliest opportunity.

Ms McLaughlin asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they will recuse themselves from the process of appointing the Head of the Civil Service.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The particular nature of the HOCS position in terms of its duties and responsibilities and its relationship to the Executive has implications for the recruitment process.

The HOCS appointment process provides for our involvement in the recruitment and selection decision-making process, both at the planning stage of the competition and at second stage interviews.

The HOCS recruitment policy was revised in 2016 to incorporate this Ministerial element and mirrors that applied across GB and devolved administrations.

We will continue to be involved in the appointment process, within a framework that ensures that merit remains the basis for selection.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether the proposals which manifested themselves in the COVID-19 Regulations of 16 October 2020 come to the Executive with their joint consent.

(AQW 9091/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: All matters included on the agenda of a meeting of the Executive Committee are subject to our prior joint agreement.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether he and his officials have met officers at Derry City and Strabane District Council to discuss measures to improve air quality in its urban area.

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): Air Quality is continually monitored across Northern Ireland. This includes monitoring pollutants such as particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide.

In Northern Ireland, District Councils are responsible for reviewing the state of air quality in their district. Derry City and Strabane City Council do this through monitoring air quality at a number of sites throughout Northern Ireland. DAERA provides financial assistance to Derry City and Strabane City Council through the Local Air Quality Management Grant to support this monitoring network. As part of the grant process, policy and technical air quality officers are in regular contact with the council as regards its approach to the management of air quality.

There are currently four Air Quality Management Areas and four automatic monitoring stations within Derry and Strabane District Council. When an AQMA is declared a council must produce an Action Plan to outline how they will reduce exceedances or the likelihood of exceedances of air quality objectives within their council area. Derry City and Strabane District Council have such an action plan in place which is currently under review by the Council.

At present my Department is developing the first Clean Air Strategy for Northern Ireland. In December 2016, the previous DAERA Minister, Michele McIlveen, gave a commitment to develop an air quality strategy. Since then, my officials have been working on developing a draft Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document. This work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure.

The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for a 12 week public consultation in the coming weeks. The consultation will invite views on a wide range of matters relating to air quality and I would welcome further engagement with Derry City and Strabane District Council at this stage to discuss issues relating to air quality within that District Council area.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, given that 98 per cent of Special Areas of Conservation (SACs) have exceeded their critical loads of nitrogen deposition, 86 per cent by over 200 per cent and some by over 300 per cent of their critical load thresholds, to detail what shortcomings by his Department have been identified that resulted in the situation.

Mr Poots: The scale of critical load exceedance with respect to nitrogen deposition at Northern Ireland's SACs is largely due to emissions from Northern Ireland livestock, and to a lesser extent, other sources such as transport, industry and transboundary pollution. This reflects the importance of livestock production to the Northern Ireland economy. There have been sustained increases in livestock numbers between 2010 and 2017, with limited provision for mitigation or abatement.

There has been greater awareness in recent years of the impact of nitrogen deposition on the environment so rather than looking back on any potential shortcomings we are learning from past experience and the emerging evidence to remedy this situation in a way that delivers for a healthy environment, including protection and improvement of these habitats, and for sustainable agriculture. An important element of this will be developing a comprehensive approach to ammonia and I intend to publish these proposals for consultation soon.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how many crimes on farms in North Down have been reported to his Department, over each of the last five years.

Mr Poots: While the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs works closely with the PSNI, DAERA is not responsible for collating statistics on crimes on farms.

However the PSNI has provided the following data on crimes associated with "agricultural-based activity" in the Ards & North Down policing district: -

You should note however that the PSNI's data includes not only crimes where the location was a farm, but may also include stolen property or vehicles with an agricultural link which occurred in another location.

Further more detailed information, including the PSNI's Statistics Branch's quarterly bulletin on Agricultural and Rural Crime in Northern Ireland, may be found on the web-site - <https://www.psni.police.uk/inside-psni/Statistics/police-recorded-crime-statistics/>

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department's records of existing anaerobic digester plants includes records of plants without planning permission.

Mr Poots: My Department continues to work closely with colleagues from the Department for Infrastructure (DfI) and Department for the Economy (DfE) to identify all anaerobic digestion (AD) plants and to ensure they are regulated effectively. There is a statutory duty on my Department to ensure that all AD plants treating waste have planning permission in place prior to them being issued with a waste management licence or permit.

Responsibility for planning rests with the DfI and the 11 Local Authority Planning Departments. My Department is consulted by the planning authorities in relation to planning applications involving AD plants but the planning decision does rest with the Planning Departments within local Councils. Therefore my Department does not maintain comprehensive records of AD plants that have no planning permission in place.

My Department holds information on existing anaerobic digester (AD) plants for a number of purposes. These include applications made to the Department for authorisations to accept waste or treat animal by-products which require information on the planning status of the AD plant.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for his assessment of rural fly tipping and littering across West Tyrone; and (ii) to detail whether additional funding will be provided to address this.

Mr Poots:

- i) My Department's (NIEA) waste enforcement activity focuses on large-scale waste disposal activity rather than ad hoc dumping often referred to as fly-tipping, which is addressed by the District Councils. However, the NIEA will assist the councils by the removal of hazardous wastes, such as asbestos and fuel laundering waste, and larger waste deposits over 20 cubic metres.

My Department records its waste management activities on a District Council (DC), rather than Parliamentary Constituency (PC) level. Data relating to the two DCs that encompass the West Tyrone PC area, Fermanagh and Omagh, and Derry and Strabane, show that, in the 6 months between April and September 2020, there were 9 waste-related incidents cleared by NIEA's contractor at a cost of £10,090.43 across both DC areas. This compares to 16 incidents and an expenditure of £24,673.80 by the NIEA across both DC areas for the same period in 2019, representing a decrease in waste clearance costs of 59.1%.

As previously stated, fly-tipping is primarily addressed by the DCs and my Department does not hold information in relation to costs incurred by the DCs in clearing such wastes. However, during the initial stages of the Covid-19 restrictions, the Local and Central Government Waste Working Group commissioned the Strategic Investment Board (SIB) to compile a weekly Municipal Waste Issues Tracker, including fly-tipping incidents, from data supplied by each of the 11 DCs. Throughout the reporting period (April - September 2020) Derry & Strabane and Fermanagh & Omagh each reported either 'green' or 'amber' status, indicating that they had either low numbers of fly-tipping incidents, or increased numbers of incidents manageable within their current resources respectively.

It is apparent from the decrease in the number of incidents reported to NIEA for waste clearance, and the fly-tipping data supplied by both DCs encompassing the West Tyrone PC area between April and September, that the incidence of hazardous waste dumping had decreased, and that both DCs were managing any increase in fly-tipping and littering within their own resources.

- ii) To date, DAERA has allocated £3.8m emergency Covid-19 funding for the period March to June 2020 to the eleven DCs for their additional waste management costs as a result of the pandemic.

Regarding this period, Fermanagh and Omagh did not request any additional funding for fly-tipping due to Covid-19; Derry and Strabane have been allocated £11,975.28 towards their additional fly-tipping costs due to Covid-19.

A further £11.4m emergency Covid-19 funding for council waste management services has been secured from the Executive to cover additional costs for the period July through to March 2021. My officials are working with DCs to allocate this funding on the basis of the additional expenditure necessarily incurred by DCs, which may include fly-tipping.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what process or mechanism exists within his Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals.

Mr Poots: All correspondence received by my Department is logged and recorded appropriately in line with NICS policies and guidance.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 5986/17-22 and AQW 7472/17-22, to detail (i) the parties involved in an ammonia consultation process; (ii) the work that has been completed on an ammonia strategy; and (iii) a timeline for action against ammonia pollution.

Mr Poots:

- (i) This will be a public consultation. We look forward to engaging with stakeholders from the environment and agri-food sectors as well as the general public.
- (ii) The draft ammonia strategy I am considering outlines a comprehensive approach to ammonia reduction, habitat protection and restoration, along with an economic analysis of the ammonia reduction measures.
- (iii) Timelines will depend on the outcome of the consultation however I also recognise that there is an urgent need for ammonia reduction. The Nutrients Action Programme measures already introduced by my department will contribute to ammonia reduction in the short term.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for details on the recruitment process for establishing the Office for Environmental Protection in Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: The commencement of the provisions relating to the extension of the Office for Environmental Protection (OEP) to Northern Ireland is subject to the future approval of the Assembly. Details of the recruitment process for the OEP in NI are still at an early stage of development. However, DAERA officials are engaged in preparatory work with Defra to consider detailed operational arrangements, including recruitment.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, given that, under current European Union environmental governance arrangements, the European Commission monitors the implementation of European Union environmental law, what is being done to fill the governance gap which will be created following the transition period.

Mr Poots: Following the ending of the EU withdrawal Transition Period on 31 December 2020 the European Commission will no longer an oversight role on the implementation of environmental law – except as provided for under the NI Protocol. The Environment Bill, which is currently progressing through Parliament, provides for the formation of a new, independent, statutory environmental body - the Office for Environmental Protection (OEP) - to hold government to account on environmental matters.

Subject to the Bill receiving Royal Assent, and commencement of provisions being approved by the Northern Ireland Assembly, the OEP will have a role within Northern Ireland. The OEP will: provide independent scrutiny and advice on the development and implementation of environmental law and policy; investigate environmental complaints from members of the public; and oversee the delivery of environmental law by public authorities and take steps to bring about compliance where needed.

My officials, along with Defra colleagues, are currently considering interim arrangements to address any gap between the end of the Transition Period and the OEP taking up its role as a result of delays arising from the Covid emergency.

A discussion document has been prepared on Environmental Plans, Principles and Governance in Northern Ireland and this will give stakeholders an opportunity to voice their opinions on how the OEP should function within Northern Ireland.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, what steps his Department is taking to encourage widespread public engagement on the Environmental Plans, Principles and Governance for Northern Ireland Public Discussion Document.

Mr Poots: The public discussion document on Environmental Plans, Principles and Governance for Northern Ireland is due for release in the near future. The document will be published on the DAERA website and the Citizen Space Hub consultation platform and will be accessible for a period of 8 weeks. The launch will be accompanied by a press release and will be shared on social media channels such as Twitter and Facebook. In addition a list of stakeholders comprising of environmental Non-Government Organizations, local government, and other interested parties will be utilized to email details of the document launch.

A dedicated email address and telephone number are available should stakeholders require further information.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for his assessment of the NI Audit Office finding in their report Generating Electricity From Renewable Energy that accredited Anaerobic Digestion based generating stations in receipt of Renewables Obligations Certificates were operating without environmental waste permits or had not complied with certain conditions set out within their planning approval; (ii) what shortcomings have been identified by his Department that led to this happening; and (iii) what actions his Department is taking to address these issues.

Mr Poots:

- (i) The Department for the Economy (DfE) has overall responsibility for renewable electricity policy and legislation, including the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) Scheme. Its administration is fulfilled through an Agency Services Agreement with the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (OFGEM).

Anaerobic digester (AD) plants produce biogas which, when combusted in a combined heat and power (CHP) unit can generate renewable electricity. This CHP unit and generator are collectively referred to as a 'generating station'. It is this generating station that is accredited by OFGEM for the purposes of the NIRO scheme and not the AD plants creating the biogas. Importantly anaerobic digestion plants are not eligible for support under the NIRO Scheme. The NIRO scheme supports the generation of renewable electricity, including electricity generated by stations fuelled by biogas that has been produced by AD plants. This is an important distinction as the NIRO legislation and scheme administration is focused solely on the electricity generating station and Renewables Obligation Certificates (ROCs) are issued only in recognition of the eligible electricity produced.

My Department is aware that a number of Anaerobic Digestion plants have been operating without waste management licences although not all anaerobic digestion plants will require a waste management licence as this is dependent on the nature of the feedstock.

Compliance with conditions set out in planning approvals is a matter for the planning authorities, namely the Department for Infrastructure and the 11 local authority planning departments.

- (ii) As detailed above, the accredited AD based generating stations in receipt of Renewables Obligations Certificates refers specifically to the energy generating stations fuelled by biogas that generated renewable electricity and energy. Anaerobic digestion plants nor the biogas they produce were not eligible for support under the NIRO Scheme.

As the NIAO report states, there was no requirement in the NIRO legislation for planning and environmental regulations to be complied with for a generating station to be accredited and receive ROCs. When it was announced that the NIRO scheme was closing on 31 March 2017, there was a large increase in applications to the scheme and some developers proceeded to construct AD plants without securing the necessary planning permission or waste authorisation where this was required.

- (iii) My officials have worked with colleagues in DfE, DfI and OFGEM to identify the locations of AD plants operating without a waste management licence. They have contacted all known operators and applications have now been received from all plants currently operating that require a waste authorisation.

My Department welcomes the key findings and recommendations of the NIAO Report to put in place new measures to strengthen partnership arrangements with DfE and other relevant public bodies, to ensure that any future renewable energy schemes are supported at an early stage, with a proactive and joined up approach to accreditation, monitoring and enforcement.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, following the Assembly calling for climate change legislation that includes binding carbon reduction targets within a three month timeframe, for an update on a climate change act.

Mr Poots: I am currently finalising a discussion document consultation on a future Northern Ireland Climate Change Bill which I will publish in the next number of weeks. A Climate Change Bill for Northern Ireland must be given proper thought and consultation, to ensure that:

- the measures which we take are appropriate and will deliver benefits, and;
- we allow business time to adjust to a new way of working and where necessary provide financial support.

I have written to the independent expert UK Committee on Climate Change (CCC) for advice on what would be our equitable contribution to the UK's net zero emissions target. I want to consider this information to ensure our emissions reduction targets are credible and evidence based. Unfortunately the CCC are not in a position to respond to my request until after they have provided advice on the UK's sixth carbon budget, which will be published in December 2020.

I will consider the responses from the discussion document consultation on a future Northern Ireland Climate Change Bill, along with the advice provided from the CCC. I will then present my findings to the Northern Ireland Executive to agree a way forward.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, following the Executive's announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in his Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

Mr Poots: The well-being and safety of our staff remains a priority for DAERA and, in line with the NI Executive's guidance and advice, I can confirm that all DAERA officials and staff members who can work from home are doing so.

A small number of staff, equating to around 24% of departmental staff can only deliver their services from the workplace and cannot therefore work from home. For the protection of these staff we continue to follow all Coronavirus Health & Safety Regulations to ensure our premises remain Covid secure.

Department for Communities

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for Communities how much money is to be contributed to the redevelopment of Casement Park by (i) the taxpayer; and (ii) the GAA.

(AQW 8634/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): The 'New Decade, New Approach' deal (2020) states that 'The Executive will advance with plans to complete both the Regional and Sub Regional Stadia Programmes which includes Casement Park'. I am fully committed to delivering on this commitment.

In March 2011, my Department was allocated a budget of £110 million of capital grant funding by the Executive to deliver the three projects in the Regional Stadia Programme. The current allocation of public funding to the Casement Park Project, approved by the previous Executive, is £62.5 million. Committed UCGAA partnership funding of £15 million brings the total current project budget to £77.5 million.

The draft UCGAA Full Business Case dated November 2019 includes a project cost estimate of circa £110 million current up to a date of June 2019.

A due diligence exercise is currently underway reviewing the estimated construction cost, which has risen due to the passage of time since the original estimate. There is also potential for any conditions associated with the planning approval process to impact on the projected costs for the project.

UCGAA has continued to engage with the Department throughout this process.

Dr Aiken asked the Minister for Communities what assessment has been made of the reasons behind the estimated £33 million cost overruns on the planned redevelopment of Casement Park.

(AQW 8655/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: To support the development of the revised business case, the Casement Park project Design Team carried out an assessment of the key reasons for cost increases to the project, which are summarised as follows:

- Time delay of circa six years resulting in construction cost inflation increases

Necessary redesign of the facility to respond to: CAL Committee 2015, PAR Report 2015, Planning Community Consultation 2016. Design changes are attributable a range of issues including, reduced height, changes to reduce the visual and sound impact on neighbouring homes, safety considerations and transport management plans. My departmental officials, in conjunction with officials in the Department of Finance, are currently completing a review of the latest version of the draft Full Business Case for the Casement Park Project.

Alongside this, a further due diligence exercise reviewing the estimated construction cost, which has risen due to the passage of time since the original estimate, is underway. There is also potential for any conditions associated with the planning approval process to impact on the projected costs for the project. This is also under review.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether future sport investment will be based on a means tested application.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My officials have been working with the sports Governing Bodies to establish the extent of the financial impact of the pandemic and the potential future implications given the latest restrictions.

I have submitted a bid to the Executive seeking a financial support package for the sector. If this bid is successful, my officials will work with SportNI to design a needs based scheme, in line with Managing Public Money.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities whether she will provide additional funding for the DNA Museum project in Ebrington in addition to the funding secured by Derry City and Strabane District Council, the Heritage Lottery fund and the Executive Office.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I recognise the strategic importance of developing the Derry North Atlantic Maritime Museum as part of the wider Central Riverfront Tourism Project, the ultimate aim of which is to attract greater numbers of tourists to the North West. With this in mind the business case for the Derry North Atlantic Maritime Museum is currently being reviewed. It will, of course, be subject to the associated economic appraisal process and budget availability.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities whether her officials will engage with Derry City and Strabane District Council in order to identify potential funding opportunities to continue to advance the business case for the Strathfoyle Greenway in Derry.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Departmental officials have been engaging with Derry City and Strabane District Council officials, as well as representatives from DFI and DAERA, on an ongoing basis in order to progress the Strathfoyle Greenway project.

My Department agreed to accept an application for funding from Council which has just been received. This will now be appraised, subject to the necessary business case approvals, and within the context of the Department's wider budget considerations.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities whether she will assess provision of funding for Save the Children's Emergency Response Programme, in partnership with the Greater Shantallow Area Partnership.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department through the Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund currently provide financial assistance in partnership with Save the Children to the Greater Shantallow Area Partnership. I have asked my officials to continue to work with this organisation to assess the provision of future funding, in line with governance requirements and availability.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities for an update on plans for the return of spectators to live sporting events.

Ms Ní Chuilín: DfC officials will continue to work with the Governing Bodies, SportNI, Councils and the Sports Grounds Safety Authority on the measures that are needed to deliver the safe return of larger numbers of spectators at sports events.

The Governing Bodies have shown that they are acutely aware of the need to act responsibly, have measures in place to manage crowds and when necessary to suspend activities, cancel matches and close their facilities for the good of the wider community.

I have met with the Governing Bodies and stated my position on spectators while also advising them that I am seeking to secure a financial package for the sector.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities what steps have been taken to ensure that men's and women's amateur football can continue to be played throughout the 2020-21 season.

Ms Ní Chuilín: First of all, I would like to acknowledge the crucial role local amateur football clubs and their members have played in helping the relief effort in their local communities during this difficult time.

In terms of getting back to playing football, it was very unfortunate that after all the careful preparations and the development of the protocols for a safe return of football that the situation has had to change again.

The Executive has had to take some difficult decisions to address the recent surge in positive Covid cases and the rising transmission rate.

The latest regulations mean that amateur football matches and team training cannot take place at this time. Elite football and training is still permitted to continue.

I hope that after the four week circuit breaker that the transmission rates will be at a level that allows for a safe return of not just football but of all sporting activities.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the proposed cost to rebuild Casement Park; and (ii) where the money is coming from to build it.

Ms Ní Chuilín: As Department with responsibility for Casement Park this question has been transferred to the Department for Communities to respond.

The 'New Decade, New Approach' deal (2020) states that 'The Executive will advance with plans to complete both the Regional and Sub Regional Stadia Programmes which includes Casement Park'. I am fully committed to delivering on this commitment.

The current allocation of public funding to the Casement Park Project, approved by the previous Executive, is £62.5 million. Committed UCGAA partnership funding of £15 million brings the total current project budget to £77.5 million.

The draft UCGAA Full Business Case dated November 2019 includes a project cost estimate of circa £110 million current up to a date of June 2019.

A due diligence exercise is currently underway reviewing the estimated construction cost, which has risen due to the passage of time since the original estimate. There is also potential for any conditions associated with the planning approval process to impact on the projected costs for the project.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the extension of the ban on landlords evicting tenants during the pandemic.

Ms Ní Chuilín: At the start of the pandemic the Department secured a commitment from Social Landlords that there would be no evictions due to Covid-19 related rent arrears. This continues to be the case. The Department is continuing to work with Housing Associations and the Housing Executive to help them keep tenants in their homes, and to ensure that the welfare system can provide help to their tenants as quickly as possible.

Tenants are encouraged to have an early conversation with their social landlord if they are struggling to pay their rent, and landlords have agreed to support tenants and treat rent issues with sensitivity.

The Department has produced guidance to support tenants and landlords in the social rented sector during the Covid-19 outbreak. The guidance includes what to do if tenants are struggling with paying rent, health and safety advice for both tenants and workers when carrying out emergency repairs, and information on house moves and possession proceedings.

In terms of tenants in the Private Rented Sector "The Private Tenancies (Coronavirus Modifications) Act (Northern Ireland) 2020" was introduced in May of this year. It requires landlords of private rented properties to give a 12 week notice to quit period to tenants. While the initial period for the extended notice to quit was up to the 30 September 2020, the Act contained provision for an extension to this emergency period and I have exercised this power so that private landlords are required to give a 12 week notice to quit to tenants until the 31 March 2021.

In addition the Department produced guidance for the private rented sector which gives them advice on matters relating to possession proceedings as amended by the Coronavirus Act 2020, Court Action on possession cases during the Covid 19 outbreak, property access and health and safety obligations in the context of Coronavirus restrictions.

The Department have liaised closely with the court service and as a result they have advised judges in possession hearings to ensure that the Department's guidance has been followed.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities on what basis she issued a letter on 16 October 2020 to sporting bodies claiming that the new COVID-19 regulations, which had not been made at that point, banned spectators at elite matches.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In my capacity as Minister with responsibility for sport, I wrote to the Governing Bodies to advise them that in my view they should no longer continue to permit a limited number of spectators to attend games.

This was based on the most recent advice from the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Advisor that in light of the increased numbers of Covid cases it is currently unwise for large gatherings to take place.

I have met with the senior officers from the Governing Bodies, explained my position on spectators and listened to their concerns. I have given a commitment that I will make a bid to the Executive for an appropriate package of financial support for the sector.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Communities for a breakdown of funding awarded to groups in the North Belfast constituency in each of the last three years.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities to detail the next steps for the Areas At Risk programme, given that funding is due to end in March 2021.

(AQW 9013/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Areas at Risk (AaR) is delivered through People and Place – A Strategy for Neighbourhood Renewal, which is currently undergoing a Review. To secure the views of those delivering on the ground, representatives of each AaR and Neighbourhood Renewal Partnership are included in a Partnership Forum, which was established to help inform the Review.

The Forum provides a platform for these organisations to convey their thinking and give their experiences on what has worked and what may be of benefit going forward. The Forum has met twice to date, with a third meeting scheduled via Zoom for early November.

To address concerns raised by funded organisations in relation to the negative impact of one year funding cycles and budget reductions, Minister Harghey wrote in February to representatives of each Neighbourhood Renewal and AaR project confirming that the budget for the programmes would be protected at current levels until the end of the 2021/22 financial year.

As Covid continues to impact on delivery and in preparation for the new financial year, officials continue to engage with our partners across all funding streams to ensure they are best equipped to deliver key services going forward.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities which areas are currently subject to bans on (i) street drinking; (ii) drinking in parks; and (iii) drinking in other public places; and whether she has plans to extend the areas that are covered.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under the current local government structure all 11 councils have bye-laws that make it an offence to consume alcoholic drinks in council designated public places.

Each individual council is responsible for its own set of bye-laws and will therefore hold the detailed information on which areas are currently subject to bans on (i) street drinking (ii) drinking in parks; and (iii) drinking in other public places.

I currently do not have any plans to extend the areas that are covered as this would be a matter for the individual council.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will review the restrictions announced on 14 October around sports to broaden the definition of elite sports to include the (i) NIFL Championship; and (ii) NIFL Premier Intermediate League.

Ms Ní Chuilín: As this question is specific to sports I have been asked to respond.

It is important to emphasise that the purpose of the 'elite' designation within the regulations was to differentiate a small group of individuals and teams who would be able to continue to train and play competitively.

There are no plans to expand the definition of elite sport to permit more clubs and sports to resume activities. That would not be in line with what the Executive is seeking to achieve in this period of enhanced restrictions, which is reduce the transmission rate, limit non household contact and limit non-essential travel.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities (i) what measures are in place to protect civil servants working in her Department; and (ii) whether they will be permitted to work from home in line with guidance issued under new COVID-19 restrictions.

Ms Ní Chuilín: During the Covid 19 pandemic period my Department has kept offices open for staff to provide essential benefit and child maintenance services and ensure the continuity of payments to customers. Jobs and Benefits Offices were re-reopened to the public from July 2020 on a restricted basis to ensure that services for vulnerable customers could be provided on a face-to-face basis.

Consequently the Department also put in place a number of measures to protect staff including the designation of key worker status for benefit and child maintenance staff, the provision of IT equipment to work from home where this was possible, the introduction of rota based systems to ensure minimum staffing levels in offices, the reinforcement of social distancing measures in the workplace and additional cleaning/ sanitising regimes.

The Department has also worked with TU Health & Safety representatives to put in place Covid19 risk assessments for all of its office estate to ensure that staff coming in to the workplace could do so safely and in compliance with all relevant Public Health Agency and Health & Safety Executive guidance.

In line with the new Covid 19 restrictions staff have recently been reminded that those who can work from home must do so. The Department continues to take steps to increase the number of staff who can work from home.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Communities for an update on engagement with district councils concerning restructuring of loans to aid financial circumstances being experienced as a result of the pandemic.[R]

(AQW 9114/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is liaising with councils through Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives to ascertain the number of loans and the interest rates that apply on those loans, in order to ascertain if there are options to restructure loans that could be utilised.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Communities whether permission will be given to district councils to capitalise redundancy payments. [R]
(AQW 9115/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Section 19(5) of the Local Government Finance Act (NI) 2011 allows my Department to issue capitalisation directions to councils. This permits, in very limited circumstances, specified items of expenditure normally classified as revenue to be treated as capital expenditure.

As part of the Reform of Local Government, cost cutting measures such as staff severance costs, were considered to meet the capitalisation criteria during the period 1 April 2015 – 31 December 2019.

My officials are currently looking at options of how the use of capitalisation directions for staff severance costs could be utilised for the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for Communities to detail the scoring matrix used to assess applications to the artists emergency programme.
(AQW 9254/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme administered by the Arts Council on behalf of my Department has, to date, offered support to 1089 individuals in addition to 224 individuals previously supported through the Artists Emergency Programme. The application process, scored against a high, medium, low matrix included an assessment of the following factors:

- 1 Your CV and your contribution to the creative sector before Covid-19; and
- 2 The benefit the award will have on the sustainability of your professional skills, and/or creative development

Department of Education

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Education why mandatory face coverings for dedicated school transport has still not happened.
(AQW 8469/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): The Public Health Agency has recently revised its advice on the mandatory wearing of face coverings on dedicated home to school transport. As a result, ahead of the return of schools, the Minister for Infrastructure and I have agreed to introduce the mandatory wearing of face coverings on all dedicated home to school transport for all those of post-primary age.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Education to detail the procedures currently in place to monitor the learning standards and progress of those who are home schooled.

Mr Weir: Elective Home Education (EHE) is the term used to describe the practice by which parents decide to educate their children outside of the school system. This is different to tuition provided by the Education Authority (EA) to a child who is unwell or who attends alternative group arrangements provided by the EA.

Article 45(2) and Schedule 13 of the Education and Libraries (NI) Order 1986 (as amended) sets out the legal duties of the EA and the parent in relation to EHE. It places a duty on parents to ensure that their child receives an 'efficient full-time education suitable to his age, ability and aptitude and to any special educational needs he may have, either by regular attendance at school or otherwise'. This enables parents to secure their child's efficient full-time education either at school or outside of the formal school environment process.

Parents who elect to educate their children at home do not need to be a qualified teacher and their child is not obliged to follow the curriculum or take tests.

The EA has a duty to act in the best interests of the child if it appears that the child is not being provided with an efficient full-time education suitable to their age, ability and aptitude and any special educational needs they may have.

The EA can make informal enquiries to check that a suitable education is being provided. If a request is made, parents can demonstrate that a suitable education is being provided by writing a report, providing samples of the child's work, inviting an EA officer to the home, with or without the child being present or meeting an EA officer outside the home, with or without the child being present. If it appears that a child is not receiving a suitable education, the EA has the power to serve a school attendance order.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Education whether he has given consideration to introducing social distancing and mandatory mask wearing on school transport vehicles in order to minimise the risk of spreading the COVID-19 virus. (AQW 8770/17-22)

Mr Weir: The revised New School Day guidance, published on 13 August, provided detailed guidance on the restart of home to school transport including in relation to social distancing and use of face coverings. This guidance took account of the advice of the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Scientific Advisor who both input into the drafting process and were content with the policy position on social distancing and the wearing of face coverings.

Any form of social distancing on home to school transport vehicles would dramatically reduce the available capacity to a fraction of that required. As a result it would not be possible to transport over 80,000 pupils each day and it would be likely that many pupils would be unable to attend school in this scenario. The risks to pupils' mental health, social development and educational outcomes for such pupils would be significant.

The Public Health Agency has recently revised its advice on the mandatory wearing of face coverings on dedicated home to school transport. As a result, ahead of the return of schools I plan to take forward a paper to the Executive on this issue.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, in light of the closures of some schools and children having to self-isolate, (i) what plans he has to provide more IT devices to children to enable them to have access to remote learning; (ii) how these plans will be sufficient to meet the need within a reasonable timeframe; and (iii) on average, how long does a child have to wait for a device. (AQW 8826/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Covid-19 pandemic has brought challenges to society generally and specifically on education as a result of school closures and on those children having to self-isolate. I accept that home schooling has been challenging for pupils and parents and has highlighted the need for access to devices, and adequate bandwidth.

In the event of schools having to close or a child having to self-isolate for a designated period due to COVID-19, parents should, in the first instance, talk directly to their school about provision of education material.

My Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning in the event of a school closure, or if a class or group of pupils have to self-isolate.

A small number of children will be advised by their doctor not to attend school. Where this happens the majority of children would routinely be advised not to attend school even outside the current pandemic period due to the risk of infection. Where a child has been medically advised by a doctor not to attend school their parents should consult with the school Principal and, as required, the Education Authority (EA) regarding their ongoing education provision.

As you are aware the Department has provided a significant number of additional devices to pupils to assist them with learning at home particularly for those pupils who are considered to be most in need of additional support. This is being done in three stages:

- Schools were asked to draw on their existing stock of laptops and many schools have done this where there is scope to do so. Nearly 5000 'school owned' devices have been allocated to pupils and work on this stage is ongoing.
- Three thousand six hundred and sixty four new laptops have been prepared for use. Schools were asked to identify how many new laptops were required by pupils who are in receipt of free school meals and in other vulnerable groups such as children with SEN, newcomers and looked after children. This stage has been completed and all laptops having been allocated.
- The purchase of up to 8,000 additional Chromebook devices with access to broadband for children in vulnerable groups. To date, across stages 2 and 3, approximately 8000 devices have been allocated. Work on this stage is ongoing.

My preference would of course be for pupils to be taught in school where this is possible. Where this is not possible, the arrangements I have put in place will help a significant number of pupils to work from home where it is necessary.

Data is not kept on wait time at a pupil level as the allocation of devices will depend on an assessment of individual circumstances. If a parent or carer wants to make an enquiry they should contact the school in the first instance and ask them to consider their request. Schools can explain the process to parents, including whether their child is eligible under the agreed criteria and support parents to make a request through the EA C2K Exchange.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Education why the Home to School Transport Scheme has not changed to a singular pass that can be used on both trains and buses. (AQW 8929/17-22)

Mr Weir: The current contractual arrangements between EA and Translink for the provision of home to school transport facilitates the issue of either a bus or train ticket for each pupil. To change to a single pass for both modes of transport is likely to have significant resource implications.

It is for the EA to determine the most suitable method of assisting pupils and in doing so they are required to have due regard to efficiency and economy.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what proposals he will bring forward to provide more detail in Education Authority guidance to improve ventilation in classrooms.

Mr Weir: I am aware of the ongoing research into the role of ventilation in controlling the transmission of Covid-19. As with many issues around the response to the pandemic, this is a rapidly evolving topic.

My officials are considering the implications of the latest research and how it should apply in school settings. The current guidance includes advice on ventilation and any changes to this will be based on the research and written in an appropriate manner which can be applied to all schools,

The guidance remains under continuous review and I will issue further or updated direction to schools as required.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) why childcare provided on the grounds of a school have been advised to close while the same service, provided outside of this type of setting, have been allowed to remain open; and (ii) what provision his Department is making to ensure that alternative provision is available for parents affected by this.

Mr Weir: On 14 October, the Executive agreed a range of time-bound interventions to curb the spread of Covid-19 in Northern Ireland. As part of these measures, I had requested that schools close from 19 – 30 October, and re-open on 2nd November.

As the purpose of the school closure was to create a break period during which interaction would be minimised between children, between children and adults, and between adults collecting children, a consistent and equitable approach was deemed appropriate to all children using school premises. Therefore, the requested closure also applies to any pre-school, childcare or youth provider based on school premises.

The decision to allow the use of school premises, where a contract exists with a third party childcare provider, ultimately rests with the governing body of the individual school.

I appreciate the difficulties that this may cause, however, following the Executive's decision, the expectation must be that the parents of all children affected by the closure of schools will identify alternative arrangements for the 2 week period.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education whether he has any plans to bring forward a mental health and wellbeing programme in schools post-COVID-19 to help our young people cope with the anxieties and emotional side effects of uncertainty and long periods off school with the associated social isolation from friends and classmates.

Mr Weir: I appreciate that the Covid-19 crisis has brought an added dimension to the mental health and emotional wellbeing of our school children.

Through the Engage programme, which was launched in September, every primary and post primary school in Northern Ireland has been provided with additional funding (£11.2m in 2020/21) to assist with the provision of one to one, small group or team teaching support to those pupils who stand to benefit the most from additional support following the lockdown period.

Schools have the flexibility and autonomy to decide on the content and structure of programme delivery in accordance with their pupils' needs, therefore some support may focus on the pastoral or wellbeing needs of children. Those schools participating in the Extended Schools programme may also choose to utilise the funding allocated (£9.1m in 2020/21) to provide emotional or mental health support where there is an assessed need.

My Department is also working collaboratively with the Department of Health, the Public Health Agency, the Health and Social Care Board, the Education Authority (EA) and other Government Departments to develop a Framework for Children & Young People's Emotional Health and Wellbeing in Education. This is progressing well and we are working to complete the Framework by December 2020.

Through the Education Restart Wellbeing Project a range of measures are being delivered in direct response to the Covid-19 pandemic to support the wellbeing of staff and pupils including:-

- An EA online portal of resources available to schools with information on supporting learners, leaders and staff.
- A range of information and materials are available on the EA website to support educational settings, young people and parents/carers with emotional health and wellbeing.
- In April 2020, Primary Behaviour Support and Provisions launched the HIGH FIVE fortnightly newsletter as support to schools and pupils. This newsletter used the "Take 5 Steps to WellBeing" framework to promote emotional health and wellbeing. The link to the latest High Five newsletter can be found on the EA webpage: <https://www.eani.org.uk/educational-resources-newsletters>.
- The EA Youth Service have developed an online resource called 'youth online' available at www.youthonline.org.uk where children and young people can access information, advice and support directly from Youth Service staff.
- The Independent Counselling Service for Schools (ICSS) for post primary aged pupils in mainstream Post Primary and Special Schools is available for young people to access through school and self-referral.
- The Education Welfare Service and Education Psychology Service are working directly with all schools to support the wellbeing of young people and access services as required in accordance with presenting need.

Finally, I can advise that the £5m Education Restart Wellbeing Project funding has been approved and will be allocated directly to schools very soon. By receiving their own allocation, schools will benefit from having the flexibility to use the money to provide health and wellbeing support for their pupils and/or staff.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether registered childcare can open on school grounds.

Mr Weir: On 14 October, the Executive agreed a range of time-bound interventions to curb the spread of Covid-19 in Northern Ireland. As part of these measures, I had requested that schools close from 19 – 30 October, and re-open on 2nd November.

As the purpose of the school closure was to create a break period during which interaction would be minimised between children, between children and adults, and between adults collecting children, a consistent and equitable approach was deemed appropriate to all children using school premises. Therefore, the requested closure also applies to any pre-school, childcare or youth provider based on school premises.

The decision to allow the use of school premises, where a contract exists with a third party childcare provider, ultimately rests with the governing body of the individual school.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what steps he is taking to ensure that classroom assistants, paid for term time hours only, are not adversely impacted financially further to the unscheduled extension of the half term break.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority, as employing authority for classroom assistants has confirmed that all school based non-teaching staff will be paid as normal for week commencing 19th October 2020. This includes staff on term time contracts.

Normal school holiday arrangements will apply for the planned Halloween Break. Annual leave arrangements already in place will be honoured and timesheets are to be submitted in the normal manner to reflect the Halloween break.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Education how many primary school places are filled in Bangor; and how many surplus places are currently available.

Mr Weir: The information requested is not available at this time. The Department is currently in the process of collecting and verifying School Census information. Finalised figures will be available in February 2021.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education what further financial support is available to schools that have teaching staff who are deemed clinically vulnerable and are advised not to be present in school settings currently.

Mr Weir: I can confirm that a fund for teacher substitution costs, to support existing staff absences specifically as a result of Covid-19, is being centrally managed by the Education Authority, and will be allocated to schools based on verified costs.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of pupils who (i) sat the transfer test; and (ii) did not sit the transfer test, in the academic years 2017, 2018 and 2019.

Mr Weir: My Department does not hold any information in relation to the number of pupils who sit the transfer tests and has no role in their organisation or operation. I can advise that the total number of pupils (excluding statemented children) who transferred to post primary school in the academic years 2017-2019 is set out below.

Year	2017	2018	2019

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for an update on the former Strabane Grammar School site on Liskey Road, Strabane.
(AQW 9290/17-22)

Mr Weir: The former Strabane Academy property at Liskey Road, Strabane has been vacated since January 2020 and, regrettably, during this period has been subject to ongoing anti-social behaviour and vandalism.

The EA has approved the demolition of all existing buildings on the site, except the original Milltown House and Lodge, and this work is expected to progress in the coming months. Until this time, temporary security cover is being provided on the site.

The EA is currently considering the potential for alternative educational uses on the site. If no alternative educational use is identified, the EA will seek to declare the asset (or relevant part thereof) surplus to educational requirements and progress disposal in line with public sector disposal guidance. This could be for the entire site or specific surplus areas.

The has advised that the local council has been informed of the EA's intentions should no alternative educational uses for the site be identified

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he is working with the Minister for Communities to ensure that children who now qualify for Free School Meals and wi-fi vouchers, given recent redundancies are made eligible within the system as a matter of urgency.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) continues to process applications and as of 27 October, 55,749 families and 100,714 children are entitled to Free School Meals. The EA continues to receive around 50-80 applications per day and are following up directly with those parents for whom they still await income verification documents.

The EA has engaged in an exercise to identify those that require verification documentation from Jobs & Benefits offices and HMRC so that they can target them specifically to their application. Follow up telephone calls are being made daily to parents to assist with their applications. Positive discussions with Department for Communities are also ongoing to explore if benefit verification can be completed directly.

In terms of connectivity, my Department is conscious that internet access remains an issue for many of our children and young people. I announced plans at the beginning of July to provide a range of solutions to help address connectivity problems for pupils facing this difficulty including those in a rural setting. This includes: Supporting the provision of an initial quantity of up to 2,500 Mi-Fi devices which is a mobile connectivity solution to support those children who are not within a BT Wi-Fi hotspot; and providing 8,300 Wi-Fi vouchers for disadvantaged children with up to eight months internet access.

The scheme gives priority to children currently in year groups 11, 13, 6 and 3 in that order; and within the following categories: children in receipt of free school meals and one or more of the following: Special Educational Needs, Newcomer target groups, Looked after Children and children who are considered vulnerable.

I continue to work with all Government Ministers including the Minister for Communities on issues that encompass our respective Departments' areas of work. Please be assured that every effort is being made within my Department to ensure that these benefits are made to those that qualify as quickly as possible.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education how many pupils have been absent under code P or code 8 since the 24 August 2020.

Mr Weir: Attendance is reported by schools in half day sessions therefore the number of pupils absent under code P or code 8 is not available. These codes continue to be used for their original purpose and therefore are not solely specific to COVID-19.

For the week commencing 12 October code P and code 8 were 2.4% and 5.6% respectively of total possible attendance. The proportion of half day absences for each of these codes in the previous academic year 2019/20 was less than 0.1% of total possible attendance.

If a pupil is absent due to self-isolation in line with PHA advice or for social distancing reasons by the school and they continue to work remotely, then they will be coded as Code 8/P, which in both cases is an Approved Educational Activity and will not adversely impact their attendance. If a pupil fails to engage in remote learning during the period of self-isolation then they will be marked as an unauthorised absence, as set out in DE Circular 2020/08.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education, in regard to the two week Halloween closure, where a school had borrowed optional days to make up the normal 5 day closure, whether that school can now instead deploy exceptional closure days and thereby retain access to the optional days at a future date.

Mr Weir: For the 2020/21 academic year, schools have been given nine optional days. This represents a one off increase of four days beyond the normal allocation and has been implemented to assist with the challenges faced during the current pandemic.

In respect of the Halloween closure, schools have been advised on 14 October, with further clarification on 15 October, to continue to take any half term holidays planned during this period. The period of additional closure should be recorded as two of the Optional days already mentioned with the remainder recorded as Exceptional Closure days. Schools are required to revisit their school calendar to reflect this decision and resubmit it to the Education Authority.

Schools have also been advised that there is no requirement to recoup these Exceptional Closure days as teaching days later in the 2020/21 academic year. With this in mind and in order to reduce the impact on teaching days, we cannot permit the deployment of additional Exceptional Closure days as a replacement for the two Optional days referred to above.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education whether he intends to roll over existing school transport contracts until the end of the academic year.

Mr Weir: In preparation for the restart of schools in September, home to school transport contracts were agreed by the Education Authority during July and August for the full academic year. Where appropriate, other school transport contracts have been extended to the end of the academic year.

Department of Finance

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance whether he plans to change building regulations to mandate that new buildings are carbon neutral.

(AQW 8520/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): I am committed to making the fastest possible progress towards carbon neutral buildings. My officials are considering the position of other administrations in these islands and will review the outcome of consultations, such as England's Future Homes consultation and Wales' similar review, to ensure that, in turn, effective proposals are brought forward here to reduce carbon emissions from new buildings.

In the meantime, my officials are in active discussion with our local Building Regulations Advisory Committee (NIBRAC) and with other departments on these matters.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance what percentage of the total amount of COVID-19 relief payments from his Department were designed for (i) businesses; and (ii) individuals.

Mr Murphy: My department makes payments under the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. This scheme supports businesses occupying premises that have been required to close or severely curtail their activities by the Health Protection regulations. I have asked my Executive colleagues to bring forward proposals to support individuals who are subject to the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but who do not occupy business premises.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance what discussions they have had with (i) Executive colleagues; and (ii) others regarding freeport status for Northern Ireland ports.

Mr Murphy: The policy on Freeports is being developed by the Treasury. Following consideration of the Treasury's position with Executive colleagues in August, I wrote to the Chief Secretary to the Treasury to call for substantive engagement so that the Executive can assess the potential of Freeports locally.

My department, in conjunction with relevant Executive departments, has been engaging with the Treasury, however limited detail has been shared at this point. My officials continue to press for that to understand fully the implications for our economy and any potential role the Executive might have in creating Freeports. Officials have also been engaging with local stakeholders on this issue to ensure their views are heard and considered as the policy is developed. This will continue going forward.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance to detail (i) the number of Northern Ireland Civil Service buildings in each constituency; and (ii) the existing available desk space in each one.

Mr Murphy:

- (i) The number of Northern Ireland Civil Service buildings in each constituency provided by my Department; and
- (ii) the existing available desk space in each one is detailed in the table below.

'Desk space' has been taken to be equivalent to a desk, chair and data point. Departments will hold further information relevant to their own specialist estates.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance what mechanisms are in place to ensure that businesses that pay their rates via their landlord have access to grant support available as a result of COVID-19 public health restrictions.

Mr Murphy: As you are aware, Land & Property Services (LPS) administered the Small Business Grant Support Scheme and has just commenced administration of the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

LPS has put in place mechanisms to ensure that grants are paid to the intended recipient, the occupier of the premises.

For the Small Business Grant Support Scheme, a dedicated portal was developed for use by occupiers of premises with a Net Annual Value for which liability for the rates rested under legislation with the landlord. The occupier was able to use this portal to make an application and provide proof of occupation.

For all other non-domestic accounts, where the occupier was liable for rates, but was set up in the name of the landlord, LPS manually checked each application to determine if it was the occupier who made the application for a grant, did investigations to determine the business operating from the property or asked for proof of occupation before paying a grant.

It is recognised that at the beginning of this scheme when grants were automatically issued to those who paid their rates through direct debit, a small number of owners instead of occupiers were paid. However, when the occupier made an application for a grant these were paid once the necessary investigations were done and proof of occupation supplied. LPS is currently working to recoup all grants paid in error to property owners.

I must point out that under the terms of the Small Business Support Grant Scheme, businesses which rented a space within a property, did not occupy a property which is a distinct property (hereditament) on the Valuation List and are not in receipt of Small Business Rate Relief did not qualify for a grant.

Under the terms of the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme, all business which have been required to close, or have had business activities at their premises directly curtailed by the Covid-19 health protection restrictions that have been put in place, are eligible for grant support. This includes those business which rent space in a property.

LPS has designed a portal for applications to this new Scheme which is hosted on the nibusinessinfo website. The information given about the Scheme explains eligibility and clearly states that landlords and managing agents must not complete the application on behalf of a tenant business which occupies their property.

LPS will scrutinise and investigate the information on each application to ensure it is the occupier of the premises who receives the grant. The nature of the business affected by the restrictions means LPS can cross reference with District Council information on Food Hygiene Certificates and operating licenses.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 7863/17-22, to outline the rationale for approving the conversion of the £25 million of Financial Transactions Capital loan requested by Ulster University to a grant; and to explain the process by which part of a request for a loan became a request for a grant.

Mr Murphy: A £25 million conventional capital grant allocation was allocated to the Department for the Economy as part of the June Monitoring round.

The Department for the Economy made a bid to provide support to the project due to the impact of Covid-19 crisis on the university's income, with likely reductions in international tuition fee income, residential income, conferencing income and research income plus the potential risk on the progression of construction due to impact on workforce availability and supply chain issues that were outside the University's ability to control.

Due to the crisis facing all sectors during this unprecedented time, the Executive made a decision to support the Higher Education institute on this basis. The successful completion of the Belfast Campus should help UU deliver the expansion of the Magee campus.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance how continuing to contract employment agencies in the Civil Service satisfies the spirit of the workers' rights pledge within New Decade, New Approach.

Mr Murphy: Like many organisations, the Civil Service uses agency workers to carry out work which for various reasons cannot be completed by permanent staff. This includes using agency workers to cover periods of absence or to support time limited projects or contractual work.

While there is likely to always be a requirement to have temporary colleagues, the civil service is committed to changing the pattern of current usage by engaging agency workers for short term or temporary assignments only and recruiting to permanent posts instead of using agency staff, where possible.

The vast majority of agency workers are undertaking Administrative Officer (AO) roles and consequently we launched an open recruitment exercise to fill a range of AO posts on a permanent basis. This gave anyone, including those agency workers currently engaged in the Civil Service the chance to apply for a permanent position. We are finalising preparations to appoint successful candidates from the recruitment campaign and anticipate around 500 offers of permanent employment will be made in the coming weeks, with the facility to make further offers depending on the needs of departments.

A replacement agency workers contract is currently being tendered and this new contract will entitle agency workers to parity with permanent Civil Service colleagues in terms of pay, annual leave and paid time off for medical/dental appointments from day one of their assignment. The replacement contract will also use the Buy Social initiative to include a number of social clauses.

The recruitment of permanent staff and enhanced arrangements in the replacement agency workers contract is in line with the commitment to Workers' Rights within New Decade, New Approach.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether public sector reforms outlined in the Fresh Start Agreement and New Decade, New Approach have resulted in permanent public sector staff being replaced with agency workers.
(AQW 8892/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As part of the Stormont House Agreement, the Public Sector Transformation Fund was put in place to support Voluntary Exit Schemes in departments and their ALBs, over the period from 2015/16 to 2018/19. As part of annual evaluations completed of the first three PSTF years, schemes reported exiting 6,062 full time equivalent (FTE) staff. As part of the evaluation process, schemes were also required to report on how many staff that left under VES were replaced to maintain business continuity. In total, the schemes reported replacing 323 FTE staff for business continuity. The reported replacements included direct recruits, temporary as well as agency staff.

The reviews of Civil Service Reform included in New Decade New Approach have not resulted in permanent staff being replaced by agency workers.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance whether he will broaden the criteria of support provided under his new financial support scheme for businesses subject to restrictions to include gyms, who have seen their income impacted as a result of being prohibited from holding classes.

(AQW 8898/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The criteria of the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme are broad to encompass all businesses in premises that are restricted by the Health Regulations. The Scheme across all council areas opened to applications on 19 October. It seeks to provide financial assistance for all businesses that are directly affected by the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. This will work in an identical way to the initial scheme brought forward for the Derry City and Strabane District Council Area, by providing financial support to those businesses using commercial premises which are required by the Health Regulations to severely limit their operations or close.

I would encourage any business that has been required to close or severely limit their operations by the Regulations to apply for this assistance. Further details on this Scheme, including eligibility requirements and details on how to apply are available at: <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance to detail the restrictions on gyms; and whether those who rely solely on income from exercise classes can avail of the financial support scheme for businesses forced to close.

Mr Murphy: Details of restrictions to individual businesses introduced as a result of the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 are the responsibility of the Department of Health.

As I advised Justin McNulty MLA in my answer to AQW 8898/17-22, the scheme which I have introduced to support businesses is application based. I encourage any business that has been required to close or severely limit their operations by the Regulations to apply for this assistance.

Further details on this Scheme, including eligibility requirements and details on how to apply are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail the status of discussions with HM Treasury concerning granting of borrowing powers to the Executive for revenue expenditure.

(AQW 8948/17-22)

Mr Murphy: At this stage my focus, along with the Scottish and Welsh Finance Ministers, is to press Treasury for further flexibilities to allow the Executive to manage within the overall budget envelope provided to us – these include the ability to transfer Capital to Resource should the need arise as well as increased flexibility to carry forward unspent funding.

I am however in favour a comprehensive examination of the Executive's fiscal powers, as has been conducted in Scotland and Wales.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance what support will be put in place to support new employees who have missed out on going onto furlough after the latest COVID-19 restrictions.

Mr Murphy: I wrote to the Chancellor earlier this month to urge him to bring forward the starting date of the expanded Job Support Scheme (JSS), now called JSS Closed, to 16 October. This would have allowed those firms who have been forced to close to use it to protect the jobs and livelihoods of their employees.

I am very disappointed that he did not heed that call, and that wage support for those new employees not eligible under the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme will not be available until the JSS Closed begins on 1 November.

More broadly, the Executive will continue to do all that it can to support businesses and the jobs they provide. My Department has put a Localised Restrictions Support Scheme in place for businesses which are subject to the latest restrictions and I have also encouraged my Executive colleagues to urgently bring forward proposals for sectors they have responsibility for.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance, in relation to the latest COVID-19 restrictions, whether he will ensure there is sufficient financial support for our pubs and breweries.

Mr Murphy: In response to the restrictions announced by the Executive on 14 October, I brought forward the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme to provide financial support to pubs and all other businesses using commercial premises, which are required by the Health Protection Regulations to close or severely limit their operations. I would encourage any such business to apply for this assistance. Further details on this Scheme, including eligibility requirements and details on how to apply are available at: <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>.

In response to my request for immediate financial support to be brought forward for those businesses, such as those in the supply chain, which fall outside the scope of my Department's Scheme, the Department for the Economy has brought forward the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to help businesses restricted or significantly affected by the Executive restrictions, details of which are available at: <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/coronavirus-covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-announced>

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Finance how many people have died from (i) cancer; (ii) stroke; (iii) heart problems; (iv) dementia; (v) suicide; and (vi) COVID-19, in each of the last 6 months.

Mr Murphy: The Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) publish provisional quarterly cause of death statistics based on death registrations; these are currently available up to 30th June 2020 at <https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-quarterly-tables-2020>. The table below provides monthly disaggregation of the published data, using the International Classification of Diseases (ICD10) codes for cancer (C00 to C097), stroke (I60 to I69), suicide (X60 to X84, Y10 to Y34, Y87.0 and Y87.2) and Covid-19 (U07). Your request for deaths due to 'heart problems' has been interpreted as Ischaemic Heart Disease (I20 to I25) and for 'dementia' as Dementia/Alzheimer's Disease (F01, F03 and G30).

Please note that there are some situations where the registration of the death can be delayed, specifically where the death has been accidental, unexpected or suspicious, and must be referred to the Coroner. A death which is suspected to be suicide must therefore be referred to the Coroner and can only be registered after the Coroner has completed his or her investigation. The time taken to carry out this investigation can result in a delay in registration and thus such deaths may not appear in published statistics until at least six months after the death occurred. Suicides registered during the months in question will therefore not be reflective of suicides which occurred during the lockdown period.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Finance for a breakdown of the age profile of people who have died from COVID-19.

Mr Murphy: NISRA publishes weekly data on registrations of death. The information requested is available on the NISRA website <https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/weekly-deaths>. The table entitled 'Covid-19 related deaths registered each week in Northern Ireland, age by sex, 2020' will provide this information.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance whether businesses who are subject to significant restriction but not full closure under the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No. 2) (Amendment No. 9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 will be eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

Mr Murphy: The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme across all council areas opened to applications on 19 October. It provides financial assistance for businesses that are directly affected by the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) (Amendment No. 9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 that came into effect on 16 October, subsequently amended by Amendment No. 10 on 18 October. This scheme will work in an identical way to the initial scheme brought forward for the Derry City and Strabane District Council Area, by seeking to provide financial support to those businesses using commercial premises which are required by the Health Regulations to severely limit their operations or close.

Further details on this Scheme, including eligibility requirements are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the Belfast Region City Deal.

(AQW 9039/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Belfast Region City Deal is finalising a number of Outline Business Cases in preparation for signing Deal Documents. Local partners and departments continue to work closely together in order to achieve this.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance whether he plans to introduce the same scheme as in England and Wales that if you are self-isolating as a result of NHS track and trace and are on a low income you may be entitled to £500 support.

Mr Murphy: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Public Health Agency.

There is no limit on the number of Discretionary Support COVID19 awards a person may receive as long as they meet the eligibility criteria. The amount payable is based on each applicant's individual circumstances and will include a specific amount for all dependent children in the household.

As we continue to respond to the impacts of the pandemic I will keep this under review.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he intends to expand the number of agency workers in the NI Civil Service in the lifetime of this Executive.

Mr Murphy: There is no intention to expand the number of agency workers in the NICS in the lifetime of this Executive.

Like many organisations, the Civil Service uses agency workers to carry out work which for various reasons cannot be completed by substantive colleagues. While there is likely to always be a requirement to have temporary colleagues, the Civil Service is committed to changing the pattern of current usage by engaging agency workers for short term or temporary assignments only and recruiting to permanent posts instead of using agency staff, where possible.

The vast majority of agency workers are undertaking Administrative Officer (AO) roles and consequently we launched an open recruitment exercise in December 2020 to fill a range of AO posts on a permanent basis. This gave anyone, including those agency workers currently engaged in the Civil Service, the chance to apply for a permanent position. We anticipate around 500 offers of permanent employment will be made in the coming weeks, with the facility to make further offers depending on the need of departments.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether agency workers in the Civil Service will be made permanent, direct employees of the Civil Service in the lifetime of this Executive.

Mr Murphy: Agency workers in the Civil Service can only be made permanent, direct employees of the Civil Service if they are successfully appointed as candidates through open recruitment.

While there is likely to always be a requirement for agency workers, the Civil Service is committed to changing the pattern of current usage by engaging agency workers for short term or temporary assignments only and recruiting to permanent posts instead of using agency staff, where possible.

The vast majority of agency workers are undertaking Administrative Officer (AO) roles. An open recruitment exercise to fill a range of AO posts on a permanent basis launched in December 2019. This gave anyone, including those agency workers currently working in the NICS, the chance to apply for a permanent position. We anticipate around 500 offers of permanent employment will be made in the coming weeks, with the facility to make further offers depending on the needs of departments.

A replacement agency workers contract is currently being tendered and this new contract will entitle agency workers to parity with permanent Civil Service colleagues in terms of pay, annual leave and paid time off for medical/dental appointments from day one of their assignment.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance to detail the preparatory work he and his departmental officials have been doing, in partnership with the Department for Communities, to ensure the necessary funding is made available to fund the Casement Park project; and when this funding will be available for the project.

Mr Murphy: The Department for Communities is currently working with UCGAA to update the business case following an informal review by DoF officials and also to reflect last week's positive planning decision.

The funding requirements will then be considered as part of the forthcoming budget process. As a flagship project and a commitment under NDNA this project will be prioritised.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Finance, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in his Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

Mr Murphy: In line with Executive guidance, the Department of Finance is making every effort to help people work from home where they can. Where work cannot be done at home, the Department is taking clear, practical steps to help protect workers and create safe places to work.

My department has a number of roles that cannot be carried out remotely. These will continue to be carried out in office locations that have been risk assessed and are safe for staff to work in.

Colleagues who, because of their personal circumstances (e.g. medical, personal or welfare reasons) feel they are better off being in work can discuss and agree potential arrangements with their line manager, including an appropriate safe office location they can work in.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance what process or mechanism exists within his Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals.

Mr Murphy: The Department has systems and processes in place to maintain the record keeping requirements of the Ministerial and Special Adviser codes of conduct. All written communication received by the Ministerial Private Office is recorded in the Knowledge Network (KN) System.

Officials are present at all meetings concerning departmental or executive business and records of those meetings are recorded and stored on the NICS record management system, HPRM.

In accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial and Special Adviser Codes of Conduct, where the Minister or Special Adviser meets external organisations or individuals and finds themselves discussing official business without an official present they are required to advise the Private Office.

The Executive is committed to publishing details of Ministers' and Special Advisers' meetings with external organisations/ individuals on a quarterly basis, including the above meetings. Unfortunately, Covid-19 pressures have delayed publication but details for the period January to September will be published shortly.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail the Barnett consequentials arising from the Chancellor's announcement on 22 October 2020.

Mr Murphy: On 9 October, the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced an extension of the Treasury Guarantee. This guarantee is designed to provide upfront COVID-19 funding, avoiding the drip-feed of Barnett consequentials following announcements of English programmes, thereby assisting the Executive to plan appropriately.

The Chancellor's announcement included an additional £200 million, bringing the total Guarantee for the Executive to £2.4 billion.

Any Barnett Consequentials arising from the subsequent announcement on 22 October announcement will be included in the additional £200 million announced on 9 October.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance whether the revised Job Support scheme, announced by the Chancellor, includes Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9354/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Yes.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Finance, when he refers to the newspaper sector, whether he is also including regularly published magazines.

(AQW 9386/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My references to the newspaper sector refers to local newspapers.

Department of Health

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health what plans the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust has to enter into an agreement to facilitate the continuation of Billy Caldwell's cannabis medication.

(AQW 6550/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): My Department is not involved in the direct care or treatment of patients and as such I am unable to discuss the treatment being provided to any individual patient or indeed intervene in any way with regard to the clinical decision-making process for that patient. Such matters are for the clinical team responsible for their care.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Health what COVID-19 prevention protocols and rules were in place for (i) outpatients attending appointments; and (ii) visitors to Craigavon Hospital, up to the 4 September 2020.

Mr Swann: Outpatients are advised that they must wear a face mask for their appointment and that they should wait in their car until they receive a call to advise them that their clinician is available to see them. They are told to attend alone, except in circumstances that require the patient to be accompanied, such as child or a person with a disability who requires assistance.

From 27 March 2020 all visiting to Craigavon Area Hospital was suspended, with a number of exceptions in respect of paediatric, maternity, neonatology, critical care and palliative care services. From 6 July patients were allowed to have one visitor per hour per day. Staggered visiting was introduced to different wards from 17 August 2020 to avoid large numbers of visitors to the hospital at one time, with visits to the maternity, intensive care unit and haematology wards by appointment only. The following rules were in place for visitors from 6 July 2020 until 1 September 2020, when visiting was again suspended at Craigavon Area Hospital:

- Do not visit if you have any symptoms of COVID-19 or are feeling unwell.
- Only visit if you are one of two people nominated by patient/next of kin.
- Only one visitor permitted at a time, for a maximum of one hour.
- Visitors are to bring their own face covering to wear at all times, and are reminded to use the hand sanitiser provided when entering and leaving the hospital and the ward/department.
- Children under 16 not permitted, unless there are exceptional circumstances.
- Permitted visitors to end of life patients are required to wear appropriate PPE, which will be provided by the Trust.

Throughout this time, virtual visiting has been promoted as the preferred way of visiting and a virtual visiting service pilot has been running to support patients who do not have their own technology.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health to detail the average waiting time for a COVID-19 test in each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 6617/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing for Covid-19 in Northern Ireland is delivered via two routes. Firstly, the Health and Social Care (HSC) laboratories and the NI Scientific Advisory Consortium, (Pillar 1). Secondly, the National Testing Programme (NTP) managed by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) in London (Pillar 2).

HSC Trusts have indicated that routine tests for patients and tests for symptomatic HSC staff, and for symptomatic family members causing staff to isolate, conducted through Pillar 1 are usually undertaken within 24 Hours (excluding if requested on a Sunday when it will ordinarily be undertaken the next day).

Testing under Pillar 2 is managed through DHSC London and booked using the online portal or by calling 119. DHSC has advised that data on how long on average it takes a person to secure a test, from their first attempt until they are successful, is not captured. Once a test subject is successful in obtaining a test slot, tests are available on the same day as booking or the following day depending on what time the person accesses the booking system.

The National Testing Programme is currently experiencing an exceptionally high demand due to a number of factors such as the return of schools. Anyone who tries to book a test and is unable to do so, or who is offered a location or time which is not convenient, are encouraged to please wait a few hours and then try again.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health (i) whether he has received a response from the Minister for the Economy following his request that she establishes a business support programme specifically for private dental practices; and (ii) for an update on discussions that have taken place.

Mr Swann: The Minister for the Economy replied to the most recent letter on this matter on 30 September 2020, indicating her view that the Department of Health take the scheme forward. On recent advice from the Departmental Solicitor's Office, it has been confirmed that my Department does not have the legal power to provide financial support to private dental activity, which is set apart in legislation to General Dental Services. No further correspondence has taken place.

The Department of Health continues however to provide financial support to General Dental Services and has very recently made available a further £5m to the additional £8.7m that had already been provided, in light of the ongoing challenges facing the sector. The position is under regular review alongside ongoing engagement with the British Dental Association.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what steps are being taken to prevent delays in COVID-19 test results being returned, particularly for key workers.

Mr Swann: Testing for Covid-19 in Northern Ireland is delivered via two routes. Firstly, the Health and Social Care laboratories and the NI Scientific Advisory Consortium (Pillar 1). Secondly, the National Testing Programme managed by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) in London (Pillar 2).

Testing for Health Care Workers who are symptomatic, or self-isolating as a household member is symptomatic, is ordinarily undertaken through Pillar 1 with results usually available within 24 hours.

Testing for other key workers is ordinarily undertaken through the National Testing Programme managed by DHSC. DHSC has established a specific late results team to investigate outstanding test results. This is accessible via the 119 service.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on plans to map out all defibrillators.

Mr Swann: The Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) connected to the National Defibrillator Network (known as "The Circuit") in February 2020. They have been working to contact the guardians/owners of all the publicly accessible defibrillators known to NIAS with instructions on how to finalise registration on the database. This work has been impacted by COVID-19, with a significant drop in the number of replies received, and by the necessity to temporarily redeploy members of the Community Resuscitation Team on COVID-related duties.

The Community Resuscitation Team have recently recommenced this work. Recertification of the defibrillators will then fully integrate them with the database and with NIAS' live control system, providing an accurate reflection of all the AEDs available across Northern Ireland.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether he will consider developing a specialist Teenage and Young Adult palliative care unit.

Mr Swann: Due to the varied and often complex needs of teenagers and young adults who require palliative care, multidisciplinary teams provide individualised and flexible packages of support to ensure that services are responsive to these needs. This involves providing the appropriate specialist nursing and social work support when teenagers are too old to be cared for in paediatric settings, rather than focusing on the development of a specific unit. Each individual will have a key worker who will plan and co-ordinate services for palliative care and support, and ensure continuity of care for them and their family.

This development of these services is aligned to the recommendations of the Children's Palliative and End of Life Care Strategy 2016-26, and is overseen by the Paediatric Palliative Care Network. A Regional Paediatric Palliative Care Consultant has recently been appointed, supported by Paediatric Palliative Care Clinical Leads within each Trust to provide dedicated and visible local leadership.

My Department is also developing a 10 year Cancer Strategy for Northern Ireland. A dedicated sub-group is considering the specific needs of children and young people and will make recommendations to be incorporated into the final strategy, including in relation to service models for palliative care, transition to adult care settings, and physical infrastructure. However, progressing the strategy has unfortunately been impacted by COVID-19 and publication is likely to be delayed until 2021.

In addition, children and young people with life limiting conditions and palliative care needs are able to access short breaks in the Northern Ireland Children's Hospice, which provides 24/7 care with access to medical support, or through the regional hospice at home service.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether he is developing bespoke guidance for those who received COVID-19 shielding letters and how they should access elective care.

Mr Swann: My Department is working with primary and secondary care providers to ensure that any patients who fall within COVID-19 shielding categories are in receipt of clear advice about the infection prevention and control measures they should follow if they need to access care in a hospital setting.

Those that were previously advised to shield will continue to receive care as appropriate, either remotely or in hospital and primary care settings. Clinicians will ensure that any risks to patients are minimised by the stringent use of infection and prevention control measures. These will be continually reviewed throughout the course of the current pandemic and modified as required.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health what steps have been taken to involve local community-based mental health and suicide prevention groups in the process of formulating the new mental health strategy.

Mr Swann: A virtual stake holder event to kick-start the process of formulating the new strategy took place on 5 October and included a large number of people from different settings with different experiences.

The work to develop the Strategy will be supported by a Strategic Advisory Panel which consists of people who can provide expert advice, including professionals, academics, community and voluntary sector and people with lived experience.

My officials are also in the process of creating a reference group where anyone who wants to participate, can. Due to the current restrictions on meetings, it is expected that this group will operate virtually, mostly through emails. Community based mental health groups and suicide prevention groups are actively encouraged to participate in this work.

The mental health strategy will not directly focus on suicide prevention, as this is provided through the Protect Life 2 Strategy. As there are clear links between suicide prevention and mental health, the strategy will reflect such links.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health whether regular COVID-19 testing will be implemented for domiciliary care staff who are providing care to elderly members of the community on a daily basis in their homes.
(AQW 7496/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current policy is that all Health and Social Care Workers who are symptomatic, or isolating as a household member is symptomatic, are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes community based domiciliary care providers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme.

Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate by that risk assessment.

The priority groups eligible for testing are kept under constant review by my Department's Expert Advisory Group for Testing and are updated regularly in line with emerging scientific and medical evidence. The position with regard to the appropriate frequency for testing of domiciliary care workers is kept under active review by the Expert Group.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether he will consider making injectable vitamin B12 available over the counter from pharmacies, in light of challenges presented to receiving these services as result of COVID-19.

Mr Swann: There are no plans to provide vitamin B12 injections to patients over the counter from pharmacies.

Any patient who is on regular vitamin B12 injections and who has recently experienced a delay in receiving their injection due to Covid-19, is advised to contact their GP practice directly to discuss when they can receive their injection, or to check if it would be appropriate for them to be offered an alternative treatment in line with the current best practice guidance produced by the British Society for Haematology.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health what action he is taking to address cancer treatment delays and ensure a safe resumption and continuance of services.

Mr Swann: The Strategic Framework for Rebuilding Health and Social Care (HSC) Services which I published in June identified cancer as a key priority, recognising the adverse impact of COVID-19 on referral and treatment waiting times. Under this Framework each Trust has produced plans to reset cancer services as quickly as possible in an environment which is safe for both staff and patients. However, this remains extremely challenging as we face a further peak in community transmission of COVID-19, due to the need for our health service to respond to the current surge in hospital admissions.

The Framework and associated Trust plans are available at: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/rebuilding-hsc-services>.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether he has plans to bring forward a revised Test, Trace and Protect plan to enhance the testing and tracing capacity and provide enhanced support for people self isolating, including monitoring arrangements.

Mr Swann: My Department continually reviews testing capacity to ensure that all aspects of our testing programme are optimised. This has resulted in an increase in the overall availability of testing to meet a recent marked increase in demand.

There continues to be a substantial increase in the number of positive test results notified to the Contact Tracing Service (CTS) system. The service delivery model and staffing resource requirements are continually kept under review with recruitment actively ongoing to appoint staff to work as contact tracers from a variety of professional backgrounds including Locum GPs and dentists. The service operates 12 hours per day, 7 days per week.

The Public Health Agency's tracing 'digital first' model was launched on Friday 09 October 2020. The new service provides online self-service contact tracing for the majority of people who test positive.

This follows on from the introduction of the StopCOVID NI app in July 2020 and the recent move to text alerts for close contacts of positive cases. It is important to note that the new Digital Self-Trace service works with and complements existing services (text messaging and the StopCOVID NI app) and doesn't in any way replace these.

The Executive has put in place a number of measures to provide support for people who are required to self-isolate. This includes for example the Freephone COVID-19 Community Helpline funded by the Department for Communities which connects people into a wide range of support, information and advice available through a range of statutory, regional and local organisations.

Also, people who cannot work while self-isolating because of COVID-19 may be entitled to Statutory Sick Pay for every day they are in isolation.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health whether he will consider increasing the upper age limit for eligibility for IVF treatment.
(AQW 7648/17-22)

Mr Swann: I appreciate that the delay in accessing fertility treatment due to the COVID-19 pandemic may have caused distress to those currently awaiting treatment. In order to mitigate this, the eligibility for anyone currently on the waiting list has already been extended by a year.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Health how COVID-19 has impacted disabled people.

Mr Swann: COVID-19 has had an adverse impact on people with disabilities due to the higher prevalence of certain underlying conditions within this population. Restrictions and shielding have proved challenging for this group, with the reduction of daycare facilities, short breaks, face-to-face appointments with clinicians and therapists, and in some cases service users choosing to pause domiciliary care packages.

Blind and partially sighted people have faced challenges around shopping, social distancing and keeping connected with others. Deaf and hearing impaired people have experienced challenges with face masks affecting their ability to lip-read; however there has been a recent allocation of 8,640 clear masks to Northern Ireland as part of the UK Make Strategy Pilot. If this pilot is successful, further orders will follow and NI will benefit in line with the Barnett formula.

During the course of the pandemic, my Department has proactively engaged with people with disabilities, their families, carers, and the sector to put in place measures to mitigate the impacts of restrictions on this group.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health when each Health and Social Care Trust will resume provision of pre-COVID-19 levels of respite and day care provision for adults with learning disabilities.

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) are coordinating the development of operational recovery plans across disability services to restart services in a regionally consistent and phased manner. Timescales within this phased restart are guided by the need to ensure the safety of service users, carers and staff and this means that services are currently not able to operate in the same way or to the same capacity as pre-COVID levels. Local issues such as the limitations of current estate and transport services are also having an impact on the rebuilding of services, as are staff absences.

I am very aware of the effects the response to the first wave of COVID has had on those with caring responsibilities and I am concerned that carers will find it hard to manage with fewer supports and increased caring demands.

Trusts are working hard to build capacity in services and find innovative solutions to meet the needs of individuals. My officials are continuing to monitor the progress Trusts are making closely. In addition, Trust keyworkers remain in contact with service users and carers in order to assess and prioritise requests for support and services and there is also engagement with Community and Voluntary sector partners to explore the potential for extending or expanding existing provision.

Service users, families and carers have been contacted by Trusts to support ongoing dialogue and make them aware that, although some services are restricted, the HSC remains 'open for business' and there are staff available to offer support and advice.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health what impact the delay in the roll out of day care is having on carers of adults with learning disabilities.

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) are coordinating the development of operational recovery plans across disability services to restart services in a regionally consistent and phased manner. Timescales within this phased restart are guided by the need to ensure the safety of service users, carers and staff and this means that services are currently not able to operate in the same way or to the same capacity as pre-COVID levels. Mr Allen asked the Minister of Health to detail the capacity of the COVID-19 test and trace programme; and whether he has the resources required to deal with an increase in the scale of work of the test and trace programme.
(AQW 7923/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department continually reviews testing capacity to ensure that all aspects of our testing programme are optimised. This has resulted in an increase in the overall availability of testing to meet a recent marked increase in demand.

There continues to be a substantial increase in the number of positive test results notified to the Contact Tracing Service (CTS) system. The service delivery model and staffing resource requirements are continually kept under review with recruitment actively ongoing to appoint additional staff to work as contact tracers. The service currently operates 12 hours per day, 7 days per week.

Digital innovation has been at the heart of this work since the outset. The new Digital Self-Trace service, launched on 9 October, builds on and complements existing services, including the StopCOVID NI app and the text messaging service. All of these digital enabled solutions augment the manual contact tracing system and help to improve the efficiency of the overall service.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Health what work his Department is undertaking to understand any long-term effects of COVID-19 on those who have been infected.

Mr Swann: There is accumulating evidence to suggest that cases of COVID-19 who have had both mild and severe symptoms can experience long-term health effects. National and international research to evaluate the long-term health and psychosocial effects of COVID-19 in affected persons is continuing.

My Department is progressing a local enquiry to consider the physical, rehabilitation, psychological and mental health requirements of post-COVID-19 patients. The findings of this work will be fully considered alongside the wider body of emerging research to inform future policy and service decisions.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of appearances he has made since the restoration of devolution (i) before the Assembly; and (ii) before the Ad Hoc Committee on the COVID-19 Response
(AQW 7972/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since the restoration of devolution I have appeared (i) before the Assembly on the Covid-19 response five (5) times on:

- 2 March 2020
- 9 June 2020
- 6 October 2020
- 9 March 2020
- 28 July 2020

and (ii) before the Ad Hoc Committee on the COVID-19 Response three (3) times on:

- 15 April 2020
- 30 April 2020
- 14 May 2020

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health to detail the interventions his Department will make to ensure people with dementia are properly supported during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 7985/17-22)

Mr Swann: The HSC, including the Department, will continue to provide information and guidance in relation to a range of COVID-19 related issues that impact on those who have a dementia, whether they live in the community or are placed in a care home setting.

Trusts have also been requested to develop support plans that ensure that Trusts and service providers are working closely together to maintain services in a safe and effective way.

Along with the Community and Voluntary sector, Trust staff continue to provide local support to people with a dementia and their carers. This has included telephone calls to provide information and offer reassurance and use of other technologies including Apps and video links.

Trust Memory Services have adapted to current circumstances and through the use of technology and other innovative practices, are able to undertake assessments and care reviews.

Information about Dementia and COVID-19 is available on the following links:

- <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/campaigns/dementia>
- <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/>
- Information booklets are also available at:
- <https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/search/node?keys=dementia>

We will continue to review all such interventions and ensure they remain appropriate.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health to detail the scanning equipment currently in place at (i) Daisy Hill Hospital; and (ii) Craigavon Area Hospital.

(AQW 8035/17-22)

Mr Swann: Daisy Hill Hospital currently has one main CT scanner, one modular CT scanner and two ultrasound scanners.

Craigavon Area Hospital currently has one main CT scanner, one modular CT scanner, two MRI scanners, two nuclear medicine scanners and six ultrasound scanners.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of new concerns raised by whistleblowers at Dunmurry Manor.

Mr Swann: Over the past three months a number of complaints, have been received, some signed and some anonymously, directly and through elected representatives. All of these have been or are currently being fully investigated and where substantiated, action has been taken.

A complaint received from a whistleblower in September is the subject of an on-going PSNI investigation and therefore it would be inappropriate for me to comment on this.

I can confirm that there is currently no enforcement action by RQIA in respect of Oak Tree Manor Care Home (formally Dunmurry Manor). Any areas for improvement relating to the level of care are being managed through a quality improvement plan within the most recent inspection reports and not through escalated enforcement action.

The home is being monitored closely by RQIA and Trusts who continue to work closely with Runwood Homes Ltd to ensure the wellbeing of residents and staff at Oak Tree Manor.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health whether partners are able to attend antenatal scans at the Ulster Hospital.

(AQW 8170/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current guidance on visiting restrictions as they apply to all Healthcare settings including maternity (<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>) means that for expectant mothers:

“Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week.”

This applies to all HSC settings across Northern Ireland, including the Ulster Hospital.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) whether birth partners are permitted to be present for the full duration of labour; (ii) whether this policy is consistent across all Health and Social Care Trusts; and (iii) to detail the scientific and medical rationale for time limits on the support provided to expectant mothers by their birth partners.

Mr Swann: The current guidance on visiting restrictions allows that:

“Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week.”

- (i) This applies to all HSCT maternity settings across Northern Ireland.
- (ii) These restrictions are not in place simply to protect mothers and their visitors, but are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our HSC staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

The evidence suggests that there is a higher level of risk if you are closer than 2 metres for more a prolonged period of time. Given that our staff constantly treat others in close proximity, the number and incidence of visitors must be effectively managed and limited since the resulting decrease in footfall in communal areas would significantly reduce the opportunity for transmission of the virus in such a vulnerable setting.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health why Donaghadee GP Health Centre is not providing ear-syringing services to patients.

Mr Swann: Under the terms of their contract all GPs are required to provide essential primary medical services to their registered patients. As well as providing essential services GP Practices can also contract with the Board to provide additional services to their patients, for which they would receive additional remuneration; there is no obligation on GP Practices to provide those additional services.

Ear syringing is not regarded as an essential service and therefore GP Practices are not required to provide that service unless they have specifically agreed, as part of their contract, to do so.

In 2018 the National Institute for Clinical Health Excellence (NICE) issued guideline 98 which recommended that the manual syringing method should no longer be used.

It is recommended that GPs should offer ear wax removal using an electronic irrigator, micro-suction or another method of earwax removal (such as manual removal using a probe) for adults in primary or community ear care services, if the practitioner, such as a community nurse or audiologist:

- has training and expertise in using the method to remove earwax;
- is aware of any contraindications to the method, and
- the correct equipment is available.

If the GP is not able to provide this service because they do not meet the NICE recommendations they would make the necessary referrals to ENT/Audiology in a Health and Social Care Trust. However, rather than wait, patients may prefer to seek, and pay for, private treatment.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the StopCOVID NI app; and whether there have been any glitches which have impacted users notifications.

Mr Swann: The STOPCovid NI proximity app is a useful tool which augments the manual contact tracing process, providing an ability to accelerate notifications to “at risk individuals” and increase the number of contacts identified for each confirmed case, beyond the ability of the infected individual to recall their whereabouts and identify at risk citizens.

There have been some issues reported in the media with the recently launched NHS COVID19 App. However for STOPCovid NI app the HSC, as part of a continuous improvement process, has arrangements in place to respond to user queries and to monitor for any emerging issues and ensure these are addressed promptly in future app updates. Examples of how potential issues have been explained can be found on the NI Direct website at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-stopcovid-ni-proximity-app> .

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Health what plans there are to refresh his Department's public health messaging on safe drinking limits.

Mr Swann: The current advice on alcohol consumption is provided in the UK Chief Medical Officers' Low Risk Drinking Guidelines. Published in 2016, these state that for both men and women, to keep the health risks from alcohol to a low level, it is safest not to drink more than 14 units a week on a regular basis.

Since the guidelines have been published, the Public Health Agency have been promoting this public health message through various routes, and they have particularly highlighted the risks associated with alcohol-related harm during the pandemic. Information on where to access local help and support can be found by visiting www.drugsandalcoholni.info and clicking on "Services Near You".

You may wish to note that, my Department has been working in conjunction with key stakeholders on co-developing a new alcohol and drug strategy and this will be issued for public consultation later this year.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail each occasion (i) he; and (ii) his special adviser has attended the Transformation Management Board.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how women in North Antrim, who are faced with an unwanted pregnancy, are to safely access abortion care, given COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 8310/17-22)

Mr Swann: Until such time as my Department directs the Health and Social Care Board to commission abortion services, women who choose abortion can contact the British Pregnancy Advisory Service for access to services available in England. They may also contact their General Practitioner.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health how many times has the Air Ambulance been dispatched to a road traffic accident (i) this year to date; and (ii) in each of the last three years.

Mr Swann: The Helicopter Emergency Medical Service (HEMs) undertook their first live mission on 22nd July 2017. Information provided by the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) on the number of times the air ambulance was dispatched to attend traffic/transportation incidents from 22nd July 2017 to 31st August 2020, is detailed in the table overleaf.

Number of times the Air Ambulance and Delta 7 were dispatched to an incident (22nd July 2017 - 31st August 2020)

Year	Air Ambulance	DELTA 7*	Total
22/07/2017 - 31/12/2017	92	28	120
01/01/2018 - 31/12/2018	153	53	206

01/01/2020 - 31/08/2020	103	39	142

- * Delta 7 is a Rapid Response Vehicle used by the HEMs crew to respond to an incident when the helicopter will not be allocated due to poor weather conditions or an accident occurring close to the HEMs base.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the adequacy of current stocks of Personal Protective Equipment for a potential winter surge of COVID-19 infections.

(AQW 8321/17-22)

Mr Swann: Led by my Department, the Business Services Organisation with the support of other government Departments and agencies has undertaken significant work to ensure reliable and sustainable PPE supply chains are in place now and in preparation for a surge of Covid-19.

Strong supply lines have been established for core PPE products with currently in excess of 350 million items of PPE in stock across Trusts and in central storage.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on Lisnaskea Health Centre.

(AQW 8338/17-22)

Mr Swann: The outline business case for the proposed new Lisnaskea Health and Care Centre was submitted to the Department of Finance (DoF) for consideration on 17 September 2020 and is currently under review between DoF and DoH officials.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health to detail (i) the overall survival rate of COVID-19 patients; and (ii) the survival rate broken down by age group.

Mr Swann: Information on overall survival rates of COVID-19 patients is not available at this time.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health what action his Department has taken to ascertain that all deaths attributed to COVID-19 are actually as a result of COVID-19.

(AQW 8358/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department does not review Medical Certificates of Cause of Death (MCCDs) to confirm what an individual has died from.

A medical practitioner has a statutory duty to complete a MCCD to the best of their knowledge and belief, in accordance with the Births and Deaths Registration (Northern Ireland) Order 1976.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Health (i) to detail the number of (a) residents; and (b) staff infected with COVID-19 in east Belfast care homes; and (ii) what action is being taken to address the level of infection.

Mr Swann:

- (i) Data on the number of residents and staff infected with COVID-19 in East Belfast care homes is not available. However, as a proxy measure using the postcodes BT4, BT5 and BT6, I can confirm that as at 14th October the following has been identified:
- Since the start of the pandemic 19 outbreaks have been reported in care homes in these postcode areas;
 - Care home outbreaks have concluded in 16 homes in these postcode areas;
 - Of those still open, two are confirmed COVID-19 and one is COVID-19 negative but is currently being monitored as a non-COVID respiratory illness.
- (ii) Protecting residents and those working in our care homes has been a key priority and this will continue to be the case as we respond to the pandemic through the winter.

From the start of this pandemic guidance has been provided on infection prevention and control and this has been continually revised during the course of the pandemic.

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/covid-19-guidance-nursing-and-residential-care-homes-northern-ireland>

This has been underpinned during the course of the year by three announcements of funding for the care home sector, the last being on 21 October worth an additional £27m, in addition to previously announced support packages.

One of the key measures in preventing further increases of COVID-19, is the continuation of the rolling programme of testing for care home residents and staff supported by the PHA and Trusts. This programme will continue to play a significant role in helping to minimise the risk of COVID-19 through early identification of single cases and potential clusters of cases, and will enable immediate steps to be taken to prevent spread of infection, thereby ensuring the continued safety of our residents and staff.

Ongoing provision of PPE from Trusts to care home providers will continue. Over 48 million items of PPE have already been supplied to independent sector care homes up to 3 October 2020, with a value over £16m.

During the first surge Trusts provided more than 26,000 hours of free staff time to work in care homes and fill gaps in rotas. Each Trust has a dedicated care home support team in place, which has been consolidated and expanded to provide further support over the months ahead.

Free training is being provided to care home staff by both NISCC and the CEC on infection prevention and control, use of PPE and a range of clinical skills necessary to help manage patients with respiratory conditions, for instance. Additional funding is available where care homes have further training needs linked to covid-19 above and beyond what I have set out here.

The RQIA will also continue to act as a point of contact for homes with questions or difficulties and have recently increased the resource they deploy on supporting homes in this way.

The PHA Health Protection team has long-established, well-trusted and robust systems in place to monitor infectious diseases and provide direct advice and support to manage outbreaks and limit onward spread. These arrangements are being actively implemented in tackling coronavirus after the pandemic was declared.

The PHA duty-room team also provide specific advice and guidance regarding isolation, containment, and infection prevention and control practice, including cleaning, testing information, how to manage symptoms, when to request additional medical advice, and PPE. The outbreak is then followed and care home supported till the outbreak conclusion.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the topics, excluding those related to COVID-19, on which his Department is considering (i) introducing primary legislation; (ii) introducing secondary legislation; and (iii) making or amending regulations.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the rights afforded to unpaid carers.
(AQW 8368/17-22)

Mr Swann: Carers with a primary or personal responsibility are protected under Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 which requires public authorities, in carrying out their functions relating to Northern Ireland, "to have due regard to the need to promote equality of opportunity...between persons with dependants and persons without".

In addition, The Human Rights Act 1998 imposes duties on the state and those who provide services to ensure that all carers and the people they care for are treated with fairness, respect, equality, dignity and enabled to make the decisions that are right for them.

With regard to working carers, the Employment Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1999 permits carers to take leave to address emergency situations involving dependants such as a breakdown in care arrangements, illness or injury of the dependent person or the death of a dependent person. Furthermore, the Work and Families (Northern Ireland) Order 2006 introduced the right to request flexible working for carers, with the right to appeal such decisions.

The Carers and Direct Payments Act (Northern Ireland) 2002, imposed a statutory duty on Health and Social Care Trusts to inform carers of their right to an assessment and to be considered for services to meet their own needs.

As you are aware, my Department is currently taking forward a process to reform adult social care and support which will consider the needs and rights of carers.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health how many calls for ambulances were made by Northern Ireland Prisons in the last ten years, broken down by (i) prison; and (ii) year.
(AQW 8377/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information provided by the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) on the number of calls for ambulances made by Northern Ireland Prisons between 1st April 2013 and 30th September 2020, is detailed in the table overleaf. This information is not available prior to 1st April 2013.

*2020-21 reports calls from 1st April 2020 to 30th September 2020.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health whether he will relax restrictions for maternity services to enable partners to attend antenatal appointments and be present from established labour until delivery.

(AQW 8384/17-22)

Mr Swann: No relaxation is planned at this current time, but the existing restrictions do already allow partners to be with expectant mothers in the scenarios outlined.

Following the Executive's decision to invoke limited additional restrictions across Northern Ireland in response to increasing COVID-19 transmissions, updated visiting guidance for all healthcare settings, including maternity services has been published and is available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>. This took effect from 23 September 2020.

The guidance is based on the best scientific advice available, with restrictions applying in line with the current Regional Alert Level Position – we are currently at Level 4, defined as “a high or rising level of transmission - enforced social distancing”.

This means that for expectant mothers:

“Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week.”

Normal maternity care provision has had to be adapted in order to reduce the spread of infection and to protect expectant mothers, their families and staff providing care and therefore the wider population. This is not the experience we would hope for expectant mothers, but managing this crisis has meant that many difficult requests have been and will continue to be made of the public around all aspects of health service provision.

While the situation is kept under constant review, there are no current plans in place to initiate changes to the structure of the existing visiting restrictions, which remain aligned to the pandemic alert levels/R value - the risk of the virus spreading.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health to outline the process within the Public Health Agency when a patient is tested positive for COVID-19 to activate the app and start the track and trace system.

Mr Swann: Members of the public who receive a positive test using the national testing initiative, ordered via the national testing portal (<https://www.gov.uk/get-coronavirus-test>), will get an SMS message from the testing systems to confirm the test result along with an SMS message from the HSC in NI containing a code to enter into the StopCOVID NI app. This code confirms to the app that they have a positive result and triggers the process within the system to share the user's non-identifiable information with other app users.

The Public Health Agency commence the contact tracing process when the positive laboratory test result is received by systems in Northern Ireland, allowing the Public Health contact tracing team to get in touch with the member of the public.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on the investigation into the underspend on adult learning disability services in the Western Health and Social Care Trust.

Mr Swann: I refer the Member to my answer to AQW 6114/17-22 and confirm that I remain committed to considering how best to progress this matter at the earliest possible opportunity, informed by the views of families affected.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact that Brexit will have on the supply of medicines.

Mr Swann: My Department's priority is to maintain the ongoing supply of medicines and medical products to the people of Northern Ireland following the end of the Transition Period in January 2021.

The whole of the United Kingdom (UK) is currently aligned with the European Union (EU) acquis for medicines and medical devices. This will change after transition when NI will remain aligned with the EU and Great Britain (GB) will not. This has implications for both the supply and regulation of medicines in Northern Ireland. Medicines are regulated on a UK-wide basis and NI currently draws over 98% of its medicines supplies from the UK market via GB.

In relation to EU transition planning, the overall responsibility for the continuity of supply of medicines in the UK rests with the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC). A multi-layered approach to national contingencies has been established to mitigate the risk of reaching the end of transition without an agreement. In addition to national contingencies, the Department is working with DHSC to ensure that additional mitigations are taken, where needed, in the context of the NI protocol to maintain supplies.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact COVID-19 is having on care home insurance premiums, including the future ability to provide care.

Mr Swann: The increase in insurance premiums is amongst other increasing costs being regularly highlighted by representatives of the care home sector.

While rising insurance premiums are outside of my control, my officials and I will continue to engage with the independent care sector in developing plans to ensure its longer-term resilience and sustainability.

In order to help care homes in their response to Covid-19 and to support the workforce, I announced an additional investment of up to £6.5m at the end of April 2020 and a further £11.7m financial package on 2 June 2020.

The issue of financial support to the Sector will be kept under constant review.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of patients who were awaiting confirmation of a community care package before being discharged from hospital who subsequently died before the care package was in place, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust, in each of the last four years.
(AQW 8450/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the number of patients who were awaiting confirmation of a community care package before being discharged from hospital, and who subsequently died before the care package was in place is not available.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health how his Department is implementing and achieving compliance with NICE CG192, Antenatal and Postnatal Mental Health.
(AQW 8467/17-22)

Mr Swann: In 2017, the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority carried out a review of progress and made several recommendations for consideration. A Regional Group was established to work on the implementation of the NICE Guidance and this group meet bi-monthly to bring forward the recommendations

All Trusts continue to work towards implementing CG192.

Progress that has been achieved to date includes:

- The revision and implementation of the Regional Perinatal Pathway.
- The appointment of a Bereavement Support Midwife for each Trust.
- Specialist perinatal mental health training for a wide range of professionals (including Psychiatrists, Psychologists, Mental Health Nurses, Midwives, Health Visitors, Occupational Therapists & Social Workers).
- Training on Perinatal Mental Health for Sure Start and the C&V Sector.
- A Business case for specialist community perinatal mental health has been developed and a Business case for a mother and baby unit is under development.

A Regional Training Day for Midwives and Health visitors on Alcohol Use/ Abuse in Pregnancy had to be cancelled due to Covid Restrictions. This event will be reorganised.

Future plans include producing a Business Case for the development of Specialist Midwives to work with Parents who experience Drugs and Alcohol issues.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health what action is being taken to ensure GP surgeries are properly resourced to provide smear tests in the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust.
(AQW 8489/17-22)

Mr Swann: As a consequence of the COVID-19 pandemic, the Cervical Screening Programme was paused from mid-March until 29 June 2020.

On 19 June 2020, the Public Health Agency (PHA) wrote to all GP practices in Northern Ireland to advise that there would be a restoration of the Cervical Screening Programme. This was to follow a phased, prioritised approach in order to ensure that the service was not overwhelmed and was restarted in a controlled manner.

Following this staged restart, the invitations to participate in the programme are now being sent out at a pre-pause level. The PHA are monitoring the service including any contingency that would be required if COVID-19 numbers increase significantly.

GP practices have access to up to date guidance on COVID-19 infection prevention and control and can order any required supplies of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) for those who are performing smear tests from the Business Services Organisation. Contact details for the relevant team at the PHA have also been provided to GP practices should they have any queries regarding the cervical screening programme.

It is vitally important that anyone who is experiencing any of the symptoms associated with early stage cervical cancer should contact their doctor rather than waiting for a screening test.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Health how much funding is currently being provided to Addiction NI and INSPIRE to support their work.

(AQW 8541/17-22)

Mr Swann: I am aware of the valuable work that organisations such as Addiction NI and Inspire Mental Health are engaged in to provide support to some of our most vulnerable citizens.

Addiction NI currently receives a total of £382,216 from across the Health & Social Care sector, and Inspire currently receives funding totalling £5,868,987.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health, in light of the Executive's consideration of possible new COVID-19 restrictions and the increasing number of positive cases, to outline what steps have been taken since the first wave to expand hospital inpatient bed capacity in order to maximise overall health and social care capacity.

Mr Swann: I published the Surge Planning Strategic Framework on 6 October, which sets the overarching context for individual Trust surge and winter planning. Alongside the framework, I also published individual Trust surge plans, ensuring comprehensive plans are in place to address both further COVID-19 surges and winter pressures.

As during the first wave of COVID-19, these plans include measures to increase ICU surge capacity in incremental stages, using the Belfast City Hospital Tower as the regional ICU Nightingale facility. The revised regional ICU surge plan provides the ability to flex capacity across the region to a maximum of 158 ICU beds.

I have also commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. This will be a regional intermediate care facility, providing 100 additional 'step down beds', which is expected to be operational on a phased basis by late November 2020. This will aim to improve patient flow to free up acute bed space.

It is important to recognise that a key limiting factor on opening additional beds is the availability of staff. While we have relaunched the workforce appeal, to which we had a phenomenal response during the first surge, operating at peak surge levels, particularly in ICU, is not sustainable for long and will have a major impact on HSC services, including complex elective surgery.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health to detail the number and grade of staff required for the Emergency Department at (i) Ulster Hospital; (ii) Lagan Valley Hospital; and (iii) Downe Hospital, (a) prior to the pandemic; and (ii) on 1 October 2020.

* Downe Hospital Type 2 Emergency Department closed due to COVID-19 and was operating a Minor Injuries Unit as at 1st October. From 19th October a consultant led Urgent Care Centre opened.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health what is the definition of an urgent care centre; and how it operates. (AQW 8584/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department's COVID-19 Urgent and Emergency Care Action Plan – 'No More Silos' defines urgent care centres and how they operate. This can be found at www.health-ni.gov.uk/NoMoreSilos.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on the sale of 42 care homes by administrators for Four Seasons. (AQW 8586/17-22)

Mr Swann: The administrators for The Four Seasons Health Care Group have commenced a sales process for the Group's care home business in Northern Ireland. This process forms part of the Group's restructuring to place it on a long-term, sustainable financial footing and to provide the care homes in Northern Ireland ongoing stability and investment.

This news does not change anything in terms of the way the Group provides care within Northern Ireland. The key priorities at this time remain the continuity of quality care for the residents and the support to their family members and to the teams. The sale process will not change the way services are run or impact the residents or the care teams looking after them.

I remain committed to ensuring the well-being of residents continues to be a priority. We will continue to monitor this situation closely and I expect the HSCB and Trusts to continue to monitor closely the care and management of all relevant Homes.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Health which facilities in North Antrim have authorisation to conduct abortions.
(AQW 8592/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Abortion (Northern Ireland) (No 2) Regulations do not require facilities to be authorised. Operational decisions are a matter for Health and Social Care Trusts.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether there has been a significant shift in the rate of drug misuse among people with severe and enduring mental illness.
(AQW 8622/17-22)

Mr Swann: Given the nature of substance use, which depending on the substance may be illegal, it can be very difficult to ascertain the rate of substance use within specific populations. However, alcohol and drug services are reporting increased complexity in cases, with higher levels of polydrug use, co-occurring mental health issues, and wider issues such as homelessness.

Improving support for those with co-occurring substance misuse and poor mental health has been raised as part of the co-development of the new Substance Use Strategy, and will also be addressed through the forthcoming Mental Health strategy

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health how many staff in each Health and Social Care Trust have a recognised qualification or specific training in dual diagnosis.
(AQW 8623/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Trusts have provided the following responses.

Belfast HSC Trust

There is currently no dual diagnosis service within the Belfast HSC Trust. The information requested is therefore not recorded.

Northern HSC Trust

15 staff in the Mental Health Directorate have completed a Post Graduate Certificate in Dual Diagnosis at Queen's University Belfast. Some staff from outside the Mental Health Directorate may have attended this course but this information is not recorded. 29 staff have completed a 2-day Dual Diagnosis Awareness course, provided by the Clinical Education Centre (CEC), since the involvement of a Trust Dual Diagnosis Co-ordinator in the course. Other staff may have been trained but this information is not recorded. 68 staff at Holywell Hospital attended a half-day awareness course in 2017/2018.

South Eastern HSC Trust

13 staff have completed a Post Graduate Diploma in Dual Diagnosis at Queen's University Belfast. 44 staff have completed a 2-day Dual Diagnosis Awareness course provided by the Clinical Education Centre (CEC).

Southern HSC Trust

5 mental health staff have completed a Post Graduate Module in Dual Diagnosis at Queen's University Belfast. 42 mental health staff, between 2014 and 2019, have completed a 2-day Dual Diagnosis Awareness course provided by the Clinical Education Centre (CEC).

Western HSC Trust

8 medical staff have specific post-qualification dual diagnosis training. Staff working within addictions services and other mental health services will have received training that has included aspects of addictions, including dual diagnosis and its treatment. The Trust does not have a database that captures this information succinctly.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health when community dentists, who are working weekends in the COVID-19 emergency dental hubs, will receive payment for this work.
(AQW 8676/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department is currently looking at a proposal to make a temporary amendment to Community Dentists Terms and Conditions of Service, which will allow for the payment of an additional hours rate. A proposal has been sent to the Department of Finance and correspondence is continuing between officials to come to a resolution. A fuller response will be given once all of these aspects have been agreed.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to amend the current one visitor a week policy in hospitals.

Mr Swann: The restriction of visitors to hospitals has been a key strategic component of managing the pandemic and it was introduced to protect patients, visitors and staff by reducing the risk of infection.

The specific restrictions for each care setting are aligned to the pandemic Alert levels/R value, which represents the risk of the virus spreading from one infected person to another, on average. The guidance is based on the best scientific advice available, with restrictions applying in line with the current Regional Alert Level Position – we are currently at Level 4, defined as “a high or rising level of transmission - enforced social distancing”.

While the situation is kept under constant review, there are no current plans in place to initiate changes to the structure of these existing visiting restrictions.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health how he plans to address the mental health concerns brought up as a result of the pandemic.

Mr Swann: I am aware of the impact the pandemic and the limitations to daily life have on the mental wellbeing of our population. A key element of responding to the emerging mental health need resulting from the pandemic is the implementation of the Mental Health Action Plan, including a bespoke Covid-19 Mental Health Response Plan and the development of a new Mental Health Strategy. Work on this is currently ongoing.

To help mitigate the mental health concerns that have arisen during the pandemic, a Mental Health and Resilience Strategic Working group has been established to coordinate, support and drive the short, medium and longer term response to the psychological impact of the pandemic. A Mental health and Emotional Wellbeing Surge Cell is also in place with partners from statutory and non-statutory sectors.

A number of direct actions have also been taken to provide help and support during this difficult time. This include:

- Free online Stress Control classes;
- Rollout of psychological first aid training;
- A new Apps Library to help people to self help;
- Help and support on mindingyourhead.info;
- Dedicated psychological helplines for health and social care staff, both in the statutory and independent sectors;
- Extra help and support for staff newly qualified; and
- Bereavement support.

This support and these initiatives remain in place as we continue to battle Covid-19 and the impact of the pandemic on our communities' mental health.

Mental health services are also available to those who need it and can be accessed through GPs. For those in need, Lifeline provide 24/7 crisis response service for people in distress or despair. If there is an immediate risk to a person's health, 999 and Emergency Departments are also available.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of provision of gender-affirming care for trans people after the termination of the relationship between ClearChemist and GenderGP.

Mr Swann: Clear Chemist has suspended fulfilling hormone prescriptions it receives from online transgender clinic GenderGP.

The General Pharmaceutical Council ensures compliance with UK national prescribing guidelines when pharmacies under its jurisdiction work with non-UK registered providers. Aside from those compliance issues, private healthcare such as that provided by GenderGP is outside the remit of my Department.

My officials are however currently working in partnership with health service colleagues and service user representatives to identify a safe model for gender identity services, through the Gender Identity Pathway Review Group.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many hospital patients who have tested positive for COVID-19 were admitted from a care home.

(AQW 8684/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the number of hospital patients who have tested positive for COVID-19 that were admitted from a care home is not available.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what is the average intensive care unit occupancy at this time of year.

(AQW 8685/17-22)

Mr Swann: Table 1 to follow presents the average ICU occupancy levels at each Intensive Care Unit from 1st-20th October 2017-2020. It is important to note that local plans to respond to demand for critical care has enabled the HSC Trusts to direct patients to designated units to maintain appropriate care and infection prevention and control; this has resulted in much higher average occupancy levels in some Units, as well as lower occupancy levels in other Units, during the current year. Unfortunately the Intensive Care Unit within South West Acute Hospital was unable to provide a response in the timeframe required to answer this request.

Table 1: Average Percentage of ICU Beds Occupied, 1st-20th October 2017-2020

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to provide further support to nursing students who have given up their super numeracy status to work in hospitals and care homes during the COVID - 19 pandemic.
(AQW 8702/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Nursing and Midwifery Council's Emergency Registration arrangements, which allowed nursing and midwifery students in their final six months of study to undertake their last six months in clinical practice as paid members of staff remunerated at AfC band 4, ended on 30 September 2020.

There is no provision under current NMC regulations to reintroduce these arrangements.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health how he intends to ensure the supply of medicines following Brexit complies with the European Union Falsified Medicines Directive.
(AQW 8704/17-22)

Mr Swann: At the end of the Transition Period when the Northern Ireland Protocol applies, Northern Ireland will remain under the EU acquis for medicines and Great Britain will not. Consequently supplies of medicines in Northern Ireland will continue to comply with the EU Directive on Falsified Medicines Directive (FMD).

As the majority of medicines are currently supplied via the UK supply chain the Pharmaceutical industry will have to adapt their supply arrangements to comply with the Northern Ireland Protocol. A number of different options are being considering by the individual companies and it is unlikely that there will be one solution because companies will make decisions based on their portfolios and products.

Department of Health officials are working with DHSC to engage with industry stakeholders to understand the changes necessary which will take time to fully establish.

To provide more time for the industry to introduce these changes the UK Government has sought a twelve month derogation on FMD requirements from the EU Commission. This is part of ongoing discussions between the UK and EU.

As an additional contingency, on 1 October 2020 DHSC provided updated guidance on the UK Government's interpretation of Article 41 of the Withdrawal Agreement stating that medicines that have been placed on the market anywhere in the EU or UK before the end of the Transition Period and released for sale or supply will be able to remain available for sale or supply between Great Britain, Northern Ireland and the EU after 1 January 2021, without additional regulatory checks. These medicines will be FMD compliant.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health whether further guidance will be issued to previously shielding employees in light of increasing COVID-19 infection rates.

Mr Swann: Shielding for clinically extremely vulnerable people was paused in Northern Ireland on 31st July 2020.

In light of the increased numbers of cases of Coronavirus in Northern Ireland, the Chief Medical Officer and his team have looked at this position again. Their assessment is that its resumption is not necessary at this stage.

This decision reflects the context of our greater understanding of Covid-19, how to prevent its transmission, and appreciation of the impact of shielding on many people's physical and mental well-being. A number of important changes have taken place in our approach to managing Covid-19 and reducing its transmission since shielding was originally advised. This includes a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, Covid secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene.

The decision to retain the pause in shielding will, however, be kept under review and we will not hesitate to update our shielding advice if this is necessary.

It is important to emphasise that everyone who was previously shielding continues to need to take strenuous precautions in their day to day lives and should scrupulously follow the guidance we set out when shielding was paused. This includes, good hand hygiene; staying at home as much as possible; maintaining social distancing; working from home where possible, or ensuring social distancing when going to and from work; and limiting social contacts.

The advice for those who were previously shielding in relation to employment remains that, if it is possible to work from home, they should continue to do this. However, if a person's employer has taken the proper measures to ensure social distancing in the workplace, and they can travel to work in a way which allows for social distancing, the fact that they were previously shielding is not by itself a reason not to attend work.

Employers have a 'duty of care' for staff which means taking all steps they reasonably can to support the health, safety and wellbeing of their staff.

If anyone has concerns about their safety in the workplace, it is appropriate to discuss these with their employer/HR Department. They will be best placed to advise on appropriate measures for particular roles and workplaces at this time.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) whether the Ulster Hospital is only accepting inpatients to Accident and Emergency (A&E) by ambulance; (ii) to detail the current occupancy at the Ulster Hospital's A&E Department; and (iii) for his assessment of walk-in access to A&E at the Ulster Hospital.

Mr Swann:

- 1 I can confirm that the Ulster Hospital Emergency Department (ED) accepts patients who self-present (commonly referred to as 'walk ins') and referrals from GPs, as well as patients who attend by ambulance.
- 2 The current total maximum capacity at the Ulster Hospital's ED is circa 100. There are separate areas within ED, each with its own maximum capacity. Occupancy levels in each area depends on the demand at the time as well as the reasons for attending, for example, whether or not the patient has signs and symptoms of COVID-19.
- 3 The Ulster Hospital ED provides treatment and care to patients who self-present 24 hours every day. Under the current circumstances patients who display signs and symptoms of COVID-19 are assessed and treated separately from those who do not.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what measures are in place to ensure that both women and their partners can attend pregnancy, maternity and neonatal services, especially when they have previously experienced a loss.

Mr Swann: Many difficult requests have been and will continue to be made of the public around maternity care provision, which has had to be adapted in order to reduce the spread of infection and to protect expectant mothers, their families and staff providing care.

The decision to permit visitors into a facility on a day to day basis remains with the person in charge, and will be based on a risk assessment of the ability to ensure safety of patients, staff and the visitor. However, the expectation as set out in the current visiting restrictions is that:

"Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week."

Further, in Neonatal units, "One of two nominated parents/caregivers can be accommodated at any given time".

This is not the experience I would hope for expectant mothers and their partners, particularly those who have previously experienced the loss of a baby. However, these restrictions are not in place simply to protect patients and their visitors, but are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our HSC staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what provision has been made to ensure that partners can attend pregnancy, maternity and neonatal services, especially when the woman concerned has previously experienced a loss.

Mr Swann: Many difficult requests have been and will continue to be made of the public around maternity care provision, which has had to be adapted in order to reduce the spread of infection and to protect expectant mothers, their families and staff providing care.

The decision to permit visitors into a facility on a day to day basis remains with the person in charge, and will be based on a risk assessment of the ability to ensure safety of patients, staff and the visitor. However, the expectation as set out in the current visiting restrictions is that:

"Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week."

Further, in Neonatal units, "One of two nominated parents/caregivers can be accommodated at any given time".

This is not the experience I would hope for expectant mothers and their partners, particularly those who have previously experienced the loss of a baby. However, these restrictions are not in place simply to protect patients and their visitors, but are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our HSC staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health for an update on the latest developments for a COVID-19 vaccine, including the anticipated timescale for its introduction.

Mr Swann: The UK government, acting on behalf of the whole of the UK has secured access to 6 potential COVID-19 vaccine candidates. At present the vaccines are still at various stages of the human trials that they must complete before they can be considered for use in a vaccination programme.

We are planning on the basis that a vaccine(s) might become available for use before the end of the year but there is no guarantee that this will happen and it will be dependent on the successful completion of the human trials.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether there is an adequate supply of personal protective equipment for hospitals, nursing homes and GPs.

Mr Swann: There are currently in excess of 400 million items of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) in stock across the Health and Social Care (HSC) estate. This compares with the 190 million items of PPE that were distributed to HSC Trusts, Nursing Homes, GP's as well as other organisations providing public health and social care, in the period March to August 2020.

Although the level of supply is currently sufficient to meet demand for most PPE items, the supply market for PPE, whilst improving, still proves challenging in respect of some products across the UK. In response Business Services Organisation has placed contracts with newly established local PPE manufacturers on a number of key lines namely face-shields (visors), type 2R facemasks and FFP3 respirator masks; and continues to work with colleagues from England, Scotland and Wales on a collaborative basis to source alternative products where necessary.

Stocks of PPE have been and continue to be procured with controls in place to ensure that products are only approved for purchase following technical and physical assessment for fitness for purpose.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health why free ear syringing procedures does not exist for patients; and whether he plans to abolish the charges.

(AQW 8798/17-22)

Mr Swann: Under the terms of their contract all GPs are required to provide essential primary medical services to their registered patients. As well as providing essential services GP Practices can also contract with the Board to provide additional services to their patients, for which they would receive additional remuneration; there is no obligation on GP Practices to provide those additional services.

Ear syringing is not regarded as an essential service and therefore GP Practices are not required to provide that service unless they have specifically agreed, as part of their contract, to do so.

In 2018 the National Institute for Clinical Health Excellence (NICE) issued guideline 98 which recommended that the manual syringing method should no longer be used.

It is recommended that GPs should offer ear wax removal using an electronic irrigator, micro-suction or another method of earwax removal (such as manual removal using a probe) for adults in primary or community ear care services, if the practitioner, such as a community nurse or audiologist:

- has training and expertise in using the method to remove earwax;
- is aware of any contraindications to the method, and
- the correct equipment is available.

If the GP is not able to provide this service because they do not meet the NICE recommendations they would make the necessary referrals to ENT/Audiology in a Health and Social Care Trust, for which there will be no charge. However, rather than wait, patients may prefer to seek, and pay for, private treatment.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether student nurses on placements in health and social care are currently prevented from conducting part-time employment in other healthcare settings, including nursing homes.

Mr Swann: Nursing students undertake a full time academic and clinical practice programme commissioned by my Department that addresses the standards stipulated by the Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC) to be accepted on to their register. Whilst completing their pre-registration training, students receive a non means-tested bursary and may also be eligible for other means-tested allowances such as disabled students' allowance and childcare support, to support them financially.

There is no requirement from the NMC that prevents nursing students from seeking part time employment. However, in line with advice from the Public Health Agency, minimising the movement of staff between healthcare settings, including care homes, is an important measure in curtailing transmission of the COVID-19 virus. Students on clinical placement who are in employment elsewhere are expected to adhere to this guidance.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what steps his Department will take to offset any loss of income for student health professionals, including student nurses, who are prevented from working in dual healthcare settings for infection control purposes during the pandemic.

Mr Swann: I am aware that some students on healthcare courses undertake part-time work. That is a matter of personal choice.

My Department provides a comprehensive range of support to healthcare students through their training. This varies across the courses but may include the payment of tuition fees, provision of non-means tested bursaries, and other means-tested allowances such as disabled students' allowance and childcare support.

My Department also ensures that students are provided with quality, practical placements which will help fully prepare them for entering the workforce on qualification.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health how many health and social care posts at Causeway Hospital are permanently vacant; and whether this number has increased since the onset of COVID-19.

(AQW 8845/17-22)

Mr Swann: At 22nd October 2020, there were 11 medical and 16 non-medical vacant positions known to NHSCT Human Resources for recruitment purposes in the Causeway Hospital. It cannot be confirmed if COVID-19 has had an impact on vacancy numbers.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health to detail the level of capacity at which the Royal Victoria Hospital School of Dentistry is operating, broken down by each month since January 2020.

Mr Swann: The table below sets out the number of patient appoints where a patient was seen in the Royal Victoria Hospital School of Dentistry for each month from January 2020 to September 2020.

Jan	Feb	Mar	Apr	May	Jun	Jul	Aug	Sept
2110	2820	2061	31	119	338	692	692	1090

It should be noted that the table includes both new patient appointments and review patient appointments.

I trust that the above is helpful.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health how many outpatient appointments, virtual or otherwise, were carried out over the course of the last 12 months, broken down by (i) Health and Social Care Trust; and (ii) department.

(AQW 8862/17-22)

Mr Swann: There were 990,000 outpatient appointments carried out between 1st October 2019 and 30th September 2020, broken down Health and Social Care Trust and Specialty in Table A.

A further 258,547 virtual outpatient appointments were carried out across the same period, broken down Health and Social Care Trust and Specialty in Table B.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health how much additional time are people waiting for orthopaedic surgery and outpatient appointments due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 8873/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data is not available on the amount of additional time people are waiting for orthopaedic surgery and outpatient appointments due to the COVID-19 pandemic, given that waits for many are still ongoing. However, a comparison of the number of patients waiting before the COVID-19 pandemic to those waiting recently is presented in the tables to follow.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what plans he has to increase the number of staff and intensive care unit beds in hospitals.

Mr Swann: The Surge Planning Strategic Framework and the individual Trust surge plans, which I published on 6 October 2020, ensure that there are comprehensive plans in place to address both further COVID-19 surges and winter pressures.

As part of this surge planning, the Critical Care Network's regional surge plan provides the ability to flex ICU capacity to a maximum of 158 ICU beds. In addition, to lift pressures from across the system, I have commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. This will be an intermediate care facility, providing 100 additional 'step down beds', which will be operational on a phased basis from mid-November 2020.

The availability of staff to respond to the increased demand is extremely challenging and this is exacerbated by the number of staff absent because of COVID-19. While we are taking all possible steps to address this, including relaunching the workforce appeal, we know that operating at peak surge levels, particularly in ICU, is not sustainable for long and will have a major impact on HSC services, including complex elective surgery.

For this reason, I will not hesitate to recommend proposals to the Executive on reintroducing control measures when necessary, as demonstrated recently, to ensure the health and social care system does not become overwhelmed. There is no room for complacency and we must all play our part in efforts to control this virus.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health how many children are subject to witnessing parental conflict, parental alienation post separation; and what plans are in place to address this in the Domestic Abuse and Family Care Proceedings Bill.
(AQW 8991/17-22)

Mr Swann: My department does not collect information in the format requested. My officials are currently working with Department of Justice officials to develop an Action Plan which aims to support parents to resolve disputes outside court wherever possible and to support the early resolution of parental disputes which come before the courts. It is considered that implementation of the action plan has the potential to reduce the negative impact of parental separation on children.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether he will consider requesting assistance from the military for medical personnel or logistical support.

Mr Swann: Military assistance may include assistance provided by the armed forces to urgent work of national importance, responding to emergencies or in maintaining supplies and essential services. In the initial surge period, military assistance was required to transfer patients requiring Extra Corporeal Membrane Oxygenation (ECMO) to specialist hospitals in England.

While there are currently no specific plans to request military assistance, this will remain a possibility should it become necessary.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what assurances he can give that Graded Exercise Therapy will not be used in the treatment of Long COVID, given the caution advised by experts, including in Healthcare Improvement Scotland, over its use.

Mr Swann: It is recognised that a small minority of people who have had both mild and severe symptoms of Covid-19 can experience long-term health effects. The Department of Health continues to review the emerging evidence and experience, both locally and nationally, and will develop guidance alongside national guidance to support patients where appropriate.

In particular, my Department is progressing a local enquiry to consider the physical, rehabilitation, psychological and mental health requirements of post-Covid-19 patients. In addition, the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence and the Scottish Intercollegiate Guidelines Network are working with the Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) to develop a guideline on the persistent effects of Covid-19 which is expected to be published at the end of the year.

The findings of this work will be fully considered alongside the wider body of emerging research to inform future policy and service decisions.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister of Health for an update on the roll out of the cystic fibrosis drug KAFTRIO; and whether the drug will be offered for the same genetic mutations as is the case in England.

Mr Swann: Thirty one of the most seriously ill cystic fibrosis patients have commenced treatment with Kaftrio. However, there are more than 500 children and adults who suffer from cystic fibrosis in Northern Ireland. Not all will be clinically suitable for treatment with Kaftrio and not everyone can be treated immediately. Clinical teams are working on prioritising those patients most likely to see the greatest benefit.

To safely introduce the new cystic fibrosis treatments over £1m of recurrent funding has been allocated to recruit additional medical, nursing, pharmacy, psychology, physiotherapy, dietetic, social work and administrative support.

The Vertex Pharmaceuticals agreement for Northern Ireland provides access to the same genetic mutations as England. The agreement also provides for a number of additional genetic mutations specific to Northern Ireland. A clinically led panel is being established at Trust level to support the assessment and suitability of patients for the additional 'off label' (off-license) use of Kaftrio.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health for a breakdown of the age profile of people hospitalised with COVID-19.

Mr Swann: Information on the number of admissions to hospital with COVID-19 by age group is published daily on the Department's COVID-19 dashboard, all information is available to view or download from the link below:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/covid-19-daily-dashboard-updates>

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the current restrictions being placed on reflexologists; and whether there are any plans to review their status as being an essential service.

(AQW 9033/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No. 2) (Amendment No.9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020, introduced on 16 October 2020, refer to the closure of 'close contact services'. Given the nature of reflexology it is considered a close contact service and Reflexologists are required to close under the current restrictions.

There are no plans, at present, to review the status of reflexology during the current period of restrictions.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of public health risks posed by groups of people consuming alcohol in public places and by the congregating of groups of people in public places.

(AQW 9045/17-22)

Mr Swann: Large gatherings increase the risk of infection transmission irrespective of whether participants are consuming alcohol. It is essential that everyone continues to comply with the restrictions and public health advice to protect themselves, protect other people, reduce the spread of infection and bring the epidemic to an end as soon as possible. It is crucial that we all maintain effective measures to minimise exposure to the virus including good hand and respiratory hygiene practices and the wearing of a face covering.

You may attend or participate in outdoor activities as long as there is no contact between participants who are not members of the same household and there is a maximum of 15 persons.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what reforms will be made to the Contact Tracing system over the next four weeks to ensure it provides improved evidence, notifies people faster and is fit for purpose to ensure we have targeted interventions enabling us to avoid future lockdowns.

Mr Swann: My Department and the Public Health Agency are continually reviewing the operation of the Contact Tracing Service using lessons learned to date to help improve overall efficiency.

For example, in the immediate future there will continue to be a focus on recruitment to help ensure the Service has an appropriate skills mix and a continuing focus on improvements to the operation of the existing delivery model.

This approach will build on the recently launched online self-service contact tracing platform and on the automated text alert service, both of which facilitate more efficient notification to those that are required to self-isolate, and in turn free up time for the manual contact tracing service to deal with cases.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health to publish a detailed plan for mental health services during the latest COVID-19 restrictions.

Mr Swann: I am aware of the impact the pandemic and the limitations to daily life have on the mental wellbeing of our population. A key element of responding to the emerging mental health need resulting from the pandemic is the implementation of the Mental Health Action Plan, including a bespoke Covid-19 Mental Health Response Plan and the development of a new Mental Health Strategy. Work on this is currently ongoing.

To help mitigate the mental health concerns that have arisen during the pandemic, a Mental Health and Resilience Strategic Working group has been established to coordinate, support and drive the short, medium and longer term response to the psychological impact of the pandemic. A Mental health and Emotional Wellbeing Surge Cell is also in place with partners from statutory and non-statutory sectors.

A number of direct actions have also been taken to provide help and support during this difficult time. This include:

- Free online Stress Control classes;
- Rollout of psychological first aid training;
- A new Apps Library to help people to self help;
- Help and support on mindingyourhead.info;
- Dedicated psychological helplines for health and social care staff, both in the statutory and independent sectors;
- Extra help and support for staff newly qualified; and
- Bereavement support.

This support and these initiatives remain in place as we continue to battle Covid-19 and the impact of the pandemic on our communities' mental health.

Mental health services are also available to those who need it and can be accessed through GPs. For those in need, Lifeline provide 24/7 crisis response service for people in distress or despair. If there is an immediate risk to a person's health, 999 and Emergency Departments are also available.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Health to detail the current waiting time in the Western Health and Social Care Trust for gallbladder removal surgery; and how many patients are currently on the waiting list.

Mr Swann: In 2020, the average waiting time for gallbladder removal surgery in the Western Health and Social Care Trust was 35.5 weeks.

At the end of September 2020, there were 559 patients on the inpatient and day case waiting list for gallbladder removal surgery within the Western Health and Social Care Trust.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what services in each Health and Social Care Trust are being stopped or reduced to help with tackling the pandemic.

Mr Swann: Covid-19 is continuing to have a significant impact on the delivery of HSC services. It is not possible to state definitively which services are being delayed as this is a dynamic position and is related to staff absence as well as the rising numbers of Covid-19 inpatients.

I recently published a Strategic Surge Framework and individual Trust Surge Plans. These set out how the HSC system will manage further Covid-19 surges, whilst still trying to maintain as many essential services as possible.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will bring forward regulations incorporating a legal duty to self-isolate upon a positive test, as is in place in England.

Mr Swann: Whilst this is an issue I will keep under close review ultimately it would be a matter for the Northern Ireland Executive to decide if it were necessary.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 7051/17-22, whether he has met with former patients of Muckamore Abbey Hospital and their families on drafting the terms of reference for the public inquiry.

(AQW 9214/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have not yet met with former patients or their families to discuss the terms of reference for the public inquiry. My officials are currently working with the Patient and Client Council (PCC) to develop plans for engagement with both current and former patients and their families and carers to seek their views on the terms of reference of the inquiry. My officials are also working with the Belfast Trust to identify contact information for the families of all patients of Muckamore Abbey Hospital likely to be impacted by the inquiry.

It is expected that this engagement will take place by the end of November.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the full personal protective equipment requirements for Health and Social Care staff in (i) COVID-19 ICU wards; (ii) COVID-19 wards; (iii) Non-COVID-19 wards; and (iv) community services.

(AQW 9216/17-22)

Mr Swann: Guidance for HSC staff (available on the PHA website) recommends different levels of personal protective equipment (PPE) to be worn in HSC settings in Northern Ireland depending on the nature of those settings:

- Within high intensity care areas such as ICU, Covid19 wards and any settings where aerosol generated procedures are carried out the following PPE should be worn long: sleeved gown, disposable apron, disposable gloves, and FFP3 respirator mask and a visor.
- Within settings where there are no aerosol generated procedures such as a non-Covid19 ward and in some community settings the following PPE should be worn: disposable apron, disposable gloves, a fluid shield mask and on a risk assessed basis eye protection such as goggles or a visor.

Within Northern Ireland we are currently following the PHE COVID-19: infection prevention and control guidance Version 3.2 issued on 18 June 2020. This guidance also outlines the PPE requirements in various settings.

Within HSC community services we are currently following the COVID-19: Guidance for Domiciliary Care Providers in Northern Ireland which outlines the relevant PPE requirements.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health whether he will review the current protocols for GP surgeries to enable face to face appointments for GPs with their patients.

(AQW 9225/17-22)

Mr Swann: GP practices are open and are providing face to face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the current pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how best to prioritise patients to provide this core service whilst maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are operating a telephone first triage system which allows patients to seek medical advice from their GP for both routine and urgent problems. The GP then uses their clinical judgement to decide if the patient can be safely managed over the telephone or whether a face to face appointment is required. This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential. This helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face to face assessment to one of the Primary Care COVID-19 centres. This ensures that these patients do not attend the GP Practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimal disruption.

GPs are still expected to clinically assess for risk of serious illness and refer as clinically appropriate for diagnostic tests and to specialist services, such as an outpatient clinic, as they have always done.

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. Practices were advised to communicate to patients about the practice services that are available and how to access them with the recommendation that these communications make clear that GP practices are open.

On 7 September, GP leaders from the Health and Social Care Board, the Royal College of General Practitioners and the British Medical Association issued a statement to reassure patients that, whilst patients may be seen in a different way, by phone or video-link, GP practices are still open to treat patients, provide advice and issue prescriptions. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary. If people have symptoms or an unexplained illness or have any reason to be concerned, they should in the first instance contact their GP who will be able to provide advice.

A letter was also issued to MLAs and other local political representatives providing an update on the current arrangements and asking that they share the key message with constituents that GP practices are open, but working differently.

The COVID-19 pandemic has posed unprecedented challenges for the planning and delivery of health and social care services in Northern Ireland. General practice has rapidly changed its working patterns in order to cope with the current national emergency. Some of the measures taken are to reduce the risk of COVID-19 spread by providing advice by telephone or video where appropriate. Other decisions are based on the potential impact of COVID-19 on conditions, or on the potential impact of treatments on the risk of COVID-19.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Health, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in his Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

Mr Swann: In response to the outbreak of COVID-19, and in line with Executive and Public Health Agency Guidance, Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) staff including those in the Department of Health (DoH), were instructed to work from home where possible. Staff only work from DoH premises, either on a daily or ad hoc basis, if that work is deemed business critical and cannot be carried out from home.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8019/17-22, on which topics are officials seeking legal advice.

(AQW 9239/17-22)

Mr Swann: Legal advice was sought on the extent to which a Regional Trauma Network could either prioritise or be limited to certain groups.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Health whether he is still giving consideration to assigning facilities at Balmoral Park as a COVID-19 field hospital; and to detail the rationale for his decision.

(AQW 9273/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. As part of the process for identifying this site, I also considered the Eikon facility at Balmoral Park. The Whiteabbey option was superior in both monetary and non-monetary terms.

The key constraint in managing the ongoing pandemic remains staffing availability.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Health what communication he or his Department has had with the Department of Health and Social Care on securing a renewed NHS pay deal.

(AQW 9283/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department has representation on the NHS Staff Council at which all matters relating to Pay and Terms & Conditions are discussed on a UK-wide basis.

I am on record as to the value I place on the skill, dedication and hard work of health and social care staff. I have seen at first hand the magnificent job that all HSC workers perform, the risks that they take, and the sacrifices that they make.

I am aware of the Agenda for Changes trades unions' calls to the Westminster Government for an early implementation of the 2021/22 pay award for their members; this proposal must be considered at a national level, as it will impact across the regions of the UK.

Please be assured that both I and my Department remain committed to a fair pay settlement for all our healthcare staff going forward.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will finalise the terms of reference for the Inquiry into Muckamore Abbey Hospital.

(AQW 9303/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have committed to engaging with both current and former patients and their families and carers to seek their views on the Terms of Reference for the Inquiry and my officials are currently working with the Patient and Client Council (PCC) to develop plans for this engagement which I expect to take place by the end of November. This engagement will inform my decision on an Inquiry Chair and the Inquiry's Terms of Reference.

I expect to be in a position to appoint the Chair for the Inquiry into Muckamore Abbey Hospital later this autumn and, in line with the Cabinet Office best practice guidance on Government inquiries, I will consult with the Chair about the appointment of other panel members and the Terms of Reference for the Inquiry.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will appoint a chairperson to the Inquiry into Muckamore Abbey Hospital.

Mr Swann: I have committed to engaging with both current and former patients and their families and carers to seek their views on the Terms of Reference for the Inquiry and my officials are currently working with the Patient and Client Council (PCC) to develop plans for this engagement which I expect to take place by the end of November. This engagement will inform my decision on an Inquiry Chair and the Inquiry's Terms of Reference.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will meet the families affected by the issues which led to the Inquiry into Muckamore Abbey Hospital.

Mr Swann: I have committed to engaging with both current and former patients and their families and carers to seek their views on the Terms of Reference for the Inquiry and my officials are currently working with the Patient and Client Council (PCC) to develop plans for this engagement which I expect to take place by the end of November. This engagement will inform my decision on an Inquiry Chair and the Inquiry's Terms of Reference.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what process or mechanism exists within his Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals.

Mr Swann: My Department holds records of all correspondence, lobbying or otherwise using the HP Records Management System.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health whether health and social care staff routinely working in non-COVID-19 specialisms will be abstracted to provide COVID-19-related service under the surge planning framework.

Mr Swann: A key learning point from the first wave of the Covid-19 pandemic was the need for readiness for any subsequent waves. It was on this basis that I published the Surge Strategic Framework along with individual Trust surge plans which outline how future waves will be managed. Depending upon the severity of future waves, it is likely that staff will need to be reallocated to deal with COVID-19 pressures when they arise.

The driver behind any such moves will be both patient and staff safety and there will be a fine balance between maintaining elective care services and managing service demand arising from COVID-19.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Health what steps his Department is taking to address pressures at the Emergency Department at Altnagelvin Hospital to ensure patients do not have to queue outdoors.

(AQW 9327/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department recently published its COVID-19 Action Plan for Urgent and Emergency Care, 'No More Silos'. This identifies ten key actions that will be rapidly implemented in order to ensure that urgent and emergency care services across primary and secondary care can be maintained and improved in an environment that is safe for patients and staff. The Document is available on the Department's website.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health what medical advice he has received to cancel direct in-person GP appointments.

Mr Swann: GP practices are open and are providing face-to-face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how to best prioritise patients to provide this core service while maintaining patient safety.

This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential and helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face-to-face assessment to one of the primary care COVID-19 centres. That ensures that these patients do not attend the GP practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimum disruption.

The pandemic has meant change across a range of services, including in health and social care and General Practice has rapidly changed its working patterns in order to cope with the current pandemic and the need to protect the public and staff from the virus.

In rebuilding the capacity of the HSC in Northern Ireland we are continuing to develop new and innovative ways of working to support the development of sustainable, safe and accessible primary care services, to meet patient needs.

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients who were accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary.

A similar communication was also issued to MLAs and local councillors.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health to detail what the medical advice stated regarding the impact of the cancellation of direct in-person GP appointments.

(AQW 9331/17-22)

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients who were accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. Practices were advised to communicate to patients about the practice services that are available and how to access them with the recommendation that these communications make clear that GP practices are open.

On 7 September GP leaders from the Health and Social Care Board, the Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) and the British Medical Association issued a statement to reassure patients that while patients may be seen in a different way, by phone or video link, GP practices are still open to treat patients, provide advice and to issue prescriptions. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary.

A similar communication was also issued to MLAs and local councillors.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health what conditions his Department will consider when recommending GP surgeries services return to normal.

(AQW 9332/17-22)

Mr Swann: GP practices are open and are providing face-to-face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how to best prioritise patients to provide this core service while maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are operating a telephone first triage system which allows patients to seek medical advice from their GP for both routine and urgent problems. The GP then uses their clinical judgement to decide if the patient can be safely managed over the telephone or whether a face to face appointment is required. Some practices have also utilised other technologies such as video conferencing and allowing patients to send photographs by text to facilitate diagnosis of, for example, a skin rash.

This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential and helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face-to-face assessment to one of the primary care COVID-19 centres. That ensures that these patients do not attend the GP practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimum disruption.

The pandemic has meant change across a range of services, including in health and social care and General Practice has rapidly changed its working patterns in order to cope with the current pandemic and the need to protect the public and staff from the virus.

In rebuilding the capacity of the HSC in Northern Ireland we are continuing to develop new and innovative ways of working to support the development of sustainable, safe and accessible primary care services, to meet patient needs.

Department for Infrastructure

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on testing for approved driving instructors.
(AQW 8474/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The qualifying tests for Approved Driving Instructors had not been reinstated before this period of increased restrictions took effect. The DVA is working hard to reinstate these tests as soon as possible after the restrictions end, however due to the longer duration of the on road driving element of this test, it must be fully risk assessed to ensure it can be delivered safely in line with PHA advice and guidance. Whenever the DVA is in a position to resume this service I will ensure this is clearly communicated to all affected customers.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she has considered introducing extra capacity to deal with the backlog in driving tests.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close until 13 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she intends to introduce legislation to put active travel on a statutory footing in Northern Ireland.
(AQW 8526/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I believe that my Department currently has sufficient statutory powers to develop active travel infrastructure and to assist Councils in the development of greenways. My objective is to reduce the reliance on private motoring which directly supports the Programme for Government commitment to achieve modal shift with a higher proportion of journeys undertaken by people walking, cycling or using public transport. I have asked my officials to explore a range of options to better develop active travel infrastructure including legislation.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the regulatory measures taken to assist the haulage sector during COVID-19.

Ms Mallon: I recognise that it is essential that the work of the haulage sector continues to the greatest extent possible through the Covid-19 crisis. A key objective for me and my Executive colleagues at this time is to ensure the maintenance of critical supply routes and that the haulage sector is able to support Northern Ireland's economic recovery in the coming weeks and months. As such, I put in place a range of measures to support the sector including securing a financial package for Ferry Operators funded jointly by the British Government and the Executive and introducing a suspension of all MOT tests for commercial vehicles and relaxations of other requirements in areas such as drivers' hours, CPC, tachographs, medical assessments and planning restrictions.

An EU Regulation came into effect on 4 June 2020 and enabled the extension of the validity of certificates and licences to support those transport operators, individuals and national administrations that, owing to the coronavirus restrictions, were having difficulties fulfilling certain administrative formalities before the expiry of the relevant deadlines. These measures included further relaxations in the areas of driver CPC, driving licences, tachographs and road transport operator financial standing.

In recognising that the haulage industry is critical to restarting the economy and that hauliers operate on very tight margins, the British Government decided to suspend the Heavy Goods Vehicle Levy for a year, with effect from 1 August 2020. The levy suspension provides haulage companies with some relief over the next year and helps to ensure that they can continue to operate, avoiding a potential bottleneck to economic recovery.

I will continue to monitor the impact of Covid-19 on the Northern Ireland haulage sector to see if there is a need for any further regulatory support.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether additional (i) dates; and (ii) examiners will be made available to cover the backlog of applications for driving tests.

(AQW 8593/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the work currently being undertaken in relation to support for the bus, coach, taxi and haulage sectors.

Ms Mallon: The First Minister and deputy First Minister asked for my assessment as to whether exceptional circumstances existed within these sectors which would enable a bespoke financial support scheme to be set up under the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009.

Following an assessment of the evidence available and engagement with the sectors, I wrote to the First Minister and deputy First Minister on 23rd October, advising that, in my view, exceptional circumstances do exist for the taxi and private coach and bus sectors. I asked them to consider whether a Determination and Designation should be made urgently to enable financial assistance schemes to be developed for the sectors.

Powers have since been conferred on me by the First Minister and deputy First Minister. I will now seek the necessary support and funding from the Executive to swiftly progress support packages for the taxi, private bus & coach sectors and my officials are continuing to work on the development and roll out of the schemes.

Despite initial concerns raised by the Haulage sector, and while circumstances remain difficult, the evidence does not support the exceptional circumstances which would be needed to set up a bespoke support scheme. That said, I will continue to keep the matter under review and I remain keen to provide them with the support that I can within my role. They have been advised of my decision.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, with regards to the electric vehicle charging project FASTER, (i) how many rapid charge points will be installed on the island of Ireland; and (ii) what is the approximate time for their installation.

Ms Mallon: I am pleased that my Department has been able to support this EU Funded project to install EV Rapid Chargers. The project will complement and enhance the existing EV charging infrastructure, which was also co-financed by the EU through TEN-T funding.

The project will install a total of 73 electric vehicle charging points across the eligible area of the Programme i.e. the North, border counties of Ireland and the West of Scotland by 31 March 2023.

The exact location of all installation points has yet to be finalised, but the greatest majority of these will be distributed on the island of Ireland.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she can confirm that (i) the planning permissions for (a) Mullavilly; (b) Drumkee; and (c) Kells Battery Energy Storage Facilities were for 50MW; and (ii) they were assessed in accordance with all criteria listed in 7.2 of the EU Directive 2009/72/EC, as highlighted in (a) the Department for the Economy's Guidance on Article 39 Applications; and (b) also in accordance with Schedule 2 of the Planning Development Management Regulations 2015 for major applications of regional significance with an Environmental Impact Assessment and pre-application community consultation.

Ms Mallon: The planning permissions referred to by the member are assumed from the descriptions given, to be –

- Mullavilly - LA08/2018/0851/F granted on 21 September 2018
- Drumkee – LA09/2018/0803/F granted on 08 October 2018
- Kells – LA03/2018/0984/F granted on 27 November 2019 PAC

These applications were processed and determined by Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon council, Mid Ulster Council and Antrim and Newtownabbey Council respectively, with the latter being approved on appeal by the Planning Appeals Commission.

Accordingly, the confirmation you seek should be requested from these respective authorities.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) for her assessment of the NI Audit Office finding in their report Generating Electricity from Renewable Energy that accredited wind-based and anaerobic digestion-based generating stations in receipt of Renewables Obligation Certificates were operating without planning permission or had not complied with certain conditions set out within their planning approval; (ii) what shortcomings have been identified by her Department that led to this happening; and (iii) how her Department will address these issues.

Ms Mallon: The recently published NIAO report 'Generating Electricity from Renewable Energy' was focussed on the Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation (NIRO) scheme under the Department for Economy. It is possible that this report will be the subject of a Public Accounts Committee hearing and, in line with established conventions, it would not be appropriate for me to comment in detail on its findings until the Public Accounts Committee has had an opportunity to consider the report.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to her Department's engagement with City of Derry Airport, for an update on plans to provide additional financial support for the airport until March 2021.

Ms Mallon: As Minister for Infrastructure my main powers relating to NI's three main airports are set down in the Airports (NI) Order 1994. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

To help City of Derry Airport (CODA) and Belfast City Airport deal with the Covid-19 crisis, the Executive agreed in April a support package of funding assistance of up to £5.7m over 3 months, with the Executive meeting half of the costs and the UKG Department for Transport (DfT) meeting the other half. The funding was channelled through my Department for expediency and logistical reasons. I agreed to the Department acting as a payment conduit for the Executive for the original funding and that this arrangement could continue for any further short to medium term funding.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, the Finance and Economy Ministers, on maintaining air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Officials from my Department are liaising with their counterparts in the Department of Finance to consider the potential for further short term funding for City of Derry Airport. In addition, I am due to meet with CODA, alongside Executive colleagues given our shared responsibilities, to hear the airport's urgent concerns during the continuing crisis.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the engagement she has had with residents living in and around the Casement Park area in relation to its development.

Ms Mallon: I have had no direct engagement with residents living in and around the Casement Park area in relation to its development. I have however corresponded in writing with a local opposition group and my officials have responded at my request to a number of individuals who had written to me directly.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her decision to grant planning permission for sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area includes retrospective permission for extractions that have already taken place.

(AQW 8735/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My decision to grant planning permission for sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area does not include retrospective permission for extractions that have already taken place.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail her plans for (i) park and ride schemes; (ii) cycle schemes; and (iii) other environmental initiatives being developed to alleviate air pollution around the Casement Park area.

(AQW 8766/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am committed to developing sustainable transport projects to support the green recovery and the expansion of the Park and Ride programme is an integral part of my commitment to encourage the use of public transport alternatives for commuting. Connecting communities and encouraging more active travel, will in turn help to create a cleaner environment and tackle the impact of climate change, cutting down on traffic congestion, and reducing air pollution.

My Department carried out a feasibility of active travel routes through the whole area of west Belfast with a view to feeding into a final Belfast Bicycle Network document, which I plan to publish later this year. This will include a plan of routes which will connect west Belfast to the city centre and beyond.

The GAA has also proposed a number of measures to mitigate the transport impact of redeveloping Casement Park, as outlined in their recent planning application.

The Department for Infrastructure (DfI) also continues to identify, plan and implement measures to promote and enable a shift onto more sustainable modes of transport to reduce emissions and improve air quality. My officials continue to support Councils to help them deliver on their Air Quality Action Plans. Working in tandem with Councils' Local Development Plan processes, the intention is to encourage new development where people can walk, cycle or use public transport, making use of existing or new transport facilities planned by DfI and providing opportunities to reduce congestion and emissions.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether driving tests booked for during the four weeks from Friday 16 October will be able to proceed.

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on Translink's contactless ticketing solutions.
(AQW 8793/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Translink currently offers multiple contactless ticketing options to customers such as the use of credit/debit cards in Translink ticket offices, at all Glider ticketing vending machines (TVMs) and on the train from conductors. Other contactless options available are on the Translink mobile ticketing app, existing smartcard products and online purchase of tickets via the Translink website. Translink is expanding the existing contactless ticketing options for customers and is developing and planning for a rollout of TVMs at bus stations, rail stations and park & ride facilities this year.

Further planned improvements include offering passengers contactless credit & debit card payments on buses and trains with daily and weekly capping of fares. These will be available on both on Metro and Ulsterbus services by the end of 2021 and on all other services and by mid 2022.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has explored Mobility-as-a-Service as a service technology.

Ms Mallon: The future of mobility has been identified as one of four key areas, alongside electrification of vehicles, alternative fuels and modal shift, in the work my Department is undertaking in contribution to the Department for the Economy's Energy Strategy.

Mobility as a Service is an emerging measure, linking public and private transport options, including active modes, using information and mobile phone positioning technology and could have an important role to play in how, access to, and knowledge of, the availability of all modes transport can be improved.

The way we are working is changing and reliance on digitalisation is becoming more evident. My Department will be considering how digital technology can be used to prevent unnecessary journeys and consider how these new platforms can provide the capability for people to tap into new transport solutions, providing equality of opportunity across societal groupings.

These solutions may not necessarily be able to be delivered by the transport sector alone but could play a key role in reducing demand for travel and associated energy.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 34826/11-15 (i) how unauthorised sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area went undetected for so long; (ii) whether a decision was taken at the time of designation as a European site against enforcement against breaches of planning and European law; and (iii) whether she will order an independent review of the historic handling of the breach of planning control in order that lessons may be learned.
(AQW 8796/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The extraction of sand on Lough Neagh is understood to have been occurring for several decades and indeed appears to predate the current planning system in Northern Ireland. As Minister Durkan explained in AQW 34826/11-15 it is unclear from the Department's records what decisions were made concerning the pursuit of any potential enforcement action and who was responsible for taking decision concerning this.

However, formal enforcement action did commence in 2015 and my Department has followed the direction of the court and the decisions and recommendation of the Planning Appeals Commission to regularise and control this development. I have no plans at present to commence a review into the historic handling of this matter.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will (i) increase charging facilities to balance the ratio of electric vehicle owners to available charging points; and (ii) repair existing broken charging points.
(AQW 8797/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The e-car public charge point network is owned, operated and maintained by the Electricity Supply Board (ESB) and the market is also now open to other commercial operators who would wish to provide charging infrastructure. My Department has recently been engaging with ESB on their plans to upgrade and improve the reliability of the existing public network. My Department also closely monitors funding opportunities for the installation of additional infrastructure including rapid charging.

The FASTER project proposes to install EV Rapid Chargers in Ireland and Scotland. Whilst there is no confirmation yet of numbers, there are hopes this could mean over 20 new Rapid Chargers heading to the North.

I recently announced my intention to bring forward proposals to assist the expansion of the recharging infrastructure for electric vehicles by providing additional permitted development rights. These allow works to proceed without the need to apply for planning permission. I intend to bring the proposals to the Infrastructure Committee in the coming weeks.

I fully recognise the importance of having modern, reliable public electric vehicle charging infrastructure in providing confidence for users of ultra-low emission vehicles and in respect of the connectivity improvements this would bring. I am committed to seeing this infrastructure increased as part of my Department's climate change action and I have agreed with the DAERA Minister to work collaboratively to promote the use of electric vehicles and specifically to improve the charge point network.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail her Department's policy criteria for the repair of potholes on carriageways under the current roads maintenance safety standards.

Ms Mallon: Article 8 of the Roads (Northern Ireland) Order 1993 places a duty on my Department to maintain all public roads in reasonable condition. We fulfil this duty by complying with a set of Maintenance Standards for Safety. These standards are designed to ensure a consistent service level across the network and safe highways for all road users.

My Department utilises a system of regular inspections of the road network. Inspection frequencies vary between daily cycles for motorways to six monthly for carriageways carrying low volumes of traffic. Our current standards specify a range of response times for the repair of defects, depending on factors such as their severity and the volume of traffic on the road. Response times range from one calendar day for the most serious defects, to periods of five working days and four weeks for less serious defects. However, if it becomes apparent that the relevant response time cannot be met, then my Department has the option of installing signs to warn road users of a possible danger.

In 2020/21, as was the case in 2019/20, the highest priority road defects will continue to be fixed across the entire road network. Safety related defects greater than 50mm depth are being repaired across all roads and, on high traffic roads in both urban and rural locations, defects greater than 20mm are also being repaired.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on flood prevention measures in Sion Mills.

(AQW 8823/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is carrying out a feasibility study to assess the level of flood risk at Sion Mills and to determine if a viable flood alleviation scheme could be taken forward. It is anticipated that the feasibility study will now be completed by January 2021.

My Department continues to carry out weekly inspection and clearance of the designated watercourse inlet structures within the Sion Mills area. In addition, officials are liaising with Derry City and Strabane District Council on a suitable location for a sandbag store within the immediate Sion Mills area.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the traffic calming schemes in the Upper Bann constituency assessed by the Road Service; (ii) the date they were assessed; and (iii) where each rank in terms of priority, over the last five years.

Ms Mallon: Due to budget reductions over a number of years, my Department no longer has a specific budget for traffic calming schemes and within Roads Southern Division, which includes the Upper Bann constituency, traffic calming solutions are now assessed as part of a suite of engineering measures available within the Local Transport and Safety Measures programme.

An initial assessment of any received safety improvement requests is carried out in line with Departmental policy and procedures to ensure that any identified road safety issues are addressed using the most appropriate engineering methods available and this could include a traffic calming solution or indeed other solutions. Given this approach, a prioritised list of assessed traffic calming schemes is no longer maintained.

However I can advise that, over the last 5 years within the Upper Bann Constituency, there have been a number of traffic calming schemes assessed and subsequently implemented. This includes schemes at Main Street, Donaghcloney; at Kiln Lane, Drumgor Road and Moyraverty Road in Craigavon; and at Ballyeden Meadows in Magheralin.

Details of all roads schemes for each Council area are included in the annual DfI Roads report to local councils; the report to Armagh City, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council is expected to issue in the coming weeks and the historical reports are also available online via the following link: <https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/publications>

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the traffic calming measures planned for the Upper Bann constituency over the next two years; and (ii) the date they are to commence.

(AQW 8828/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department implements traffic calming measures as part of a suite of engineering measures available within its Local Transport and Safety Measures programme. I can advise that there are currently no traffic calming measures planned for the Upper Bann constituency during the current financial year. The work programme for next financial year has not yet been determined and its content will take account of the prioritisation of schemes at that time and the level of funding available to me.

Details of proposed roads schemes in each Council area are contained in the DfI Roads report to local councils; the report to Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon Council, which includes Upper Bann constituency, is expected to issue in the coming weeks.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she intends to adopt the Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan in the current mandate.

(AQW 8864/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Whilst the adoption of the Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan was found to be unlawful by the High Court and Court of Appeal, it remains in draft form. The draft plan, and all representations received to it, together with the Planning Appeals Commission inquiry reports, continue to be material considerations to be weighted by the decision maker in the determination of planning applications.

Draft BMAP also provides a more up to date evidence base for the creation of local development plans by councils. I am also mindful that of the five councils within the area covered by draft dBMAP, four have published a draft Plan Strategy for their respective areas.

My officials will be briefing me on options in relation to draft BMAP shortly.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has any planned road improvements, including safety measures, for the Park Road junction with the Mallusk Road in Mallusk village.

(AQW 8917/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am advised that onsite observations show that, although the junction is busy during peak times, no major delays or congestion occurs. This junction also has a relatively good safety record with only 2 recorded minor injury collisions within the last 5 years. Therefore my Department has no current plans to take forward any road improvements or safety measures at the Mallusk Road / Park Road junction at this time.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for Infrastructure what consideration she has given to adding buses to city centre bus routes which serve schools, including the Glider, from 2 November in order to stop crowding and enable distancing to be maintained during peak hours.

Ms Mallon: I recognise that many pupils rely on our public transport network to travel to and from school. The safety of passengers on public transport remains a key priority for me as we tackle the worrying increase in COVID-19 cases and most likely, a challenging winter ahead.

Translink drivers are required to monitor and report any capacity issues on their vehicles and, where maximum capacity has been reached, encourage customers to board the next vehicle. On Glider and Metro routes, which serve large numbers of school children, additional dedicated school services have already been operational since the start of the school term in September.

I have also approved the addition of over 500 bus services to supplement the public transport network to facilitate social distancing for all passengers, including school children. Translink closely monitors passenger loadings and where there is a consistent requirement for extra capacity, additional services are introduced into the schedule. This ongoing monitoring will continue when the schools resume on 2 November 2020.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether further roll out of parklets in town centres will not be considered until the Ormeau Road pilot scheme has been in place and subject to a full evaluation.

Ms Mallon: Since becoming Minister I have made clear my desire to change the way we use our roads and streets and make sure they work for the whole community including residents and businesses alike. The Ormeau Road parklet scheme was promoted and developed by Belfast Buildings Trust and their partners and formally launched on 12th October 2020. My Department contributed funding towards the construction of the parklet as well as the supply and installation of the associated bespoke cycle parking.

The Ormeau Parklet is a trial project to temporarily turn a small number of on-street parking spaces into outdoor space for cafes and restaurants and support physical distancing, in response to Covid-19 pressures.

I am very keen to support the development of parklets right across the North. Where Councils develop parklet proposals in consultation with local stakeholders and secure their support, my Department will work with them to deliver on the proposals at the earliest opportunity.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, following their inclusion in works programmes for the 2019/20 financial year, when pedestrian refuge islands with associated (i) signage; (ii) tactile paving; and (iii) central hatching road markings are due to be completed along Belfast Road, Bangor.

Ms Mallon: An initial assessment of pedestrian movements along the Belfast Road in Bangor, in the vicinity of the Springfield flyover, indicated there was merit in giving more detailed consideration for potential provision of a crossing facility of some type (controlled push button, puffin type crossing, or uncontrolled refuge islands). Details of plans to undertake a scheme were in fact included in the 2019/20 Roads Council Report to Ards and North Down Borough Council.

Crossings must adhere to certain standards to ensure safety and visibility for road users and pedestrians. My Department has considered a number of options at this site, however, unfortunately due a number of factors including proximity of junctions and locations of businesses and accesses, it was not possible to identify a safe and suitable location for a pedestrian crossing.

Consequently the 2020/21 Roads Council Report does not include a scheme within the current work programme, however, my officials will continue their efforts to identify and assess potential locations for crossings facilities that address the needs of pedestrians and improve the safety of all road users on the Belfast Road adjacent to Springfield flyover.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure to define an unauthorised and rogue quarry, as referred to by her Department in the Strategic Planning Group minutes of September 2018.

Ms Mallon: In Planning terms, an unauthorised quarry is considered to be one that is operating without the requisite planning permission.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans her Department has to upgrade the footpath at Main Road, Cloughey, to complement the portion improved as part of the Village Renewal Scheme.

(AQW 8974/17-22)

Ms Mallon: All roads within the adopted road network are regularly monitored through my Department's cyclic inspection regime and any defects meeting current intervention thresholds are recorded and actioned for repair in accordance with current road maintenance standards for safety.

The footways along Main Road in Cloughey have been adopted and are therefore subject to the afore-mentioned inspection regime. My officials do not consider the present condition of the footways to be at a level which would necessitate reconstruction and therefore there are no plans to carry out works to upgrade the footway at this time.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure when her Department plans to complete the resurfacing of Springfield Road, Portavogie from Anchor Car Park to Seaview Court.

Ms Mallon: The proposal for the resurfacing of this section of Springfield Road, Portavogie had not been advanced up to now as NI Water had indicated plans to carry out works in this area. However NI Water have recently concluded that these works are no longer required and I am therefore pleased to be able to confirm that Springfield Road will be added to the reserve list of resurfacing schemes and works will be carried out when funding becomes available.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of how a pupil, who has their driving test booked for 16 November, will be up to test standard if they have not had a lesson for nearly five weeks.

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close until 13 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

It is recommended that learner drivers should be able to drive safely without prompting from their driving instructor, or the person helping them to practise, before they book their practical driving test. Learner drivers are encouraged to record their progress in learning to drive using the DVA's 'Driver Record' which is freely available here: www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/planning-and-recording-how-you-learn-drive.

While driving instruction has been suspended during this period of increased restrictions, it may still be possible for learner drivers to continue to practise their driving, provided they and their supervising driver are from the same household.

Candidates who are concerned that they will not be ready for their driving test when testing resumes should contact the DVA to cancel their driving test, obtain a refund and rebook their test whenever the booking service reopens.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Newtownstewart bypass walkway.

(AQW 8987/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that my Department has received a number of requests for a footway along the A5 Newtownstewart bypass which it is recognised would largely facilitate recreational walking. Officials have investigated provision of a footway at this location however it is not possible to achieve the necessary design standards, including separation of a footway from the carriageway, within the existing road boundaries.

Constraints include insufficient verge width, the location of vehicle restraint barriers adjacent to significant side slopes and most importantly insufficient width on both bridges. It is therefore not currently considered economically viable to provide a footway that would meet current standards, and reduced standards would not be considered appropriate adjacent to a busy road that carries a national speed limit of 60mph. I have however asked my officials to keep this situation under review.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on a proposed footbridge for Newtownstewart.
(AQW 8988/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials are not aware of any proposal to provide a footbridge in Newtownstewart. I would be pleased to receive any additional information that may help to bring clarity to this matter.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Infrastructure what discussions her Department has had with the Housing Executive regarding (i) crime prevention; and (ii) environmental improvement measures for the Seven Hills area in the New Lodge.
(AQW 9011/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department has not had any specific discussions with the Housing Executive on either of these issues. However my officials have in the past attended multi-agency meetings, particularly in relation to unwanted bonfires, in which these matters would have also been discussed.

In relation to crime prevention, I understand that alley-gating of walkways in Pinkerton has been suggested as one of the available measures that might reduce anti-social behaviour. Alley-gating across Belfast is managed by Belfast City Council in liaison with my Department. A site meeting with Council officials took place in January 2020 to consider this issue and I am advised the assessment at that time was that alley-gating would not be appropriate for these walkways due to their more general public use.

Whilst the Department for Communities leads on environmental improvement schemes, my Departmental officials are available to offer advice and assistance as and when requested to do so.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans she has to expand the gully cleaning programme in the Limavady area before winter.
(AQW 9018/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department aims to clean all road gullies once per year in accordance with our current maintenance guidelines. Gully cleaning has already begun with the intention of having all of the approximately 17,000 gullies in the Limavady area cleaned by the end of March 2021, using a combination of both inhouse resources and external contractors.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she plans to modernise the water and sewerage systems in Limavady.
(AQW 9019/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have been advised by NI Water that investment of approximately £4m is scheduled for the upgrade of the Limavady sewer network. This investment will be undertaken, subject to funding being available, through the Price Control 21 (2021 – 2027) investment programme agreed between NI Water and the Utility Regulator. This is a high priority project to address sewer capacity and development constraints affecting the town. The preparation work for this will start during this financial year.

There are currently no specific plans to upgrade the water infrastructure in Limavady. However, NI Water does have active programmes for watermains rehabilitation and lead pipe replacement across Northern Ireland.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether any lead pipe work remains in the supply of water to private residences.
(AQW 9020/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am advised by NI Water that lead pipe work remains within its supply network and the private supply pipe work of customer's homes.

NI Water has proactively replaced almost 11,000 lead pipes, in response to a target set by the Utility Regulator, during its PC15 (2015/16-2020/21) programme of works. This forms part of NI Water's overall lead strategy to reduce lead in drinking water. The Utility Regulator has set NI Water a new target for its PC21 (2021-2027) programme of works. The target set for PC15 and PC21 was agreed with various stakeholders including the Drinking Water Inspectorate, Utility Regulator, Consumer Council for NI and my Department. To date NI Water has achieved the PC15 target.

In addition to NI Water's proactive programme, lead communication pipes are also replaced where there has been a lead sample failure, at the request of a customer (when they replace their private supply pipe), and opportunistically during water mains rehabilitation. Other initiatives during PC15 have included NI Water's joint work with the education authorities to replace lead pipes supplying schools and nurseries.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans there are to ensure Translink buses and trains will (i) adopt new technology future proofing; and (ii) meet any new emission standards.

Ms Mallon:

- (i) The procurement of all public transport vehicles will incorporate optimum future technology to decarbonise the rail and bus network.
- (ii) I am committed to providing a low, and eventually zero, emissions public service. All new buses and trains will, as a minimum, meet the latest European emission standards. Many of the new buses that Translink purchases already exceed this standard through the incorporation of micro hybrid technology and Translink is actively developing programmes to introduce zero emission vehicles in to the Belfast and Derry fleets.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure what inspection and maintenance plans there are to address overgrown areas of embankments on the River Roe.

Ms Mallon: My Department carries out inspections of the flood defences on the River Roe on an annual basis and the grass on the flood defences is cut prior to any inspections. Any works identified in the inspections are prioritised so that they can be planned and taken forward. The last flood defence inspections were carried out in February 2020 and my Department plans to carry out works to the flood defences on the River Roe in the 2021/2022 financial year.

My Department has also recently completed works in September of this year to repair the flood defences on the River Roe at Limavady Rugby and Cricket Club.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the development of the new park and ride at Drumahoe.

(AQW 9027/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am pleased to be able to confirm that construction of the new park and ride facility at Drumahoe, part of the A6 Dungiven to Drumahoe Dualling scheme, is almost complete and officials are working closely with the contractor to determine the date on which it will become operational.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure why Gransha Road, Bangor was resurfaced when there appeared to be nothing wrong with the road surface.

Ms Mallon: The Roads (Northern Ireland) Order 1993 places a duty on my Department to maintain all public roads and footways in reasonable condition to ensure that these assets remain safe and serviceable for users. To this end, a system of regular safety inspections is undertaken to ensure that essential responsive maintenance is identified and completed as necessary.

In determining the need for road resurfacing, factors including road usage, general surface condition and structural deformation are considered in the preparation and prioritisation of the Department's annual reconstruction and resurfacing programme. This inspection and road condition assessment process confirmed Gransha Road was in poor condition and as such it was included in this year's programme.

I am pleased to advise that work on laying the final surface layer is underway and the scheme will be completed shortly.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Infrastructure when she plans to allocate funding to NI Water to upgrade the wastewater treatment works in (i) Castle Archdale; (ii) Ederney; (iii) Garrison; (iv) Belleek; and (v) Enniskillen, Co.Fermanagh.

(AQW 9074/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The table below sets out recent and proposed capital investment by NI Water at the five named wastewater treatment works. NI Water is not currently planning any capital investment to upgrade these wastewater treatment works within the coming six year price control period 2021-2027 (PC21).

Castle Archdale	These works received significant investment (ca £1 million) in PC15 (2015 to 2021) to deliver a sustainable Integrated Constructed Wetland serving the area. This was a PC15 Nominated Output WwTW project. Investment during the 6 year PC21 period (2021-2027), other than base maintenance is not anticipated by NI Water.
Ederney	A PC15 capital upgrade for this works was delivered in 2018 delivering £315k of investment. Investment during the 6 year PC21 period (2021-2027), other than base maintenance is not anticipated by NI Water.
Garrison	Investment during the 6 year PC21 period, other than base maintenance, is not anticipated by NI Water.

Belleek	Investment during the 6 year PC21 period, other than base maintenance, is not anticipated by NI Water.
Enniskillen	Investment during the 6 year PC21 period, other than base maintenance, is not anticipated by NI Water. However investment in the sewerage network is anticipated to take place within the first four years of PC21, with delivery completed by the end of March 2025 (subject to adequate funding of NI Water's PC21 Business Plan).

NI Water is suffering from historic underfunding. If this was to continue, the company would be unable to address the majority of wastewater service issues that are constraining economic development in many locations, and it would lead to increasing occurrences of failed environment compliance.

The Utility Regulator published its PC21 Draft Determination on 30 September 2020, indicating a capital allocation for NI Water of just short of £2bn, against actual capital funding over the PC15 period of around £940m. Therefore, the forward look into PC21 is likely to be very challenging. I will continue to make the case for increased funding for our water and waste water infrastructure to the Finance Minister and Executive colleagues.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given her Department's oversight and scrutiny role, whether she has any concerns as to how planning permission for CO2 tanks at the port of Warrenpoint was granted by Newry, Mourne and Down District Council (LA07/2015/0056/F) (i) through delegated powers of decision making; (ii) without a Habitats Regulations Assessment; and (iii) without transboundary notification.

Ms Mallon: This planning application was determined by Newry, Mourne & Down District Council on 21 October 2015. The obligations for the management of such a local application are laid out in legislation and it is a matter for a district council, in its role as local planning authority, to satisfy itself that these obligations have been met.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will safely increase testing capacity when it restarts in order to help address the increased backlog of driving tests.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in her Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

(AQW 9124/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that all officials within my Department are working from home, unless they are unable to do so.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment on the Utility Regulator's draft determination of the funding for NI Water's PC21 Business Plan.

(AQW 9136/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am very supportive of the role of the Utility Regulator as it provides an independent assessment of the level of funding necessary to deliver a high quality and cost effective water and waste water service in the North.

The challenges laid out in the Draft Determination are significant. It highlights the legacy impact of historic underfunding of the water infrastructure in the North, particularly with respect to wastewater assets. It is estimated that it will take three fully funded Price Controls to fully address these issues.

The PC21 Draft Determination proposes a requirement of nearly £2bn in capital budget, to invest in the major infrastructure improvements which our people deserve. This is against a Public Expenditure budget allocation of around £940m in the current Price Control. This is a significant increase which will present a challenge for the Executive, but without that level of funding, NI Water will not be able to deliver the water and wastewater service improvement required to sustain good public health, help the economy recover and protect our environment.

The Utility Regulator, Northern Ireland Water and my officials continue to work on these issues in the run up to the publication of the Final Determination in March 2021. This work is complicated by the need to assess costs associated with EU Exit and Covid-19.

I will also be meeting with the Finance Minister to discuss this pressing need for investment.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how much was spent on pop-up walking and cycling infrastructure during lockdown; and (ii) how this was specifically allocated, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 9137/17-22)

Ms Mallon: For the period 1 April 2020 to 30 September 2020 £240,000 was spent on pop up walking and cycling infrastructure to aid social distancing during lockdown: £211,000 of this was spent in Belfast and £29,000 in Derry. Expenditure is not recorded on a constituency basis.

I have written to all Councils seeking details of their priority projects for walking and cycling measures in their areas and this includes their ideas for pop-up infrastructure. I want to work with Councils to deliver projects that will make a real difference to their communities.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how she plans to alleviate the long list of applicants waiting for their driving tests.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close until 13 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many applicants in the West Tyrone constituency have booked and are awaiting completion of their driving test.

(AQW 9140/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The number of driving test applications is a National Statistic and as such must be released in accordance with the UK Official Statistics Code of Practice. To comply with this code, the Department cannot publicly release figures that are within the scope of National Statistics reporting beyond the latest published statistics.

The 'DfI Driver, Vehicle, Operator and Enforcement National Statistics' report is published on a quarterly basis with the latest edition covering the period from 1 April to 30 June 2020. Driving test statistics are presented in quarterly or monthly schedules, dependent on the volumes in question.

Given recent public interest in these statistics, the Department has recently introduced a new publication providing provisional monthly statistics on vehicle, driving and theory tests conducted. DVA statisticians published the first edition on 15 October, relating to September 2020, which is available on the Department's website. Application statistics will be added to the November publication and will include figures for the October period.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the delivery of a COVID-19 financial support scheme for the (i) taxi sector; (ii) haulage sector; (iii) private coach sector; and (iv) driving instructors.

Ms Mallon: The First Minister and deputy First Minister asked for my assessment as to whether exceptional circumstances existed within these sectors which would enable a bespoke financial support scheme to be set up under the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009.

Following an assessment of the evidence available and engagement with the sectors, I wrote to the First Minister and deputy First Minister on 23rd October, advising that, in my view, exceptional circumstances do exist for the taxi and private bus and coach sectors. I asked them to consider whether a Determination and Designation should be made urgently to enable financial assistance schemes to be developed for the sectors.

Powers have since been conferred on me by the First Minister and deputy First Minister. I will now seek the necessary support and funding from the Executive to swiftly progress support packages for the taxi, private bus & coach sectors and my officials are continuing to work on the development and roll out of the schemes.

Despite initial concerns raised by the haulage sector, and while circumstances remain difficult, the evidence does not support the exceptional circumstances which would be needed to set up a bespoke support scheme. That said, I will continue to keep the matter under review and I remain keen to provide them with the support that I can within my role. They have been advised of my decision.

Driving instructors will be able to avail of support under the Department for Economy's recently announced 'Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme'.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she is aware of the recent NI Audit Office report on renewable energy in Northern Ireland, which revealed a very high level of subsidy payments to wind farm owners.

(AQW 9153/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am aware of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report. This recently published report 'Generating Electricity from Renewable Energy' was focussed on the Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation (NIRO) scheme under the Department for Economy. It is possible that this report will be the subject of a Public Accounts Committee hearing and, in line with established conventions, it would not be appropriate for me to comment on its findings until the Public Accounts Committee has had an opportunity to consider the report.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to the findings of the NI Audit Office's investigation into the levels of subsidies paid to the owners of wind turbines, whether she will refuse all further planning applications for wind farms in Northern Ireland.

Ms Mallon: It is possible that the NIAO report will be the subject of a Public Accounts Committee hearing and, in line with established conventions, it would not be appropriate for me to comment in detail on its findings until the Public Accounts Committee has had an opportunity to consider the report. In relation to any future wind farm applications to be determined by my Department, each one will be considered on the basis of its individual merits and in line with extant legislative and policy requirements.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what budget has been allocated for the provision of bus shelters in this financial year.

Ms Mallon: In 2020/21, Translink has a capital budget of £300,000 for the refurbishment and erection of new bus shelters.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the timescale for the commencement of a strategic review of the Transport Regulation Unit; and (ii) the terms of reference of that review.

(AQW 9156/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department intends to complete a strategic review of its role in the licensing and regulation of goods vehicle operators in Northern Ireland as soon as possible. However, due to the significant backlog of public inquiries, and the immediate impact this is having on the road freight industry, the Department's primary objective is to clear the backlog.

The review is intended to set out a clear vision of the role, responsibilities and functions of Transport Regulation Unit in the enactment of my Department's wider regulatory responsibilities and the terms of reference will be finalised in due course.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, with regard to winter and public safety, whether she plans to increase the level of street light repairs.

Ms Mallon: I am pleased to be able to confirm that I have allocated a budget of £5m for street lighting maintenance for the current financial year. This funding will allow for delivery of a full street lighting repair service by my Department. Typically repairs will take up to 5 working days, however, there may be slight delays in some areas due to the impact on staff numbers associated with the Covid 19 pandemic.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure, when a sewerage system is listed at capacity in an area, to detail the grounds that NI Water, as a statutory consultee, will or will not recommend a major housing application for approval.

Ms Mallon: NI Water is a statutory consultee in the planning process and, when an application is received for an area in which the sewerage infrastructure is at, or nearing, capacity NI Water will consider carefully before making a recommendation.

In some cases, it may be possible to recommend approval of the application, based on certain information, for example:

Where developers can demonstrate (including calculations, where applicable):

- Extant, previously approved, development (where NI Water has given a positive response).
- Like for like development - i.e. on a brown field development site where the discharge from the proposed development is similar to the former development site discharge.
- Reduced hydraulic loading - i.e. on a brown field development, which will offer a reduced loading on the receiving sewer network. This may include storm separation and/or attenuation (may be subject to Article 154).
- The provision of a temporary Wastewater Treatment Works (WwTW) by the developer to treat sewage discharge until the public wastewater system can be upgraded. The construction, operation and maintenance of this temporary WwTW will be the responsibility of the developer and will be subject to receiving the required statutory approvals. This WwTW cannot be offered to NI Water for adoption.
- The provision of a permanent WwTW by the developer to treat sewage discharge. This WwTW will be subject to receiving the required statutory approvals and can be offered to NI Water for adoption in accordance with current NI Water adoption procedures.
- Where NI Water and the developer have agreed a downstream engineering solution to mitigate the capacity issues and allow connection for the development proposal. This solution is to be fully funded and delivered by the developer and would normally be a Condition applied to approval.

However, in some cases, a recommendation to refuse the application will need to be made, based on certain information, for example:

- The receiving WwTW has no capacity. This means that the WwTW is operating beyond the capacity for which it was designed, and the works is operating in breach or is at risk of breaching its Water Order discharge consents standard that is issued by Environmental Regulator, Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA).
- The receiving WwTWs catchment has no capacity which is confirmed by Drainage Area Plan (DAP) Model data or a localised Network Capacity Check also utilising DAP Model data. Indicators of lack of capacity within a catchment can also include Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharges (UIDs) events, terminal or other wastewater pumping stations (WwPS) operating in breach of Water Order consent, and properties are at risk to internal flooding.
- An application may also be refused based on outcomes from a Wastewater Network Screening Tool, used where DAP Model data is not available. This process will require a Network Capacity Check to confirm actual capacity of the network and the developer is encouraged to consult with NI Water to ascertain whether any necessary alternative drainage/treatment solutions can be agreed.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure what are the grounds for determining whether a sewerage system is at capacity.

(AQW 9211/17-22)

Ms Mallon: NI Water has confirmed that a sewerage system can be determined as 'at capacity' if the receiving wastewater treatment works (WwTW) has no capacity and/or if the receiving WwTW catchment has no capacity.

The receiving WwTW is determined as having no capacity if the existing population equivalent (PE) served exceeds design population equivalent and the works operates in breach, or is at risk of breaching its Water Order discharge consents standard that is issued by Environmental Regulator, Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA).

The receiving WwTW catchment is determined as having no capacity if it is confirmed by Drainage Area Plan (DAP) Model data or by a localised Network Capacity Check, also utilising DAP Model data. Where DAP Models do not exist, indicators of lack of capacity within a catchment include:

- * Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharges (UIDs) - Where a Combined Sewer Overflow (CSO) operates in breach of its Water Order consent (i.e. excessive number of spills and/or volume of spills) and after discussions and agreement with NIEA, a CSO is classified as a UID.
- * Terminal or other Wastewater Pumping Stations (WwPS) operating in breach of Water Order consent i.e. excessive number of overflow events and/or volume of spills. Overflows from these facilities can also be classified as UIDs.
- * Properties subject to internal flooding caused by overloaded sewers, confirmed by detailed investigations.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the occasions; and (ii) the locations in South Belfast where contaminated water from sewers has entered the river system, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 9212/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am advised by NI Water that it is currently aware of 18 Combined Sewer Overflows (CSOs) that are classified as unsatisfactory in the South Belfast area. The Company does not have monitoring equipment throughout its sewer network, and therefore cannot identify the occasions when the CSOs spill. Work is underway, however, to build a model for predicting spills from sewerage infrastructure which will be used to assess the spill frequency of CSOs and identify future sewer upgrades.

Through the Living With Water Programme, my officials are developing a strategic drainage infrastructure plan for the greater Belfast area. The draft plan will indicate that around £1.4bn of investment is needed over the next 12 years to upgrade the drainage and wastewater infrastructure in the greater Belfast area to: protect against flooding; enhance the environment; and allow growth in the economy. This includes addressing around 50% of the 340 estimated CSOs that have been assessed as being unsatisfactory across the sewerage network in the greater Belfast area. Development of the draft plan for Belfast is ongoing, with public consultation to commence in November 2020.

The Table below lists the 18 CSO locations with Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharge points in South Belfast.

South Belfast Constituency Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharges

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the average annual maintenance cost per house to her Department for sewerage treatment works installed by developers on sites, as opposed to the general sewerage system.

(AQW 9213/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am advised by NI Water that it has not adopted any sewerage treatment works installed by developers on sites, and therefore is not in a position to provide the costs detail as described. NI Water is in the early stages of adopting a small number of waste water treatment plants installed by developers, but as yet has no costs.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will carry out an assessment for traffic calming measures for College Gardens, Newry.

Ms Mallon: My Department recognises the importance of road safety measures and is committed to exploring solutions that deliver better for communities and improve lives across the North. I have requested that College Gardens, Newry is added to the existing list of locations that my officials are assessing for possible provision of traffic calming measures in accordance with our established framework.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) when she will bring her proposals for financial support for taxi drivers, private bus companies and hauliers to the Executive; and (ii) when she anticipates such a scheme opening.

Ms Mallon: I intend to seek support from the Executive on 29 October to fund the schemes for the taxi and private coach and bus industries.

Despite initial concerns raised by the haulage sector, and while circumstances remain difficult, the evidence did not support the exceptional circumstances which would be needed to set up a bespoke support scheme for this industry.

I anticipate that the scheme for the taxi industry will launch week commencing 9 November and will be an on-line process. The application form, eligibility criteria and guidance will be provided at that time. The scheme for the coach and bus sector will follow as quickly as possible thereafter.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Infrastructure what action her Department is taking to ensure that people that have had driving tests cancelled as a result of additional COVID-19 restrictions, will be prioritised for rebooking when possible.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close until 13 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) when the last full survey of street lights was carried out across the Craigavon District Electoral Area; (ii) how many faults were detected; and (iii) the time scale for repairs to be carried out.

Ms Mallon: I can advise that, due to resource pressures, my Department no longer carries out night time surveys of street lights with the last survey being completed in April 2015. Outages are now picked up through notification from elected representatives or members of the public via the on-line reporting system <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/services/report-street-light-fault> or by telephone on 0300 200 7899.

Typically outage repairs will take up to 5 working days however there currently may be slight delays in some areas due to COVID 19 related impacts on the availability of internal and external contractor personnel.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether there will be (i) longer opening hours at MOT centres to facilitate the back log of MOTs; and (ii) a greater number of Driving Test Examiners and dates made available to facilitate the back log of applications for driving tests.

Ms Mallon: From 20 July, the DVA resumed MOT testing, at all test centres, for priority vehicle groups, including those vehicles that are not able to avail of a Temporary Exemption Certificate (TEC). This includes taxis and buses due a first time test, vehicles not previously registered in Northern Ireland, vehicles whose MOTs have expired by more than 12 months that includes vehicles previously declared SORN and those sold by car dealerships.

From 1 September, MOT testing was further extended to include four year old cars and motorbikes and three year old light goods vehicles. Vehicle testing also resumed for vehicles in this category that currently have a TEC, they will be called for test when the TEC expires. In addition, the DVA also resumed the testing of heavy goods vehicles and trailers.

TECs will continue to be issued for all other eligible vehicles until vehicle testing services can be fully reinstated. Vehicles whose existing MOT certificate expired from 26 March 2020 or will expire before testing for their category resumes will be automatically exempt from testing for a full 12 months, with their new MOT expiry date pushed forward into 2021.

The DVA have no plans at present to extend MOT Centre opening hours as they can currently test all vehicles that require an MOT. However they are currently in the process of recruiting additional examiners and will also use overtime to provide additional capacity and cover for vehicle tests, if due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, examiners are unable to attend work.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the flood studies carried out following the August 2017 flooding in West Tyrone.

(AQW 9291/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As a result of the North West Flood event in 2017 my Department has carried out flood alleviation feasibility studies in the West Tyrone area at Altamuskin Road Sixmilecross, Station Road Artigarvan, Tullyard Bridge Duncastle Road Dunnamanagh, Presbyterian Bridge Burdennett and Castle Brae Road Newtownstewart.

In addition, my Department is carrying out other feasibility studies in the West Tyrone area that do not have their origins in the 2017 flooding. These studies are at Elem Wood Green Castlederg, Sion Mills Village, Strabane Town and at the dry arch of Campsie Bridge, Lower Market Street Omagh.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in instances where an appeal against an Enforcement Notice is withdrawn, whether the period for compliance still runs from the original date the Notice took effect.

Ms Mallon: A person can withdraw an appeal at any time before it is decided. If they do withdraw, the Enforcement Notice will take effect immediately and the time period for compliance with any steps in the notice will run from that date.

This information can also be found on the nidirect website which contains information on Planning Enforcement Notice Appeals –

<https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/planning-enforcement-notice-appeals>

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the annual maintenance spend on (i) roads; and (ii) footpath repair each year since 2015.

(AQW 9318/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The table below provides details of my Department's structural road maintenance budget outturns for all completed financial years since 2015 and the proportion spent on footway repairs:

	2015/16 £k	2016/17 £k	2017/18 £k	2018/19 £k	2019/20 £k
Structural Maintenance	54,123	88,257	69,518	108,525	106,294
Proportion relating to footway repair*	3,814	6,118	3,302	5,745	5,961

*resurfacing and patching

The outturns will have been determined by budget availability and capacity in a given year.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of whether Newry, Mourne and Down District Council should have notified her Department to undertake a transboundary notification and consultation to Louth County Council concerning the recent Nikkon Gas UK and Ireland development.

Ms Mallon: This planning application was determined by Newry, Mourne & Down District Council some time ago on 21 October 2015. I can confirm that my Department has not received a transboundary notification for this application from Newry, Mourne and Down District Council.

The obligations for the management of such a local application are laid out in legislation and it is a matter for a district council, in its role as local planning authority, to satisfy itself that these obligations have been met.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8280/17-22, to detail (i) the average; and (ii) the median response time in days for statutory consultee responses to consultation requests for planning applications, broken down by statutory consultee, for each of the last three years. [R]

Ms Mallon: The table below outlines the mean and median response times (days) to consultation requests for planning applications for key statutory consultees over the last three years.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much funding her Department has committed to the development of the Forth Meadow Greenway, broken down by year.

(AQW 9342/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In my announcement on 16th September 2020 I committed £375K to the Forth Meadow Greenway project – £250K in 2020/21 and £125K in 2021/22. My officials are currently in discussion with the Council about further funding for the project. No allocations have yet been made as the funds are subject to receipt of an approved business case and Department of Finance approval for the making of the capital grant.

Any decision regarding potential funding in the future will depend on budget allocations to the Department in 2021/22 and beyond.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how many driving tests have been cancelled due to the new restrictions; and (ii) when they will be rescheduled.

(AQW 9359/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Approximately 2,500 driving tests have been cancelled during this period. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these new restrictions. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what consideration is being given to extend enforcement action of cars parked on footways beyond where there are parking restrictions on the adjacent carriageway.

Ms Mallon: My Department is committed to increasing the level of sustainable travel in Northern Ireland and I am aware that cars parked inconsiderately on footways present real challenges for footway users, including for people with visual impairment and mobility issues.

Consequently my Department carries out enforcement action against cars parked on footways where there are parking restrictions on the adjacent carriageway. The PSNI also can and does take enforcement action against cars found to be obstructing footways. To promote and encourage compliance, regular reminders of the relevant Highway Code rule on footway parking are posted on our road safety and sustainable travel social media channels.

I am, however, keen to explore if further measures may be necessary and I can confirm that my Department is currently investigating options for dealing with pavement parking on a broader basis.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the planned works at the Orchard Road and Bellspark Road junction, Strabane.

(AQW 9380/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials have designed an alternative layout for the Bellspark Road / Orchard Road junction. The proposed layout will provide a staggered crossroads and enhance visibility both on the approaches to the junction and at the junction itself. Funding is in place to acquire the land required and negotiations are ongoing with landowners.

Delivery of the scheme thereafter will be dependent upon the successful completion of the land acquisition stage and availability of funding.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether consideration is being given to piloting the creation of short-term click and collect on-street parking spaces.

(AQW 9412/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department considers that, in towns and cities across Northern Ireland, parking within Controlled Parking Zones and limited waiting areas already provides customers with the opportunity to use the spaces for any reason and to park for as long as the local restrictions permit. There are therefore no current plans to pilot new parking measures to exclusively serve click and collect customers.

Department of Justice

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice when the Assets Recovery Community Scheme will reopen for applications.

(AQW 8757/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): The current funding round of the Assets Recovery Community Scheme (ARCS) commenced in December 2018 and is due to end on 31 March 2021.

My Department is currently considering options for the administration and scope of ARCS beyond March 2021. As you may be aware, payments against confiscation orders made by the Court following a criminal conviction (where there is associated financial benefit) have been impacted by Covid-19.

The pandemic has also had a significant impact on a range of organisations, some of which are currently in receipt of ARCS funding.

While I remain committed to maintaining the ARCS Scheme, it is predicated on funding from confiscations to maintain it, the future and timing of any new call for applications will therefore need to be considered in that context.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) how expert witnesses involved in private and public family proceedings are trained to identify the difference between parental alienation and estrangement; and (ii) what qualifications they must hold to be classed as an expert witness in this field.

Mrs Long: Policy on alienation is a matter for the Department of Health and where it is suspected in family proceedings, it is for social workers to advise the court which will consider evidence of alienation alongside all other evidence when deciding what is in the best interests of the child. I understand the Department of Health will explore guidance and training for professionals supporting for families experiencing acrimonious dispute and associated negative behaviours as part of work we are progressing to identify means of better supporting the early resolution of parental disputes. I will continue to work collaboratively with Minister Swann to scope and support any future actions. As regards the giving of evidence more generally, it is for experts to satisfy themselves on receiving instructions that they are in a position to comment on the issues arising and early and full disclosure is encouraged to both facilitate the best instructions to experts and ensure they can fully consider all the issues. The court will also wish to satisfy itself as to the expertise of witnesses before it.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice to detail the accessibility of course service information for parents involved in private and public family proceedings.

Mrs Long: There is a range of information and support already available to parties to private and public law proceedings including through the legal aid fund, information for those attending the family courts on NI Direct and forms and guidance on the NICTS website. Communication is a key component of ongoing work with the Department of Health to improve outcomes for families involved in private family law proceedings and further improving the accessibility of information is a current focus for my Department.

My Department is also supporting a Litigant in Person Reference Group which includes representatives of the Department, NICTS, the judiciary, the legal profession, the University of Ulster, the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission and a number of litigants in person. The Group is currently focused on developing supports and information for parties to private law proceedings but I expect that learning will inform the development of information on other types of application in the future.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice to detail how the justice system intends to deal with parental alienation.

Mrs Long: Policy on alienation is a matter for the Department of Health and where it is suspected in family proceedings, it is for social workers to advise the court which will consider evidence of alienation alongside all other evidence when deciding what is in the best interests of the child. I understand the Department of Health will explore guidance and training for professionals supporting for families experiencing acrimonious dispute and associated negative behaviours as part of work we are progressing to identify means of better supporting the early resolution of parental disputes. I will continue to work collaboratively with Minister Swann to scope and support any future actions.

I also expect the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceeding Bill I have brought forward to help. The Bill makes behaviour that is coercive or controlling or which amounts to psychological or emotional abuse a criminal offence. Abusive behaviour can be indirect and where the victim is under 18, a child sees, hears or is present during an incident of abusive behaviour or is used to abuse a victim, the Bill will provide for the offences to be treated as aggravated and increased sentencing may apply. This may assist in cases where alienation is present.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice whether her Department plans to expand the access criteria for legal aid.

Mrs Long: My Department has no current plans to expand the access criteria for legal aid. Like all areas of discretionary government expenditure, legal aid must be targeted towards those who need it most. In the prioritisation of those needs, difficult choices are often required. Eligibility for legal aid funding in civil legal services therefore remains subject to means and merit testing. Although a number of applications are rightly not subject to financial eligibility or merits criteria (primarily public law applications relating to care, supervision and adoption) applications for legal assistance in other civil legal matters are subject to checks and controls. These controls ensure the limited resources available are focused towards ensuring access to justice for those areas of greatest need. The Department seeks to ensure costs to the legal aid fund continue to represent value for money and will keep the matter under review.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Justice how bans on drinking in public places are being enforced.

Mrs Long: Section 90 of the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 gives district councils the power to make bye-laws prohibiting the consumption of intoxicating liquor in designated public places.

Once a council has designated an area, it is an offence to consume consumption of intoxicating liquor in that area. I understand this legislation provides councils and police with the power to take names and addresses of offenders for consideration of prosecution proceedings by councils. Prosecutions can be disposed of by way of a fine up to £500, a conditional discharge or a formal caution. The Department for Communities has responsibility for this piece of legislation.

The police also have additional powers in the Justice Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 to issue fixed penalty notices for a number of public order offences related to public drinking. These provisions allow for fines to be levied for being drunk in a public place, indecent behaviour, disorderly behaviour and behaviour likely to cause a breach of the peace.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice how many prisoners have been moved from the prison estate to Larne House short-term holding facility since 23 March 2020.
(AQW 9148/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Prison Service plays no part in the movement of individuals to Larne House. This is a matter for the Home Office.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Justice why, in late July 2020, she advised the Minister for Infrastructure that the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunal Service would no longer be willing to facilitate hearings required by the the Department for Infrastructure's Transport Regulation Unit.
(AQW 9149/17-22)

Mrs Long: As the Department for Infrastructure's Transport Regulation Unit had previously struggled to obtain suitable accommodation the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service (NICTS) agreed to grant access to courtrooms in Antrim, Ballymena, Lisburn and Newtownards courthouses. However the COVID-19 situation closed a number of these courthouses and the planned hearings were not scheduled.

When the Minister for Infrastructure wrote to me in July 2020 the NICTS were still working through a series of COVID-19 Risk Assessments on operational buildings to ensure that they complied with PHA guidelines on managing the risk of COVID-19 and were safe for staff, judiciary and court users. Consequently it was explained that it was not possible to facilitate DFI hearings at that time.

Courtroom capacity has been significantly reduced as a result of the coronavirus pandemic and the need for social distancing. All non-essential visits to courthouses have ceased and the majority of court and tribunal business is being conducted remotely.

NICTS have been looking at alternative additional accommodation for civil and family hearings, office based staff and jurors. During this process, NICTS have been in contact with DFI colleagues to establish if their requirements can be factored into any additional accommodation leases that might be pursued.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice when the Northern Ireland Prison Service Independent Pay Review Body finding on this year's pay award will be released.

(AQW 9158/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Prison Service Pay Review Body submitted their pre-publication report on 25 September. In line with Northern Ireland Public Sector Pay Guidance, a pay remit has been submitted to the Department of Finance seeking approval for the award.

At the conclusion of this process, I will ask the Prison Service Pay Review Body to publish their report.

Department for the Economy

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the average number of responses to her Department's consultations over the last 5 years.

(AQW 7876/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): My Department has received on average, 321 responses to consultations, over the last five years. However this figure includes one consultation which received 1,149 responses. Without that unusually high response the average would be 287 responses

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy whether any preparations have been made for provision of support to businesses in the event of a short-term circuit breaker lockdown.

(AQW 8178/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 14th October, the Executive announced a four week period of increased restrictions throughout Northern Ireland in an attempt to curb the very worrying spread of Covid-19.

This decision was not taken lightly and was deemed necessary, primarily in response to the latest advice and evidence presented to the Executive by medical and scientific experts, as well as lead officials across a number of relevant policy and operational business areas.

In parallel with this decision on further restrictions, the Finance Minister announced a new support scheme for those businesses that were instructed to close as a consequence. The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) will run for the four weeks of enforced restrictions, at an estimated cost of £35million. This scheme opened to new applications from Monday 19th October.

Further to this, on Thursday 22nd October, I announced an additional support package to help businesses affected by the recent restrictions announced by the Executive.

The Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS) will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS); or
- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted; and
- The business is operating in Northern Ireland and was trading immediately prior to 16 October 2020; and
- The business is not included in the scope of funding already allocated to Executive Departments to respond to Covid restrictions.

The new CRBSS, which also applies for the same four week period, will open for applications as soon as possible. My officials are working with colleagues in InvestNI, who will administer the scheme on our behalf.

In addition, I have asked my officials to develop a tourism and hospitality scheme to address issues associated with current restrictions and a scheme to support those recently self-employed

All Executive Ministers have been asked to bring forward options to determine what support options may be considered for those who may not qualify for these latest schemes, or who may not have been able to avail of previous opportunities.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy (i) what steps employers have to take if one of their members of staff test positive for COVID-19; and (ii) whether they have to inform other members of staff.

Mrs Dodds: Employers should ensure that they follow the latest guidance from the Public Health Agency (PHA) when responding to COVID-19 within the workplace.

Information on this advice can be found at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/contact-tracing/covid-19-business-setting-quick>

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy why the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme legislation does not require generating stations to have (i) planning permission; and (ii) to comply with environmental regulations, prior to being accredited.

(AQW 8693/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Audit Office report recognises that the primary responsibility for the enforcement of planning and environmental legislation rests with those bodies tasked with doing this. My Department does not have legislative powers in either of these areas.

The Audit Office has recommended that my Department should take a lead role to strengthen and formalise partnership arrangements across government for any future support schemes, to ensure a joined-up approach to accreditation, monitoring and enforcement. The Department has accepted this recommendation and will ensure it is addressed going forward.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail how she plans to assist trade unions who are struggling to get access to their own members now that many are working at home.

Mrs Dodds: For many people, working from home is likely to continue for several months.

Having reduced access to an office based environment may present new challenges for employees in how they access support, such as face to face meetings with line management, colleagues and trade union representatives.

As the Member will appreciate, it would be inappropriate for me to comment on the internal operational activities of trade unions. I would, however, expect employers to have a clear understanding of when home working employees will be working and how and when they can be contacted.

Further, I would encourage employers to ensure they provide employees with the necessary equipment in order to do their jobs at home, and I would encourage them to facilitate trade unions contacting their members by appropriate means such as e-mail.

The Industrial Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1992, places a number of responsibilities on employers concerning employees and trade union membership. For example, this Order permits trade union representatives to take time off during their working hours for the purpose of carrying out their duties. These provisions remain applicable, even in the context of home working circumstances.

Employees should also, insofar as possible, keep in regular contact with their line manager, team members and colleagues. This may involve new ways of working with the use of, for example, video or tele-conferencing technologies.

I would encourage all employers, staff and trade unions to explore and make use of these applications, where possible, to ensure regular communication is maintained and support is provided at this difficult time.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of her Department's drafting of legislation, given the observation from the National Audit Office that legislation drawn up by its predecessor, the Department for Enterprise, Trade and Investment in relation to renewable energy, was vague and non-specific.

(AQW 8783/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation operates in parallel with the Renewables Obligations in Great Britain and the associated legislation generally mirrors the legislation there. The Northern Ireland Audit Office recognises this in their report.

The Northern Ireland Audit Office observation relates specifically to the legislative provision for the permitted use of electricity in the context of a very small number of accreditations that are not connected to the electricity grid.

The report includes a recommendation that supporting legislation for any future schemes should be more specific about the permitted uses of the electricity generated, particularly if it is not exported to the grid. The Department has accepted this recommendation and will ensure it is addressed going forward.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how she will ensure that future COVID-19 business support schemes do not unfairly exclude sole traders, and those who have previously been unable to avail of support.
(AQW 8802/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In recent months, the NI Executive and UK Government have introduced an unprecedented range of support measures to businesses across all sectors. These packages of financial support were established to mitigate against the worst impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, to prevent businesses from closing and to retain jobs.

To date, my Department has provided over £340 million of support to over 32,000 local businesses through the grant schemes for large, small and micro-sized businesses.

On Friday 17th October 2020, the Finance Minister announced a new support package for businesses and employers throughout Northern Ireland. This will be in place for at least four weeks, with an estimated spend of £35 million during this initial period.

Further to this, on Thursday 22nd October, I announced an additional support package to help businesses affected by the recent restrictions announced by the Executive.

The Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS) will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS); or
- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted; and
- The business is operating in Northern Ireland and was trading immediately prior to 16 October 2020; and
- The business is not included in the scope of funding already allocated to Executive Departments to respond to Covid restrictions.

The new CRBSS, which also applies for the same four week period, will open for applications as soon as possible. My officials are working with colleagues in InvestNI, who will administer the scheme on our behalf.

In addition, I have asked my officials to develop a tourism and hospitality scheme to address issues associated with current restrictions and a scheme to support those recently self-employed

All Executive Ministers have been asked to bring forward options to determine what support options may be considered for those who may not qualify for these latest schemes, or who may not have been able to avail of previous opportunities.

Financial Support for Further and Higher Education Distance Learning. Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what financial support her Department will provide to Further and Higher Education institutions and students to facilitate a recommended move to distance learning.

Mrs Dodds: My Department has allocated £3.1 million to Further Education (FE) colleges to enable delivery of curriculum provision online, thereby enabling students and staff to work remotely during this period of uncertainty in order to complete vocational qualifications. This funding will provide additional IT equipment, peripherals and licences.

My Department has also ensured that current FE student support arrangements with an annual value of £13 million continue to operate effectively, or have been adapted, to direct support to students in need, including facilitating distance learning. For example, eligibility criteria for FE Grants and Hardship Fund have been updated to facilitate claimants participating in distance learning, acceptance of electronic applications and evidence, and paying childcare despite the student studying from home.

An additional £0.4 million has been allocated to fund direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of almost 1,900 eligible school-age FE students for the remainder of the 2019/20 academic year and to facilitate summer payments, when students were not able to attend college. For 2020/21 Term 1, I am seeking to allocate an additional £0.17 million to fund direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of eligible school-age FE students to ensure students are not disadvantaged by distance learning. This arrangement will be reviewed for Term 2.

My Department will continue to keep FE student support arrangements under review and adapt these as required in response to evolving needs.

For Higher Education students studying online from home in 2020/21, their student finance will continue to be paid as normal, as if they were studying on site at university or college. Students should ensure that their living location details are up to date on their online account at www.studentfinancenl.co.uk. As part of their student finance agreement, students must keep Student Finance NI up to date with where they'll be living each term, as this may affect how much they have to repay and when. In addition to this support, I have doubled the amount of hardship funds available to students from £2.8m to £5.6m in 2020/21. These funds are distributed by the universities on behalf of my Department, and any students who are experiencing genuine financial hardship should contact the Student Support team at their university to see if they are eligible for a hardship payment.

While my Department is responsible for funding NI higher education institutions insofar as teaching and research is concerned, as autonomous institutions, it is for the universities themselves to decide how that teaching will be delivered, taking into account prevailing public health guidance. I understand, however, that as part of their Covid-19 operational planning, both Queen's University and Ulster University already have in place contingencies to pivot fully to online delivery.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department will publish advice to businesses, permitted to continue operation, on following additional COVID-19 restrictions.

Mrs Dodds: Guidance documents to help businesses from various different sectors operate had already been published prior to the latest restrictions being imposed, these documents are available on the www.nidirect.gov.uk and the www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk.

In the constantly changing setting of Covid 19, the guidance documents to aid businesses are regularly reviewed and updated when deemed appropriate, however there are no specific plans to publish new guidance for businesses that are permitted to continue operating whilst the latest restrictions are being imposed.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what financial support she will provide to businesses impacted by additional COVID-19 restrictions; and what is the timeframe for distributing such support.

(AQW 8806/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Following the difficult, but necessary decision by the Executive to impose a four week restriction period for all of Northern Ireland, the Finance Minister announced a new support scheme for those businesses that were instructed to close as a consequence. The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) will run for the four weeks of enforced restrictions, at an estimated cost of £35million. This scheme opened to new applications from Monday 19th October and block payments will be issued as soon as applications are approved.

On Thursday 22nd October, I announced a further support package to help businesses affected by the recent restrictions announced by the Executive.

The Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS) will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS); or
- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted; and
- The business is operating in Northern Ireland and was trading immediately prior to 16 October 2020; and
- The business is not included in the scope of funding already allocated to Executive Departments to respond to Covid restrictions.

The new CRBSS, which also applies for the same four week period, will open for applications as soon as possible. My officials are working with colleagues in InvestNI, who will administer the scheme on our behalf.

In addition, I have asked my officials to develop a tourism and hospitality scheme to address issues associated with current restrictions and a scheme to support those recently self-employed

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will review her Department's business skills and training criteria to ensure small and medium sized enterprises and self-employed enterprises with under 10 employees can access all courses, including digital skill set development.

(AQW 8815/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department and associated Arm's Length Bodies provide a wide range of programmes specifically tailored to meet the needs of small and medium sized enterprises, including enterprises with fewer than ten employees. A summary of these schemes is set out in the table below.

Programme	Description
Skills Focus	Upskilling for employees, including those who are furloughed. Available to SMEs, (fewer than 250 employees) and now fully funded by the Department. The programme has an annual budget of £1.5m.
Innovate Us	Fully funded programme offering free training to small businesses, including Social Enterprises, with fewer than 50 employees, delivering up to 60 hours of bespoke training and skills development support per project. The programme has an annual budget of £1.7m.

Programme	Description
Assured Skills	Is a short, demand-led, pre-employment training programme, which is fully funded by the Department, to upskill individuals and help them compete for guaranteed job vacancies in new Foreign Direct Investment companies and expanding businesses. The programme has an annual budget of £2.3m
Bridge to Employment	Open to business of all sizes looking to expand. It provides customised training to participants, in particular long term unemployed people, with the skills necessary to compete for new employment opportunities on an equal basis with others. The programme has an annual budget of £280K.
ApprenticeshipNI and Higher level Apprenticeships (HLA'S)	DfE funds the cost of off-the-job training for apprentices aged 16-24 on the ApprenticeshipsNI programme as well as 50% for off-the-job training for apprentices aged 25 years and over in the priority economic areas. HLA's are open to participants of all ages, without restriction. The Department spends approximately £26m per annum on its Apprenticeship programmes.
Covid-19 Skills Interventions	To assist those employees who had been furloughed, made redundant, or in receipt of support for the self-employed, to develop skills and qualifications, in order to gain, sustain or progress in employment. To date over £6m has been invested in these programmes.
Invest Northern Ireland Skills Interventions	Typically take the form of a grant that can be used to access relevant training and/or upskilling. Over the last three years Invest NI has made 640 separate skills offers, of which 525 (82%) were made to SMEs. The grant value of the offers to those SMEs was £15.41m.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the findings of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report on the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme.
(AQW 8837/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome that the Northern Ireland Audit Office report has recognised the many achievements of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO). Most notably, the role that the NIRO played in ensuring that the Executive's 40% renewable electricity consumption by 2020 target was achieved a year early, with the figure now at almost 48%.

I recognise that the report has made three recommendations that are specifically for my Department, and I will ensure these are implemented going forward.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what action she is taking in respect of the findings of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report on the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme.
(AQW 8838/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Of the six recommendations in the report, three are specifically for my Department. The Department has accepted these recommendations and will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of whether small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters were over subsidised, as indicated by the Northern Ireland Audit Office report on the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme.
(AQW 8839/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Neither anaerobic digestion plants nor the biogas they produce are eligible for support under the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO). The NIRO supports the generation of renewable electricity, including electricity generated by stations fuelled by biogas produced through the anaerobic digestion process.

This is an important distinction as any revenue streams for anaerobic digestion plants that do not relate to electricity production by a generating station are not within the scope of the NIRO. I therefore cannot comment on the rates of returns of anaerobic digesters themselves.

The levels of returns for renewable electricity generating stations are based on a number of factors, not just the Renewable Obligation Certificate (ROC) banding levels set, and the rates of returns will differ substantially depending on assumptions about the individual circumstances of generators used to calculate any figures.

The Audit Office report includes a recommendation to carry out a review of the levels of support available and rates of return for renewable generators, and I have accepted this.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy what is the relationship between her Department and Geological Survey NI; and what are the governance arrangements for Geological Survey NI.
(AQW 8852/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Geological Survey of Northern Ireland (GSNI) is established as an office of DfE under the Minerals (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1959.

GSNI is staffed by scientists from UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) who provide geological research and technical services to government departments and NI councils. GSNI services are provided as part of a recurring three year work programme under a Service Level Agreement (SLA).

The governance arrangements between the Department and UKRI are outlined in detail in this SLA and include provision for the Department's nominated officer to meet with the Director of GSNI on a quarterly basis to review progress against objectives and to discuss arising matters of interest.

Furthermore, the SLA requires the UKRI to, if invited by the Department, assist the Department, or any committee appointed for that purpose, to consider the conduct and progress of the work of GSNI.

A GSNI Scientific Advisory Committee has been established by GSNI, the Department is a member and can act as the Chair. The membership is agreed with DfE and comprises representatives from DfE, other NICS departments, the British Geological Survey (BGS), the Geological Survey of Ireland (GSI), industry and academia. The role of the Committee is to advise on the strategic direction of GSNI's work and its relevance to stakeholders; to suggest new avenues of research; and to review and comment on the Annual Report.

GSNI is subject to regular audit with the latest being carried out in January 2017 to examine contract management and governance arrangements; performance and delivery of the agreed service; and financial and budgetary management arrangements; all of which were found to be satisfactory which is the highest level that can be achieved.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy what is the procedural guidance or regulations in relation to cooling off periods for members of staff who leave the Department, its agencies or arm's-length bodies taking up a position in the private sector in a related area.

Mrs Dodds: The rules for all Civil Service staff who wish to accept outside business appointments, employment or self-employment after leaving the NICS are contained within paragraph 8 and Annexes 4-6 of the NICS HR policy 6.01 Standards of Conduct. These rules will also apply to those staff in the Department of Economy's Agencies and ALBs that follow the NICS Handbook.

The rules allow that such movement following NICS employment should not be frustrated by unjustified public concern over such appointments but equally that there should be no cause for any suspicion of impropriety. Accordingly, the rules provide for waiting periods (referred to as "cooling off periods" within this question) and conditions to be applied to any appointment which may give rise to concerns.

Approval must be sought by former Civil Servants who wish to take up employment as follows:

- If they are the Head of the Northern Ireland Civil Service, Permanent Secretaries (including equivalent grades), during the two year period after leaving office and without exception;
- If they are in the Senior Civil Service, Grade 3 or Grade 5, (and equivalents), or Special Advisers, during the two year period after leaving office if the individuals circumstances match one or more of those outlined in the policy;
- If they are Grade 6 and below, the rules normally apply for one year after the individuals last day of paid service, if the individuals circumstances match one or more of those outlined in the policy.

Full details of the circumstances where applications from staff at Grade 3 and below are required are detailed within paragraph 4.2 of the policy.

In relation to DfE ALB's they do not have procedural guidance or regulations in relation to cooling off periods with the exception of the Consumer Council and the Health and Safety Executive (NI) both of which follow the NICS policy and guidelines. Whilst the Further Education colleges have no procedural guidance or regulations in relation to cooling off periods you may wish to note that clause 26 of the standard contract for 'Chief Executives of Further Education Colleges in Northern Ireland', agreed by the sector, deals with Post Termination Restrictions and references the provision or supply of "Restricted Services".

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department will be providing additional funding for students facing hardship as a result of the updated COVID-19 restrictions.

Mrs Dodds: My Department has put in place measures to assist students who experience financial hardship due to Covid-19. This financial year, I have secured an additional £1.4m from the Executive and a further £1.4m from my own Department's budget, making available a total of £5.6m to support students facing genuine financial hardship. The administration of applications to the support funds will continue as normal during the current restrictions and any student facing financial hardship should contact the student support services in their university to discuss what support may be available.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy whether petroleum licence applications PLA1/16 and PLA2/16 have been wholly assessed and will continue to be wholly assessed under existing policy and within the existing petroleum licensing legislative framework, regardless of any outcomes from her Department's proposed research.

Mrs Dodds: The assessment of both petroleum licence applications PLA1/16 and PLA2/16 is on-going.

My Department has commissioned research into the impacts of petroleum exploration and development which has been designed to help inform future petroleum licensing policy in Northern Ireland including any decision to be made on whether or not to grant the two current petroleum licence applications. In response to previous AQW 7150, I have previously confirmed to you on that I do not intend to proceed with the decisions on the two applications until I am more fully informed by the outcome of the research.

It is not appropriate to comment further for fear of prejudicing the independence of the review process.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy to detail her commitment to collective bargaining in the further and higher education sectors; and for her assessment of the role of trade unions in negotiating on behalf of these staff.

(AQW 8868/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am fully aware of the important role which collective bargaining plays in both sectors and am supportive of the arrangements which have been developed in each sector to facilitate negotiation between employers and trade unions.

It is important to note that Higher Education Institutions and Further Education colleges in Northern Ireland are employers in their own right and are responsible for setting the terms and conditions for their staff and for deciding how they engage with trade unions as part of that process.

However, I also recognise that trade unions also have an important role to play when negotiating collective agreements, relating to terms and conditions, with employers and I would encourage both employers and trade unions to make full use of the opportunities offered within the respective spheres to seek to resolve any issues which arise.

It may be useful to note that the Labour Relations Agency may be able to provide practical guidance to respective parties in relation to certain aspects of the collective bargaining process. For further information, they can be contacted on 03300 555 300.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will publish the Transform to Deliver paper that proposes to reform conditions of employment in the further education sector and the details of its origin; and whether the paper was written by officials in her Department.

Mrs Dodds: As I set out in my response to AQW 8536/17-22, while they are Non-Departmental Public Bodies of the Department, the Further Education Colleges are also employers in their own right and are responsible for setting the pay and terms and conditions for their staff including the development of any proposals to reform those terms and conditions.

It is therefore for Colleges Employers Forum (CEF), which represents the six Further Education Colleges in college negotiating arrangements, rather than the Department to bring forward any such proposal for reform. Where such a proposal requires the investment of additional Departmental funding, a Business Case has to be submitted to the Department, through the Director of Further Education as senior sponsor, in order to allow it to be assessed prior to my consideration and approval. As senior sponsor, it is the role of the FE Director to regularly engage with colleges to ensure that governance and funding arrangements, including any business cases which are developed, are sufficiently robust to provide the Department with the assurance required.

I understand that in 2016, a draft Business Case was submitted to the Department by the CEF to secure funding from the Public Sector Transformation Fund which if successful would have formed the basis for a bid for additional funding in order to provide an increase to lecturers' pay and to transform terms and conditions and industrial relations within the sector. Had that Business Case been approved, it would have then formed the basis for negotiations to reach an agreed position with Trade Union Side. However, the Business Case was not approved and it was subsequently decided by CEF that any Business Case developed should be on the basis of an agreed position, negotiated with TUS. This is the basis on which I understand the College Employers' Forum has engaged in the most recent negotiations. If agreement had been reached with TUS, both sides were clear that Colleges would then develop a Business Case for any additional funding required based on the agreed proposals for submission to the Department for consideration and necessary approvals.

As I have indicated in previous replies, and as I have set out above, discussions on staff pay, terms and conditions are a matter for negotiation and agreement between the Lecturers Negotiating Committee of the CEF and Trade Union Side. I continue to strongly encourage both parties to re-engage in negotiations to resolve the outstanding issues and reach an accommodation so that a plan, informed by this negotiation process, and an associated business case can be developed, and approvals and funding secured.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the future of the North West Regional College site in Strabane.

Mrs Dodds: North West Regional College is currently operating the Strabane campus with the necessary safety measures in place due to the Covid-19 pandemic. My Department was recently consulted on a Strategic Outline Case for a replacement campus in the town centre, as part of the proposed Strabane Canal Basin Regeneration project under the Derry/Londonderry and Strabane Region City Deal.

Comments on the proposal were provided and raised some issues that require further clarification. It is anticipated that the proposal will be developed further as an Outline Business Case as part of the overall Strabane Canal Basin Regeneration project, and this will be then be subject to assessment and evaluation by my officials in due course.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the postcodes in West Tyrone that will benefit from Project Stratum.

(AQW 8913/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The postcode areas (which contain the 9,973 premises) in the West Tyrone constituency that are included in the Project Stratum target intervention area are provided in the attached annex. It is not possible to confirm which specific premises will benefit from the project until after contract award, however the overarching aspiration of the project is to maximise broadband coverage across the target intervention area.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what objective criteria was used by her Department to not reduce subsidies to small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters in or about 2015 in line with the approach taken in Great Britain.

Mrs Dodds: Decisions on a review of small scale Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation Certificate (ROC) banding levels, for a number of technologies, followed a statutory consultation process supported by an independent report to provide an assessment of changes in technology costs, which was the main criteria used in making such decisions.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what records exist of the discussions and decisions of her Department to support the incentivising of small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters

(AQW 8927/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) was introduced in April 2005. As with all the Renewables Obligations across the UK, the scheme was technology neutral and was open to a wide range of technologies including small scale onshore wind and stations fuelled from biogas produced from anaerobic digestion.

All decisions about the introduction of the NIRO and Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation Certificate (NIROC) banding levels were informed by public consultations, with the rationale for decisions regarding support levels set out in these and in associated Government Responses.

All decisions to amend NIROC banding levels were scrutinised by the Enterprise, Trade & Investment Committee, and debated in the Assembly where the associated legislation was subsequently passed.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy (i) for her assessment of the level of gaming in the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme as highlighted by the NI Audit Office report and the investigation by OFGEM; and (ii) what actions her Department is taking to address these issues.

Mrs Dodds: Almost 24,000 generating stations have been accredited to the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation. The Northern Ireland Audit Office report refers to an issue relating to two generating stations.

The matter was thoroughly investigated by Ofgem, as administrator of the scheme, and has been rectified. It is important to note that the owners and operators of the stations concerned were not found guilty of any wrong doing.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy (i) for her assessment of the NI Audit Office finding in their report entitled Generating electricity from renewable energy, that the supporting governance structures and policies required to proactively identify and manage the risks associated with [renewable generating stations] should have been more robust; and (ii) to detail the work of her Department in addressing these issues.

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Audit Office opinion in their report about supporting governance structures and policies is directly followed by a list of recommendations.

Of the six recommendations included, three are specifically for my Department. The Department has accepted these recommendations and will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy, with regard to the internal policy review into petroleum licencing which her Department undertook in 2019, in the absence of a Minister (i) the start and end dates of the review; (ii) whether a public interest test was conducted in line with the Northern Ireland (Executive Formation and Exercise of Functions) Act 2018; and (iii) whether the internal review overlapped with the public consultations on PLA1/16 and PLA2/16 at any time.

Mrs Dodds: The Department's review of petroleum licensing policy commenced in February 2019. This began with a high level internal review by officials to scope out the issues impacting on petroleum licensing. The initial findings were set out in a submission to the Permanent Secretary dated November 2019 which recommended independent research into the impacts of petroleum licensing to inform next steps. As this was a preliminary review at official level, a public interest test in line with the Northern Ireland (Executive Formation and Exercise of Functions) Act 2018 was not required.

This initial stage of the review overlapped with the period of public consultation on PLA1/16 and PLA2/16.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of the Assembly's decision to request her to instigate a moratorium on petroleum licensing while waiting for legislation to enact a permanent cessation, (i) how her Department's tendered research will cater for the cessation of petroleum licensing scenario when only development outcomes are considered as scenarios within the tender specification; (ii) whether she will instruct her Department to change the tender specification; (iii) if not, how she justifies spending £75,000 of public money on a review that does not embrace fully the new circumstances; and (iv) whether she has appraised the Minister of Finance that the review specification is now outdated.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The commissioned research is intended to be an independent assessment of the potential impacts of the development of oil and gas resources in Northern Ireland. It will not make recommendations on the continuation or cessation of petroleum licensing but it will provide a solid regional evidence base on the impacts of petroleum licensing. The Department will use the information gathered to consider options and develop, through stakeholder engagement and consultation, evidence based petroleum policy proposals which will consider the need or otherwise for a petroleum licensing regime.
- (ii) The specification was drafted to reflect a range of potential development scenarios as there is considerable uncertainty over the likely future development path of conventional and unconventional oil and gas. One of the scenarios, entitled Climate Change, reflects a move to a low carbon economy with barriers to oil and gas development.
- (iii) The commissioning of research to establish an evidence base is a well-established approach to policy development. Scotland, Wales and England all employed external expertise to undertake independent regionally-specific research before arriving at their various policy positions on petroleum issues.
- (iv) There is no reason for me to write to the Minister for Finance with regard to the specification for research.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what records exist of lobbying of her Department, including the Minister and special adviser, in support of incentivising small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters.

(AQW 9004/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: All of the Renewables Obligations across the UK, including the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO), were technology neutral and from their introduction were open to a range of technologies including small scale onshore wind and stations fuelled from biogas produced from anaerobic digestion.

All decisions relating to the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation Certificate (NIROC) banding levels have been informed by information gathered through public consultation.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what liaison there was with the planning and rating authorities before her Department embarked on incentivising small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters.

(AQW 9005/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) was introduced in April 2005. As with all of the Renewables Obligations across the UK, the scheme was technology neutral from its introduction and was open to a wide range of technologies including small scale onshore wind and stations fuelled from biogas produced from anaerobic digestion.

There is no record of formal liaison between the Department and the responsible authorities for planning and rates at that time.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) when employers have to carry out a deep clean; and (ii) the course of action if they refuse to carry out a deep clean.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) HSENI refers businesses to the published Public Health Agency (PHA) advice which states that, in a business setting, if an employee has a suspected case of COVID-19 or an employee tests positive for COVID-19, the premises should be thoroughly cleaned as normal, paying particular attention to anywhere the employee has touched frequently (door handles, hand rails, light switches, telephone, computer keyboard, etc). If two or more employees test positive, PHA will review the situation and may contact the employer. This will be determined on a case by case basis and may result in recommendations including enhanced cleaning as well as other preventative measures. Where appropriate, the HSENI or Local Council may be involved.

- (ii) The action taken can range from the provision of specific advice to support the employer achieve the required standards through to, where required, issuing enforcement letters or notices.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she is committed to maintaining the current terms and conditions for further education college lecturers.

(AQW 9064/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As employers, Further Education colleges are responsible for setting the terms and conditions of their own staff. I am aware that negotiations on lecturer's pay and conditions of service have been taking place between college management and Trade Union Side through the Lecturers' Negotiation Committee.

If agreement is reached through this process, a Business Case will be submitted to the Department to seek approval for any additional resources required. However, until that point, I am not in a position to comment other than to encourage both parties to fully engage in the negotiation process in order to reach a satisfactory conclusion as soon as possible.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department is progressing plans to reform the employment contracts of further education college lecturers.

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to my answer to AQW 9064/17-22.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for the Economy what discussions have been held with (i) Queens University; and (ii) Ulster University with regard to the availability of funding for doctorates or post doctorate research and study relating to the centenary of Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9079/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Each academic year, my Department provides grants to both universities to administer and allocate the Department's Postgraduate Studentship Award scheme, with a particular focus on economically relevant subjects.

Whilst there are broad terms and conditions related to how this funding may be spent, the Universities have discretion to allocate the studentships based on their respective internal assessment criteria.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy, given that the Chief Commissioner of the Planning Appeals Commission NI has confirmed that planning permission for Kells BESS (2018/A0248) was given by the Commission for a non-generating facility, is it tenable for her Department to maintain that the generating consent given by the Department for Kells BESS is valid.

Mrs Dodds: The Department is satisfied Kells battery storage plant falls within and requires consent under Article 39 of the Electricity (Northern Ireland) Order 1992 Order. Accordingly, and as the application was in order, the Department granted the consent requested.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether the Dowra Sandstone reserves are conventional or unconventional from a geological analysis and in terms of technology.

Mrs Dodds: In Petroleum geology, the term unconventional refers to the characteristics of the geological reservoirs or rock formations containing the hydrocarbons rather than the technology used to extract them. Shale gas, tight gas and coalbed methane are examples of unconventional natural gas. In the case of tight gas reservoirs, they are characterised by a low porosity (often less than 10%) and a very low permeability (usually less than 0.1 millidarcy). The average porosity and permeability of the Dowra Sandstone falls below this threshold, and any natural gas present within the Dowra Sandstone would be considered "tight gas" and therefore "unconventional".

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether the licence application from Tamboran Resources related to Dowra Sandstone is for conventional or unconventional extraction techniques.

Mrs Dodds: The terms conventional and unconventional are not typically applied to the technique of extraction of hydrocarbons, but to the hydrocarbons themselves or the reservoir from which they come.

On 19 September 2016, the Department received an application for a Petroleum Licence (PLA2/16), covering an area south and east of Lough Erne, in Co Fermanagh, from Tamboran Resources (UK) Limited (TRUK).

The accompanying Work Programme proposed the use of High Volume Hydraulic Fracturing (HVHF or “fracking”) to test and extract gas from the Bundoran Shale. A secondary exploration target of the Dowra Sandstone was also identified.

In March 2020, following the Department’s 2019 public consultation on PLA2/16 application, TRUK formally submitted a request to revise their Work Programme. The revised Work Programme no longer proposes the use of hydraulic fracturing and instead proposes the use of a number of other techniques. The Department is awaiting further information from TRUK on their proposed extraction methods.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what discussions her Department has had with FlyBe to help with bringing the airline back from administration.

(AQW 9129/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome the news being reported in the media about the potential that Flybe could restart operations. Flybe was a UK-wide airline, based at George Best Belfast City Airport, and provided key access for Northern Ireland passengers to Great Britain and beyond.

My Department has not been approached to engage on this matter.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of the move to Level 5 restrictions in the Republic of Ireland, whether she has considered closing non-essential retail.

(AQW 9145/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The level of restrictions introduced in Northern Ireland on 16 October 2020 were as a result of discussions and agreement of the Northern Ireland Executive. At that time, and based on the evidence provided, it was decided not to include the closure of non-essential retail.

These restrictions are kept under review and any changes would require a decision by the Executive.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for the Economy whether she is aware of the findings of the recent NI Audit Office report on generating electricity from renewable energy, which found that the amount paid in subsidies to the owners of wind turbines will far exceed those received by the operators of wood pellet boilers under the RHI Scheme.

(AQW 9151/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am aware of the findings of the report.

The report does not include the finding included in your question.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of the findings of the NI Audit Office report on generating electricity from renewable energy, whether she will commission an independent inquiry into wind energy in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9152/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Audit Office report does not include a finding or recommendation for an inquiry as suggested in your question.

The report includes six recommendations and three are specifically for my Department. The Department has accepted these recommendations and will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for the Economy, given the increasing numbers of people working from home, what her Department is doing in terms of enhancing broadband provision, especially in rural areas, between now and Project Stratum.

(AQW 9157/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I fully appreciate the importance of access to good broadband services, particularly in the current circumstances. Contract award for Project Stratum is anticipated by mid-November, with initial deployment activities expected to commence shortly thereafter. The target intervention area consists of just under 79,000 premises, some 97% of which are rural, defined as NISRA Band H – settlements of fewer than 1,000 and open countryside. Residents and businesses may check if their premises have been included in the target intervention area at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/services/check-if-your-address-might-get-faster-broadband> .

There are a number of other UK Government broadband schemes operating in Northern Ireland and available to both citizens and businesses. These are listed below and links have been provided:

Universal Service Obligation: <https://www.ofcom.org.uk/phones-telecoms-and-internet/advice-for-consumers/broadband-iso-need-to-know>

Rural Gigabit Connectivity Scheme: <https://gigabitvoucher.culture.gov.uk/>.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the development and expansion of Ulster University, Magee Campus.

(AQW 9167/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Ulster University confirmed in correspondence to my Department in September 2019, that it remained committed to securing expansion of its Magee campus, however confirmed that the business case required updating prior to any consideration by the Department or Executive.

To date my Department has not received a further proposal for consideration, however I am committed to working with the University around the consideration of any expansion proposals that it develops.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what is the assessment of how much of the profits from the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme have gone, and will go, to financial institutions.

(AQW 9182/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation is a market based scheme and operates on the basis of trading Renewable Obligation Certificates (ROCs) across the UK. The price that individual station operators receive for their ROCs is commercially sensitive and as such is not available.

It is recognised that generators may need to enter into arrangements with financial institutions in order to raise finance. However, information on any generators commercial arrangements with financial institutions is not available.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for the Economy whether she would consider the development of an apprenticeship programme in partnership with the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Mrs Dodds: At present Public Sector Apprenticeships are not funded under my Department's ApprenticeshipsNI or Higher Level Apprenticeship programmes although there are some in operation in areas such as IT and engineering.

However, public sector apprenticeships have a role to play in our economic recovery and my officials are currently engaging with other organisations to identify the potential to develop a range of apprenticeships across the public sector in a broad range of areas such as, for example, audit, procurement, veterinary science and construction. Sectors where there are skills needs both in the public and private sectors.

I am happy to include possible apprenticeships within the Northern Ireland Assembly as part of this wider engagement with the public sector.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department has received Ulster University's audited accounts for 2018/19.

(AQW 9230/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has not received Ulster University's audited Financial Statements for 2018-19. Ulster University has advised that they will be put forward for approval by the University Council in November 2020. Draft Financial Statements were received in December 2019.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 8036/17-22, whether she is aware that the Northern Ireland Economic Advisory Group has a website which is not functioning and which has not been functioning for an extended period of time.

(AQW 9231/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: A website was established for previous iterations of the Economic Advisory Group (EAG). This website was temporarily deactivated earlier this year whilst the new EAG considered its approach.

The Chair of the EAG has since agreed that there is no specific requirement to reactivate the dedicated website. I will make relevant documentation, or recommendations to me as Minister, necessitating wider circulation publicly available through the DfE website.

My officials will archive material from the previous EAG website in due course.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for the Economy, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in her Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

(AQW 9237/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: All officials in my Department who can work from home are working from home.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy how many (i) full time; and (ii) part time students are registered in each of the higher education colleges for this academic year, broken down by college.

(AQW 9279/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department receives validated statistics regarding the higher education sector, including those related to enrolments, from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA). Validated HESA data on enrolments for the 2020/21 academic year is not yet available.

The most up-to-date data available on student enrolments is published on the Department's website at: <https://www.economy-ni.gov.uk/articles/higher-education-enrolments>

You may wish to contact the higher education institutions directly for information related to the current academic year, although I would caution that any such data is likely only to be preliminary and therefore indicative, and has not been formally validated.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of the COVID-19 pandemic, whether she will allow international students access to the student hardship fund.

Mrs Dodds: Undergraduate and postgraduate students enrolled at Northern Ireland Higher Education Institutions who fall within a category (excluding paragraph 9) mentioned in Part 2 Schedule 2 to the Education (Student Support) (No. 2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2009, as amended, and are facing genuine financial hardship may apply to their Institution's hardship fund for support. Categories of students eligible for support include persons who are settled in the United Kingdom, refugees and their family members, persons with leave to enter or remain and their family members and persons granted section 67 leave, amongst other categories. These payments are provided for through my Department's Support Funds budget.

Separately, Queen's University, Ulster University, Stranmillis University College and the Open University have complementary funds in place to provide hardship payments to students who sit outside these categories, including international students. These payments are provided for from the Institutions' own budgets. St Mary's University College has no international students enrolled.

Given that the provision for hardship payments to international students already exists, I do not intend to amend the eligibility criteria for the Support Funds to include international students.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy what measures have been taken to make the application process and access to the Further Education Hardship Fund easier and payments issued in a shorter timeframe.

(AQW 9281/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Hardship Fund is widely promoted throughout further education campuses and online through college websites, digital screens and social media platforms. Students are also advised of the Hardship Fund through the colleges' induction processes.

As a result of the COVID-19 pandemic restrictions, a temporary arrangement was put in place to permit the use of electronic applications rather than using a paper based application process for forms and associated evidence.

In accordance with Departmental guidance, colleges should aim to process applications for the Hardship Fund within six weeks. However, payments are usually made within four weeks from application.

Should a student make an application in an emergency situation, payments can be issued in a short timeframe subsequent to supplementary evidence being available. In this situation, payments can be made within 2-3 days.

The Department is keeping all aspects of student financial support including the Hardship Fund under review, in light of ongoing developments with COVID-19.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for the Economy, given the price drop in fossil fuels, (i) whether the appropriate tariff for small/medium biomass boilers is more than 7p/kWh; and (ii) when she will bring forward legislation to enact the change which should have been effective from 1 April 2020.

(AQW 9284/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am aware of the significant changes in the cost of fossil fuels since the completion of the Cornwall NIRHI Tariff Review and my Department's subsequent consultation earlier this year. The Cornwall recommendations, participants' views and evidence provided via the consultation and analysis of recent fuel price movements are being considered as part of the ongoing work towards closure of the Non-Domestic RHI Scheme, in line with the commitment detailed in the New Decade, New Approach deal. This work is a priority within my Department, and fairness towards those who have participated in the Scheme in good faith, along with value for money for the taxpayer, are key factors. Final decisions on closure will be taken by the Executive.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what objective criteria was used by her Department to increase subsidies to small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters in or about 2011.

(AQW 9390/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The decision to increase Northern Ireland Renewable Obligation Certificate (ROC) banding levels for small scale onshore wind from April 2010 was informed by information gathered through a public consultation.

The decision to increase Northern Ireland ROC banding levels for generating stations fuelled by biogas produced from anaerobic digestion from April 2011, was based on information received from a call for evidence and subsequent public consultation to provide an assessment of changes in technology costs, which was the main criteria used in making such decisions.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for the Economy what plans she has to ensure continuity of services when European Social Fund programmes run out in March.

(AQW 9396/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The European Social Fund Programme provides important support to a large number of individuals who face a range of barriers to employment. Priorities 1 and 2 currently support 66 projects, which are due to conclude in March 2022, while the support under priority 3, which part funds the Department's Apprenticeship NI programme, continues until 2023. A joint project with the Department for Communities has been established to consider the future policy and delivery options in relation to priorities 1 and 2.

A key consideration for any replacement provision will be access to the necessary funding. This is being progressed by the Department of Finance on behalf of the NI Executive.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will initiate action to improve the Health and Safety Executive website to assist staff and the public to report allegations of working practices that are in breach of COVID-19 regulations and guidelines.

Mrs Dodds: HSENI provides a number of options for the public to report allegations of working practices that are in breach of COVID-19 regulations and guidelines. Such complaints can be made via the online form available on HSENI website, by email or by post. During the COVID-19 pandemic, HSENI experienced high volumes of complaints, many of which were for workplaces enforced by the local authorities, such as retail outlets, bars and hairdressers. In order to address this, recent changes have been made to the relevant section of the HSENI website to provide greater clarity on appropriate enforcement authority for workplaces, and contact details for each local authority have also been added. HSENI also accept complaints via telephone but at busy times they encourage the use of their online reporting options as telephone lines can be busy.

If HSENI receives a complaint regarding a business which falls under another enforcing authority's remit, they endeavour to pass on the complaint in a timely manner where there is sufficient detail to enable them to do so.

Mr Beattie asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail (i) the role of junior Ministers; and (ii) the estimated time requirements for both, in the development of a strategic Programme for Government.
(AQW 7009/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Determination made by the First Minister and deputy First Minister under section 19 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 specifies that the function of the Junior Ministers is to assist the First Minister and deputy First Minister in the exercise of their functions in relation to the Executive Office.

All Ministers will invest significant time on this over coming months.

(AQW 7101/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Consequential amendments to the Ministerial Code to reflect the changes in the law introduced by the Executive Committee (Functions) Act 2020 will be referred shortly to the Executive Committee for its agreement. The approval of the Assembly will be sought as soon as practicable thereafter.

Ms Bailey asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on plans to develop a new Programme for Government through citizen engagement and co-design, as outlined in New Decade, New Approach.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Executive has agreed that an activity based recovery programme is to be developed as the basis for driving economic, health and societal recovery from COVID-19, which will continue for the remainder of 2020/21, and a new, strategic outcomes-based Programme for Government is to be developed for commencement from April 2021, informed by Citizen and Stakeholder engagement and co-design.

Miss Woods asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on plans to strengthen the ability of the parties in opposition to hold the Executive to account, as outlined in New Decade, New Approach.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The measures set out in paragraphs 3.6 and 3.7 of Annex C of New Decade New Deal relating to the Official Opposition are for the Assembly, and not the Executive Office, to implement.

Mr McNulty asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, further to my question to the deputy First Minister on the Ministerial Statement on the North/South Ministerial Council on Monday 21 September, whether they will publish the legal guidance upon which the deputy First Minister advised that the responsibility for financial support for northern cross-border workers lies with the Irish Government and not with the jurisdiction in which they reside.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Department for Communities has lead responsibility for the Executive's Covid-19 support measures for workers. A number of measures have been introduced in response to the Covid-19 pandemic which are also available to cross-border workers.

Depending on a person's circumstances, financial assistance is available to those impacted by the Covid-19 outbreak through Universal Credit, New Style Jobseekers Allowance, and New Style Employment Support Allowance. Further information can be found at the following - <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-and-benefits>

Ms Anderson asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, given the stated intention of the British Government to abandon its commitments in the Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland, for their assessment on what impact this will have on the functions of the (i) Human Rights Commission; and (ii) Equality Commission as the dedicated mechanism to ensure no diminution of citizens' rights.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The UK Government has stated its commitment to ensuring that the withdrawal of the UK from the EU will not lead to any diminution of rights, safeguards and equality of opportunity in Northern Ireland, as set out in the Belfast/Good Friday Agreement.

This is to be implemented by a "dedicated mechanism", which will provide new oversight powers and resources to the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland and Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission.

The European Union (Withdrawal Agreement) Act 2020 gives legal effect to this commitment by amending the Northern Ireland Act 1998.

The UK Government has confirmed that the necessary funding is in place to allow the Equality Commission to carry out its role as part of the "dedicated mechanism". The Commission is now in the process of establishing a new Dedicated Mechanism Unit.

This has included a high profile multi-channel campaign across a wide range of channels including TV, radio, print, outdoor, social and digital media. The campaign is currently ongoing and activity for the rest of 2020 is being developed. This current activity along with future bursts of the campaign will determine spend for the rest of 2020.

Further details will be provided to Members in due course.

Mr Chambers asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the reasons for the withdrawal of the assistance of junior Ministers in bringing COVID-19-related health regulations to the Assembly.

(AQO 745/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: In light of the demanding and significant workload during the initial stages of the COVID-19 pandemic, Junior Ministers welcomed the opportunity to provide support to the Minister of Health by leading the Assembly scrutiny of the Coronavirus subordinate legislation.

Looking ahead and reflecting the need to address the evolving priorities of the recovery phase, which includes the development of a Programme for Government and implementation of the New Decade New Approach document, it is now appropriate for this role to return to the Department of Health.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the current conservation status of the Knockninny Area of Scientific Interest.

(AQW 6315/17-22)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): Knockninny Hill ASSI was last surveyed in 2018 for its two terrestrial habitat features, calcareous grassland and mixed ashwoods, when both were assessed as being in unfavourable condition. The site invertebrate assemblage was last surveyed in 2008, when this feature was considered to be in unfavourable condition, and the site vascular plant assemblage feature in 2004, also considered to be unfavourable.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail the current regulatory framework for (i) the management of waste tyres; and (ii) the reuse or recycling of waste tyres.

Mr Poots: Waste tyres, just like any other type of controlled waste, must be managed in compliance with current waste legislation. The current regulatory framework for the management of controlled waste, including waste tyres, is detailed in the Duty of Care Code of Practice which can be found on the DAERA website at: <https://www.daera-ni.gov.uk/articles/duty-care>

All waste facilities accepting waste tyres, including for their reuse or recycling, must hold a relevant waste authorisation. Regular monitoring inspections of authorised sites are carried out by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency.

The landfilling of waste tyres is prohibited under the Landfill Regulations. Specific guidance on dealing with waste tyres is available at: <https://www.daera-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/dae/waste-guidance-rps-used-tyres-risks-responsibilities-2016.pdf>

The majority of waste tyres collected in Northern Ireland are therefore exported for recycling or recovery either directly or through Great Britain.

In addition to regular inspections of those sites authorised to manage waste tyres, NIEA Enforcement Branch continues to carry out inspection and awareness raising / educational visits to tyre retailers.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the COVID-19 pandemic on the issue of puppy smuggling and other illegal importation of pets to Northern Ireland.

(AQW 6974/17-22)

Mr Poots: My Department undertakes risk based checks on consignments of dogs and other animals entering Northern Ireland at Belfast and Larne ports, working collaboratively with commercial ferry operators and other enforcement agencies in order to prevent illegal movements. There is no evidence or intelligence to suggest there has been any increased illegal importation of pets into Northern Ireland as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans he has for improving the regulation of the sale of puppies and kittens, especially when sold on the internet or in pet shops.

Mr Poots: I have no immediate plans to regulate the sale of puppies and kittens via the internet or from third parties such as pet shops. I am, however, committed to ensuring that Northern Ireland maintains its high animal welfare standards and continues to protect the wellbeing of pet animals. I, therefore, intend to keep this matter under review.

In the meantime, my Department is represented on the Pet Advertising Advisory Group which comprises of representatives from the four UK jurisdictions, animal welfare organisations, trade associations and veterinary bodies and works to ensure that pet animals are advertised for sale legally and ethically. The Department is also proactive in encouraging the public to be mindful when buying a pet.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) when the Office for Environmental Protection (OEP) will commence operations in Northern Ireland; and (ii) to detail the work of his Department in preparing for the OEP to be operational in Northern Ireland on 1 January 2021.

Mr Poots:

- (i) Subject to the approval of the Assembly, the OEP will commence operations in Northern Ireland as close to 1st January 2021 as is practicable although delays to the Environment Bill's progress as a result of the Covid-19 crisis have made that task much more challenging.
- (ii) My officials have worked closely with their Defra counterparts on the development of the Bill provisions and continue to maintain close contact as more detailed arrangements are considered. In preparation for the OEP becoming operational I am preparing to launch a Discussion Document on Environmental Plans, Principles and Governance for Northern Ireland, part of which seeks the views of the public and stakeholder groups on the proposed operational arrangements and functions of the OEP.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) why the report from Stage 1 of the Northern Ireland Fishing and Seafood Development Programme study commissioned by his Department, and due for release in March 2020, has been delayed; and (ii) to detail the expected timeframe for its delivery.

Mr Poots: The report from Stage 1 of the Fishing and Seafood Development Programme (FSDP) was published on the 26 September and is available on the Departments website.

The issue of this report was delayed due to the need to respond to the impacts of the COVID-19 on the fishing and aquaculture sectors, and prepare for the end of transition. We also wished to provide a response to accompany publication that clarifies the next steps in the process as per the table below.

Next Steps	Completion date
FSDP Stage 2 and final report	January 2021
Assessment of impacts of EU/UK Fisheries Agreement and NI Protocol on NI fishing and seafood sector.	December 2020 to January 2021
Programme Level Business Case for fishery harbour investment	November 2020 to March 2021
Publish response to final FSDP report addressing strategic investment in fisheries.	April 2021

Harbour development is complex and expensive and further business case approvals, from both DAERA and Department of Finance are needed at each stage. Relevant environmental, marine licensing and planning approvals also have to be obtained before final decisions can be taken on construction. This is likely to be a lengthy process and as the process advances and options for development become more refined further information on timescales and projected costs will be made available.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when AQW 6604/17-22 will be answered. (AQW 8096/17-22)

Mr Poots: Please note AQW 6604/17-22 was answered on 05 October 2020.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of how derogations from the EU Nitrates Directive have impacted upon the status of Natura 2000 sites. (AQW 8856/17-22)

Mr Poots: Farms operating under the Nutrients Action Programme (NAP) derogation must adopt specific nutrient management, land spreading restrictions and record-keeping measures, in addition to complying with the NAP measures. Derogation requirements include preparation of annual fertilisation plans and accounts, regular soil analysis and a farm phosphorus balance limit. The purpose is to ensure that operating at the higher grazing livestock manure limit of the derogation does not adversely impact on water quality.

The Test of Likely Significance, as part of the screening procedure under Article 6 of the Habitats Directive, on the previous NAP Regulations for 2014 - 2018 noted potential effects for various Natura 2000 sites. In summary, these were a reduction in diffuse and point source water pollution and an improvement in surface water and groundwater quality. The NAP measures controlling methods of slurry storage and application should also have reduced the potential for ammonia emissions leading to nitrogen deposition and nutrient enrichment of sensitive habitats.

The NAP measures will have had no effect on some Natura 2000 features. For those features which may have been affected by the NAP measures, any impact resulting from implementation of the NAP was likely to be beneficial. Therefore, the findings of the screening report concluded that the measures in the NAP were unlikely to have any significant [detrimental] effects (either alone or in combination with other plans or projects) on Natura 2000 sites.

Farms operating under the NAP derogation are required to comply with all the NAP measures and the additional derogation measures, and this helps to reduce potential detrimental impacts on freshwater Natura 2000 sites.

In relation to potential impacts on terrestrial Natura 2000 sites, farms operating under the NAP derogation are now also required to use Low Emission Slurry Spreading Equipment (LESSE) for any slurry applications after the 15th June of each year. This new condition in the NI derogation for 2019 – 2022 is an ammonia reduction measure and will help to reduce potential impacts of Nitrogen deposition from derogated farms on any surrounding habitats in Natura 2000 sites. Some 420 farms are currently operating under the NAP derogation and the large majority are not in close proximity to Natura 2000 sites.

There has been greater awareness in recent years of the impact of nitrogen deposition on the environment. Therefore we are learning from past experience and the emerging evidence to deliver for a healthy environment, including protection and improvement of Natura 2000 sites, and for sustainable agriculture. An important element of this will be developing a comprehensive approach to ammonia and I intend to publish these proposals for consultation soon.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what work his Department is doing to prevent long delays at border control posts disrupting food supply chains in Northern Ireland. (AQW 9104/17-22)

Mr Poots: Keeping food on our shelves has been recognised as a key issue by the Northern Ireland Executive. Accordingly, DAERA was assigned by the Executive on 1 May 2020 to lead on Food Supply Security.

I remain clear that the Ireland/Northern Ireland Protocol needs to be implemented in a way that minimises any frictions on the flow of agri-food trade and works for our businesses and consumers. I have reinforced this point to the UK Government, and I am seeking progress on a number of relevant policy issues which will be essential for the successful design and operation of our Points of Entry.

Following a review, Programme delivery has been assessed as RED, meaning the programme team will not be able to deliver the operational delivery arrangements in full by the end of the Transition Period. Therefore, the team, whilst continuing to work on the full implementation of all requirements, are now engaged in contingency planning to identify what can be achieved during this period.

The following details provide a brief update:

A business case for the work necessary to carry out the required Sanitary and Phytosanitary (SPS) checks at Northern Ireland's Points of Entry has been approved by the Department of Finance and Her Majesty's Treasury. This includes building work, additional staff and IT functions. Funding has been secured for some £43 million, of which £37 million relates to capital expenditure. A further £6 million will also be required for recruiting, training and employing additional personnel and programme implementation costs.

One of the most significant aspects of the programme has been to identify suitable site locations for the Points of Entry facilities. There are key drivers for the site selection, for example, they must be within the Port and Custom boundary, they must fit the needs of the DAERA operating model in terms of size and to be successful, they have to align with the Port's operating model. There has been detailed engagement with port authorities and airports to: (1) assess current site infrastructure; (2) identify any additional infrastructure that is required; and (3) agree in principle suitable site locations for development at each portal facility. After a period of intensive work, specific sites have been identified and the programme team is in negotiations with the ports through Land and Property Services and DSO Commercial to secure the relevant lease agreements.

Proposed facilities will, of course, need to have the relevant planning consents to proceed. Legal advice has been that DAERA should confirm the position with the local planning authorities, therefore applications have been submitted for each of the ports for proposed Certificate of Lawful Use or Development (CLUD) to the relevant Council authorities to confirm that the development falls within permitted development rights.

The programme team have completed the tender process for the design and build phase for the required inspection facilities, in line with the programme procurement strategy, which was agreed with the Department of Finance. The contract award letters for the design and build of proposed inspection facilities at Warrenpoint, Larne and Belfast Harbours issued to the successful contractors on 7 October 2020. Meetings with the successful contractors are now ongoing to agree the delivery timelines for the design and build programme of works.

Work is being finalised with initial ground survey work being undertaken for each of the Seaport sites (Belfast Harbour, Larne Port, Warrenpoint Port and Foyle Port) in order to inform the forthcoming detailed design process.

Over the coming months, to ensure businesses are kept up to date, a communication and engagement plan will be implemented in conjunction with the relevant government departments including Defra and HMRC. This will include a series of stakeholder engagement sessions to guide traders step by step through the journey from GB to Northern Ireland.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, in relation to his Department having undertaken work along with Inland Fisheries to trial a new surface on part of the road around the public fishery at Moorlough, Co.Tyrone, (i) for his assessment of that trial; and (ii) given the impact the state of the current road is having on disabled access, when his Department will complete the roll out of the trial surface on the entire route around the lough.

Mr Poots:

- (i) Resurfacing sections of Moorlough access road using recycled road tar/stones (known as tar shavings) has proved very successful to date.
- (ii) The length of roadway to be repaired is 1.8km and my Department is undertaking the process in stages. The necessary tender documentation to repair the next section of the lane way is being prepared and it is anticipated that this will be completed for the start of the new game angling season in March 2021. The final 500 metres of roadway will be repaired when finance becomes available. However some temporary repairs will be carried out to the most damaged areas this year.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) to detail his Department's current policy for geological disposal in Northern Ireland; (ii) whether his Department responded to the 2018 consultation on geological disposal facilities; and (iii) if so, whether he will lay a copy in the Assembly library.

Mr Poots: My Department continues to support UK Government policy that the siting process for a geological disposal facility (GDF) for radioactive waste is one based on a voluntarism and partnership approach with communities willing to host a GDF. The siting process is being taken forward in England and Wales only. Northern Ireland does not have any higher activity waste and there are no plans to site a GDF here.

The Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs jointly participated in a consultation on the 2018 White Paper Implementing Geological Disposal – Working with Communities, with the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy on 25th January 2018. The results of this consultation are available at <https://www.daera-ni.gov.uk/articles/radioactivity>

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how his Department can help reintroduce thornback rays, which are currently extinct from Belfast Lough.
(AQW 9350/17-22)

Mr Poots: Thornback rays are an Oslo-Paris Convention (OSPAR) threatened and/or declining species and as the UK is a contracting party to OSPAR, the actions of my Department will be guided by the OSPAR recommendation on furthering the protection and conservation of the thornback ray in the OSPAR maritime area. This recommendation includes investigating the inshore distribution of thornback ray and considering whether any of the key areas justify selection and designation as Marine Protected Areas (MPAs).

My Department has included thornback ray on the Northern Ireland Priority Marine Feature (PMF) list, meaning that consideration will be given to designating an MPA for this species. The PMF list includes other shark, skate and ray species but when the initial tranche of Marine Conservation Zones were designated in 2016, there was insufficient evidence on which a designation could be made.

In response to this evidence gap, my Department is collaborating with the Interreg Va Seamonitor project and the Ulster Wildlife Sea Deep project. The data produced by these projects will improve understanding of species abundance and distribution and will be used to identify aggregation sites and critical habitats for pupping and nursery grounds.

My Department will consider any recommendations made by these projects that could further the protection and conservation of thornback rays, and other shark, skate and ray species.

OSPAR also recommends taking measures to address threats to thornback rays and Belfast Lough is already afforded protection through The Inshore Fishing (Prohibition of Fishing and Fishing Methods) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1993 which prohibits the use of any trawl net or any seine net for the capture of sea fish. My Department is developing further fisheries management measures for MPAs in the Northern Ireland inshore region and measures to prohibit bottom trawling will be beneficial for the conservation of thornback rays.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to conduct a survey of marine life in Belfast Lough.
(AQW 9351/17-22)

Mr Poots: My Department undertakes a comprehensive monitoring and survey programme of the Northern Ireland marine area, including Belfast Lough, to assess status of chemical and biological indicators and the condition of species and habitats. Assessments are on a six year rolling cycle with an overall classification for each water body given at the end of each cycle.

Monitoring of the condition and biodiversity of Marine Protected Areas (MPAs) is also undertaken on a 6 year rolling cycle, with condition assessment reports produced at the end of each reporting cycle. Monitoring of protected species including seabirds and marine mammals also contribute to these assessments.

My Department also makes use of data collected through citizen science initiatives such as those carried out by Seasearch, Ulster Wildlife, the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB), the British Trust for Ornithology (BTO) and the Northern Ireland Seabird Network. Data recorded from these projects is shared with the Centre for Environmental Data and Recording (CEDaR) and therefore available to my Department and other statutory management organisations across the UK and Ireland.

The monitoring that is undertaken in Belfast Lough contributes to the overall UK marine monitoring programme which is currently out to public consultation. The consultation document sets out a comprehensive framework for assessing, monitoring and taking action across our seas to achieve the UK's shared vision for clean, healthy, safe, productive and biologically diverse seas. The consultation closes on 17 November and information on how to respond can be found at the following link. <https://consult.defra.gov.uk/marine/updated-uk-marine-strategy-part-two-marine-monitor/>

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to create marine protection areas within Belfast Lough.
(AQW 9352/17-22)

Mr Poots: There are currently 10 marine protected areas (MPAs) within Belfast Lough, these include:

- North Channel Special Area of Conservation (SAC)
- Outer Belfast Lough Marine Conservation Zone (MCZ)
- East Coast Marine proposed Special Protection Area (pSPA)
- Outer Ards Special Protection Area (SPA)
- Belfast Lough SPA
- Belfast Lough Open Water SPA

- Inner Belfast Lough Area of Special Scientific Interest (ASSI)
- Ballymacormick Point ASSI
- Outer Ards ASSI
- Outer Belfast Lough ASSI

These MPAs have been designated to protect rare, threatened and vulnerable marine habitats and species and contribute to the wider Northern Ireland MPA network. Further information on the designated features can be found at <https://www.daera-ni.gov.uk/protected-areas>

An MPA network assessment undertaken in 2018 concluded that the current suite of MPAs in the Northern Ireland inshore region is very close to delivering an ecologically coherent network and my Department currently has no plans to designate additional MPAs within Belfast Lough. This position will be kept under review and my Department will continue to gather evidence that could inform future designations or the addition of designated features to existing MPAs.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to create a sustainable sea angling or fishing policy for Belfast Lough.

Mr Poots: My Department does not currently have any plans to create a specific sea angling or fisheries policy for Belfast Lough. The Fisheries Bill at Westminster, which is due to be enacted shortly, provides the legal framework for the United Kingdom to operate as an independent coastal state after it has left the EU. It sets high level sustainable fisheries objectives that must be met by the UK Fisheries Administrations. The Bill requires the Administrations to develop a Joint Fisheries Statement (JFS) which will set out how the Administrations will meet the eight objectives in the Fisheries Bill. Specifically, the sustainability objective will be underpinned in the JFS which will include fisheries management plans to achieve sustainable stocks in the UK's waters including inshore areas.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the potential markets which will be available to local meat farmers and producers from 1 January 2021.

Mr Poots: The Great Britain and EU markets, as well as our own Northern Ireland market, will be available to local meat farmers and producers from 1 January 2021. The Northern Ireland Protocol enables Northern Ireland to export to the EU without customs and regulatory checks and the UK Government has legislated for NI goods to have unfettered access to the GB market from 1 January 2021.

The UK Government has also been in negotiations with countries that have a free trade agreement with the EU with the aim of putting in place a continuity agreement that would apply equivalent provisions to the UK. These negotiations have made good progress and it is expected that for a large majority of these countries, a continuity agreement will be in place from 1 January 2021. Trade with other countries will be able to take place on WTO terms as is the case at present.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for an update on the state of readiness of our ports as we near the end of the transition period.

Mr Poots: I am clear that the Northern Ireland Protocol, and the SPS implementation programme need to be realized in a way that minimises frictions on the flow of agri-trade and works for our businesses and consumers. I have reinforced this point to the UK Government, and I am seeking progress on a number of relevant policy issues which will be essential for the successful design and operation of our Points of Entry.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether water quality in the Connswater River is meeting the set standard.

(AQO 1004/17-22)

Mr Poots: Routine water quality monitoring is carried out on the Connswater River at the Con O'Neill Bridge. Chemical monitoring is undertaken on a monthly basis and biological monitoring is carried out on a seasonal basis as part of a rolling programme.

The Connswater River is a Heavily Modified Water Body and is designated for flood risk management. This means that NIEA assess its ecological potential rather than its status, taking into account the constraints imposed by the physical alterations.

In the most recent classification, published in 2018 the Connswater River was assessed as having Poor Ecological Potential. The target for the Connswater is to be of Good Ecological Potential but is failing to meet the standards required for invertebrates, aquatic plants and Phosphorus. This assessment of the water quality is unchanged from the assessment made in 2015 but has improved from 2009 when the river was assessed as Bad status.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what work his Department is undertaking to prevent delays to live animals at border controls becoming an animal welfare issue.

Mr Poots: The welfare of animals is a priority for my Department. DAERA's Veterinary Service Animal Health Group (VSAHG) takes the welfare of animals very seriously and will safeguard animal welfare at points of entry to Northern Ireland now and in the future.

VSAHG's Portal Branch is experienced in the control of animal movements through Northern Ireland's ports and airports. There is a dedicated livestock inspection facility in Larne port which provides a round-the-clock service to ensure that animal health and welfare standards are protected. My staff in Portal Branch monitor the welfare of animals moving through the port as part of their normal duties and take action when non-compliance is detected.

To ensure that inspections at all points of entry can be delivered efficiently and with as little delay as possible, the Department is recruiting additional vets and animal health and welfare inspectors; installing new equipment including electronic tag readers to speed up the animal inspection process; and will clearly communicate process requirements to stakeholders.

Live animal inspections will be prioritised to minimize delays. When increased numbers of live animal movements are anticipated managers will ensure that adequate resource is available to carry out the necessary checks in a timely way.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether he plans to bring forward legislation to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

Mr Poots: I am currently considering proposals for a bovine Tuberculosis (bTB) Eradication Strategy for Northern Ireland. Some of the proposals, including those relating to wildlife intervention and finance, will require legislation.

The eradication of bTB remains one of my top priorities and, subject to Executive approval, I intend to move forward with the Strategy as soon as is practicably possible.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has made any assessment of the impact of working from home on mental health or anxiety-related absences.

(AQW 7967/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): To date no assessment has been made on the impact of working from home on mental health or anxiety-related absences. However, an analysis of the overall levels of sickness absence in the NICS from April to September 2020 (inclusive) shows that there has been a 31% reduction in the number of sick absence days reported when compared to the same period in 2019. Within the Department for Communities for this same period, there was a reduction of 34% in the number of sick absence days reported.

I recognise the need to provide staff and managers working at home or in the office with the necessary support and advice, particularly during this period of uncertainty and change in the COVID-19 pandemic. NICS HR provides a range of support services for staff which can be found on the dedicated NICS Covid-19 Information Hub: <https://www.finance-ni.gov.uk/landing-pages/covid-19-guidance-nics-employees>. The Hub can be accessed by staff either through the DfC intranet or the Department of Finance internet, making it widely available to staff whether in the office or at home. This Hub also signposts staff to wider resources and information on how to take care of your mental health and wellbeing, including links to relevant pages on the NI Direct and Public Health Agency sites.

In June 2020, my department issued a short survey to all staff which sought to understand the impact of COVID-19 on our people. A total of 2,463 responses were received, with 84% responding that they felt good, or very good at that time; and 76% of those who responded advised that they would be happy to have home working become a regular part of their future working pattern.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of intimidation points awards, in each of the last 5 years, broken down by constituency.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table which details the numbers of Applicants who have received intimidation points from the Housing Executive in each of the last five years.

The Housing Executive has advised that this data cannot be extracted from the Housing Management System at constituency level and therefore is provided on the basis of Local Council Area. Where there have been less than 10 Applicants awarded intimidation points this has been denoted by <10 to anonymise this data and mitigate the potential risk of identifying individuals and individual households.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Communities what preparations have been made to provide support to people in areas of heightened COVID-19 restrictions.
(AQW 8073/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Since the beginning of the pandemic, my Department has adopted a cross sectoral partnership approach to ensuring support is in place for the most vulnerable. This involves working closely with other Executive Departments and Local Government within the civil contingencies framework and enabling the Voluntary and Community Sector response.

Anyone in need of support, including those within the areas of heightened restrictions, can contact the COVID-19 Community Helpline (Freephone 0808 802 0020, Email: covid19@adviceni.net, Text: ACTION to 81025) which will provide personalised advice and referral to appropriate support depending on an individual's circumstances.

In order to ensure that sustainable grassroots support is in place, my Department has confirmed an additional £1.75m for the COVID Community Support Fund, through Councils to support the Voluntary and Community Sector response to hardship created by the pandemic. We are also working with partner organisations to support and coordinate volunteering, liaising with local councils to tailor support to changing circumstances.

Improving access to food and a sustainable response to food poverty, is at the heart of my Department's response and we have invested almost £800k to support Fareshare to deliver an increased supply of food to community food providers. We have also made a further £750k allocation to Councils for a COVID-19 Access to Food Fund. This will help deliver a more strategic response to the issue, recognising that whilst food is at the forefront of need, support and advice on wider issues is needed to reverse longer term need. This will be factored into the development of the Anti-Poverty Strategy.

It is important that financial support to meet immediate needs is in place to enable the most vulnerable to comply with restrictions. My Department has introduced a new COVID-19 living expenses grant to the Discretionary Support scheme. This grant is available where a person or any member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with published guidance.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) each current strategy within her departmental remit; (ii) the current status of each strategy; and (iii) the funding allocated for each strategy.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Please see attached table provided by Officials at Annex A which lists each current strategy within my departmental remit, its current status and the funding allocated.

VCD - Volunteering Strategy for NI	Current and Ongoing. This will continue until a new 3 year strategy (2018 to 2021) is complete	Northern Ireland's first ever Volunteering Strategy was launched in In March 2012. This provided a 5 year policy framework within which Government support for volunteering was structured. The aim was to involve more people in volunteering and help build a better future for the people of Northern Ireland. The process of refreshing the strategy provides an opportunity to recognise the changing environment that we live in, the increasing demands on people's time, the huge technological changes that are continuing at a pace and the need to be more creative in ensuring that volunteering opportunities should adapt and respond accordingly. Three Strategic Goals are: Diverse Inclusivity - Volunteers are representative of the diversity of our community; Meaningful experience - Everyone can enjoy a meaningful volunteering experience; Public Value - Everyone appreciates and values the contributions volunteering makes to people and communities. An Action Plan will be developed to support delivery throughout the life of the strategy.	Funding Allocated under the Volunteering Infrastructure for 20/21 totalled £596K. This was allocated to 6 Volunteer Centres - Craigavon; Omagh; Mid Ulster; Causeway; Limavady and North West and DfC Strategic partner Volunteer Now.

2011 Fuel Poverty Strategy (Warmer Healthier Homes)	As this Strategy was published 9 years ago we are currently developing a new Fuel Poverty Strategy, and aim to have proposals for Public Consultation by the end of March 2021.	The then Department for Social Development published "Warmer Healthier Homes – A New Fuel Poverty Strategy for Northern Ireland" in March 2011. The strategy highlighted 3 main factors which impact on fuel poverty as, income, fuel prices, and energy efficiency of households and proposed methods to ease fuel poverty. Key areas for action were: Targeting of resources, improving energy efficiency, achieving affordable energy, and building strong partnerships. The Department's vision at that time was - "...one of homes that are free from cold and damp, of homes in which people enjoy living; that are healthy and enhance the quality of their occupants' lives. Our vision is of a society in which people live in a warm, comfortable home and need not worry about the effect of the cold on their health." This theme will carry into the new Fuel Poverty Strategy which is currently being developed by the Department.	Various programmes (not just those led by the Department for Communities) mentioned in the Strategy have their own funding arrangements. Funding for the Affordable Warmth Scheme for 2020-21 is £12m and £1m for Boiler Replacement Scheme.
Northern Ireland Housing Executive's Homelessness Strategy: "Ending Homelessness Together" 2017-22	Year 3 of a 5 year Strategy and preparations are being made for the development of a new 5 year Strategy 2022-2027. The Housing Executive has already started preparations for the development of a Homelessness Strategy for 2022-27.	The Northern Ireland Housing Executive has statutory responsibility for responding to homelessness, and published its Homelessness Strategy: "Ending Homelessness Together" 2017-22 in April 2017. It contains five objectives: • To prioritise homelessness prevention; To secure sustainable accommodation and appropriate support solutions for homeless households; To further understand and address the complexities of chronic homelessness across Northern Ireland; To ensure the right mechanisms are in place to oversee and deliver this strategy; and To measure and monitor existing and emerging need to inform the ongoing development of appropriate services In respect of Year 3 (2019/20) of the Homelessness Strategy, the Year 3 Annual Progress Report which outlines progress against the activities and outcomes contained within the Homelessness Strategy has been submitted to the Housing Executive Board with an online conference to launch the report scheduled for Wednesday 4th November.	No specific funding for the development of the Strategy. In 2020/21 the Housing Executive has allocated total funding of £46.6m to homeless services which funds over 3,000 temporary units and a range of services. This figure comprises £27.1m from the Homelessness service element of the Supporting People budget of £72.8m and a further £19.5m from the homelessness services budget (including additional funding for Covid-19).

Tenant Participation Strategy	The current Tenant Participation Strategy for Northern Ireland is in place from 2017 to 2020.	Within Department for Communities the current Tenant Participation Strategy for Northern Ireland is in place from 2017 to 2020. Therefore this is now under review. The current strategy explores how social landlords and tenants can work together to improve services by giving tenants the opportunity and choice to participate in decisions that affect them. It encourages Housing Associations to increase the effectiveness and involvement of tenant participation. Tenant Participation is the method by which social landlords effectively involve and communicate with tenants and residents with an end goal of improving the delivery of services. Although the Strategy is currently only being developed for 2020, there will be a co-design approach as mentioned above and more information will be detailed on this as soon as it is known.	The funding allocated for each strategy - at this stage funding is limited to staffing resources and the costs of public consultation.
NIHE Inspection Strategy 2019- 2022	The Strategy is currently in year 2.	DfC Housing Inspection Branch (HIB) has a NIHE Inspection Strategy 2019-2022 in place. It is a three year Strategy which contains details of the inspections to be carried out and the DfC HIB approach when undertaking these inspections.	There are no additional costs incurred for this Strategy as it is part of the DfC Core Work
Social Inclusion Strategies: Disability, Gender, Anti-Poverty, Sexual Orientation	In development	The Executive agreed the commencement for the development of the Social Inclusion Strategies on 24 September 2020. Co Design commenced early October with Expert Panel meetings. A timetable for this work has been published and can be found at https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/articles/social-inclusion-strategies Strategies are scheduled for publication and launch by December 2021, subject to Executive approval.	Costs of implementing actions that will be included in each of the strategies cannot be predicted at this stage. As these Strategies are cross cutting it is likely that implementation costs will be incurred by a range of departments.
Active Ageing	Live	The current Active Ageing Strategy 2016-2021 is due to conclude in January 2021. Work on a review of the Strategy has been ongoing. Contributing departments have provided updated and refreshed actions in fulfilment of their commitments within the Strategy. Recommendations have been presented to the Executive in relation to republishing the refreshed Strategy and extending it to May 2022.	No specific funding is allocated to the Active Ageing Strategy, individual departments are responsible for resourcing the actions therein.
Child Poverty	Live	The 2016-19 Child Poverty Strategy expired in March 2019. The Executive extended the Strategy to May 2022. Engagement with key stakeholders will commence to determine the best way forward in relation to dealing with Child Poverty post May 22.	Funding has not been specifically allocated to the Child Poverty Strategy. The costs of implementing the actions associated with the Child Poverty Strategy cut across most departments therefore each department funds its own actions.

Departmental Strategy	In Development It is anticipated the strategy will be launched in November 2020 (subject to Ministerial approval).	Officials are currently preparing an overarching DfC Five Year Strategy (2020-2025). This will be used internally to set out how we will work across government, with our Arm's Length Bodies and with communities to deliver our common purpose of Supporting People, Building Communities and Shaping Places.	No additional cost has been incurred for the development of the strategy.
Public Appointments Strategy	Live since 2017	It sets out the Department's public appointment principles and strategic priorities, being closely aligned to the vision of the Commissioner for Public Appointments NI and her Code of Practice. It is supported by an underlying Action Plan. The Strategy is due to be reviewed taking on board outcomes from the DoF-led review of ALB Sponsorship and Board Effectiveness	No specific funding has been allocated to it.
The Future Method of Payment (FMoP) Strategy	Prioritising payments to customers during the DWP's response to Covid19 meant that the FMoP Project was effectively paused as staff were redeployed to support front line services. The project has recommenced at a reduced level and will be ramping up steadily over the coming months.	Commercial Services is representing the Department in the implementation of the Future Method of Payment (FMoP) strategy in Northern Ireland. This is a DWP lead strategy and aims to improve the methods used to pay pension and benefits to customers through the introduction of innovative, secure and efficient methods of payment. A key objective of the strategy is to introduce improved payment exception services for pension and benefit customers who rely on the current payment exception services for receiving their payments.	DfC funding was approved for the DfC contribution of £1.56M to the DWP project costs and funding of £0.26M for the DfC FMoP team. The contract costs for exiting the exception payment service and the new Payment Exception Service will be met within the existing baseline budget, as overall savings are expected.
NIHE's Asset Management Strategy and was approved on 26th January 2016.	Although approved by previous Minister its full implementation is currently temporarily suspended, in October 2017, pending the resolution of the NIHE's long term funding.	The NIHE Asset Management Strategy set out that the NIHE would: • Adopt an active asset management approach whereby investment decisions would be based on financial and social performance of properties aimed at ensuring the financial viability of the organisation and its property portfolio; Target major investment in stock with a sustainable, long term life; Investment to the Commonly Adopted Standard; Conduct option appraisals for stock currently performing poorly prior to committing to major investment; Create a longer term investment plan; and Procure contracts commensurate with the long term plan. However due to a reduction in funding the NIHE have temporarily suspended the aspiration to achieve the Commonly Adopted Standard and its strict adherence to focusing investment on the better performing stock. However they have continued with other principles of the strategy.	The Asset Management Strategy was predicated on the delivery of a long term funding solution which has not materialised.

The Northern Ireland Child Maintenance Compliance and Arrears Strategy	Legislation to support the Strategy went through the NI Assembly on the 1st June 2020. The Strategy is being delivered under a Project which is nearing completion. The Project is currently on track to deliver within the agreed timescales and within budget, and it is anticipated that it will close at the end of this financial year.	The objectives of the Strategy are to: Continue to prioritise resources to benefit children of today <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Continue to encourage parents to collaborate over their child maintenance arrangements where possible, as this is in the best interests of their children • Continue to minimise the amount of unpaid maintenance in the Child Maintenance Service • Further improve compliance through changes to child maintenance calculations for parents with complex income, such as people who are self-employed and/ or company directors • Strengthen collection powers • Address the historic arrears that built up under the 1993 and 2003 schemes • Avoid taxpayers funding activity which will not result in more money going to children 	The additional funding allocated to the Project to deliver the Strategy is £1.08m.

Additional schemes can also be added to the SHDP in-year through the purchase of Existing Satisfactory / Off-the-shelf properties.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 4369/17-22, when a decision will be made on the future of the shops and maisonettes in Knocknagoney Avenue.

(AQW 8251/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The business case recommending the redevelopment of 64-86 Knocknagoney Avenue was approved by the Housing Executive Board at its meeting on the 30th September 2020.

It was received by the Department of Communities on 6th October 2020 and is currently being considered.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities when employees notified that they are being made redundant at the end of the furlough period should make an application for Universal Credit.

(AQW 8326/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is committed to supporting people at this difficult time and my priority has been to ensure that the social security system remains flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure those people most in need get the help and support they require. This remains the case for those who will be impacted by the end of the furlough scheme.

As Universal Credit is for people on a low income or no income and, subject to meeting the eligibility criteria, a person currently on furlough can apply for Universal Credit. Details on making a claim for Universal Credit including the eligibility criteria can be found at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/you-claim-universal-credit>.

However, for anyone receiving Tax Credits I would advise that they should refer to <https://www.gov.uk/tax-credits-calculator> if they are considering making a claim to Universal Credit.

Prior to making a claim a person can also check the 'entitled to' benefit calculator to get an estimate of how much they may be entitled to. <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/benefits-adviser>

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Communities how her Department is encouraging Housing Association representatives to attend Supporting Communities Inter-Agency meetings in North Down.

(AQW 8401/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As part of the regulation of Registered Housing Associations (RHAs), my Department requires RHAs to demonstrate that they actively encourage tenant participation and community engagement.

The Department's Regulatory approach assesses whether RHAs comply with Governance, Finance and Consumer Standards. The Consumer Standard focuses on tenants' interests and requires the RHAs to demonstrate evidence that they are participating in a variety of Supporting Community initiatives. This encourages engagement opportunities for tenants and others within the community.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for Communities what investment there has been in Neighbourhood Renewal areas in (i) Brownlow; (ii) Lurgan; and (iii) Portadown, broken down by (a) scheme; and (b) region, in each of the last five years.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Annex A details the Neighbourhood Renewal investment made within Brownlow, Lurgan and NW Portadown Neighbourhood Renewal areas. This is broken down to show capital and revenue funding over the last five financial years for these three areas in Upper Bann.

Annex B details investment via the Women Involved in Community Transformation Programme (WICT). To note the information is not held in a year-on-year basis and the amount for January - March 2017 and July - August 2017 cannot be broken down between the 2 areas as the total amount was allocated to the delivery partner to delivery in both areas. Kilwilkee falls in under the Lurgan Area, and Mid Ulster and North Armagh both included Portadown.

The Housing Executive has identified broad areas of investment spend across business areas in response to this query. Unfortunately the level of breakdown requested to specific geographical area is not readily available and it is not possible to confirm how much of the spend listed below was within Neighbourhood Renewal areas. We have provided the relevant summary information for the Council area and where possible, we have provided a further breakdown between Lurgan and Portadown in Annex C.

Annex D details investment that has been provided by my Department for affordable housing in Brownlow, Lurgan and Portadown in each of the last five financial years.

My Department has also provided funding of £130,000 for revitalisation and environmental improvements to William Street, Market Street and Church Walk, Lurgan, all of which lie in the Lurgan Neighbourhood Renewal area. The annual breakdown of funding is £90,000 in 2018 and £40,000 in 2019.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities why £1.1 million allocated to the Individuals Emergency Resiliency Fund in July, has not yet been released.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The £1.1m Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme (IERP) builds upon the £575,000 Artists Emergency Programme which has provided support to 224 individuals. IERP attracted applications from a wide range of creatives and, like the first programme, was heavily oversubscribed. IERP funding has been increased by £3m and awards have announced this week.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities how she will support self-employed professional musicians from the COVID-19 £29 million package for the Arts Sector during the period of the ban on live performances.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Music plays a very significant role in our arts and culture and in our social lives and I recognise the significant impact that current restrictions are having on those who make their living through live music performance.

On 24 September the Executive announced an allocation of £29m in response to my bid. This will provide a significant boost to our culture, language, heritage and arts sectors, including music, and will support them in the short term and provide additional support for the future.

On 19 October I made the first allocation from that package with a £3m allocation to the Individual Emergency Resilience Fund, administered on my department's behalf by the Arts Council. This will allow vital assistance to be provided to over 1,000 freelancers, musicians, actors, artists and craft workers from across the creative economy.

My officials are working in close collaboration across central and local government, as well as with arm's length bodies and sectoral representatives to develop further programmes which will be funded through the remaining £26m. These programmes will be aimed at addressing need across the range of the arts, language, culture and heritage sectors, including those working in music. Work is well advanced and I expect to be able to make further announcements before the end of the month.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the impact of the Health Protection Regulations and restrictions on the local music industry; and whether she has bid, or intends to bid, for financial resources to assist those who are adversely affected.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have consistently made clear the value I place on the arts and culture, including the music industry. Through my engagement with representatives from across the local music industry I am acutely aware of the very significant impact the current restrictions are having on those who make their living through music.

I bid to the Executive for funding to provide support across the broad arts, language, culture and heritage sectors, including the music sector, and have welcomed the £29m that was allocated on 24 September.

I am determined that this financial support should be on the ground as quickly as possible and on 19 October was pleased to announce that the first £3m of this funding would be allocated immediately to the Individual Emergency Resilience Fund, administered on my department's behalf by the Arts Council. This will allow vital assistance to be provided to over 1,000 freelancers, musicians, actors, artists and craft workers from across the creative economy.

My officials are working in close collaboration across central and local government, as well as with arm's length bodies and sectoral representatives to develop further programmes which will be funded through the remaining £26m. These will be aimed at addressing need across the range of the arts, language, culture and heritage sectors. Work on those programmes is well advanced and I expect to be able to make further announcements before the end of the month.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for Communities to detail the total cost to the public purse of (i) the Casement Park redevelopment project; (ii) the redevelopment of Windsor Park; and (iii) the redevelopment of Ravenhill.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In March 2011, the Executive allocated a budget of £110 million, capital grant funding, to deliver the three projects within the Regional Stadia Programme.

- Windsor Park was completed and opened to the public in October 2016 at a cost of £31million public funding
- Ravenhill was completed and opened to the public in May 2014 at a cost of £16.5million public funding
- Casement Park is not yet complete so the total cost is not finalised.

To date the public funding released on Casement Park is £10,669,110

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the funding support package for the arts sector.

(AQW 8639/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 24 September the Executive agreed a £29m funding package to provide support across our culture, language, heritage and arts sectors.

On 19 October I made the first allocation from that package with £3m being directed to the Individual Emergency Resilience Fund, administered on my department's behalf by the Arts Council. This will allow immediate offers of assistance to be provided to over 1,000 people working in a wide range of roles across the creative and arts economy.

My officials are working in close collaboration across central and local government, as well as with arm's length bodies and sectoral representatives to develop further programmes which will be funded through the remaining £26m. Work is well advanced and I expect to make further announcements before the end of the October.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities (i) what his Department is doing to address the increasing high street vacancy rates; (ii) what discussions he is having with councils; and (iii) whether he will bring forward a vacancy strategy.

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) My Department continues to provide significant support to town centres through our ongoing programme of physical regeneration interventions which have been in place for many years. These include Public Realm and Environmental Improvement schemes and the Revitalisation programme which has received additional funds to provide targeted support to traders in the current Covid-19 pandemic. In addition to my Department's work to help address the increasing high street vacancy rates, the Department of Finance has confirmed that, for this financial year, to help minimise the effects of the Covid-19 pandemic on our business sector and to help reduce the number of empty properties, the Executive has provided an unprecedented £300M plus in rates support packages for businesses here in the form of a 12 months rates holiday.
- (ii) My Department engages with councils on a continual basis in relation to physical regeneration schemes and this is particularly evident in the approach taken to deliver the current Covid-19 Revitalisation programme.
- (iii) Vacancies in town centres and any strategy to address them cuts across many Departments and it is likely that this will be an issue considered by the Executive Office led High Streets Task Force.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities what assessment has been made of the current levels of welfare support impact on people's mental health during the COVID-19 pandemic; and whether she plans to provide a Christmas top-up payment to welfare claimants.

(AQW 8911/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department's priority has been to ensure that social security benefits are delivered to people in need. This has included managing a significant increase in new claims to Universal Credit and the delivery of the new COVID-19 living expenses grant for people who find themselves in a crisis situation.

I have asked officials to keep options under review.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities for an update on removing historical debt from the Housing Executive.

(AQW 8985/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am committed to delivering on the pledge made in New Decade New Approach to examine options to remove the historic debt and am pursuing this.

My officials are working with Department of Finance officials to explore a range of options for the removal of this debt and to understand the best way forward.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Communities why a motorsport event at Kirkistown Race Circuit on Saturday 17 October 2020, which was closed to the public, had to be cancelled.

(AQW 9056/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under the latest Health Regulations events, other than those involving elite athletes or sports teams, involving more than 15 participants for a common purpose are not permitted.

The event at Kirkistown on 17 October was not an elite event and had more than 15 participants, including drivers, club members and officials present. The event was therefore not permitted under Schedule 2 paragraph 5 (c) and (d) of the regulations.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities to detail the Northern Ireland Housing Executive's policy for viewing and moving homes due to the impact of COVID-19.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive continues to work with its contractors and prospective tenants to re-let its homes as quickly as possible while at all times adhering to the Health Protection Coronavirus Restrictions and government guidance. Its aim is to ensure that applicants on the waiting list, particularly households who are statutory homeless, can commence their new tenancies and move into their new home as soon as possible. The primary consideration within these arrangements is to continue to minimise any potential risk to customers, staff and contractors.

Measures have been put in place to enable housing assessment and allocation processes to be completed online or over the telephone.

Housing Executive policy is that viewings should be facilitated as normal, whenever possible, during the Coronavirus emergency. Staff have been asked to exercise due care when organising and facilitating viewings and to adhere strictly to the applicable Public Health Agency (PHA) guidance and any local risk assessments. Where accompanied viewings are not possible, guidance has been issued to local offices allowing the discretion to find alternate solutions to ensure that customers are given an opportunity to view the property e.g. virtual viewings, opening dwellings at a pre-arranged time or providing keys to allow the customer access.

The Housing Executive's policy is that PHA guidance is followed at all times e.g. avoiding unnecessary contacts, adhering to social distancing guidelines and through the use of PPE where relevant.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the total funding allocated to COVID-19 measures by her Department; and (ii) the spend to date, broken down by measure.

(AQW 9092/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The table below details DfC 2020/21 COVID-19 Allocations and Spend-to-Date.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in her Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

(AQW 9125/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In line with Executive guidance all staff within my department that can work from home, are working from home.

Additional measures have been put in place within offices in line with PHA guidance to ensure the safety of staff working in offices.

DfC remains committed to delivering essential services to the most vulnerable in our society and our staff have demonstrated tremendous resilience throughout this pandemic in their continued commitment to provide this necessary support to the people who need it.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Communities (i) whether the Sports Ground Safety Authority, who provide stadium design advice throughout the UK and Internationally, has been consulted and followed; and (ii) whether their Guide to Safety at Sports Grounds Green Guide has been adopted in the design of the Casement Park stadium.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Safety Technical Group (STG) is a multi-agency body, funded by my Department to provide specialist advice to the Regional Stadia Programme, on matters of sports ground safety for the stadia projects at Kingspan Stadium, Windsor Park and Casement Park. The Sports Ground Safety Authority (SGSA) is an expert body on safety at sports grounds and an Arms Length Body of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

One of the recommendations of the 2015 Project Assessment Review (PAR) on the Regional Stadia Programme, resulted in the appointment of the SGSA as independent advisors to the Safety Technical Group in March 2016. This was welcomed by my Department.

The Sports Ground Safety Authority (SGSA), has been fully engaged in the re-design process for the Casement Park project and their advice has been followed by the UCGAA and their Integrated Consultant Team (ICT) throughout the process. The stadium design fully complies with the guidance within the SGSA Guide to Safety at Sports Grounds (Green Guide) 5th Edition.

In November 2018, my Department endorsed the SGSA Guide to Safety at Sports Grounds, 6th Edition and recommended its use by all bodies involved in the safety of sports grounds.

I can assure you that there will be no compromise on public safety at the Casement Park Stadium and it will not be opened without a valid, fully compliant Safety Certificate provided by Belfast City Council as the certifying body.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities for his assessment of the support available to people at risk of losing their homes as a result of being unable to pay their mortgage.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I would refer the member to my previous response to AQW 7907/17-22 which he tabled on 15 October 2020.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for Communities whether she has any plans to bring forward a bill devolving more powers to local councils, similar to the Localism Act 2011.

(AQW 9176/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The most important aspect of the delivery of public services is to ensure these effectively meet the needs of citizens. The experience of recent months shows how essential it is for all of the public sector to work together in partnership with the community in delivering these services and the maintenance and deepening of these partnerships is vital. I have no immediate plans to bring forward a bill relating to these issues.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for Communities when she will introduce a Test and Trace Support Payment, as is in place in England.

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Public Health Agency.

There is no limit on the number of Discretionary Support COVID-19 awards a person may receive as long as they meet the eligibility criteria. The amount payable is based on each applicant's individual circumstances and will include a specific amount for all dependent children in the household.

As we continue to respond to the impacts of the pandemic I will keep this under review.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities what support is available for DJ's whose livelihood is impacted by COVID-19.

(AQW 9192/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Arts Council NI has delivered Covid-19 related funding through two programmes for individuals to which DJ's were eligible to apply.

The Artists Emergency Programme (AEP): Grant offers were made in May and June 2020.

The Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme (IERP): Grant offers were made in October 2020.

A further funding programme of support for individuals will become available shortly and DJ's will again be eligible.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the disability sport opportunities available in each constituency.

(AQW 9195/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The details on sporting opportunities for those with a disability are not held on a constituency basis by the Department. However, I can confirm my commitment to seeing greater inclusion and participation in sport and physical activity through the opening up new opportunities and by providing support for Governing Bodies, clubs and Councils.

The Department, through SportNI, provides funding to Disability SportNI who provide a range of services and opportunities across sport for those with a disability. This year Disability SportNI will receive circa £565k funding to run its participation programmes and specifically under the Sport NI 'Sporting Clubs -Sporting Winners' Programme to support Boccia, Snowsport, Wheelchair Basketball and Athlete Awards activities.

In addition, my Department has provided funding for this financial year of £414k as part of a new four year funding cycle for Special Olympics Ulster, who provide fantastic sporting opportunities for people with learning disability.

In recent years as part of the delivery of the Active Living No Limits Disability Action Plan the Department has provided in excess of £1.7m. This investment has equipped 11 new disability hubs and installed pool pods in every District Council area. It has provided the funding to open up access to forests and trails by enabling Disability Sport NI to purchase adapted battery powered quads and trikes for the first 'All Out Trekking' Facility at Gosford Forest Park.

The funding has also delivered improved access to beaches as well as providing adapted boats for specialist Water Sports Hubs for the disabled at Carrickfergus, Craigavon Lakes, Lough Erne and the Foyle.

Other initiatives include Everybody Active 2020 Lottery Programmes which have been delivered throughout the various Council areas, work with Governing Bodies such as the IFA, GAA and Ulster Rugby to expand their provision as well as club development programmes for sports such as Boccia. Funding has also been secured to assist with the growth in wheelchair sports such as basketball and power chair football.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Communities whether subsistence payments provided under the National Referral Mechanism for victims of Human Trafficking identified in Northern Ireland is not considered as unearned income in relation to the operation of Universal Credit.

(AQW 9201/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The National Referral Mechanism (NRM) is a framework for identifying and referring potential victims of modern slavery and ensuring they receive the appropriate support. Individuals who are recognised as a potential victim of modern slavery through the NRM have access to specialist tailored support, which may include access to advice, accommodation, protection and independent emotional and practical help. Individuals here will receive support for at least 45 days while their case is considered by the Single Competent Authority in the Home Office, and Subsistence Payments under NRM are £65 per week.

Under Universal Credit rules such payments do not fall within the prescribed categories of unearned income, and are therefore disregarded when calculating entitlement to Universal Credit.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities (i) what discussions has she had with the officers of (a) Belfast City Council; and (b) Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council regarding a financial support package to attract shoppers into the cities during the Christmas season; and (ii) to confirm the awarded level of support.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Throughout the development and delivery of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme my officials have been working closely with their council counterparts to develop a Revitalisation Plan for each council area. These plans set out how the council will use their allocation from the programme to support town and cities as they recover from the impact of COVID-19.

Belfast City Council and Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council have both included Seasonal Marketing and Lighting schemes in their Revitalisation Plans to encourage shoppers to their cities during the festive period. The amount of funding allocated to these types of schemes is a matter for each council to determine.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail her COVID-19 exit strategy for each of the functional areas of responsibility within her Department.

(AQW 9206/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department and the wider Executive continue to respond to the ongoing public health emergency and doing so is at the top of my agenda across all of my functional responsibilities.

My plans for recovery will be led by medical and scientific evidence, as well as international best practice.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities when she will bring forward her strategic and costed plan to bring Northern Ireland Housing Executive homes up to an appropriate energy conservation standard.

(AQW 9207/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive currently seeks to upgrade the energy efficiency of its stock through a number of measures including modern heating systems, insulation, double glazing and – where special funding has been available – the installation of cladding and solar panels. They also comply with the relevant Building Regulations requirements regarding thermal performance whenever undertaking renovation works. Nonetheless the thermal performance of its stock is low compared to the other housing sectors, with almost two-thirds of the stock at SAP Band D.

Should any new standard be introduced it is thought likely that this would be much higher due to the necessity to respond to the climate change challenge. Meeting such a higher standard would have considerable financial implications for the Housing Executive given that they continue to project a significant shortfall in the funding required to achieve and maintain modern housing standards for its stock.

The Housing Executive is currently developing a new Energy Strategy for its stock and in the course of doing so have prepared some initial estimates of the cost of achieving the higher SAP bands; these range from £394 million for low SAP C to £1.7 billion for low SAP A. The Energy Strategy is currently in the early stages and given the current climate they are working in it is not possible to state when this will be finalised.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Communities whether she intends to introduce a test and trace support payment.

(AQW 9209/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Public Health Agency.

There is no limit on the number of Discretionary Support COVID19 awards a person may receive as long as they meet the eligibility criteria. The amount payable is based on each applicant's individual circumstances and will include a specific amount for all dependent children in the household.

As we continue to respond to the impacts of the pandemic I will keep this under review.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities for an update on her legislative programme for the remainder of the current Assembly mandate.

(AQW 9217/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In addition to the Pension Schemes Bill 2020, which is currently at Committee Stage, I am also progressing the Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Bill, which will reach its second stage on 3 November 2020.

My officials are progressing other potential legislative proposals, in line with my Department's New Decade New Approach and Programme for Government Commitments. Introduction of any new Bills to the Assembly will require Executive approval.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 8241/17-22, to detail (i) how many Housing Executive homes in the Foyle constituency are estimated to have inadequate or inefficient cavity wall insulation; (ii) whether a programme is underway to provide an accurate figure for the number of homes affected; and (iii) when all affected homes will be improved to ensure they have cavity wall insulation that is of modern standard and effective.

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) The Housing Executive's data is not comprehensive on the construction of all of its properties; however, it is estimated that some 4,100 cavity wall constructed properties in Foyle.
- (ii) The Housing Executive is currently undertaking an analysis of its stock in order to determine as accurately as possible the construction types of all of its stock. Such an exercise could only properly be done through a 100% on-site survey but this is not possible at this time.
- (iii) It is not currently possible to state a timescale within which all likely affected homes will be addressed. a cavity wall insulation programme is only one of a number of competing investment priorities that will have to be assessed through our review of our Asset Management Strategy and Investment Plan. The Housing Executive is currently preparing an Action Plan to address the findings and recommendations of the BBA's report and this will be issued for consultation in the coming months.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities to detail the training that front line Universal Credit workers undergo; and how often it is refreshed.

(AQW 9269/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is committed to providing a supportive and informative service. Those delivering Universal Credit undergo a comprehensive programme of learning and development designed to equip them with the tools, skills and behaviours required to provide a high quality, responsive service to all, including the vulnerable and those with complex needs.

Following 5-weeks of classroom based training for Work Coaches and 3-weeks classroom based training for Case Managers, staff undergo a number of weeks' consolidation to assure their understanding and level of knowledge.

Each of the Jobs & Benefits office's Work Coach teams are also supported by a Work Psychologist to improve their capability to better support people with a health condition or disability.

In addition to training, those delivering the Universal Credit service have access to an electronic database of guidance, Desk aids and Spotlights on specific topics.

Universal Credit training is reviewed on an ongoing basis to ensure it is refreshed or updated to align with any changes to policy and/or processes.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities what discussions she has had with the Department for Work and Pensions on extending the £1,000 Universal Credit standard allowance uplift beyond March 2021.

Ms Ní Chuilín: As part of my Department's strategy of supporting people affected by Covid-19 and the dramatic effect it is having on the economy and peoples' employment, the standard allowance of Universal Credit (and working tax credit) has been increased for this financial year by £1,040 per year (£20 a week). This is in addition to the annual uprating of 1.7%.

This means that for a single Universal Credit claimant aged 25 or over, the standard allowance will increase from £317.82 to £409.89 per month. This is the first increase in benefit entitlement in 5 years.

I continue to keep this matter and other developments across Universal Credit under review.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities for a breakdown of the number of people who have the housing benefit element of Universal Credit paid directly to their landlord, in each year from 2017.

(AQW 9271/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The member can find detailed official statistics on Universal Credit, including information on housing payments publically available on my Department's website at:

<https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/publications/universal-credit-statistics-may-2020>

The Universal Credit statistics supplementary tables 3a to 3d contain information related to housing within households and a breakdown between social and rented sector.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities how many DJs have received COVID-19-related funding from the Arts Council of Northern Ireland through (i) the Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme; (ii) the Artists Emergency Programme; or (iii) another fund.

(AQW 9316/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Arts Council has delivered Covid-19-related funding through two programmes for individuals.

The Artists Emergency Programme (AEP): Grant offers were made in May and June 2020. Specific occupation details were not recorded separately and the number of applicants citing DJ as their occupation is not available.

Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme (IERP): Grant offers were made in October 2020. Twenty eight individuals cited "DJ" in their applications to IERP. Twenty of those have received offers of funding.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities whether her Department has adopted the same approach as the Department for Work and Pensions to determine whether or not someone claiming Employment and Support Allowance can be exempt from re-assessment.

(AQW 9319/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Work and Pensions introduced the ESA Severe Conditions exemption criteria on 29th September 2017. The Department for Communities also introduced the ESA Severe Conditions exemption criteria on this date.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail all funding provided to the sports sector by her Department, in each of the last 3 years, broken down by fund.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The table below shows the funding provided by my Department to the sports sector in each of the last 3 years, broken down by fund.

The figures do not include funding provided by arms-length bodies of the Department.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the Inner North Belfast Masterplan development; and whether she will consider vesting land that is impacting on the redevelopment of this area.

(AQW 9321/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have recently agreed that my Department bring the Inner North West northern cluster of sites forward for development through a joint Development Brief with Belfast City Council (the 'northern cluster' contains three sites: Kent Street, Library Street, both owned by the Department, and Little Donegall Street, owned by Belfast City Council). I am strongly of the view that the appropriate development in this area has to be housing-led. A joint Development Brief with Belfast City Council, issued exclusively to a number of Housing Associations, will help to realise the regeneration benefits of the sites and help to meet housing need in the area.

I have instructed officials to expedite this process to ensure development of these sites at the earliest opportunity. It is planned that the process will begin by the end of November 2020. This will initially involve seeking Expressions of Interest from Housing Associations followed by the issue of the Development Brief by the end of January 2021 to those housing associations who respond to the Expression of Interest call.

I have also recently instructed officials from my Department to explore the identification of sites within the Carrick Hill area for potential acquisition with a view to helping address social housing demand in this area. My Department has powers to acquire land by agreement or by vesting as necessary; acquisition by agreement is always preferable over compulsory acquisition via a vesting order.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Communities, in order to assist with the costs associated with renewal of their pilots licence, bringing Northern Ireland in line with the support that is available in the rest of the UK via the Low Value Provision fund, whether she will consider an extension of financial support options available to unemployed pilots in Northern Ireland.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities currently operates a scheme called the Adviser Discretion Fund, the objective of which is to provide resources of up to £300 to eligible persons for the purchase of goods or services in order to remove a barrier to employment. The scheme may also be used as a measure to support those who are required to complete a short training course in order to progress into work. I can confirm that the scheme has recently provided assistance to pilots towards the costs of the Licence Proficiency Check and has also assisted with costs associated with medicals required for a licence renewal.

As part of the Department for Communities labour market response to the Covid-19 pandemic and subsequent recession, a review of the Adviser Discretion Fund is underway and will include giving consideration to the current funding limits and flexibilities in terms of support which can be provided.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for Communities how many DJs have applied to the artists emergency fund; and how many were successful.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Arts Council NI has delivered Covid-19-related funding through two programmes for individuals.

The Artists Emergency Programme (AEP): Grant offers were made in May and June 2020. Specific occupation details were not recorded separately and the number of applicants citing DJ as their occupation is not available.

Emergency Resilience Programme (IERP): Grant offers were made in October 2020. Twenty eight individuals cited "DJ" in their applications to IERP. Twenty of those have received offers of funding.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will review the way a resident can apply for a National Insurance number in Northern Ireland and move to an online application process as per other regions in the UK.

(AQW 9373/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is currently working with the Department for Work & Pensions on a digital solution to support the process of applying for National Insurance Number.

An online application is currently being tested in two offices in Britain and is initially available to a limited number of applicants per day. The trial will continue for a number of months and, if successful, will expand incrementally to include additional geographical areas. The digital solution is expected to be in place here during 2021.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the number of DJs who have availed of financial support in relation to the impact of COVID-19; and (ii) the total amount of support claimed by these applicants.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Arts Council has delivered through two programmes for individuals.

The Artists Emergency Programme (AEP): Grant offers were made in May and June 2020. Specific occupation details were not recorded separately and the number of applicants citing DJ as their occupation is not available.

Individuals Emergency Resilience Programme (IERP): Grant offers were made in October 2020. Twenty eight individuals cited "DJ" in their applications to IERP. Twenty of those have received offers of funding with awards totalling £64,800.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities whether he will be bringing a financial support package for local councils following the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 9381/17-22)

Ms Hargey: This question is within my remit as Minister for Communities.

On 19 May 2020, £20.3m was allocated to Department for Communities to support local councils which have delivered vital services during the Covid-19 crisis. This was for the period mid-March 2020 to 30 June 2020 and was allocated and paid to councils in June 2020 as set out in Annex 1.

On 24 September a further £40m to local councils for the period 1 July 2020 to 31 March 2021, to assist them with their financial pressures as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

My Department is carrying out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period July 2020 to September 2020 and updated estimates / actual spend for the period mid-March 2020 to June 2020.

Once my Department has carried out a due diligence exercise on the information provided by councils, the figures will be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives. Final consultation with Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives will also take place.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations of funding will be confirmed once the due diligence exercise has been completed.

My Department also activated the Scheme of Emergency Financial Assistance (SEFA) - COVID-19 for the period 3 April 2020 to 3 October 2020 to reimburse councils with other costs due to the Covid-19 crisis. For the period 3 April 2020 to 3 July 2020 claims totalling £74,329.20 have been paid out to councils. Allocations are set out in Annex 2.

Councils have also received funding from my Department of £3.25m for a COVID-19 Community Support Fund through the existing Community Support Programme. The allocations to each council are shown in Annex 3.

My Department is investing £10m in the Capital COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Scheme which will be used in larger towns and city centres.

The funding will be allocated to councils in two tranches to deliver measures that will help provide a safe environment for visitors, shoppers and workers within town and city centres. This may include measures such as shop frontage and awnings/canopies; outdoor furniture, heaters queueing systems; PA/Tannoy and digital screens, and other signage. Allocations for tranche 1 are shown in Annex 4.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Communities what financial support is available for employees forced to isolate by their employer even though they have no symptoms.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is committed to supporting people at this difficult time and a series of changes have been put in place to ensure that the social security system is more flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require.

Depending on a person's terms and conditions of employment they may be eligible for Statutory Sick Pay which is paid by employers to employees who are incapable of work due to sickness. It is paid at a flat rate of £95.85 for up to 28 weeks.

Statutory Sick Pay was amended in response to the coronavirus pandemic to ensure that those who have been advised, by a relevant notification, that they have had contact with a person who has symptoms of coronavirus or has been infected by coronavirus, that they should stay at home and self-isolate as a result, is deemed to be incapable of work, and therefore entitled to Statutory Sick Pay.

Anyone who sees their income reduced, is on a low income or unemployed may be able to claim Universal Credit where eligible. Details on making a claim for Universal Credit, including the eligibility criteria, can be found at www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/you-claim-universal-credit.

Immediate financial support is available for anyone struggling financially through the Universal Credit Contingency Fund in the form of a non-repayable grant and Discretionary Support. To help alleviate the financial difficulties people face during the current COVID-19 crisis the Department has also introduced a new living expenses grant payment within its Discretionary Support Scheme to help people who find themselves in a crisis situation. The COVID-19 payment is available where the claimant or any member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Regional Agency for Public Health and Social Well-being.

Details can be found at www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/extra-financial-support.

New claim advances are also available if a claimant needs financial support. These advances allow claimants to receive up to 100% of their estimated Universal Credit payment upfront. This can be done through the claimant's online account. A new claim advance is in the form of a repayable loan which is repaid over a period of 12 months. Additionally, the Department offers deferrals of advance repayments by up to 3 months in exceptional circumstances.

This applies to all claimants, including those who are required to self-isolate.

For anyone receiving Tax Credits, the Department would advise that they should refer to www.gov.uk/tax-credits-calculator if they are considering making a claim to Universal Credit.

If a person satisfies the National Insurance Contributions (NICs) criteria, they may also be able to apply for New Style Jobseeker's Allowance. An online application form for people making a claim can be found at www.nics.intranet.nigov.net/communities/documents/uc-jsa1-jobseekers-allowance-claim-form-new-style-jsa.

A person considering making a claim for benefit can access the 'entitled to' benefit calculator to get an estimate of how much benefits including Universal Credit and Tax Credits they may be entitled to at www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/benefits-adviser.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the progress of Local Development Plans.

(AQO 1014/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Infrastructure has policy and legislative responsibility for Planning and so the primary central government lead for LDPs sits with DfI.

The 2011 Planning Act requires a council to prepare, and keep under review, a timetable for the preparation and adoption of the local development plan. It is a statutory requirement that a council's LDP must be prepared in accordance with the timetable.

The 11 district councils in Northern Ireland are all currently progressing their individual Local Development Plans (LDP).

While progress on LDP preparation varies, seven councils have published draft Plan Strategies, of which one is currently pending Independent Examination by the Planning Appeals Commission.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Communities to outline any engagement with Ulster GAA regarding additional monies required for Casement Park.

(AQO 1015/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I welcome the recent announcement from my colleague, the Minister for Infrastructure, of her intention to approve the Casement Park planning application, with a number of Planning Conditions.

We are working closely with our Ulster Council GAA partners to develop their draft Full Business Case. My departmental officials, in conjunction with Department of Finance officials, are currently completing a review of the latest version of the documents. The project cost estimates within the business case identifies a funding gap that has arisen as a result of construction inflation and the necessary redesign of the stadium.

The cost estimate within the draft Full Business Case may be subject to change, depending on the timing of the conclusion of all matters associated with the Planning Application. My Department will continue to engage with our Ulster Council GAA partners throughout this process to work through the next steps of project delivery.

Discussions regarding the apportionment of any potential increased project costs, are ongoing between my Department and UCGAA.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Communities, in relation to labour market interventions, whether she intends to introduce a new departmental employability policy.

(AQO 1016/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Employability policy in the North is shared between Departments for Communities and Economy

Department for Communities focuses on getting people into work by assisting them find work, improving their motivation, confidence and ability to present themselves to employers as well as providing support to address short-term financial issues such as getting a short training course or a suit for an interview.

Work Coaches are the gateway to provision by providing advice, guidance, referral and signposting to provision.

Department for Economy focuses on the skills a person needs to do their job through developing vocational skills as well as helping people assess their long term work goals through the Careers Service.

My department's policy is that employability can only be properly addressed through collaboration between departments, councils, employers, the local voluntary and community sector and others. This approach forms the basis of the Employability NI programme officials are currently developing.

Our focus on Employability policy has shifted due to COVID-19 from focusing on economic inactivity to dealing with the economic shock caused by the pandemic but the underpinning approach, utilising collaborative solutions, remains the same.

Officials are developing a range of new provision, including JobStart, to address the immediate labour market impact of the pandemic. I expect development of further provision will be required as the conditions continue to change.

JobStart will provide funding for employers to create 6 month job opportunities for young people aged 16 -24 with additional support for those with disabilities, looking after children or returning citizens.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities to outline the types of work that will be covered by the maintenance contracts to be awarded by the Housing Executive over the next twelve months.

(AQO 1019/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that over the next 12 months it is looking to award contracts to cover the following work streams:

- External Wall Insulation
- Replacement of Bathrooms, Kitchens, Wiring, Doors & Window
- External Cyclical Maintenance
- Major Adaptations
- Multi Element Improvements
- Roofing

As regards the Carbon Neutral agenda, some of these procurements – for example, the External Wall Insulation contract - will enhance the energy efficiency of a portion of the Housing Executive's stock. However, in order to move to a position where sufficient reductions could be made in carbon emissions to contribute to the 2050 Carbon Zero target, the stock's thermal performance would have to be markedly improved. This would require significant investment beyond that which is currently projected to be available to the Housing Executive given its current funding regime.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Communities which venues in North Antrim were used in October 2020 for Personal Independence Payment and Employment Support Allowance appeals.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There were no venues in North Antrim used during October 2020 for Personal Independence Payment and Employment Support Allowance appeals.

The Appeals Service is undertaking a series of risk assessments for venues that have indicated that they can facilitate oral hearings whilst complying with the current government guidance on social distancing. Risk assessments will be carried out at Ballymena Business Centre and Coleraine Causeway Enterprise.

Cleaver House in Belfast has been assessed as being suitable for face to face oral hearings and has been used since 19 October for face to face hearings.

Due to the current COVID 19 situation the Department amended guidance to allow appellants to have the option of having their case heard by way of Telephony. Similarly an option of having their case heard using Video Link facilities is has also been made available.

Oral hearings using the telephony and video technology commenced on 28 September 2020.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the provision of a Test and Trace Support Payment for Northern Ireland.

(AQO 1021/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Regional Agency for Public Health and Social Well-being. This grant is unique to the North and was made available nearly 8 months ahead of the other devolved administrations.

I have considered the detail of the self-isolation grant in England, Scotland and Wales and am content that a further package of financial support for people on a low income who have to self-isolate is not required at this time. The financial support we are providing here will not end in January unlike the support provided by the Self-Isolation Support Grant in England, Scotland and Wales.

In addition, unlike the fixed Test and Trace Support Payment, a Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant award will include a specific amount for any dependent children in the household and can be made for periods of more than 14 days regardless of circumstances. This means that it is possible for individual awards to exceed £500, making this a more supportive intervention for the lowest paid workers than the Self-Isolation Support Grant.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities what schemes are available to support places of worship subject to criminal behaviour.

(AQO 1022/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: While my Department is not responsible for crime and justice issues, I share the member's concerns on this issue.

My Department has policy interest in faith communities from a community development perspective and to that end we provide funding support for a Community Faith Forum.

The Forum provides a platform for engagement between the faith sector and officials from across Executive departments.

As a result my Department has previously received correspondence on this issue, which has been shared with The Department of Justice for further consideration, as well as with the Executive Office, which is the lead department for Good Relations and the implementation of the Race Equality Strategy.

We have also facilitated discussions between the Forum and the Department of Justice, most recently in December twenty nineteen, when attacks on places of worship was discussed.

A further engagement between the Department of Justice and the Faith Forum is planned for December.

Any future scheme to support places of worship subject to criminal behaviour will be a matter for Department of Justice.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities how much money the GAA is being asked to contribute towards the cost of a new Casement Park stadium.

(AQO 1017/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I welcome the recent announcement from my colleague, the Minister for Infrastructure, of her intention to approve the Casement Park planning application, with a number of Planning Conditions.

We are working closely with our Ulster Council GAA partners to develop draft Full Business Case. My departmental officials, in conjunction with Department of Finance officials, are currently completing a review of the latest version of the documents. The project cost estimates within the business case identifies a funding gap that has arisen as a result of construction inflation and the necessary redesign of the stadium.

The cost estimate within the draft Full Business Case may be subject to change, depending on the timing of the conclusion of all matters associated with the Planning Application. My Department will continue to engage with our Ulster Council GAA partners throughout this process to work through the next steps of project delivery.

Discussions regarding the apportionment of any potential increased project costs, are ongoing between my Department and UCGAA.

Department of Education

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to detail the timescale for teachers who have not received risk assessments.
(AQW 8407/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): The Education Authority have produced a series of risk assessment templates which have been designed to support schools in designing solutions to enable the safe restoration of teaching, learning and pastoral care in schools.

School Principals have been advised that Risk Assessments should be completed on an individual school basis, taking into account their own specific school settings and circumstances. They are also advised that these Risk Assessments are to form the basis of their own individual School Risk Assessment and should be personalised and distinctive to each individual school. The timescale for the completion of risk assessments would be for individual schools.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Education what action he will take to help primary school children from disadvantaged communities access free school transport to alleviate financial pressures and in circumstances where there is no public transport to avail of.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority has a statutory duty to provide transport assistance to all pupils who meet the eligibility criteria as detailed in DE Circular 1996/41. At primary level, the Education Authority has a duty to provide transport assistance to pupils if they live more than two miles away from their school, based on the shortest walkable route, and have been unsuccessful in applying for a place in all schools of the same category within two miles of their home. The responsibility for a child's journey to and from school lies with each child's parents unless the criteria for home to school transport provision are met.

The home to school transport policy is in place to facilitate the attendance of pupils at school and it does so by ensuring that each child either lives within the statutory walking distance of at least one school in their chosen school category or is eligible for home to school transport assistance. The statutory walking distance for primary aged pupils is two miles. This means all pupils will be able to access at least one school in their chosen category of school irrespective of the level of financial pressure a family may be under.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of children who are home schooled in each of the last five years, broken down by constituency.
(AQW 8515/17-22)

Mr Weir: Elective Home Education (EHE) is the term used to describe the practice by which parents decide to educate their children outside of the school system. This is different to tuition provided by the EA to a child who is unwell or who attends alternative group arrangements provided by the EA. Please note that the following figures are for EHE and that the EA have provided these figures by Borough Council areas as they do not hold this information by constituency office.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Education to detail his plans for the childcare sector in respect of protecting other jobs in the economy after the end of the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme to guarantee continuity of employment without a government safety net.

Mr Weir: To date, no funding has been allocated to my Department for the childcare sector post August 2020.

My officials continue to work with sector representatives in considering what support, is required by the childcare sector going forward. In doing so, my department will take into consideration other government support schemes potentially available to the sector, including the recently announced Job Support Scheme (JSS) from 1 November and the ongoing Self-Employment Income Support Scheme.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education (i) whether students wishing to repeat exams due to cancellations in May 2020 will have the fees waived; and (ii) whether students who had paid to repeat exams in the May 2020 session will have those payments honored, and be permitted to sit those repeat exams in May 2021.

Mr Weir: The Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment is currently considering the issue of examination fee charges and will prepare an options paper for submission to my Department for consideration. Specific details relating to whether or not fees will be waived or honoured can be finalised following my consideration of this paper and its recommendations.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education whether he is considering the use of libraries for remote learning for pupils who do not have access to either a tablet, laptop or wifi.

Mr Weir: I have introduced a scheme to provide IT devices and WIFI access to our educationally disadvantaged and vulnerable learners. Over 8,500 devices have been distributed to date and 8300 WIFI vouchers have been purchased to provide disadvantaged children with free internet access.

I understand that libraries are currently open and are providing a 'Book and Collect' service and access to IT facilities. Computers have been organised in order to facilitate social distancing. I know many children and young people will use these facilities.

My Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place to provide remote learning in the event of a school closure, or where a class or large group of pupils need to self-isolate. In circumstances where pupils are self-isolating, they will not be able to access facilities outside their home.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education (i) how many pupils in the Upper Bann area have been deregistered from school since recommencement in September; and (ii) the reasons for deregistering.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority has advised that in the Upper Bann Constituency 92 pupils were recorded by schools as leavers between 1 September 2020 and 28 October 2020. Of these, 56 pupils left primary schools and 36 pupils left post-primary schools.

The reasons for deregistering were recorded by schools as follows:

Reason	Total
Another School	53
Elective Home Education	5
Further Education	2
Employment	2
Not Known	30

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education how specific needs of deaf children have been catered for by his Department over the period of the COVID-19 pandemic, specifically, (i) whether subtitles have been provided for social media videos created to explain COVID-19-related changes by his Department and other education bodies; (ii) whether specialist teachers, who support deaf children, will be available to them even over periods of lockdown should more lockdowns be necessary; (iii) whether country-wide cleaning protocols are in place to enable radio aids to go home and return to school daily; (iv) whether risk assessments, associated with using PPE, take into account the presence of a deaf child in the class or group; and (v) whether his Department or the Education Authority has a catch-up plan to mitigate against the delays there have been in diagnosing and proving early intervention strategies during lockdown.

Mr Weir:

- (i) Any videos produced internally by EATV and used on EA social media channels now include subtitles as standard practice. Upon request, EA social media videos can be supplied in alternative formats and a transcript can also be provided. DE aims to provide easily accessible and user friendly information on its social media channels highlighting key issues, including those relating to COVID-19, through the use of graphics and Ministerial videos. Subtitles are used where possible.
- (ii) Specialist teachers of the Deaf continued to provide support for deaf children and young people during the Covid-19 pandemic, while taking into account public health guidance, keeping staff, families and pupils safe. The EA are currently constrained as to the number of school visits which can be completed due to varying Covid 19 visitor protocols within schools. Risk assessments are in place to enable continued face to face support, where it is safe and appropriate to do so. Sensory Service staff are also working flexibly to provide a blend of face to face support, online teaching and online coaching support for parents.

My priority is for the continuation of face-to-face teaching as the best form of educational provision whilst providing a safe and welcoming environment for children and staff.

- (iii) Handling of specialist equipment and hygiene guidance is available at: <https://www.eani.org.uk/services/pupil-support-services/sensory-service>.

All deaf children and young people are able to take radio aids home. Where appropriate, school staff will be provided with a supply of radio aid lanyards for individual teachers. In post primary schools, a young person's radio aid needs to be shared with a large number of teachers. As far as possible, the EA will supply post primary schools with Roger Touchscreen.

- (iv) Guidance has been provided to schools on considering the needs of the deaf child in the classroom when face coverings are worn and the reasonable adjustments which should be taken. In addition, Teachers of the Deaf are available to provide specific advice for individual pupils on mitigating against the communication challenges caused by the wearing of face coverings.
- (v) Early diagnosis of permanent childhood deafness has been disrupted, however, Teachers of the Deaf have continued to work with colleagues in Health Trusts via remote technology to ensure that this important link is maintained. Teachers of the Deaf have been able to continue with assessments which inform Audiology, ENT and the Auditory Implant Centre on the amplification needs of the child.

The EA Sensory Service uses an Eligibility Framework to assess needs of children and young people and to guide support provided. This is a working document which is reviewed at least annually. It is anticipated that for some children, this document will be used more frequently and levels of support adjusted to allow for targeted, more intensive support.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education (i) when his Department first received the business case from the Education Authority for the new C2k contract and when it will be passing the business case to the Department of Finance; (ii) why the issuing of a new contract for the replacement of the current C2k services to schools has been delayed from 31 March 2017 to, potentially, 31 March 2023; (iii) how he has assured himself that the extensions of the existing contract provides better value for public money than the issuing of a new contract; (iv) how extensions to the existing contract will enable our children to benefit from the latest cutting edge infrastructure, hardware and software to prepare them for the 21st century better than the issuing of a new contract in 2017 or, at the latest, 2019; (v) to detail the money spent on the C2K contract in every year since its introduction; (vi) the anticipated spend on extending the contract; and (vii) the cost of implementing other IT solutions for schools to replace the C2K contract.

Mr Weir:

- (i) The replacement service for C2k is the Education Technology Service (ETS). The first ETS OBC was issued to the Department in August 2019. Feedback was provided and there have been a number of subsequent versions with the most recent version being submitted to the Department in October 2020. The Department has now submitted the latest version to the Department of Finance for their consideration..
- (ii) The current C2k contract can be extended until March 2022 as per the current procurement advice. I am advised that the Education Authority (EA) will seek to begin procurement of replacement services in 2021, subject to business case approval. Time has been taken to ensure that the business case meets the needs of schools moving forward into the next decade, and also that it takes account of lessons learned as a result of the challenges presented by the Covid-19 pandemic.

- (iii) The existing contract needs to remain in place until an alternative solution is procured and implemented. Value for money is the overriding consideration being assessed in the business case approval process, both for the existing contract and the replacement.
- (iv) The Internet connectivity infrastructure which is just one element of the existing service provision, is being transitioned across on to the Northern Ireland Public Sector Shared Network contract. This will result in an increase in bandwidth across the schools' estate.
- A business case supporting the provision of hardware for Primary schools has been through the approvals process and EA colleagues are currently preparing a business case for a refresh of teacher laptops. Funding has also been provided to the EA to continue to improve the services available, including a number of learning applications.
- (v) Public disclosure of the expenditure to date would be commercially prejudicial to the EA as this information could provide a supplier with valuable insight and context for any forthcoming procurement.
- (vi) Public disclosure of the anticipated spend on extending the contract is subject to the approvals process and as such could be commercially prejudicial at this time.
- (vii) The costs of implementing other IT solutions for schools to replace the C2K contract are included as options in the ETS OBC which is currently going through the approvals process, and are therefore commercially sensitive.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education to detail the updated guidance for teaching staff who are deemed clinically vulnerable and are advised not to be present in school settings currently.

Mr Weir: An updated version of the 'Coronavirus (COVID-19): Guidance for schools and educational settings in Northern Ireland' was published on 29 September 2020. Page 52 of this guidance provides detail on clinically vulnerable staff outlining that:

- Clinically vulnerable individuals who are at higher risk of severe illness have been advised to take extra care in observing social distancing and should work from home where possible. This includes pregnant women. Principals/line managers should endeavour to support this, where possible, for example by asking staff to support remote education, carry out lesson planning or other roles which can be done from home.
- If clinically vulnerable individuals cannot work from home they should take extra care in the work place observing social distancing, staying 2 metres away from others wherever possible, although the individual may choose to take on a role that does not allow for this distance if they prefer to do so. If they have to spend time within 2 metres of other people, Principals/line managers should undertake a risk assessment with the individual to assess and control measures to reduce risk. The employee can be accompanied by a trade union representative or colleague to discuss individual risk assessments. They should, if necessary, be offered the safest available onsite roles.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Education why a number of children are waiting nearly two years for special needs literacy support; and how he intends to resolve the problem.

Mr Weir: Referrals continued to be received for an Education Authority (EA) Psychology Service assessment during the period of school closure however due to Covid 19 restrictions face to face interventions with pupils were suspended from March to September this year.

EA staff are now back in schools providing direct intervention where possible, however, service capacity to deliver intervention in schools and schools ability to facilitate access for visitors is reduced at this time. The combination of these circumstances has had an unavoidable impact on waiting times for intervention as a result.

I have established a SEN Governance Group to provide strategic oversight of the EA's SEN Strategic Development Programme which incorporates a review of Pupil Support Services including the Literacy Service.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the number of schools; and (ii) percentage of schools that have their full complement of Board of Governors in (a) the Controlled sector; (b) the Maintained sector; (c) the Integrated sector; (d) Irish medium sector; and (e) Voluntary Grammar sector.

(AQW 9288/17-22)

Mr Weir: Depending on the school sector, Boards of Governors can be made up of representatives from the Department of Education (DE), the Education Authority, parent and teacher representatives and Foundation representatives. My Department holds information in respect of DE governors only and is therefore unable to detail the percentage of schools that have their full complement of Governors in any sector.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what financial support his Department will offer external tutors of subjects such as music, who are paid via EA payroll and who cannot therefore access the Self-Employment Income Support Scheme and who are unable to continue their work in schools due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Mr Weir: The Education Authority has advised school principals to honour any working engagements in place for external tutors. This will allow associated payments to continue for these individuals for the period of their engagement.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education whether he will (i) provide clarity on guidance issued under Circular 2020/10 on 2 November 2020 in relation to physical education in schools; (ii) review the number of children permitted to take part in physical education classes in schools; and (iii) ensure any guidance also makes recommendations in relation to changing facilities and showers in post-primary schools.

Mr Weir: The circular issued by my Department on 2 November set out the legal requirements of the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) Regulations introduced by the Department of Health. The Regulations prohibit organisation, operation or participation in an indoor or outdoor sporting event, with a legal exemption of an outdoor sporting if there is no contact between participations and the gathering consists of no more than 15 persons. It was essential to advise schools of the legal position in regard to PE. I had no flexibility in regard to the numbers specified by the Health legislation.

On 3 November, I secured a legal amendment to the Regulations to permit schools and other education settings to deliver indoor and outdoor PE, without a cap of 15 participants. New guidance was issued to schools. This included guidance on the use of changing rooms and a number of suggested risk mitigations for the delivery of PE.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education to detail the enrolment for Bangor Central Integrated Primary School, broken down by local council ward.

(AQW 9542/17-22)

Mr Weir: The most recent validated data relates to the 2019/20 School Census exercise. The Department is currently in the process of collecting and verifying School Census information. Finalised figures will be available in February 2021.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Education, given that over 200 pupils and over 25 staff were off school in St Bridget's College, Derry, during September and October, how he will ensure that these pupils will have equity with others when sitting GCSE/A-level exams.

Mr Weir: On 9 October, after consultation with stakeholders, I announced changes to the delivery of GCSE, AS and A level qualifications in 2020/21. I wrote to all school leaders, parents and young people to provide clarity on these changes. CCEA have also now issued detailed advice on the adaptations to all specifications.

These measures to reduce the burden of assessment take account of previous and future disruption for all schools in Northern Ireland.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education what specific advice his Department has sought and received from the Public Health Agency and the Health and Safety Executive regarding post-primary test day arrangements for the upcoming Post-Primary Transfer Consortium.

Mr Weir: The conduct of the tests, including any specific health and safety arrangements in relation to the tests, are the responsibility of the test providers and host schools rather than my Department.

I do however consider the health and safety of pupils taking the tests to be of paramount importance and I have written to both test providers asking to be kept informed of all of the appropriate safety measures being put in place to reduce the risk of COVID 19 in line with guidance from my Department and the wider medical and public health requirements. I have also highlighted the importance of providing timely and clear guidance to parents and children in advance of the tests.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what consideration is being given to a distinct code to mark absence of pupils self-isolating, to ensure that data around numbers doing so can be maintained accurately and published efficiently.

Mr Weir: To meet immediate needs DE officials decided in consultation with EA to re-purpose existing attendance codes to help identify COVID-19 related absences. Work is currently underway to establish if new attendance codes can be implemented to facilitate more detailed reporting on pupil self-isolation and COVID-19 related illness.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what resources he has allocated to the promotion of the use of the StopCOVID app among post-primary school children.

Mr Weir: The launch on 1 October of the new version of the 'StopCOVID NI' app, inclusive of under 18s, has been welcomed by the Department.

A letter has been sent to school leaders to encourage and support the use of the app whilst acknowledging that successful uptake may require changes to schools' existing mobile device policies.

The cooperation of school leaders will be required to allow use of the app, the policy remains that mobile devices should not be used for other purposes in schools other than use of the 'StopCOVID NI' app."

Promotion of the use of the 'StopCOVID NI' app for post primary school children did not require any financial commitment from the Department.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of (i) COVID-19 rule compliance; and (ii) the effectiveness of these mitigation strategies.

(AQW 9696/17-22)

Mr Weir: An assessment of (i) COVID-19 rule compliance; and (ii) the effectiveness of the mitigation strategies has not formally been undertaken by the Department.

The Education Authority has Education Link Officers who regularly engage with schools to support them as they implement DE guidance in many areas.

The Department continues to work closely with the Education Authority, the Department of Health and the Public Health Agency during the ongoing pandemic. Guidance is constantly under review and as and will be updated as needed and driven by health advice provided by CMO and CSA.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education why mask wearing is not mandatory in classrooms, given that aerosol transmission in confined spaces is recognised as a significant cause of the spread of infection.

Mr Weir: The Department's approach to planning for the re-opening of schools has been focussed on restricting opportunities for the virus to enter a school and limiting the risk of transmission.

To make sure that schools remain safe for our children, young people and staff, a number of measures will be put in place. These include, but are not limited to;

- Keeping Covid-19 out of schools. Anyone displaying any Covid-19 symptoms, or covid-like symptoms must not attend school. Stay at home and get a test. PHA guidance regarding self-isolation and testing should be followed.
- Enhanced hygiene and cleaning measures will be in place. All cleaning will be carried out in accordance with PHA Guidance. Regular cleaning of door handles, desk tops etc. will take place throughout the day.
- Children will wash their hands as soon as they arrive at school and regularly throughout the school day.
- Public health guidance with respect to social distancing of 2 metres (2m) will remain in place between adults and as far as possible between adults and pupils.
- Whilst the stringent application of social distancing requirements between pupils will be relaxed, as far as is practicable, social distancing should be maximised for both children and adults who are not from the same household.
- Protective bubbles will be used as a key mitigating action where possible. The protective bubble arrangements will be used to segment pupils into a consistent group or groups that arrive together, learn together, play together and eat together, reducing contact throughout the school with other children.
- Classroom space will be maximised as far as possible with unnecessary items removed and schools will make use of all space including outdoor space.
- Children will not sit facing each other where possible and seating plans can be used to aid contact tracing in the event of a positive Covid-19 case.
- PHA guidance under the Test and Trace and Protect programme will be applied for all staff or pupils in contact with someone who tests positive for Covid-19
- Lunch and break times may be staggered with more sittings, take away services and / or delivery to classrooms.
- Staggered arrival and pick up times may be introduced to limit interactions and avoid gatherings at the school gates.

In regards to face coverings we have taken advice from our colleagues in the Public Health Agency and these are recommended for use in the following scenarios.

- The wearing of face coverings on both dedicated school transport and public transport is now mandatory for all post-primary children.
- Face coverings must be worn in staff rooms and during adult to adult meetings lasting more than 15 minutes and by adults visiting the school site.
- Face coverings are strongly encouraged for activities that entail large numbers of staff or pupils within an enclosed space where social distancing is not possible.
- It is recommended that pupils and teachers wear a face covering in corridors and other communal areas of post-primary schools.

Principals and school staff have been working tirelessly implementing these measures to keep schools safe for pupils and, their efforts have ensured the level of transmission in schools remains low.

Given the risk mitigations in place in schools to limit and contain the spread of COVID-19, face coverings are therefore not generally recommended for routine use in schools. Staff and pupils may wish to use them during the routine school day and this is acceptable. Schools should also be aware that some persons (including children) are exempt from wearing face coverings.

As always my Department will continue to be led by the public health guidance and guidance / processes will be kept under review to ensure they remain in line with the wider health position.

Department of Finance

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of the expansion of agency staff working in the Civil Service since the Fresh Start Agreement in 2015 and its impact on workers' rights.
(AQW 8891/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): The number of agency workers (by headcount) is set out in the table below. This reflects the numbers working in the NI Civil Service on the various 'point in time' dates which is when the information is gathered / collated centrally for reporting purposes.

Number of Recruitment Agency Workers	01/03/15	01/01/16	01/04/17	01/04/18	01/04/19	01/04/20
Total excluding those undertaking work for DWP* 15			623	826	1,153	1,505
Total including those undertaking work for DWP*	380	534	1,068	1,588	2,132	2,581

* Figures exclude recruitment agency workers engaged by DfC to undertake work for Department of Working Pensions (DWP) contracts – these costs are met by DWP.

 Separate figures not available

Individual departments are responsible for determining and prioritising their resourcing needs. This includes any decision to engage agency workers. Reasons for the increase in the number of agency workers since 2015, include:

- an increase in work undertaken for DWP
- difficulty recruiting certain grades (including professional and technical grades)
- short-term increase in workloads

While there is likely to always be a requirement to have temporary colleagues, the Civil Service is committed to changing the pattern of current usage by engaging agency workers for short term or temporary assignments only and recruiting to permanent posts instead of using agency staff, where possible.

The vast majority of agency workers are undertaking Administrative Officer (AO) roles and consequently we launched an open recruitment exercise to fill a range of AO posts on a permanent basis. This gave anyone, including those agency workers currently engaged in the Civil Service the chance to apply for a permanent position. We anticipate around 500 offers of permanent employment will be made in the coming weeks, with the facility to make further offers depending on the needs of departments.

A replacement agency workers contract is currently being tendered and this new contract will entitle agency workers to parity with permanent Civil Service colleagues in terms of pay, annual leave and paid time off for medical/dental appointments from day one of their assignment. The replacement contract will also use the Buy Social initiative to include a number of social clauses.

The recruitment of permanent staff and enhanced arrangements in the replacement agency workers contract is in line with the NICS commitment to Workers' Rights.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance what percentage of the 3,000 permanent Civil Service jobs that went via the Voluntary Exit Scheme have since been refilled by agency workers; and at what cost to the public purse.
(AQW 8893/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Information regarding vacancies, specifically as a result of the Voluntary Exit Scheme, that have been filled by agency workers is not held. Decisions as to whether and how vacancies are filled, and any associated financial costs, fall to individual Departments.

Agency workers can be hired for a variety of business reasons, such as covering maternity leave, short term increases in workload, special exercises.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he intends to review the current cap on full pay equivalent to occupational sick pay for agency workers.
(AQW 8971/17-22)

Mr Murphy: This matter is under review and I am awaiting advice on whether agency workers could be offered full pay equivalent to Occupational Sick Pay to agency workers on assignment to NICS departments during the Covid pandemic.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance how much money the Civil Service Voluntary Exit Scheme in 2016 saved the public purse.
(AQW 8972/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The estimated paybill savings resulting from the 2015/16 NICS Voluntary Exit Scheme are £24m in 2015/16 and £87m annually thereafter.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Finance what steps his Department has taken to ensure that those registered as having died from COVID-19 have actually died as a result of COVID-19.
(AQW 9017/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) analyses and produces statistics on death registrations based on the information recorded during the death registration process on the Northern Ireland General Register Office's Registration System (NIROS)

The legislative requirement to certify a death falls under the Births and Death Registration Order (Northern Ireland) 1976 and requires all medical practitioners to complete a Medical Certificate of Cause of Death (MCCD) to the best of their knowledge and belief. The Department of Health 'Guidance on death certification during the Covid-19 pandemic' provides instructions to medical practitioners on how to accurately complete the MCCD in Covid-19 related cases. In part I of the MCCD form a medical practitioner will record all conditions, with the last being that which caused the death. In part II of the form details of any associated conditions that contributed to the death but which were not part of the causal sequence are recorded.

During the registration of a death, the MCCD information is recorded verbatim on NIROS by the local registrar. NISRA forwards cause of death information to the Office of National Statistics (ONS) which adds cause of death coding based on the International Classification of Diseases (ICD10) in line with the World Health Organisation's Coding Rules. NISRA then publishes the data in the Registrar General Quarterly Tables.

The most recent data up to June 2020 show that 90.8% (754 out of 830) of those who had COVID-19 mentioned on their death certificate were subsequently coded by ONS as having died from it.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Finance whether she will consider producing a digital inclusion strategy for Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9062/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My Department's Digital Transformation Service (DTS) set out an ambitious Strategy for Digital Transformation of Public Services in 2017 to continue its digital transformation journey and the delivery of a range of new and improved digital services. Digital Inclusion forms an important part of that Strategy.

The "Making Lives Better" document (<https://www.finance-ni.gov.uk/publications/digital-transformation-strategy-2017-2021>) describes how the Digital Transformation Programme is providing better public services and enabling collaborative design of public sector digital services.

The Strategy supports the delivery of Programme for Government (PfG) outcomes through the increased use of online channels to access public services and bringing with it new opportunities to improve how we engage with citizens and stakeholders to develop better policies, deliver better services and to overhaul business processes.

Progress on the delivery of the Strategy has been significant - ensuring a "digital first" approach. A mid-term review of the Strategy is currently underway which will provide an opportunity to take stock of progress in the support of PfG outcomes.

My Department's overarching aim for Digital Inclusion is to give citizens access, skills, motivation and trust to use digital services.

A Digital Resilience Foundation Report was initially undertaken to:

- Develop indicators to measure success;
- Formalise strategic partnerships to enable the delivery of priority targeted interventions to support specific difficult to reach groups such as rural communities and the economically disadvantaged;
- Encourage Departments to embed digital inclusion in the policies and work programmes of all transformation programmes across Government;
- Provide support and assistance to innovative projects which have the potential to make a positive difference to priority groups by addressing issues in respect of access, skills, motivation and trust; and
- Increase the number of publicly available and free internet access points through access 'hotspots' at facilities such as local libraries and public sector offices.

It is widely recognised that Digital technologies impact on almost every aspect of modern society, creating huge social benefits. They can improve how we work and communicate with each other, the healthcare available to us, and how information and knowledge can be shared for our benefit.

The downside of our increasing reliance on ICT in public, economic and social life is that the digitally excluded can also become excluded from engaging with public services, modern working life and society itself.

Unfortunately, a number of individuals still don't have the necessary digital skills required to take advantage of the benefits the internet offers. Statistics indicate that locally 1 in 7 adults do not use the Internet (rising to 1 in 3 of those with a disability and half of those aged 65+); 1 in 4 do not have access to a computer with Internet access.

The Department's Digital Inclusion Team has been addressing this issue with the introduction of the Go ON NI programme which identifies user needs and ensures those individual needs come first.

I am pleased to note that recent pointers suggest that overall 86% of all adults now use the web compared to 67% when the Go ON NI programme commenced.

As a result of the current COVID-19 situation the GO ON NI programme is providing training sessions remotely whereby anyone can join in. A new Digital Help text and phone service has just been launched to provide one-to-one free digital assistance to the public and this is being supported by BITC volunteers.

A soon to be announced "Connected" pilot project will provide free training as well as a loan of an internet enabled device for a minimum of 6 months to a limited number of elderly or vulnerable citizens. This project will be looking to specifically target the digitally excluded with a specific focus on rural areas through liaison with DAERA and the Rural Community Network.

The Digital Inclusion Team are also pro-active members of the Digital Assist Steering Group, a cross-sectoral body chaired by Business In The Community which helps ensure that government services are not delivered in isolation through appropriate interaction with organisations from across the private, voluntary and community sectors.

For more information on all current and future Go ON NI activities, please visit www.nidirect.gov.uk/go-on-ni or contact the Digital Inclusion team directly at future@finance-ni.gov.uk

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he will instruct Civil Service management within each Department to survey the anonymous views of agency staff with regards to their employment status and report the findings to the Assembly.
(AQW 9146/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The 2018 and 2019 NICS People (staff) Surveys included the views of agency workers and they will continue to be included in subsequent surveys. The Survey principally seeks out the views of staff on such things as inclusion and fair treatment, resourcing and workload etc. It is anonymous and its findings, including scores from responses provided by temporary and agency workers, can be found on the Department's website at <https://www.finance-ni.gov.uk/publications/nics-people-survey-results>

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he will commit to meeting with NIPSA to discuss its demand that agency workers are offered permanent positions as a matter of urgency.
(AQW 9147/17-22)

Mr Murphy: I am always open to engagement with NIPSA however I have not received a request for a meeting.

I must also advise that agency workers in the Civil Service can only be made permanent, direct employees of the Civil Service if they are successfully appointed as candidates through open recruitment.

While there is likely to always be a requirement for agency workers, the Civil Service is committed to changing the pattern of current usage by engaging agency workers for short term or temporary assignments only and recruiting to permanent posts instead of using agency staff, where possible.

The vast majority of agency workers are undertaking Administrative Officer (AO) roles. An open recruitment exercise to fill a range of AO posts on a permanent basis launched in December 2019. This gave anyone, including those agency workers currently working in the NICS, the chance to apply for a permanent position. We anticipate around 500 offers of permanent employment will be made in the coming weeks, with the facility to make further offers depending on the needs of departments.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Finance whether premises operated by a single business can qualify separately for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.
(AQW 9162/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Regulations that provide details of the scheme, initially in the Derry City and Strabane Council area, and then across all council areas are The Financial Assistance (Coronavirus) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. A second No 2 Regulation of the same name, now covers all council areas. The occupier of a restricted commercial property or the occupier of part of a restricted commercial property may apply for assistance to the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme where the business is required to close or severely limit its operations by the Health Protection Regulations. Applications may be made and more details found at:

www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/coronavirus-localised-restrictions-support-scheme

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail the engagement which occurred with affected businesses to understand the real economic impact prior to commencement of consultation concerning amendment of the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 and update to technical guidance.
(AQW 9219/17-22)

Mr Murphy: During 2019/20 officials from my Department's Building Standards Branch (BSB) attended a number of meetings of the local Construction Industry Forum (CIFNI) to brief members on progress with re-establishing the local Building Regulations Advisory Committee (NIBRAC) and proposals for the Building Regulations Work Programme. The views on proposals for consultation on Fire Safety requirements in local Building regulations were taken into account in developing the policy. Officials also consulted with NIBRAC and its relevant Technical Sub-Committee in scoping draft consultation proposals. To date, no issues have been raised in relation to economic impacts by CIFNI members.

A draft Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) was prepared for the consultation proposals and provided as part of the documents issued. The analysis of consultation responses, which include submissions from affected business, when complete and following scrutiny by NIBRAC and the Departmental Committee will inform any revisions in finalising proposals and the RIA.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail the assessed economic impact specific to Northern Ireland concerning proposed amendment of the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 and update to technical guidance including the collateral impact of a ban on non-relevant buildings.

Mr Murphy: The draft Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) issued for consultation relates to 'relevant buildings', that is, to those buildings directly affected by the proposed amendment.

The draft RIA indicates that, based on analysis of planning statistics over the three year period from 2016 to 2019, three buildings per year will be affected. It is envisaged that there would be costs of approximately £7k as familiarisation for District Council Building Control enforcement bodies (for the first year after implementation only) and approximately £60k as familiarisation for industry (for the first year after implementation only). Yearly costs to industry after that are anticipated at £127k, giving a total cost for the first year of £194k.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether the option of BS8414 large scale testing is still a possible alternative option for meeting the required safety standards concerning proposed amendment of the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 and update to technical guidance.

Mr Murphy: My Department's Building Standards Officials advise that the alternative option of a BS8414 large scale test has been recognised and accepted by industry as a satisfactory way to demonstrate compliance with existing external fire spread requirements in external walls. The proposed amendments to the guidance in Technical Booklet E (Fire safety), would introduce this option into the guidance for the first time as an acceptable route to compliance for 'non-relevant' buildings.

Under the proposed new requirement, BS8414 large scale tests would not be included as a route to compliance for 'relevant' buildings. These are seen as higher risk and the priority would be to provide clarity and certainty for designers, installers and enforcement bodies to understand precisely what materials can and cannot be used on these buildings. The new regulation is aimed at providing that certainty.

The analysis of consultation responses will indicate any views on BS8414 large scale tests as an alternative route to compliance for relevant buildings. This would be referred along with other consultation feedback to the local Building Regulations Advisory Committee (NIBRAC) for its advice to inform final proposals.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of the impact of the ban on combustible materials in England, particularly in consideration of the ongoing review of changes there, in relation to the proposals contained in the consultation on the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 and the update to technical guidance.

Mr Murphy: The effective ban on combustible materials in England's Building Regulations was introduced in December 2018. Analysis of the effect on industry in England due to the ban is too early to evaluate. A survey of stakeholders in relation to the ban was commissioned by the Ministry for Housing, Communities & Local Government (MHCLG) and conducted by consultants Adroit Economics Ltd. The survey results were published in August 2019.

There was a commitment to review the effectiveness of the ban in England after one year and a further consultation was carried out in January 2020. That consultation closed on 25 May 2020 and the responses are still being analysed by MHCLG. Officials from my Department's Building Standards Branch maintain ongoing contact with MHCLG colleagues and are awaiting any proposals for change. Any changes will be considered in the local context with the local Building Advisory Committee (NIBRAC) in advance of finalising proposals here.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 7863/17-22, (i) whether the Financial Transactions Capital facility for Ulster University is conditional on a commitment to deliver an agreed level of expansion of the Magee campus; (ii) what that level of expansion is; and (iii) the timetable for its delivery.

Mr Murphy: The conditions attached to the Financial Transactions Capital facility for Ulster University seek to assess and improve the organisation's financial sustainability and its capacity to deliver large capital builds. This should in turn help UU deliver the expansion of the Magee campus.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance to detail the criteria in which an agency worker's assignment is recorded as complete.

(AQW 9262/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The duration of each agency worker's assignment is a matter for each department and relevant business area. The agency will be notified when an agency worker is no longer required and it is their responsibility to notify the agency worker of the termination of the placement.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether his Department has carried out any work in relation to a connection between agency work and poor mental health.

Mr Murphy: I refer you to my response to AQW 9146/17 – 22 and the findings of the 2018 and 2019 NICS people surveys, which included the views of agency workers.

The relevant recruitment agency has responsibility for agency workers health and sickness absence records as well as dealing with any well-being issues relating to these workers. However, a replacement agency workers contract is currently being tendered and this new contract will entitle agency workers to parity with permanent Civil Service colleagues in terms of pay, annual leave and paid time off for medical/dental appointments from day one of their assignment.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance when his Department will produce the technical documents on the requirement for new buildings being erected to be nearly zero-energy buildings.

Mr Murphy: Officials continue to consult on this matter with the local Building Regulations Advisory Committee (NIBRAC), its specialist sub-committee, the British Government's Ministry of Housing Communities & Local Government, and other administrations, with a view to issuing information on technical compliance as soon as possible.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Finance why an owner of a wind turbine would qualify for a reduction of rates payments under the Small Business Rates Relief Scheme.

Mr Murphy: The criteria for award of Small Business Rate Relief are set out in The Rates (Small Business Hereditament Relief) Regulations (2012).

Under these regulations, a non-domestic hereditament with a NAV that does not exceed £15,000 is entitled to a percentage reduction in rates. Persons occupying more than three hereditaments are excluded from the relief as are hereditaments in receipt of another relief such as charitable exemption, sport and recreation relief or industrial derating.

There are no exceptions in the regulations that would specifically exclude a hereditament rated as a wind turbine.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Finance how many owners of wind turbines qualify for a rates reduction under the Small Business Rates Relief Scheme.

(AQW 9469/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As at 1st November 2020, there are a total of 682 wind turbines on which rates are payable, 508 of which are in receipt of Small Business Rate Relief (SBRR).

There are also a total of 73 wind farms, 8 of which are in receipt of SBRR. A wind farm consists of two or more wind turbines.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance whether anaerobic digesters are subject to non-domestic rates.

(AQW 9506/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Anaerobic digesters are rateable hereditaments and are subject to non-domestic rates. They are valued on the basis of Schedule 12 of the Rates (Northern Ireland) Order 1977.

Anaerobic digesters with an installed capacity of 50 kilowatts or less are not rateable under the Rates (Microgeneration) Order (Northern Ireland) 2012.

The legislative background and method of valuation adopted are detailed in the Land & Property Services Practice Note, available online at:

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance in respect of the named ratepayer Mr Maoliosa McHugh MLA, whether there is a third party authorisation from Mr McHugh enabling West Tyrone Sinn Féin or any other person or body to deal with matters pertaining to the rates for which Mr McHugh is the named ratepayer; and when was such authorisation signed.

Mr Murphy: To avoid any perception of a conflict of interest in respect of payments made to Sinn Féin, the Finance Minister has asked me to respond to your AQW.

"To ask the Minister of Finance in respect of the named ratepayer Mr Maoliosa McHugh MLA, whether there is a third party authorisation from Mr McHugh enabling West Tyrone Sinn Féin or any other person or body to deal with matters pertaining to the rates for which Mr McHugh is the named ratepayer; and when was such authorisation signed".

I have checked the details of the rate account with officials in Land & Property Services (LPS). The full ratepayer name on the rate account for Unit 3, 1a Melvin Road, Strabane is 'Mr Maoliosa McHugh MLA – Strabane Sinn Féin Office', which would authorise Mr McHugh or a Strabane Sinn Féin Office official to deal with matters pertaining to the rate account. LPS has no record of a request for third party authorisation in respect of this rate account.

Department of Health

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health, following reports that the waiting list for a referral to the Gender Identity Clinic at Brackenburn has not changed in four years, to detail what is causing the delay at the facility, and what steps are being taken to address the issue.

(AQW 5811/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): In recent years, similar to other Gender Identity Services provided across the UK, Northern Ireland has witnessed a significant growth in demand. To date, efforts to recruit replacements for key staff who have left the service in Northern Ireland have had limited success. Consequently, the service have been unable to progress the waiting list for individuals newly referred to the service.

My Department is working collaboratively with the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust and the Health and Social Care Board in undertaking a review of the Gender Identity Service, including how best to address the issue of waiting times.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to confirm the average daily capacity for each COVID-19 primary care centre, broken down by centre and week, since July 2020.

(AQW 6269/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the daily average number of GP sessions available per week at each COVID-19 primary care centre from July 2020 provided by the Health & Social Care Board, is detailed overleaf.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what is the estimated false positive rate in tests for COVID-19.
(AQW 7541/17-22)

Mr Swann: Given the different testing platforms and kits that are in use for SARS-CoV2 testing, it is not possible to ascertain an overall false positive rate.

To prevent the reporting of false positives, the laboratory will assess all positives using criteria that may indicate a false positive may be occurring. This criteria includes:

- If only 1 gene target out of 2 or 3 gene targets are positive
- Weak Ct values (viral load) close to the limit of detection

When these indicators occur repeat testing or testing the sample on a different platform with a different specificity profile is undertaken. This confirmatory testing clarifies the result in most cases.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health how he is addressing the shortfall in domiciliary care staff within the Mid-Ulster area.
(AQW 7653/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Power to the People report published by my Department sets out the case for change across adult social care and I am committed to taking forward measures which will address the key challenges identified by that report. On the 13th May 2020 I announced my intentions to make improvements with regards to pay, terms and conditions, training and career pathways for the social care workforce.

I have asked my officials to develop options for my consideration, which is underway. However I have been advised that all such options would likely create a significant recurrent financial impact and are currently unaffordable within Departmental budgets. I will therefore require Executive support to progress.

My department has also taken specific measures in response to covid-19, such as offering providers the ability to provide enhanced sick pay for their workers. In addition, on 12 October, the Northern Health and Social Care Trust introduced a rapid response service in the Mid-Ulster area, which provides up to 150 hours of rapid response domiciliary care to help facilitate timely discharge from hospital. The Trust continues to focus on using both in-house and independent sector provision to meet the assessed needs for domiciliary care across the geographical areas for which it is responsible.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health whether he has considered having a permanent COVID-19 testing centre in Strabane town.
(AQW 7805/17-22)

Mr Swann: The location of testing facilities across Northern Ireland, including fixed test sites, is kept under constant review.

Mobile Testing Units (MTUs) are deployed in response to local need. A MTU was located at Melvin Sports Complex, Melvin Road, Strabane, BT82 9PP from 26 September to 16 October inclusive.

Further information is available at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/testing-covid-19>

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health to detail (i) the process of assessment of a property for accessibility measures and adaptations; and (ii) whether such items may be removed following a further assessment.
(AQW 8056/17-22)

Mr Swann: An Occupational Therapist (OT) will visit the home. They will discuss the different options available, for example, adaptations to the bedrooms, showers, or ground floor toilets. The OT will then complete an assessment of need and make the necessary recommendations, based on regional standards, to the NIHE grants office.

A NIHE grants officer will then visit the home to view the property to make sure the adaptations fit the house. They will then explain the type and level of grant that the service user will need.

Responsibility for removing adaptations when these are no longer required is dependent on the owner-occupier status of the service-user's property, the type of adaptation in place/provided, and the feasibility of removing the adaptation. This is addressed through close collaboration with a range of key organisations including OT services.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for a breakdown of positive COVID-19 tests in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area, broken down by postcode.

(AQW 8078/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department has recently published information on individuals with a positive COVID-19 test by Postal District on the COVID Dashboard at the link below.

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/covid-19-daily-dashboard-updates>

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health how it is established that a false positive result has occurred in a COVID-19 test. (AQW 8119/17-22)

Mr Swann: The laboratory will assess all positives using criteria that may indicate a false positive may be occurring.

This criteria includes:

- If only 1 gene target out of 2 or 3 gene targets are positive
- Weak Ct values (viral load) close to the limit of detection

When these indicators occur, repeat testing or testing the sample on a different platform with a different specificity profile is undertaken.

This confirmatory testing clarifies the result in most cases.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health how many cancer referral appointments were carried out between 1 September and 30 September (i) 2019; and (ii) 2020.

(AQW 8122/17-22)

Mr Swann: During September 2020, 5,379 cancer referral appointments were carried out. This is compared with 5,998 cancer referral appointments carried out in September 2019. Figures for September 2020 include virtual appointments.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how many people have been contacted by phonecall via the contact tracing scheme. (AQW 8125/17-22)

Mr Swann: The PHA publish weekly information relating to COVID-19 at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/contact-tracing-service-management-information>

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether he intends to review the present fallow time guidance for dental practices. (AQW 8146/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Scottish Dental Clinical Effectiveness Programme (SDCEP) Rapid Review of Aerosol Generated Procedure's (AGPs) has now been completed and consequently a revised version of the Northern Ireland Operational Dental Guidance was issued on 21 October 2020 to all Northern Ireland General Dental Practitioners.

The revised Guidance moves from the previous position of 60 minutes fallow period with standard surgery ventilation and 20 minutes fallow period with high level surgery ventilation to 20 minutes fallow period with standard surgery ventilation and 15 minutes fallow period with high level surgery ventilation.

It is possible to reduce these times further using additional mitigations but 10 minutes is the lowest acceptable fallow period.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health what provisions are being made to enable the full return of routine Health Service dental care.

(AQW 8283/17-22)

Mr Swann: Routine dental care resumed on 20 July 2020 however, enhanced infection prevention control measures including additional Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) requirements, fallow time and cleaning after Aerosol Generating Procedures (AGPs) limit the number of patients that can be seen each day.

Updated operational guidance was issued to General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) on 21 October 2020 and included details on reduction of fallow times. While the new guidelines should allow for an increased number of appointments per day, overall patient throughput is expected to remain below normal levels for the foreseeable future.

To support the sustainability of practices through this difficult time the Department established the General Dental Services Financial Support Scheme (FSS). In the first six months of 2020/21 the combined level of FSS and net Item of Service (IoS) payments made to GDMPs was approximately £32 million. This compares with the £24 million worth of net IoS payments made in the same period in 2019-20.

A further £5m in funding has been approved to address the reduction in revenue from patients, resulting in an additional total investment of £13m. The financial support has been, and will continue to be, conditional on dentists providing care to registered Health Service patients on the basis of need.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how many dental nurses have (i) applied for; and (ii) received, the Hepatitis B vaccination in the last twelve months.

Mr Swann: Data is not available for those that have applied for the Hepatitis B vaccination. In the last twelve months 85 dental nurses have received the Hepatitis B vaccination.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health how many community care packages are requested but were never put in place until after the service user had died, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust, for each of the last four years.

(AQW 8451/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on domiciliary care packages which were requested but not put in place due to the death of the service user, is not collected by the Department or by HSC Trusts. The exact information might only be obtained through a manual trawl requiring extensive and disproportionate labour at significant cost.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to reimplement free parking for staff on hospital sites.

(AQW 8601/17-22)

Mr Swann: Yes. I have secured additional funding from the Department of Finance for the immediate reintroduction of free car parking for Health and Social Care staff until 31 March 2021.

I hope this provides a small amount of welcome news to our valued staff as they enter into a potentially even more challenging second Covid-19 surge.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many people are currently residents in nursing homes.

(AQW 8726/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department does not hold this information centrally and was requested from Health and Social Care (HSC) Trusts.

Please find information detailed below.

Table 1. Number of nursing care packages in effect as at 30th September 2020, by HSC Trust.

HSC Trust	Nursing care packages in effect

* Southern HSC Trust was unable to respond to the request for information by the AQW deadline, therefore the Northern Ireland figure represents residents in nursing homes in the other four HSC Trusts.

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 7092/17-22, to detail the number of occasions the interim arrangement with Alder Hey Hospital for paediatric pathology services was used in each year since it was established.

(AQW 8730/17-22)

Mr Swann: The interim paediatric pathology arrangements between Belfast Trust and Alder Hey Hospital, Liverpool came into effect in January 2019. From January to December 2019, some 163 hospital consented paediatric post mortems were undertaken in Alder Hey. From January to the end of September 2020, 123 hospital consented paediatric post mortems were carried out.

Information on the number of occasions that families decline to access the paediatric pathology services is not collected. Every family who has lost a baby or a child in circumstances where a hospital-consented post mortem is appropriate will be offered the opportunity. Families will always have a choice whether or not to proceed with a hospital based post-mortem.

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 7092/17-22, to detail the number of occasions that families declined to access paediatric pathology services within Alder Hey Hospital, in each year since the regional service was discontinued. (AQW 8731/17-22)

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health what percentage of those who died following a positive diagnosis with COVID-19 were admitted to an intensive care unit. (AQW 8750/17-22)

Mr Swann: As of 21st October 2020, 409 deaths which occurred in hospital have been reported to the PHA by HSC Trusts. Of those deaths, 42 (10.3%) were recorded as having been in ICU during the hospital admission in which they died. There may have been deaths occurring after discharge from hospital where in their most recent admission, that patient had been in ICU. As HSC Trusts do not have access to those patients' death details, they cannot determine their outcome following discharge from hospital.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health for a breakdown by disease of the present occupancy of intensive care units. (AQW 8751/17-22)

Mr Swann: A breakdown by disease of the present occupancy of Intensive Care Units is not available given that patients can be admitted to Intensive Care for a variety of reasons rather than operating on a disease-level basis. Table 1 to follow outlines the primary reason for admission of ICU patients as at 17th October 2020 across most Intensive Care Units; unfortunately the Intensive Care Unit within South West Acute Hospital, which accounts for 6 steady ICU beds, were unable to provide a response within the timeframe required for answering this AQ. It is important to note that individual patients can be admitted for a number of reasons, however the data presented provides the primary reason for their admission to ICU on a specific day.

Table 1: Primary Reason for Admission of ICU patients, 17th October 2020

Primary Reason for Admission	Number of Patients
COVID-19, confirmed	27
Pneumonia, no organism isolated	6
Other*	42
Total with Primary Reason for Admission	75

* Please note that in the interests of maintaining patient confidentiality, primary reasons for admission which had less than 5 patients admitted for that reason have been grouped into an 'Other' category.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many people described as "individuals with positive lab completed test" are currently active cases; and how many have recovered. (AQW 8752/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not currently possible to accurately report the number of active cases or the number who have recovered from the disease. However information is published on a daily basis on the DoH Dashboard at the link below, on the number of individuals with a positive laboratory completed test during the last 7 days and the previous 7 days.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health how many paediatric day surgery theatre sessions have been carried out at Causeway Hospital in each week of the last six months. (AQW 8844/17-22)

Mr Swann: The tabulated information overleaf details the number of paediatric day surgery theatre sessions carried out each week at Causeway Hospital between April 2020 and September 2020. (Table A).

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health how his Department will ensure that school children receive the flu vaccination in a timely fashion.

(AQW 8880/17-22)

Mr Swann: The school flu vaccination programme is organised annually by Trust School Nursing Services. Schools work in conjunction with Trust school nursing teams to facilitate this. The programme has been running in primary schools since 2013/14 and for this year is offered to Year 8 pupils as well. The programme runs from October to January each year.

Schools were closed for an extended Halloween break from the 19th to the 30th of October to assist in slowing the spread of Coronavirus. The majority of school vaccinations arranged for the week 19th to the 23rd of October were relocated to alternative venues such as leisure centres or church halls for that week and the early part of the following week. Where it was not possible to provide an alternative venue, the relevant school clinics have been rescheduled to later in November.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health whether he has taken steps to stop or restrict the use of Graded Exercise Therapy for people with Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, given surveys show more than half of patients find it detrimental and it is currently subject to review by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence.

Mr Swann: The current guideline issued by the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE), Chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (or encephalopathy): diagnosis and management (CG53), endorsed by my Department in 2008 for implementation in Health and Social Care in Northern Ireland, continues to apply.

As you are aware, CG53 is currently under review by NICE, with an expected publication date of 21 April 2021. When the updated guidance is issued by NICE, my Department will consider it under the usual process for NICE Clinical Guidelines as per circular HSC (SQSD) 3/13.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to review the current arrangements that prevent partners attending maternity and neonatal appointments.

Mr Swann: My Department published updated visiting guidance for maternity services (available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>), which took effect from 23 September 2020.

The decision to permit visitors into a facility on a day to day basis remains with the person in charge, and will be based on a risk assessment of the ability to ensure safety of patients, staff and the visitor. However, the expectation as set out in the current visiting restrictions is that:

“Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, in the event of pregnancy loss and bereavement, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week.”

Further, in Neonatal units:

“One of two nominated parents/caregivers can be accommodated at any given time”.

The visiting guidance is structured to take account of variances in the ongoing rate of infection transmission across Northern Ireland, and will remain in place for the duration of the COVID-19 pandemic. This guidance is written in such a way as to require different levels of restriction based on the regional position in terms of surge assessment, and while my officials keep the guidance under review, no significant changes are currently anticipated. However, the guidance also highlights the possibility of local guidance being introduced to address particular clusters of cases in a particular geographical area or facility.

This is not the experience I would hope for expectant mothers and their partners. However, these restrictions are not in place simply to protect patients and their visitors, but are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our HSC staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health to detail any care plan programs currently in place for children impacted by parental alienation.

Mr Swann: A care plan is unique to the looked after child to whom it relates and is intended to ensure that the child’s needs relating to health, safety and wellbeing are identified and measures put in place to respond to those needs are subject to review. This could include needs arising as a result of parental alienation.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what assurances he can give that the quantities required for winter flu vaccinations will meet the increased demand and program of delivery.

Mr Swann: Vaccine orders for the seasonal flu programme need to be placed with manufacturers early in the year. Order volumes are based on uptake in the previous year and the uptake targets set for the current year. In 2019/20 less than 700,000 vaccines were administered. The initial orders for 2020/21 amounted to 733,000 vaccines. In light of Covid-19, a further 317,300 vaccines were procured bringing the total to 1,050,300.

This year there has been a very high early demand for vaccines through the public seasonal flu vaccination programme. Uptake of vaccine by the eligible groups is being monitored and if indications are that projected demand is likely to exceed supplies, efforts will be made to secure further vaccine stocks.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health what consideration he has given to assigning Causeway Hospital as an elective care centre.

(AQO 941/17-22)

Mr Swann: The benefits of elective care centres have been emphasised by the impact of the pandemic. For elective care centres to realise their full potential, services must be entirely separated from urgent and emergency pressures, with fully ring fenced staff and beds. No single hospital site currently has sufficient capacity to meet the requirements for the full caseload of daycase activity. Therefore a network of sites will be required.

On 28 July I published the Regional Service Delivery Model for Daycase Elective Procedures and a report setting out the evidence for this approach and an analysis of the suitability of the different hospital sites across Northern Ireland. These reports are available on the Department’s website.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many people have currently been vaccinated for the flu.

(AQW 9051/17-22)

Mr Swann: Early indications are that uptake of the flu vaccine is running at a much higher rate this year compared to previous years. The first official report on the number of people vaccinated from the start of the 2020/21 public flu vaccination programme will be submitted to the Department around the 7th of November.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many flu vaccinations were (i) ordered; and (ii) delivered for this year's programme.
(AQW 9052/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) A total of 1,050,300 vaccine doses have been ordered to date for use in the public seasonal influenza vaccination programme.
- (ii) Of this total, 779,000 vaccine doses have been delivered into Northern Ireland to date.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to suspend staff car parking charges at hospitals during the pandemic.
(AQW 9054/17-22)

Mr Swann: Yes. I have secured additional funding from the Department of Finance for the immediate reintroduction of free car parking for Health and Social Care staff until 31 March 2021.

I hope this provides a small amount of welcome news to our valued staff as they enter into a potentially even more challenging second Covid-19 surge.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Health how the backlog of flu vaccinations will be dealt with when stocks are replenished in November 2020.
(AQW 9055/17-22)

Mr Swann: There are a number of elements to the adult seasonal flu vaccination programme. Health and Social Care Trusts and community pharmacies provide vaccination for health and social care workers, while GP practices lead on vaccinating those aged 65 and over, and those in clinical at risk categories.

Due to very high levels of early demand for vaccine this year amongst the eligible groups, centrally held stocks of adult vaccine are almost depleted as well over half a million doses of vaccine have been distributed to GPs, Trusts and community pharmacies. Not all of this stock has been administered and therefore some people in the eligible groups are continuing to receive the vaccine. Unfortunately, however, some GPs have had to postpone mass vaccination clinics planned for late October and the first half of November.

I fully appreciate that re-arranging these clinics will be a challenge for GPs who have done an excellent job to date in delivering a high throughput of vaccination within the context of Covid-19 enhanced infection control requirements. I am confident that GPs will be able to re-arrange these clinics when they are again able to place orders for vaccine supplies from central stores.

Additional funds of £1m have been allocated to support GPs in delivering the programme this year in recognition of the anticipated increase in demand and the need for alternative programme delivery arrangements. This support should assist with the rearranging of mass vaccination clinics to help ensure that people receive the vaccine well in time before flu will be circulating widely in the community.

For health and social care workers, the Trusts will extend their vaccination clinics into November and December, and the participating community pharmacies will continue to offer the vaccine to frontline health care workers.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health whether he will review the guidance and restrictions on maternity services, including allowing both parents to attend antenatal scans and appointments and for both parents to be in attendance throughout the entire labour and birthing process.

Mr Swann: My Department published updated visiting guidance for maternity services (available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>), which took effect from 23 September 2020.

The decision to permit visitors into a facility on a day to day basis remains with the midwife in charge, and will be based on a risk assessment of the ability to ensure safety of patients, staff and the visitor. However, the expectation as set out in the current visiting restrictions is that:

"Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, in the event of pregnancy loss and bereavement, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week."

The visiting guidance is structured to take account of variances in the ongoing rate of infection transmission across Northern Ireland, and will remain in place for the duration of the COVID-19 pandemic. This guidance is written in such a way as to require different levels of restriction based on the regional position in terms of surge assessment, and while my officials keep the guidance under review, no significant changes are currently anticipated. However, the guidance also highlights the possibility of local guidance being introduced to address particular clusters of cases in a particular geographical area or facility.

This is not the experience I would hope for expectant mothers and their partners. However, these restrictions are not in place simply to protect patients and their visitors, but are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our HSC staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Health what directions have been issued to those charged with administering flu vaccinations to ensure remaining and future stock of the vaccine is distributed to the most vulnerable first.

Mr Swann: There has been a very high early demand for vaccines through the public seasonal flu vaccination programme this year. To meet this demand, virtually all centrally held stock of adult flu vaccine has been distributed to GPs, Trusts and community pharmacies. This amounts to over half a million doses of vaccine, an unprecedented number at this stage of a seasonal flu vaccination programme.

The Public Health Agency and the Health and Social Care Board have asked that those administering vaccines to health and social care workers prioritise vaccinating frontline staff from both the statutory and independent sectors.

GPs have been asked to continue to use their existing stock to vaccinate those in the eligible groups. Where they have unused vaccine, and do not have immediate plans to use this, they have been asked to advise the PHA or Regional Procurement Pharmacy to enable redistribution to other practices that may require it.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health when AQW 5811/17-22 will be answered.
(AQW 9106/17-22)

Mr Swann: In recent years, similar to other Gender Identity Services provided across the UK, Northern Ireland has witnessed a significant growth in demand. To date, efforts to recruit replacements for key staff who have left the service in Northern Ireland have had limited success. Consequently, the service have been unable to progress the waiting list for individuals newly referred to the service.

My Department is working collaboratively with the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust and the Health and Social Care Board in undertaking a review of the Gender Identity Service, including how best to address the issue of waiting times.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether the official business case for the Hollywell Mental Health Unit has been approved; and at what stage the design work is for this project.
(AQW 9128/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Outline Business Case for a new Acute Mental Health Hospital to replace Holywell Mental Health Unit was approved on 28th August 2020. Approval was given for the project to move forward with Stage 1 of the £80m facility, at a cost just over £4m.

Stage 1 covers the design team procurement and the design of the new building and will take 25 months to complete. Work has commenced to collate the supporting information for the Pre-Qualification Questionnaire for potential tenderers which will ultimately result in the procurement of a design team.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health how many missed, or late cancelled, bookings of COVID-19 tests there have been at each testing centre.
(AQW 9172/17-22)

Mr Swann: Covid-19 testing sites across Northern Ireland operate as part of the National Testing Programme (NTP) managed by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) in London known as Pillar 2.

There is currently no mechanism for cancelling a test at any of the NTP sites. Information on numbers who book a test and do not attend has not been made available by DHSC.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health to detail the latest guidance and advice for people who were on the original shielding lists.
(AQW 9173/17-22)

Mr Swann: Shielding for clinically extremely vulnerable people was paused in Northern Ireland on 31st July 2020.

In light of the increased numbers of cases of Coronavirus in Northern Ireland, the Chief Medical Officer and his team have looked at this position again. Their assessment is that its resumption is not necessary at this stage. The Chief Medical Officer's statement can be found here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/news/shielding-remain-paused>

This decision reflects the context of our greater understanding of Covid-19, how to prevent its transmission, and appreciation of the impact of shielding on many people's physical and mental well-being. A number of important changes have taken place in our approach to managing Covid-19 and reducing its transmission since shielding was originally advised. This includes a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, Covid secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene.

The decision to retain the pause in shielding will, however, be kept under review and we will not hesitate to update our advice if this is necessary.

It is important to emphasise that everyone who was previously shielding continues to need to take strenuous precautions in their day to day lives and should scrupulously follow the guidance we set out when shielding was paused. This includes, good hand hygiene; staying at home as much as possible; maintaining social distancing; working from home where possible, or ensuring social distancing when going to and from work; and limiting social contacts.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health to detail the availability of supplies for the flu vaccine for people of working age, who are clinically vulnerable to the Coronavirus, and their carers, as well as those with other underlying conditions.

Mr Swann: A total of 265,000 doses of flu vaccine, of the type used in adults aged under 65, were ordered prior to the Covid-19 pandemic for use in the public seasonal influenza vaccination programme. These vaccines have all been distributed to GPs, Trusts and community pharmacies for administering to eligible groups. There are no vaccine supplies of this type remaining at central stores.

In light of the Covid-19 pandemic, a further 192,800 vaccine doses were procured over the summer. These supplies are expected to be received in Northern Ireland in mid-November.

The groups eligible for vaccination under the flu programme within the 18 to 64 year old age cohort include: people who are risk of serious adverse health outcomes from influenza infection due to underlying health conditions; carers; health and social care workers; pregnant women; and household contacts of those who received shielding letters earlier in the Covid-19 pandemic.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Health whether COVID-19 shielding advice is to change.
(AQW 9196/17-22)

Mr Swann: Shielding for clinically extremely vulnerable people was paused in Northern Ireland on 31st July 2020.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail each service his Department (i) currently provides alongside the Department of Justice; and (ii) is developing alongside the Department of Justice.
(AQW 9240/17-22)

Mr Swann:

(i) The Services my Department currently provide alongside the Department of Justice are:

- 1 Prison Healthcare;
- 2 Multi Agency Triage Team (MATT);
- 3 Towards Zero Suicide Mental Health Collaborative Programme;
- 4 Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse Helpline; and
- 5 Multi-Agency Risk Assessment Conferences (MARAC).

(ii) The Services my Department are developing alongside the Department of Justice are:

- 1 Healthcare in Musgrave Street Custody Suite collaborative pathfinder approach; and
- 2 The establishment of a Regional Care and Justice Campus for children and young people in Northern Ireland.

Officials in my Department routinely work collaboratively with colleagues in the Department of Justice on a range of issues including currently on coronavirus regulations.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what support services Health and Social Care Trusts provide for people with eating disorders.

(AQW 9242/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Belfast Health and Social Care Trust Eating Disorders Service based in Woodstock Lodge, Belfast serves the populations of Belfast Trust and the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust (SEHSCT) and provides a fully functioning Tertiary Service which includes an Intensive Support Programme.

The SEHSCT also support people experiencing mild to moderate problems associated with an Eating Disorder through its Community Mental Health Services.

The Northern Health and Social Care Trust Adult Eating Disorder Service provides a specialist community based outpatient service based at Holywell Hospital in Antrim. Satellite clinics are provided in the Mid Ulster area, Coleraine, Whiteabbey and Ballymena.

The Southern Health and Social Care Trust Adult Eating Disorder Service is a community outpatient service based in Ashleigh House, St Luke's Hospital, Armagh with 5 additional locally accessible clinics across the Trust.

The Western Health and Social Care Trust Adult Eating Disorder Service provides specialist community based outpatient services based in Old Bridge House, Londonderry and Rivendell Omagh. Outreach clinics are provided in Limavady, Strabane and Enniskillen.

Each Trust Eating Disorder Service will provide an in-reach service to medical and mental health wards when required.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Health what steps his Department has taken to support temporary measures, including partitioning, to allow care home visiting to continue during any second surge of COVID-19.

(AQW 9255/17-22)

Mr Swann: As a result of the Northern Ireland Executive's decision to invoke additional restrictions across Northern Ireland in response to increasing COVID-19 transmissions, updated visiting guidance for all care settings has been published and is available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>

Each care home has also been asked to undertake a risk assessment to determine how visiting can be safely accommodated, to work in collaboration with residents and family/friend carers and to ensure that the detail of the visiting policy is communicated widely. This approach is underpinned by the recent additional funding to care homes.

The further funding announced on 21 October amounts to an additional £27m. Part of this will go to support changes to the physical environment in care homes such as partitioning, visitor pods (to support safe visiting) and meet other additional costs, such as increased cleaning as a result of the installation of these facilities.

Funding was previously made available to care homes to invest in technology such as tablets to support connections with family and friends.

In addition, I have asked each care home to work to introduce and support "care partner" roles. This recommendation was made following consideration of the shared experiences of residents, families and staff which informed the Rapid Learning Initiative, to which the sector contributed. While some homes already have these arrangements in place, I recognise that many are finding this challenging. Trusts have been asked to support care homes with this process. Care partners are defined as individuals who will have previously played a role in supporting and attending to their relative's physical and mental health, and/or provided specific support and assistance to ensure that communication or other health and social care needs are met due to a pre-existing condition.

The current guidance also makes allowance for end of life visiting, for instance, and is clear that visits from Ministers of Faith should be accommodated and should not count towards the one indoor visit per week which I have asked homes to apply.

I recognise that in the current circumstances it is impossible to facilitate the level of visiting contact that would be allowed in normal circumstances. However I hope that these measures reassure you of my commitment to strike the right balance between protecting life and quality of life.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health how much the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust has spent on funding, directly or indirectly, to independent care homes in the last 5 years.

Mr Swann: The table below identifies total gross expenditure which is the amount paid to independent care homes in the last 5 years (including in-year expenditure up to September 2020). The Trust is only funded for the net cost (after client contribution) as detailed below. These are all direct costs and do not include any indirect costs.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health what action he is taking to ensure that patients are able to contact their GP for advice and care during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Swann: GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the current pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how best to prioritise patients to provide this core service whilst maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are operating a telephone first triage system which allows patients to seek medical advice from their GP for both routine and urgent problems. The GP then uses their clinical judgement to decide if the patient can be safely managed over the telephone or whether a face to face appointment is required. This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential. This helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

GP practices are open and are providing face to face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face to face assessment to one of the Primary Care COVID-19 centres. This ensures that these patients do not attend the GP Practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimal disruption.

GPs are still expected to clinically assess for risk of serious illness and refer as clinically appropriate for diagnostic tests and to specialist services, such as an outpatient clinic, as they have always done.

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. Practices were advised to communicate to patients about the practice services that are available and how to access them with the recommendation that these communications make clear that GP practices are open.

On 7 September, GP leaders from the Health and Social Care Board, the Royal College of General Practitioners and the British Medical Association issued a statement to reassure patients that, whilst patients may be seen in a different way, by phone or video-link, GP practices are still open to treat patients, provide advice and issue prescriptions. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary. If people have symptoms or an unexplained illness or have any reason to be concerned, they should in the first instance contact their GP who will be able to provide advice.

A letter was also issued to MLAs and other local political representatives providing an update on the current arrangements and asking that they share the key message with constituents that GP practices are open, but working differently.

The COVID-19 pandemic has posed unprecedented challenges for the planning and delivery of health and social care services in Northern Ireland. General practice has rapidly changed its working patterns in order to cope with the current national emergency. Some of the measures taken are to reduce the risk of COVID-19 spread by providing advice by telephone or video where appropriate. Other decisions are based on the potential impact of COVID-19 on conditions, or on the potential impact of treatments on the risk of COVID-19.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Health what steps he is taking to harness external space and staff skills in order to expand health and social care capacity for a second surge of COVID-19.

(AQW 9274/17-22)

Mr Swann: To offset the reduction in the number of services that Trusts are currently able to provide, the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) has regular and ongoing engagement with the three main Independent Sector providers for access to theatre sessions, including increased access to weekend General Anaesthetic lists. The HSCB is also regularly engaging with other Independent Sector providers to secure additional capacity.

In addition to the Independent Sector provision, the HSCB has increased cross Trust collaboration to maximise the utilisation of theatres in COVID-light sites.

In anticipation of a second surge my Department re-opened the Workforce Appeal in September in an effort to try and build capacity again. Yet again the response has been exceptional with over 4,800 applications already made. I would encourage anyone with the relevant skills and experience who is interested in joining or returning to the health service to consider applying.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Health for an update on provision of regional support staff at the recommissioned acute services block on the Ulster Hospital site.

(AQW 9276/17-22)

Mr Swann: Currently the South Eastern Trust is working to commission the Acute Services Block, Ulster Hospital, earlier than the previously agreed timescale of Autumn 2021.

The Trust has been asked to consider a workforce model should the building be required to support regional services in the response to the second Covid-19 surge.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health to detail (i) how many COVID-19 beds are currently operational throughout Health and Social Care Trusts, including in Nightingale facilities; and (ii) how much this number has increased in each of the last six months.

(AQW 9298/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Information on the number of beds occupied by COVID-19 patients is published daily on the Department's COVID-19 dashboard; this data is available to view at the link below.
- (ii) Excel data for the previous 6 months can be downloaded to show how this number has fluctuated over the course of the pandemic:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/covid-19-daily-dashboard-updates>

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health (i) what capital allocations his Department has received from the Executive for COVID-19 purposes; (ii) how this has been spent; and (iii) what proportion has been directed toward increasing inpatient bed capacity.

(AQW 9299/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) My Department has received the following capital allocations for Covid-19 purposes:
 - £33.8m in the June 2020 monitoring round;
 - £1.6m in September 2020 for the Test, Trace and Protect project; and
 - £32.4m in October 2020 monitoring.
- (ii) This capital has been spent on:
 - a wide range of medical equipment including ventilators, monitors and other essential equipment required to provide care for increased numbers of patients requiring respiratory and multiple organ support;
 - PPE storage and transport;
 - hospital estates works to facilitate the provision of medical oxygen;
 - ICT including the Test, Trace and Protect project; and
 - a second Nightingale Hospital at Whiteabbey.
- (iii) £4.5m has been allocated to deliver up to 100 additional beds at the second Nightingale Hospital at Whiteabbey. A further £9.7m invested in respiratory and critical care equipment will enable critical care capacity to be increased by up to 100 beds across the region if required. Overall bed capacity across the hospital system is managed dynamically as the total number of beds may fluctuate in line with demand and staff availability.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health how many COVID-19 inpatient beds cannot currently be operationalised due to a lack of sustainable staff rotas.

(AQW 9300/17-22)

Mr Swann: HSC Trusts do not set aside beds for COVID-19 patients. The number of patients with COVID-19 fluctuates and hospital bed stock is managed dynamically in line with best practice in infection control, and the number of ICU, acute and stepdown beds needed based on the stage of surge as experienced by any Trust or hospital.

Staffing pressures is a constraint in all HSC Trusts and the allocation of staff and services provided are managed on a daily basis by each Trust in line with their Surge Plans.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what steps his Department has taken to increase the number of ventilators since the onset of the first wave of COVID-19.

(AQW 9301/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since the onset of the first wave of COVID-19 my Department has purchased 180 Mechanical Ventilators and 24 Portable Ventilators (primarily for use during patient transportation). To date 187 have been received with the remaining 17 due imminently.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health what steps he has taken to increase the number of mobile scanners available for cancer diagnostics; and whether this has increased since the onset of the first wave of COVID-19.

Mr Swann: I have taken several steps to ensure cancer diagnostic capacity continues and remains resilient in preparation for further COVID-19 waves. Northern Ireland has benefited from a share of NHS England COVID-19 supplies including a mobile CT unit and additional ultrasound machines. In addition work is underway to secure a number of existing mobile scanners where contracts are due to expire. I am also considering requirements for additional MRI and CT mobile capacity from the independent sector.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health for an update of progress toward the launch of two new dedicated orthopaedic surgery hubs at Musgrave Park Hospital and Altnagelvin Area Hospital.

Mr Swann: I have established a Regional Orthopaedic Network which is working to rebuild and transform elective orthopaedic services across Health and Social Care Trusts. The Orthopaedic Network is exploring options to sustain elective activity where possible during this surge period, and it continues to focus on the longer term objective to introduce a regional orthopaedic service with equity of access for all patients in Northern Ireland.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health how many GP appointments were conducted in (i) 2019; and (ii) 2020 to date.

(AQW 9328/17-22)

Mr Swann: As independent contractors, GPs are responsible for the day to day management of their practice, including patient appointment arrangements. Information on the number of GP appointments and the number of direct in-person GP appointments is not collated centrally and is consequently not available.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health what percentage of the recently postponed cancer procedures relate to people living in the West Belfast constituency.

(AQW 9364/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data indicates that 17% of the 106 patients who had recently reported postponed suspect cancer/cancer procedures in the Belfast HSC Trust live in the West Belfast constituency. Of the 106 patients reported as cancelled, 51 patients have had their procedure, 12 no longer require treatment and the remaining 43 have treatment dates confirmed.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on a planned mental health centre for Omagh.

Mr Swann: The Western Health and Social Care Trust submitted a proposal for a new Mental Health unit in Omagh as part of a capital planning review exercise in 2018. Given my Department's existing capital commitments, the ability to take forward new capital projects, including this new mental health unit, will only be possible if significant additional capital resources are made available to me.

A bid for the funding to commence the new unit was submitted to the Department of Finance as part of a recent four year capital budget information gathering exercise. Since then, the Chancellor of the Exchequer has announced the November Spending Review will cover the 2021/22 year only and therefore my ability to take this project forward is subject to the confirmation of future budget allocations.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health to detail the location and number of intensive care unit beds for each of the last five years.

(AQW 9400/17-22)

Mr Swann: As outlined in table 1 below, the critical care resource has remained static since 2015, with the exception of 2 additional L3 beds in the Intensive Care Unit of the Royal Victoria Hospital in July 2017. There was a total of 104 ICU beds from 2015 to June 2017 and 106 ICU beds from July 2017 to October 2020.

Table 1: The number and location of critical care beds available from 2015 - 2020

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health whether care home residents are required to contribute financially towards COVID -19 testing.

(AQW 9401/17-22)

Mr Swann: At no stage has / will any Care Home resident be required to contribute financially towards COVID-19 testing.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health what provision exists for people to access bariatric surgery (i) locally via the Health Service; and (ii) for referrals to other parts of UK and Ireland.

(AQW 9409/17-22)

Mr Swann: Bariatric surgery is not currently commissioned locally in the Health & Social Care (HSC) service in Northern Ireland. In March 2020, my department announced plans to explore options to develop a regional bariatric service. This work has been temporarily suspended due to the need to respond to the ongoing pandemic and will be resumed when possible.

Transfer for treatment by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) is known as an Extra Contractual Referral (ECR) and occurs when the HSCB approves a consultant's request to transfer a patient to a provider outside Northern Ireland for assessment or treatment which the consultant considers necessary but which is not available through HSC facilities locally. This is normally to a provider elsewhere in the United Kingdom but may also be to a provider outside the UK where this is clinically justified. Further information on the ECR process is available on the HSCB website.

Department for Infrastructure

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the water services and the risks to (i) homes being flooded; and (ii) raw sewage spilling into an estuary.

(AQW 8934/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): I am advised by NI Water that, unfortunately, over 120 households are already affected by, or are at risk of, internal flooding whereby sewage escapes from the sewer network and enters homes.

Sewer networks contain Combined Sewer Overflows (CSOs) which act as safety valves for sewage to escape to water courses and water bodies (including estuaries) in extreme or high wet weather, and are designed to help prevent homes from being affected by sewage, should a sewer network reach capacity in high wet weather. However, where sewer networks are at, or very close to, their capacity, the CSOs may operate more frequently than they should, including during dry weather, and exceed the discharge consent set by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA). These CSOs are then classified by the NIEA and NI Water as "Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharges" and present a risk to the receiving environment until the sewer system can be upgraded.

NI Water's wastewater system performance is vitally important. If it is not adequately funded, risks will increase in relation to raw sewerage escaping from NI Water's infrastructure. This, in turn, is likely to result in negative impacts on levels of service to existing customers and to lead to inadequate environmental protection as a result of increases in out of sewer flooding and pollution.

NI Water has extensive plans to upgrade its wastewater systems during PC21 (2021-2027). It has advised that this investment will help reduce the risk of raw sewage escaping from NI Water's infrastructure and affecting households and the receiving environment. However, NI Water's plans are dependent on adequate funding being made available through PC21.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 7857/17-22, and taking account of legislation in respect of the Review of Old Minerals Permissions, for her assessment of Derry City and Strabane District Council's ability to enforce against sand extraction at Kildoag Road, Goshaden, Derry.

Ms Mallon: The provisions for a review of old mineral permissions are contained in the Planning Act (NI) 2011 but are not yet commenced. I understand that Derry City and Strabane District Council are actively considering this case at Kildoag Road, Goshaden, Derry.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8306/17-22, to detail the amount paid out on personal injury claims in the Lisburn and Castlereagh Section Office area, in each of the last three years.

Ms Mallon: Pursuant to AQW 8306/17-22 the table below provides a breakdown of the total amount paid out on personal injury claims received by my Department for the Lisburn and Castlereagh Section Office area in each of the last three financial years:

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8661/17-22, whether she has included funding to address sewerage issues in Galliagh Shore within her Departmental funding bids.

Ms Mallon: The Galliagh Shore development is privately owned and, therefore, neither my Department nor NI Water has any legal remit to resolve the issue. However, I am keen to work with Executive colleagues to assist the residents of Galliagh Shore, and the many other developments that are in a similar position with unadopted and inadequate sewerage infrastructure.

As previously advised, NI Water is not sufficiently funded to meet the regulatory outputs required of it by the Utility Regulator. In view of this, I had written to the Minister of Finance on the 16 September 2020, seeking an urgent meeting regarding NI Water's future funding, to enable the company to fulfil its statutory responsibilities, and to raise the matter of inadequate private sewerage infrastructure sites, such as Galliagh Shore, in the hope that a solution can be found. Minister Murphy replied to me indicating that he planned to host a series of bilateral meetings in the coming weeks to discuss the pressures identified by departments. It is my intention to include the issue of funding for unadopted developments as part of the agenda for these meetings.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans her Department has to improve the rail network to Londonderry.

Ms Mallon: Since coming into office, I have been clear that my priority is addressing regional imbalance, better connecting communities and, importantly, ensuring that we shape our places around our people, for our people and with our people.

I have committed to a new feasibility study to get phase 3 of the Derry to Coleraine rail line back on track, and I have ring-fenced funding for that work to be done at pace. I have also commissioned a separate study to explore improving existing services and the options of new halts and associated park-and-ride facilities at Strathfoyle, Eglinton/City of Derry Airport and Ballykelly.

The New Decade, New Approach commitment did not extend to the North-West, and that was simply not acceptable to me or my counterparts in the Irish Government. I was delighted that Minister Ryan and I confirmed at the recent North/South Ministerial Council meeting that we would develop a feasibility study of a potential high-speed rail connection between Derry, Belfast, Dublin, Limerick and Cork as we seek to create a spine of connectivity on the island and work collaboratively to tackle regional imbalance.

All-Island connectivity should excite us all, not least because it better connects our communities in a more sustainable, cleaner and greener way, but also because it opens up huge potential for our economy. The new regional strategic transport network transport plan being prepared for consultation will also set out the priorities for future development of the main road and rail networks up to 2035.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 7698/17-22, why no bond was secured by NI Water for the necessary sewerage works before the construction of Hunters Lodge commenced.

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised that the developer responsible for Hunters Lodge has entered into an Article 161 agreement for the adoption of the sewers that have been laid within the development, and a bond is in place to address any issues with the construction of the sewers within the site. However, NI Water will not proceed to adopt the site, if it is not connected via an offsite outfall sewer to the main sewer network.

NI Water has advised that there is no storm sewer available to serve the Hunters Mill development, and the adjacent foul sewer is not deep enough. Therefore, the developer asked NI Water to provide a dedicated offsite foul and storm sewer to serve the site's 130 houses. In August 2018, NI Water wrote to the developer advising that, in order for it to lay the required sewers, the developer would need to pay just under £29k of a contribution towards the cost of the works and to take out a further bond of £218.7k for the offsite sewers. NI Water also advised the developer that the bond would be returned when the developer had constructed all the houses. To date, the required contribution and bond have not been paid to NI Water and the site is currently not connected to the public sewer network. Given this current position, the developer remains responsible for dealing with the foul and storm sewage.

In addition, NI Water has had to revise its original design of the outfall sewers to accommodate a new development adjacent to Hunters Lodge, where another developer has also requisitioned NI Water to provide outfall sewers. The revised scheme has been designed and is currently being priced by NI Water contractors. Once the cost estimates have been finalised, NI Water will write to both developers, advising them of the financial conditions that they need to meet. Until the necessary financial conditions have been met, NI Water will not be in a position to proceed to lay the required offsite outfall sewers to connect Hunters Lodge and the adjacent development to the sewer network.

Where a developer has obtained planning permission, NI Water has no authority to stop that developer constructing and selling houses. As with all development proposals, NI Water advises developers to contact it at an early stage, to ensure that the necessary services are in place to serve the development.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8175/17-22, whether she will publish the Planning Forum's review of resourcing for statutory consultations within DfI Rivers.

Ms Mallon: One key action of the Planning Forum relates to statutory consultees reviewing resourcing requirements associated with their statutory consultee role against their workloads, to ensure efficient and timely responses to planning consultations.

I can confirm that an internal review of staff resources within my Department's Rivers Planning Advisory and Modelling Unit has been completed by officials. The review noted the increased workload in the unit, in terms of consultation numbers and their complexity. It also recommended that 3 new Professional and Technical posts and one new Administrative post be added to the staff structure, to deal with this workload and ensure that future planning consultations could be dealt with in a timely manner. The recommended posts have now been created. As the report was internal and dealt with staffing issues, it is not intended for publication however a summary of the key findings are outlined above.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an indicative date as to when construction will commence on the Narrow Water bridge.

Ms Mallon: The Narrow Water Bridge is currently at options analysis stage and therefore it is not currently possible to provide a date when construction will commence. My officials are working to update an economic appraisal of options considered in respect of future development of Narrow Water, in collaboration with colleagues in the Department for Transport. Given developments since options were last considered jointly by Ministers, specialist analysis in a number of technical areas is required to fully inform the economic appraisal.

Work has included significant stakeholder engagement and most recently, in September, I met with representatives from the Narrow Water Bridge Community Network and local political representatives to discuss the local support for a bridge to link the communities on both sides of the lough and how to take full advantage of the tourism potential of this cross-border region.

I have recently engaged with Minister Ryan to discuss how best to facilitate unlocking the potential of cross-border regions such as this in the Newry/Carlingford area. This was discussed at the North South Ministerial Council on 7th October. I want to ensure that the people of South Down and Carlingford are able to maximise the benefits that will flow from investment in the area while ensuring value for money spent.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many European Conference of Ministers of Transport permits are readily available in the outcome of a no-deal Brexit.

Ms Mallon: The Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency (DVSA) issue European Conference of Ministers of Transport (ECMT) permits for GB and NI. DVSA have announced that the application period for 2021 Permits will open on the 2 November 2020 and run until the 20 November 2020. There are up to 1,668 annual permits and 5,040 short-term permits for 2021 for GB and NI.

DfT have advised that it is not the Government's intention to rely solely on ECMT permits for market access. In the event that an agreement is not reached with the EU, the European Commission may grant a 'temporary connectivity' regulation to allow continued access to the EU for UK operators – similar to what was proposed in the event of a no deal in 2019.

DfT have also advised that Northern Ireland operators will not need to apply for an ECMT permit to undertake journeys to the south.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) whether she will bring forward a scheme to support taxi drivers; and (ii) when will she give financial support to (a) taxi drivers; and (b) coach drivers.

(AQW 9197/17-22)

Ms Mallon: On 29 October the Executive approved a financial support scheme costing £14m for taxi drivers and a scheme costing £5m for private bus and coach operators, which will be set up by my Department using the new legal powers transferred by the First Minister and deputy First Minister under the Financial Assistance Act (Northern Ireland) 2009.

I anticipate that the scheme for the taxi industry will launch week commencing 9 November and the scheme for the private bus and coach sector will follow in mid November.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given the increasing volume of traffic and the number of road traffic accidents in Willowfield Street, whether she will review the street's road safety with a view to increasing safety for residents, pedestrians and road users.

(AQW 9208/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I fully recognise the importance of implementing road safety measures and I am committed to exploring solutions that deliver better for communities and improve lives across Northern Ireland. My officials receive many requests for safety improvements and very much would like to be in a position to meet all valid requests.

However, particularly in the context of severe and challenging budget cuts, those areas requiring most urgent attention must be prioritised. For consistency and fairness the current criteria through which this is assessed includes factors such as speed and volume of traffic, the most up to date three years personal injury collision statistics and environmental factors such as the proximity of public buildings and the nature of the road.

The latest assessment carried out in October 2020 indicates that a scheme at Willowfield Street would not be currently considered as high a priority as other schemes competing for what is limited Local Transport and Safety Measures (LTSM) funding allocated to Roads Eastern Division.

If your constituents consider there are persistent issues with speeding or persons driving inappropriately in this area they may wish to report such incidents to the PSNI on their non-emergency number 101.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has any plans to address the historical sewage issue at Killeavey Road, Newry.

(AQW 9227/17-22)

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised that it has developed a Newry Drainage Area Plan (DAP) Model to examine potential capacity issues in the Killeavey Road area. The model has involved studies and CCTV surveys in order to assess sewer dimensions, flows and structural conditions. The DAP Model process has now been completed, and NI Water has been analysing the initial outputs in order to inform further detailed options.

Any infrastructure investment in the Killeavey Road area of Newry is subject to the recommendations of the modelling work and the availability of funding. NI Water's capital investment projects form part of the Price Control (PC21) Business Plan, and are approved by the Utility Regulator. The Killeavey Road area is not presently included in NI Water's planned programme of investment in PC21.

However, subject to funding being provided to meet the PC21 Business Plan, NI Water is proposing to undertake significant investment in the wastewater network in the Newry area. This will involve upgrading both the Newry Wastewater Treatment

Works with an investment of approximately £28M and the Newport Greenbank Terminal Pumping Station with an investment of approximately £4M.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Ulster Canal project.
(AQW 9246/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Ulster Canal Restoration Project has been taken forward to two phases. In phase one (Upper Lough Erne to Castle Saunderson), a short length of new lateral canal, together with a new navigation arch beside Derrykerrib Bridge on the River Finn, were completed in the autumn of 2018. Works relating to the installation of a new floating mooring facility at Castle Saunderson were completed in October 2019 and the navigation channel from Upper Lough Erne to Castle Saunderson (circa 2.5 km) is now open for boating.

In relation to phase two (Clones to Clonfad), a commission to investigate a source of a sustainable water supply for the marina has been completed with final testing ongoing to inform a detailed report due early next month. Waterways Ireland is satisfied that a suitable supply has been sourced in order to facilitate the development. Creative design is also ongoing to develop a vision for the canal within Clones. Work relating to land requirements and purchase arrangements for this section of the restoration has also commenced.

Work will commence on phase 3 (Castle Saunderson to Clonfad) when phase 2 is complete.

All three phases of the project have been funded by the Irish Government.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail all road safety projects her Department will carry out in the Newry and Armagh area during the current mandate.
(AQW 9248/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Details of works programmes being undertaken by each of four Roads Divisions are compiled on a yearly basis and listed in the Reports to the respective district councils. Southern Division's Reports to Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council and Newry, Mourne and Down District Council, which are due to issue shortly, include details of the planned road safety projects for the Newry and Armagh area for the 2020-21 financial year.

After the reports have been presented to both Councils and meetings with my officials have taken place, they will be published on the Department's website and are available to view online through the following link:

<https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/publications>

Ms Flynn asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will consider granting a designated temporary safe cycle lane on Blacks Road, similar to that recently installed on Grosvenor Road, pending the implementation of the Colin cycle plan.
(AQW 9348/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am keen to see progress on better walking and cycling infrastructure throughout Northern Ireland and I have made a commitment to deliver sustainable infrastructure that will transform our communities and lives. With the ongoing COVID-19 emergency, we are having to adapt to a new way of living, and as part of that, we need to create more opportunities for active travel and make our roads safer for those who want to walk and cycle.

I believe long term positive change is best achieved when government works in partnership with local communities. I am keen to consider proposals for better walking and cycling infrastructure that are put forward by Councils, particularly those for which there is strong community and stakeholder support. Pop-up cycle lanes give an opportunity to trial better ways to use our road space and my officials are continuing to work with local councils across the north to develop future proposals for them. Alongside that, my officials are progressing the development of the Colin Active Travel Network with the other stakeholders.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what engagement she has had with the Minister of Education regarding face coverings on school transport.
(AQW 9356/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have worked closely with the Minister of Education throughout the coronavirus pandemic on issues regarding face coverings on school transport.

While home-to-school transport falls within the remit of the Minister of Education, many school children rely on public transport for all or part of their journey to and from school, including up to 90% of pupils in the Belfast area.

Following our most recent discussions, Minister Weir and I agreed to adopt a uniform approach to the mandatory use of face coverings on school and public transport and to apply the requirement to all post-primary school age children. As you will be aware, these proposals were subsequently agreed by the Executive on 29 October, and the wearing of face coverings on all dedicated school buses and public transport is now mandatory for all post-primary children.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many additional driver testing slots have been allocated for this year.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close over the next four weeks to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these new restrictions. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

To create additional capacity the DVA is planning to open up the booking system for February for these impacted customers only. Further appointments will also be made available in November, December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. These slots, when they are released, will also only be available to these impacted customers.

When testing resumes the DVA also intends to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

The number of driving test slots that are available for any given period is not collated by the Driving and Vehicle Agency (DVA) as these figures can vary significantly depending on a range of factors including the demand for tests and the availability of staff. However, the number of driving test applications and driving tests conducted are National Statistics and as such are released in accordance with the UK Official Statistics Code of Practice.

The 'DfI Driver, Vehicle, Operator and Enforcement National Statistics' report is published on a quarterly basis with the latest edition covering the period from 1 April to 30 June 2020. Driving test statistics are presented in quarterly or monthly schedules, dependent on the volumes in question.

Given recent public interest in these statistics, the Department has recently introduced a new publication providing provisional monthly statistics on vehicle, driving and theory tests conducted. DVA statisticians published the first edition on 15 October, relating to September 2020, which is available on the Department's website. Application statistics will be added to the November publication and will include figures for the October period.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the north/south services currently undertaken by Translink. (AQW 9358/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The list of Cross Border Services that are undertaken by Translink are listed as follows:

- 3 X2 Belfast - Dublin Airport - Dublin

I am firmly committed to ensuring our public transport services continue to operate, and I continue to make bids for support to the Finance Minister and the Executive to ensure that

Translink has the budget it requires to deliver all of its existing services across our island, as well as seeking to enhance the public transport network where possible.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) why funding for street light column replacements was reduced this year; and (ii) where this funding was allocated to.

(AQW 9360/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am pleased to be able to confirm that I have allocated £14m for street lighting column replacements in the current financial year. When compared to funding provided in recent years, this represents a significant increase and will allow for the replacement this year of approximately 6500 street lighting columns spread across all 4 of the Roads Divisions.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given that it has recently come to light that £700 million was wasted by delays and budget overruns within her Department, how she intends to ensure that delays caused by lengthy public inquiries and judicial reviews are addressed while also maintaining the right to object.

Ms Mallon: The £700 million of delays and cost overruns identified by the NIAO related to eleven capital projects across five NICS Departments. Of the 4 DfI projects set out in the NIAO Report, the overrun on the A6, Belfast Rapid Transit and Belfast Transport Hub projects taken together is £2.9m, equating to 0.4% of the estimated cost of these schemes. With regard to the A5, where the projected cost overrun is more significant at £301m, the cost overrun, compared to the 2010 business case estimated costs, is largely due to the inflationary effect of delays due to legal challenges that were outwith the Department's control.

In its recent report on Major Capital Projects, the Public Accounts Committee recognised that the public and organisations with an interest must be allowed the opportunity to contest projects on environmental or other issues.

There is duty on the Department, as the promoter of major roads projects, to consult on the making of draft orders and ensure that it is fair to all of those who may wish to express objections or representations about schemes. Whilst the Department endeavours to deal with objections through correspondence and meetings, an Independent Inquiry is often required to deal with unresolved objections. The scope of any Public Inquiry is always focused and, where necessary, guided by legal advice.

The Department for Infrastructure has no input into the protocol in relation to judicial reviews. The PAC Committee has recommended that the NICS works with the Judiciary to consider the Judicial Review process. My officials will be considering this recommendation carefully, along with officials in other Departments.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given that the eleven month extension provided to operators and drivers will not be recognised in the south of Ireland or other EU countries, what arrangements her Department has made for drivers whose licences expired between 1 February and 31 December 2020.

Ms Mallon: I am aware of the risk that, if there is not a negotiated outcome that allows for mutual recognition of driving licences, other EU member states may decide not to recognise extended UK-issued licences from 1 January 2021. My officials are engaging with counterparts in the Department for Transport in London and the Road Safety Authority in the south to ensure that the impact of any such decisions on drivers here is fully understood and to press for a way forward to be found as a matter of urgency.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) her assessment of the impact the pandemic has had upon the road haulage sector; (ii) the amount of funding; and (iii) the nature of financial assistance she is seeking for the road haulage sector under the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009 as a result of the pandemic.

Ms Mallon: At the request of the First and Deputy First Ministers my officials carried out an evidence gathering exercise to see if 'exceptional circumstances' applied to the road haulage sector, requiring a financial support scheme, as set out in the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009. Information was received from representatives from the haulage industry, the Logistics UK Tracker, the NI Haulage Industry Critical Goods Supply Analysis Group (NIHCA), and the Department for Transport. I also contacted the Departments of Finance and Economy.

Based on the evidence received and engagement with the sector there is insufficient evidence to demonstrate 'exceptional circumstances' which would justify bespoke financial support for the haulage industry. I will however continue to keep this matter under review and consider the position, if evidence shows that there are exceptional circumstances which would justify bespoke financial support for the haulage industry.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) whether the financial measure announced for taxi drivers and coach operators applies to wedding car businesses; and (ii) what financial assistance she is planning for the wedding car industry due to the COVID-19 impact on this sector, which requires licencing similar to taxi vehicles and operators.

Ms Mallon: You will be aware that I secured funding of £14m for taxi drivers last week from the Executive. This package, taken together with the £1.2m that I have already put in place to waive fees for the renewal of taxi vehicle licences, will help taxi drivers to be able to continue in the trade and therefore be available for recovery, post-Covid.

The financial assistance scheme is open to all self-employed licensed drivers, including wedding car drivers, who were available to work from 22nd March to 30th September 2020 and who meet the eligibility criteria. The criteria for the scheme is being finalised and details will be made available when it launches next week. The support offered will be via a one off payment of £1500. This one off payment will be a contribution to their yearly overhead costs including PPE and recognises the financial pressures sustained by eligible drivers due to Covid-19.

Department of Justice

Ms Dillon asked the Minister of Justice what steps are being taken to protect prisoners and staff following an outbreak of COVID-19 in Magilligan Prison
(AQW 8560/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): On Wednesday 7 October the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust (SEHSCT) advised the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) that a member of the Healthcare Team at Magilligan Prison had tested positive for Covid-19. As a result 17 other Healthcare staff were required to self-isolate.

Subsequently seven members of staff from the Trust and one member of staff from the Prison Service tested positive. When the SEHSCT informed NIPS about the positive cases, the Prison Service track and trace arrangements were activated and a deep clean of the Healthcare Unit was completed.

Five prisoners were placed in isolation as a precaution. To date no prisoners have tested positive.

As a precautionary measure the prison has been closed to all non-essential personnel and in-person visits to the prison have been temporarily suspended. These measures will remain in place for a period of two weeks, i.e. until Monday 26 October. Virtual visits and virtual learning will continue as we recognise the importance of family contact, and those in our care preparing for academic and vocational qualifications, particularly at this challenging time.

Older/more vulnerable prisoners in Magilligan are housed in H2 which has been our shielding unit. It has strict operating procedures and protocols in place. When shielding was paused we had allowed a limited relaxation of these stringent measures: those strict procedures that previously applied have now been reintroduced.

Members will be aware that the responsibility of prison healthcare falls to the SEHSCT. They have redeployed medical staff to Magilligan and have assured NIPS that they have sufficient healthcare staff at Magilligan to provide an appropriate level of cover. They continue to work closely with the Governor.

I am content that appropriate and timely action was taken by the Prison Service in association with our healthcare partners. The situation has stabilised and the Prison is operating normally within the restrictions that have been implemented.

The last few days at Magilligan have highlighted the challenges ahead for NIPS. I am assured that the senior management team review developments daily and will not hesitate to act in the interest of staff and prisoner safety when required to do so.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the measures she is taking to address the severe levels of harm inflicted on children due to parental alienation; and (ii) whether she will ensure early intervention programmes such as My Family Matters by La Dolce Vita Project are used to inform any future strategy.

Mrs Long: Whilst not aware of the specific project, I am aware of the work being undertaken by a number of organisations including La Dolce Vita Project to tackle parental alienation and family breakdown. I am also conscious that domestic abuse, in its many forms, affects people of all ages within our society and children are the most vulnerable. My Department already funds a number of behavioural change programmes for individuals who have shown concerning behaviour in a family setting but who have not yet entered the criminal justice system. This provides intervention at an early stage adopting a Problem Solving Justice Approach and my Department will continue to evaluate these programmes to inform next steps.

My Department has also been working with the Department of Health to develop an action plan focused on early resolution of parental disputes to ensure the best outcomes for children and their families. It is recognised that there are a number of partners across the justice system, health and social care, and the community and voluntary sector who perform an important role in advising and supporting families experiencing conflict and relationship breakdown who can play an equally critical role in informing and delivering potential supports and interventions. Wherever possible the Departments will utilise existing knowledge and experience in the co-design and the evaluation of actions.

Support services for those suffering harm as a consequence of serious parental acrimony or alienation more generally would fall to the Department of Health. My officials have been in contact with the Department of Health and have been advised that PHA have, through their commitment to actions in support of the Making Life Better NI Public Health Strategy and the related Giving Every Child the best start in Life theme, commissioned a number of parenting and family support programmes across NI.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the breaches of public health regulations at a protest in the grounds of Stormont estate on 18 October.
(AQW 8983/17-22)

Mrs Long: I was very concerned to see breaches of the public health regulations on 18 October.

In a democracy there is a right to assembly and to peaceful protest; however, these are not normal times and the Executive has taken the difficult decision to curtail some individual liberties in the interests of saving lives and protecting public health. It was, therefore, very worrying to see crowds gathering in such numbers, in breach of the regulations, and in the absence of social distancing.

Everyone needs to play their part to bring the levels of infection down and protect both lives and livelihoods. It is a matter of both personal and collective responsibility.

The management of the estate is a matter for the Department of Finance and the policing of protests is an operational matter for the Chief Constable: I, therefore, brought the planned protest to the attention of both in advance of October 18.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Justice why Northern Ireland legislation does not make provision for time remanded on bail counting towards time served, in the cases of an imposed curfew and the use of electronic monitoring.

(AQW 8989/17-22)

Mrs Long: The introduction of credit for periods on bail with an electronic monitoring condition in England and Wales was facilitated by provisions in the Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 ("the 2008 Act") that were brought forward in response to a recommendation in Lord Carter's Review on the efficient and sustainable use of custody (essentially to curb prison overcrowding).

The provisions were implemented alongside another accepted Carter recommendation to reserve custody for the most serious offenders for which provision was also made in the 2008 Act.

This was achieved by means of an amendment to the Bail Act 1976 (Section 3AB) to provide a pre-condition that electronic monitoring can only be imposed as a condition of bail where the judge would otherwise have remanded an individual into custody.

Neither the provisions of the 2008 Act referred to above nor the Bail Act 1976 extend to Northern Ireland. Here, electronic monitoring is available as a condition of court bail without pre-condition as to its application, not just to those who might otherwise have been remanded into custody.

In this sense it is no different to court bail with a curfew condition (without an electronic monitoring requirement) where freedom of movement is also restricted by the court during curfew hours.

In neither scenario does the time spent on bail count as time served for sentence calculation purposes under the Treatment of Offenders Act (Northern Ireland) 1968, which does not involve a court hearing.

Any proposals to replicate the different arrangements in England and Wales for time remanded on bail to count towards time served would require significant reforms to both electronic monitoring and sentencing arrangements in Northern Ireland.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Justice whether those involved in decision making on the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill, will receive training on parental alienation and the impact on children prior to the completion of the bill.

Mrs Long: My Department will be bringing forward guidance on the new domestic abuse offence, associated domestic abuse and child aggravations and what is deemed to be abusive behaviour. A multi-agency Task and Finish Group, including representatives from criminal justice partners, has been set up to help shape this guidance and work is ongoing to agree its content. There will also be a crucial period of operational awareness raising and training in advance of the legislation being enacted.

While the Department of Health has policy responsibility for parental alienation I am clear that one parent should not be able to use a child to abuse another parent. I consider it appropriate that patterns of this type of behaviour could be deemed to be abusive behaviour and potentially be captured by the domestic abuse offence, depending on the particular circumstances of the case and subject to a reasonable person test. I am keen that the guidance relating to the new legislation clearly explains this.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Justice (i) for an update on the ownership of the strip of land between the Department of Justice security fence at Old Throne Park and Hazelwood Primary School on Whitewell Road; (ii) whether there are any plans to shift or remove the high security fence; and (iii) who is responsible for maintaining the area between the school fence and the security fence.

Mrs Long:

- (i) Hazelwood Integrated Primary School (IPS) owns the strip of land which lies between the Department of Justice security fence, which runs along the northern boundary of the School, and the rear boundaries of domestic properties at Old Throne Park (Numbers 2-22).
- (ii) The Department of Justice (DoJ) Interfaces Team has held meetings with the key stakeholders to assess attitudinal change towards the potential for interface reduction or removal at this location. Departmental officials hope to revisit this conversation using visuals to aid further discussion with nearby residents in the New Year.

- (iii) The area between the school fence and the security fence is owned by Hazelwood IPS but the Department has cleared this space of household litter annually since 2016 at the request of the school. Overgrowth is also cut and treated.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the possible opening of the gate on Flax Street in Ardoyne, where it meets the Crumlin Road, to allow access to residents and relieve traffic in the district caused by the permanent closure of the gate.

Mrs Long: I am committed to working towards the reduction and removal of interface security structures, wherever they exist, across Northern Ireland. Barriers erected over 30 years ago such as those on Flax Street cause a significant impediment to local people going about their daily business.

The Department consulted residents of the nearby Woodvale area about the opening of a newly installed gate in the existing Woodvale interface wall, and sought views about the re-opening of Flax Street. We will also seek up-to-date views from residents of the Ardoyne area.

It is the Department's intention to replace the existing double barriers on Flax Street with automated and remotely-operated vehicular and pedestrian access gates.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Justice how Northern Ireland could adopt the relevant section of legislation from within the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to allow for time served to be considered in relation to those who, whilst on bail, were given a curfew and monitored using electronic tagging.

(AQW 9081/17-22)

Mrs Long: The introduction of credit for periods on bail with an electronic monitoring condition in England and Wales was facilitated by provisions in the Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 ("the 2008 Act") that were brought forward in response to a recommendation in Lord Carter's Review on the efficient and sustainable use of custody (essentially to curb prison overcrowding).

The provisions were implemented alongside another accepted Carter recommendation to reserve custody for the most serious offenders for which provision was also made in the 2008 Act.

This was achieved by means of an amendment to the Bail Act 1976 (Section 3AB) to provide a pre-condition that electronic monitoring can only be imposed as a condition of bail where the judge would otherwise have remanded an individual into custody.

Neither the provisions of the 2008 Act referred to above nor the Bail Act 1976 extend to Northern Ireland. Here, electronic monitoring is available as a condition of court bail without pre-condition as to its application, not just to those who might otherwise have been remanded into custody.

In this sense it is no different to court bail with a curfew condition (without an electronic monitoring requirement) where freedom of movement is also restricted by the court during curfew hours.

In neither scenario does the time spent on bail count as time served for sentence calculation purposes under the Treatment of Offenders Act (Northern Ireland) 1968, which does not involve a court hearing.

Any proposals to replicate the different arrangements in England and Wales for time remanded on bail to count towards time served would require significant reforms to both electronic monitoring and sentencing arrangements in Northern Ireland.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the low conviction rate resulting from the Human Trafficking and Exploitation (Criminal Justice and Support for Victims) Act (Northern Ireland) 2015.

Mrs Long: Cases taken under the Human Trafficking and Exploitation (Criminal Justice and Support for Victims) Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 are extremely complex, and securing a conviction is challenging. The nine prosecutions and four convictions under the Human Trafficking legislation over the last three years underlines this. In cases where it is not possible to secure prosecutions for trafficking, other offences are considered.

A number of investigations each year relate to potential victims who are declaring historic modern slavery or human trafficking which occurred in other countries. While these investigations are taken forward as far as possible, they may be less likely to lead to prosecutions and convictions due to the length of time which has elapsed, the challenges of investigations relating to conflict zones, or through the lack of evidence, such as a named offender.

The PSNI has over recent years enhanced its capacity to tackle these crimes and will, along with other law enforcement agencies, continue to pursue offenders using all available tools.

I am currently consulting on a Modern Slavery Strategy for 2021/22, which reaffirms my commitment to help equip Northern Ireland to eradicate modern slavery.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice under what circumstances staff in her Department cannot work from home.

(AQW 9144/17-22)

Mrs Long: Staff in the Department of Justice are unable to work from home if their role cannot be performed remotely. That comprises a range of Departmental functions including care of individuals in custody, operation of courts and other support services such as premises functions. Risk assessments have been carried out across all Departmental premises to ensure that where staff need to attend the workplace, it is safe to do so.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Justice whether she plans to introduce legislation making pet theft a specific offence in Northern Ireland.

Mrs Long: The theft of domestic pets is not specifically legislated for but such thefts can be prosecuted under the Theft Act (NI) 1969, in which it is an offence to appropriate property belonging to another with the intention of permanently depriving the other of it.

The offence carries a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment and / or an unlimited fine on indictment for the most serious offences (sentencing for theft of property reflects the value of the property stolen); or 12 months imprisonment or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (£5000) on summary conviction (the offence is triable summarily at the option of the prosecutor if the defendant agrees).

It is also an offence to sell stolen goods under the Act, which would apply to the sale of stolen pets online, the maximum penalty for which is a sentence of 14 years imprisonment and / or an unlimited fine on indictment; or 12 months imprisonment or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (£5000) on summary conviction.

I am aware that Dogs Trust and other pet welfare groups have been lobbying for dog theft to be recognised as a more serious category offence within England and Wales. The Trust has sought the inclusion of dog theft within animal welfare law (the Animal Welfare Act 2006) as current sentencing makes no allowance for the sentient nature of the animal and or distress/harm caused to the pet or its owner.

Any proposal for a similar change to the equivalent Northern Ireland legislation – the Welfare of Animals (Northern Ireland) Act 2011 - which carries a penalty of 5 years imprisonment and / or an unlimited fine on indictment; or 12 months imprisonment and / or a fine of £20,000 on summary conviction for causing unnecessary suffering of an animal – would be a matter for the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to consider, given its ownership of the legislation and policy responsibility for animal welfare matters.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Justice why funding for the delivery of Hate and Signal Crime advocacy services in Northern Ireland is not subject to a public procurement competition.

Mrs Long: The Hate Crime Advocacy Service aims to provide victims of hate crime with access to specialist support which is tailored to their needs by supporting them throughout the investigative process and signposting them to other services such as legal advice, housing issues, and health and psychological support. The Service also aims to increase awareness and reporting of hate crimes.

Currently, the PSNI and DOJ jointly fund the Hate Crime Advocacy Service with four advocates based in host organisations to support victims of hate crime - Rainbow Project (LGBT), Leonard Cheshire (Disability) and the Migrant Centre (race/religion). PSNI provides funding for these Advocates with DOJ providing funding, since 2014, to Victim Support NI to co-ordinate the service.

In 2017, Community Evaluation NI (CENI) was commissioned to carry out an evaluation of the service and concluded that a new procured model should be developed to provide greater coherency in terms of joined up strategy, planning, management and delivery. PSNI, with DOJ's assistance, are currently working on a tender specification to publicly procure this service through the Department of Finance Central Procurement Directorate.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Justice how many complaints have been received by the Community Safety Division of her Department in relation to the administration of Hate and Signal Crime advocacy services in Northern Ireland, including with regard to each service level agreement operated since 2004.

Mrs Long: The Department has not received any complaints in relation to the administration of the Hate Crime Advocacy Service.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Justice how delivery partners included in existing service level agreement on Hate and Signal Crime advocacy services were identified and accredited; and who else was considered.

(AQW 9188/17-22)

Mrs Long: Currently, the PSNI and DOJ jointly fund the Hate Crime Advocacy Service with four advocates based in host organisations to support victims of hate crime - Rainbow Project (LGBT), Leonard Cheshire (Disability) and the Migrant Centre (race/religion). PSNI provides funding for these Advocates with DOJ providing funding, since 2014, to Victim Support NI to co-ordinate the service.

The current Service Level Agreement is between the Department of Justice and PSNI, as funders of the service, and Leonard Cheshire, The Migrant Centre, The Rainbow Project and Victim Support NI, as service providers.

DOJ identified the need for a Hate Crime Co-ordinator in 2014 to fulfil commitments in the Community Safety Strategy and a commitment by the then Minister of Justice to consider investment in the advocacy services.

DOJ currently funds the Advocacy co-ordination role through Victim Support NI. Victim Support Northern Ireland is funded by my Department to provide a range of services to victims and witnesses to ensure that all victims and witnesses of crime have access to emotional support, practical help, advocacy, assistance with claiming Criminal Injuries Compensation, court support and help to make a victim personal statement.

I am unable to provide information on the appointment of the Hate Crime Advocates in host organisations funded by the PSNI as that is an operational issue for the Chief Constable and I wish to respect the operational independence of the PSNI.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice how many companies operating in Northern Ireland are required to produce modern slavery statements under section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

(AQW 9198/17-22)

Mrs Long: Section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015, which was extended to Northern Ireland requires any commercial organisation carrying out business in the UK and with a total turnover of £36M or more, to produce an annual statement on the steps they are taking to prevent modern slavery in their supply chains and own organisation.

According to NISRA, there are 345 commercial organisations operating in Northern Ireland that fall within the section 54 definition.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice (i) whether she can give further details of the scoping exercise her Department will be undertaking regarding the possibility of extending support to victims of human trafficking beyond the point at which they exit the National Referral Mechanism; (ii) which stakeholders will be consulted in this process; and (iii) when she expects to publish the results of that exercise.

Mrs Long: In responding to the Modern Slavery motion in the Assembly on 8th October I advised that the draft 2021/22 Modern Slavery Strategy signals my intention to scope extended support arrangements within Northern Ireland. The 12 week public consultation on this draft strategy was launched on 16 October. Subject to the outcome of that consultation, the Strategy will be formally launched before the end of March 2021 and work to scope extended support arrangements will commence in April 2021. The scoping exercise is likely to consider any relevant recent research on the issue, developments and best practice here and in other jurisdictions.

While the work has yet to be scoped I would anticipate that, as a minimum, the current support providers, Belfast and Lisburn Women's Aid and Migrant Help will be engaged, as well as the various statutory, community and voluntary sector organisations represented on the department's Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Stakeholder Group.

It is not possible at this point to provide a definitive timescale for completing the scoping exercise. An update on progress will be provided as part of the annual progress reports on the delivery of the Modern Slavery Strategy.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice whether the Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking National Targeting Centre will consider Northern Ireland in its remit; and how it will do so.

Mrs Long: The Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking National Targeting Centre will consider Northern Ireland in its remit.

The Targeting Centre will draw on intelligence, data and information 'upstream' to identify opportunities for intelligence development and tasking; coordinating cross force collaboration. This will involve engagement with all 43 National Police Chiefs' Council (NPCC) forces in England and Wales, PSNI and Police Scotland through the Regional Organised Crime Unit (ROCU) network, along with key national law enforcement agencies that conduct Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking investigations.

The PSNI has enhanced its capacity to tackle Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking over recent years. It has established a dedicated team with a high level of specialism and is also continuing to enhance capability across the service. The PSNI will, along with other law enforcement agencies, continue to pursue offenders, using all the tools available to them.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Justice, following the Executive announcement that those who work from home should work from home, whether all officials and staff members in her Department, who can work from home, are working from home.

Mrs Long: All staff within the Department of Justice have been advised that they should work from home where that is possible. Risk assessments have been carried out across all Departmental premises to ensure that where staff need to attend the workplace, it is safe to do so.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice (i) when the recommendations of the Review of Civil and Family Justice in Northern Ireland will be implemented; and (ii) when the independent chair of the Family Justice Board will be appointed.
(AQW 9251/17-22)

Mrs Long:

i) The key recommendations from the Review of Civil and Family Justice are being considered as part of an evolving programme of civil and family modernisation.

Responding to the large number of wide-ranging recommendations from the Review is not for the Department of Justice alone. Many are matters for the judiciary, the legal profession and other Departments. Others have significant financial, operational or cross-cutting implications.

Good progress has been made in a number of areas, including the additional protections for vulnerable court users being introduced through the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill, the development of a pilot to help address unnecessary delay in public family law proceedings by allowing the appointment of experts in without prior approval and work on a joint action plan with the Department of Health to improve outcomes for parties to private family proceedings.

ii) I intend to continue to build on this good start including considering recommendations on the establishment of the Family Justice Board. In making decisions, I will want to consider all options and learn from the experience of other jurisdictions. I have noted, for example, that the independent Chair of the Family Justice Board in England and Wales has been replaced by joint Ministerial Chairs from the Department of Education and Ministry of Justice. I will wish to learn from the experience that has driven that change in approach before reaching any decisions.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice what risk assessments have been undertaken in respect of moves from prisons to Larne House short-term holding facility.
(AQW 9260/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Prison Service plays no part in the movement of individuals to Larne House so therefore does not undertake risk assessments on those who are moved there. Such assessments are a matter for the Home Office.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice where prisoners will be relocated in the event of a COVID-19 outbreak at Larne House short-term holding facility.
(AQW 9261/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Prison Service plays no part in the movement of individuals to or from Larne House nor has it any responsibility for that facility. The relocation of prisoners in the event of a COVID-19 would be a matter for the Home Office and its contracted service provider.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice whether her Department will produce a modern slavery statement, following the publication of the UK Government Modern Slavery Statement.

Mrs Long: I welcome the publication of the UK Government Modern Slavery Statement which covers ministerial departments, HMRC, non-ministerial public bodies and executive agencies where spend is reported centrally. It does not cover devolved authorities in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

You will be aware that I secured Executive approval earlier this month to work with other relevant departments, to scope the impact for businesses in Northern Ireland following the UK Government's response to its 2019 consultation on potential options for strengthening section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015. This includes engagement with Northern Ireland businesses to ensure they are aware of the changes and that we remain in step with this important development.

In terms of ongoing good practice, my Department has been working with Department of Finance procurement specialists to promote and embed due diligence and best practice in public procurement. This has included the incorporation of Human Rights, Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking clauses in many new and existing contracts, initially for NI Prisons, Justice and PSNI, regardless of the budget.

Over the past 18 months, officials have sourced and delivered bespoke training for public sector procurement specialists, both to raise awareness of the risks in the supply chain and to engage and educate them in due diligence in terms of transparency.

I want to ensure that we continue to build on the good practice that is already in place, it is my priority to conduct the scoping work signalled in relation to engaging with businesses and public sector bodies. You will also be aware that my department is also consulting on the draft Modern Slavery Strategy for 2021/22, and this includes a report on the progress made to implement the previous year's objectives.

My officials will continue to work closely with their UK Government counterparts to remain in step on this very important area of work, which when completed, will place us in a better position to develop and publish a Modern Slavery Statement for the Department of Justice.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister of Justice to detail a timeline for the conclusion of the review into strangulation offences.
(AQW 9371/17-22)

Mrs Long: My officials are currently carrying out a review of the legislation around strangulation, including a strand which I have prioritised on the issue of consent to serious harm for sexual gratification not being a defence. I plan to launch a focussed consultation on that issue shortly with a view to early recommendations. The wider review of strangulation legislation is due to conclude early in the New Year with a further public consultation to follow.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister of Justice how much funding her Department has spent on the development and running of problem-solving justice initiatives in each of the last 3 financial years, including spend to date and total projected spend for the 2020/21 financial year.

(AQW 9372/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Department of Justice (DoJ), in partnership other government departments and agencies and the voluntary and community sector, has developed a portfolio of Problem Solving Justice pilot initiatives, each at a different stage of development and implementation.

The funding my Department has spent on developing and running problem-solving justice initiatives in each of the last 3 financial years, including spend to date and total projected spend for the 2020/21 financial year, are shown below.

Initiative	2018-19 £k	2019-20 £k	2020-21
			Spend to date £k	Total projected spend £k
Support Hubs	11	22	6	30
Motorcycle Awareness Programme	0	33	2	40
Enhanced Combination Orders	288	979	536	1,214
Substance Misuse Court	364	464	221	416
Domestic Abuse Behavioural Change Programme (Health Trust based)	197	261	188	376
Domestic Abuse Behavioural Change Programme (Court based)	112	0	0	0
Family Drug and Alcohol Court	17	0	0	0
Mental Health Court	8	0	20	40
Total	997	1,759	973	2,116

Notes:

- 1 Total projected spend for 2020-21 represents the most up to date forecast spend. This will continue to be monitored as the financial year progresses.
- 2 Some Substance Misuse Court costs were incurred by the Public Prosecution Service, a Non Ministerial Department.
- 3 The above costs for the Family Drug and Alcohol Court represent funding provided by the Department of Justice. The Family Drug and Alcohol Court was funded in the main by the Department of Health.
- 4 The Motorcycle Awareness Programme also received funding from other sources.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice how many operations the Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority has conducted in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years.

(AQW 9397/17-22)

Mrs Long: In Northern Ireland the Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority (GLAA) can investigate organisations or employers using vulnerable or exploited workers, investigate reports of mistreatment of workers, labour providers operating without a licence or a business using an unlicensed Gangmaster. The GLAA has powers to establish whether the agencies required to hold a licence are compliant, and the criminal investigation of any agency that does not hold a licence.

The table below identifies the number of cases the GLAA has undertaken each type, by year.

Year	Enforcement	Compliance
2016	4	1
2017	3	4
2018	9	10
2019	3	4
2020 (up to 27/10/20)	0	2

The figures for the number of enforcement or compliance cases undertaken each year do not reflect the length of time each case takes to conclude. The statistics provided are focused on those investigations/inspections led by the GLAA and therefore do not include cases where the PSNI undertakes an investigation into forced labour and GLAA assistance was provided.

The GLAA is frequently involved in campaigns with other enforcement bodies e.g. in proactive visits to target particular activities. This includes an annual cross-UK exercise with the police and other bodies, as part of the EU-wide Europol led intensification week of action each year on forced labour. This year this covered 5 days of action, and visits to 15 separate companies.

In Northern Ireland the GLAA is also involved in a the Driver & Vehicle Agency NI / GLAA / customs multi-agency operation, which is led by the each organisation in rotation, and involves proactive inspection of illegal taxis and busy transport routes in food production areas. The GLAA leads three to four of these exercises each year.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Justice to outline how the average timeframe of a case entering the Northern Ireland Criminal Justice System to a prosecution compares with other regions of the United Kingdom.

Mrs Long: In Northern Ireland, in 2019/20, the median time taken for a case to be dealt with, at all courts, was 149 days. This is a decrease of 10.8% from the previous year (167 days) and is the second lowest figure recorded in the last five years.

Directly comparable figures are not available for England and Wales, or Scotland. However, figures published by the Ministry of Justice indicate that the median time taken for a case to be dealt with in England and Wales in 2019 was 164 days, up from 161 days in 2018, albeit that these are based on slightly different parameters than the figures measured in relation to similar figures for Northern Ireland.

The Scottish Government publishes data on the percentage of cases that had completed in 26 weeks. The most recent published annual figures relate to 2018, when 68% of cases were recorded as having completed within 26 weeks.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister of Justice to outline the implications for Northern Ireland should the Counter Terrorism and Sentencing Bill not be adopted.
(AQO 991/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Counter Terrorism and Sentencing Bill proposes to introduce retrospective amendments to the release arrangements for currently serving prisoners where the sentencing court has determined there is a terrorist connection. This will remove the automatic requirement to release at the end of a specified custodial period for a small number of existing prisoners; introduce a minimum two-thirds of time served in custody; and introduce a requirement for Parole Board consideration before release.

In addition, the Bill will also introduce prospective amendments to sentencing and release arrangements for individuals convicted of terrorist related offences committed after the date of commencement of the Bill into law and amendments to provisions aimed at preventative action and investigation of terrorist offending.

Following discussions with myself, the Lord Chancellor has agreed the proposed introduction of mandatory polygraph testing as a licence condition for all terrorist related offenders is not required as the current legislative framework in Northern Ireland provides discretion for additional licence conditions to be imposed on any cadre of offender.

Legislation on terrorism is an excepted matter for which the UK Government has responsibility. However for some of the provisions within this legislation to take effect it would be necessary for amendments to be made to legislation for which the Northern Ireland Assembly has responsibility.

Following extensive engagement with the UK Government at both Ministerial and official level, and separately with Executive colleagues, I have recently written to the Lord Chancellor confirming that there is not sufficient consensus within the Executive to table either a limited or full legislative consent motion to enable the relevant provisions to become operational in this jurisdiction. In accordance with Assembly Standing Order 42A, I have also laid a memorandum to the Assembly explaining why I unable to table a legislative consent motion in this matter.

It is now a matter for the UK Government to determine if it will proceed in the absence of legislative consent and impose all the provisions on this jurisdiction, or remove those requiring consent from applying to Northern Ireland.

Should the provisions not be applied, I am confident that the current sentencing and release framework in Northern Ireland provides a robust and appropriate platform to manage the risk posed by terrorist offenders. The current sentencing framework is predicated on risk assessment and public protection. The parole commissioners are responsible for determining if dangerous offenders may be released early on licence, and if applicable, to recommend appropriate licence conditions. And finally, all individuals sentenced to 12 months or more are subject to a period of mandatory post release supervision, and may be recalled to prison custody at any time should their risk of harm to the public increase.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Justice how she will resolve the delay on prisoners applying for parole due to not being able to complete Accompanied and Unaccompanied Temporary Release due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Mrs Long: Ensuring the safe operation of custodial environments is a top priority for my Department. In response to COVID-19 the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) implemented an extensive range of precautionary measures in March of this year. This included the suspension of all forms of temporary release.

Whilst the suspension of Pre Release Testing does not delay an application for consideration by the Parole Commissioners, nonetheless NIPS are mindful of the impact it will have on the extent of evidence that can be placed before the Parole Commissioners for consideration. As a consequence NIPS recognise the need to consider ways to facilitate the introduction of phased Pre Release Testing for those prisoners who are eligible.

At the end of July plans for NIPS to commence the reintroduction of phased Pre Release Testing were announced. Plans have initially focused on the reopening of two Working Out Units for some prisoners on the latter stages of the Pre Release Testing Scheme. On this basis Murray House was reopened on 31 August and Burren House on 10 September.

Like other areas of society NIPS is vigilant to the changes in how the virus is being transmitted in society.

NIPS will continue to keep its approach to operational recovery planning, including Accompanied and Unaccompanied Temporary Release, under review. This has been the case throughout the COVID-19 period when NIPS has regularly reviewed the measures in place to ensure that they remain necessary and proportionate. In doing this, NIPS must continue to protect the health and wellbeing of both the prison population and prison staff.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Justice to outline the work being carried out with youth services, particularly Include Youth, around Looked After children to prevent them entering the criminal justice system.

Mrs Long: As Minister of Justice, I have often stated my express desire to prevent children, whether looked after or not, coming into the criminal justice system. Where this is not possible I am keen that those young people on the cusp of the criminal justice system are exited at the earliest possible stage with the best possible support. That is why I encourage the many innovative initiatives that have been developed across the Department of Justice, working as it does, with a range of stakeholders, including organisations such as Include Youth.

My Department has been particularly focused on providing earlier community support for children and their families to prevent offending. We have also sought to make greater use of diversion to reduce the need for formal prosecution through court, while improving communication to enable better informed decision making. The success of this approach has seen a fall of over 50% in the number of young people, including Looked After Children, reaching the formal court setting – a success that we will want to build upon going forward!

Through the Youth Champions Forum, the Police Service has also invited representatives from a range of external organisations engaged in the interests of children and young people, especially those who are on the periphery of the Criminal Justice System, as well as Looked After Children (LAC), to discuss policing with children and young people.

PSNI also signposts Looked After Children to courses, programmes, therapies which will assist with a variety of issues including addiction, mental health concerns, learning for life and work.

I appreciate that primary responsibility for Looked After Children rests with the Minister of Health whose Department is working to finalise a draft Strategy specific to Looked After Children and care-experienced young people.

One of the actions identified within that draft Strategy, however, is a commitment for the Departments of Justice and Health to work together to establish the new Regional Joint Care and Justice Campus; this will be supported by wider reform in children's residential care, foster care, community youth justice and enhanced family support.

Finally, in order to underpin interventions with young people both in the community and in care the Youth Justice Agency has developed a Model of Practice that places "Children First", advocating a Trauma Informed approach and taking cognisance of the impact of Adverse Childhood Experiences. Include Youth has assisted the Agency with this process, helping and advising on how to involve young people in the design of the model. This approach will serve to further prevent Looked after Children entering the criminal justice system.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Justice what action her Department is taking to address the issue of rural crime.

Mrs Long: Rural crime is a cross-cutting issue which requires partnership working in the areas of prevention, protection and enforcement. This work is taken forward at a strategic level through the Rural Crime Partnership (RCP).

Chaired by the Department of Justice, the RCP consists of representatives from the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI); Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs; the Ulster Farmers' Union; NFU Mutual; Federation of Small Businesses; Young Farmers' Club of Ulster and the Policing and Community Safety Partnerships (PCSPs).

The primary focus of the RCP is to develop a collaborative response to crime which is specific to rural areas i.e. agricultural crime. Its aims are to promote effective techniques for successfully engaging rural communities to enable them to become more self-resilient in preventing and deterring crime and, through the RCP network of organisations, assist in reducing crime in rural communities.

At a local level, PCSPs, which are funded by my Department, play a key role in building confidence locally, through engagement and consultation with communities, including rural areas, on the issues that matter to them.

The work of the RCP and PCSPs include a range of initiatives, for example encouraging trailer and farm machinery marking and fitting of tracker security devices for quad bikes; promotion of the Farm Watch Scheme which aims to reduce crime and the fear of crime in farming and rural communities; No Cold Calling; Neighbourhood Watch; and Text Alert schemes providing up-to-date information on suspicious behaviours to be aware of.

In the absence of events due to COVID-19, the Partnership has focussed its efforts on the promotion of key crime prevention messages using a variety of media platforms including delivery of social media campaigns to raise awareness of general farm security, vehicle, machinery and livestock theft, and to encourage the reporting of crime or suspicious activity to the PSNI or Crimestoppers.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister of Justice to outline any plans she has to allocate additional funding to the Police Ombudsman's Office to address the backlog of legacy cases.
(AQO 989/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Office of the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland has submitted a business case for additional funding for historical investigations. The Department is currently engaging with OPONI on this business case.

Legacy continues to put pressures on the justice system which it is not resourced to meet. I am committed to working with my Executive Colleagues to secure adequate resources to deal with outstanding historical investigations. In the interim, funding for OPONI legacy cases will continue to be considered as part of the normal budget process.

Members will be aware there is currently a lack of detail available on the UK Government's proposed future arrangements for dealing with legacy investigations or the timescale within which any new arrangements might be put in place. The absence of clarity on what the landscape for dealing with the legacy of the past will look like makes it challenging for my Department to provide a proper assessment of what would represent good value for money in terms of resourcing existing bodies within the justice system, including OPONI, to deal with outstanding investigations and whether it is, indeed, practical to expect these bodies to be able to meet the needs of families and deliver Article 2 compliant investigations.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the planned provisions in the Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill relating to human trafficking and modern slavery.

Mrs Long: I plan to make two minor amendments to the Human Trafficking and Exploitation (Criminal Justice and Support for Victims) Act (Northern Ireland) 2015, through the Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill.

The first amendment will remove the statutory requirement to publish an annual strategy, moving instead to a three year strategy; and the second will extend the provision of assistance and support to potential victims of slavery, servitude, and forced or compulsory labour.

The consultation on the proposed amendments closed on 1 September, with respondents supportive of both.

The Justice Committee noted the results of the consultation on 8 October, and on 23 October I wrote to advise Executive colleagues that I plan to include both amendments in the forthcoming Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill.

Mr Lynch asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the current procedures for the remand of children into custody.
(AQO 992/17-22)

Mrs Long: The application of current procedures relating to the remand of children into custody at Woodlands Juvenile Justice Centre is a matter for the Judiciary who, as you know, are an independent body. The Youth Justice Agency – an Executive Agency of the Department of Justice – has no control over how, or how many, children are admitted to Woodlands on remand.

I am aware, however, that issues have previously been raised and recommendations made by a number of reporting bodies to try and address the significant number of children who are admitted to custody on remand but who do not, ultimately, serve a custodial sentence. Work is therefore underway to introduce a number of proposed changes to bail and remand legislation for children which will be included in the Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, which I plan to introduce in the New Year.

These proposals aim to strengthen the right to bail for children, and introduce specific conditions which must be met before a child can be remanded into custody, with a view to ensuring that custody is used as a last resort, in line with our international obligations.

Department for the Economy

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the total cost to Northern Ireland of the establishment of the South Eastern Regional College Professional Skills Centre in Dublin; and (ii) how much of the cost has been paid by the Dublin government.

(AQW 4569/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy):

- (i) South Eastern Regional College (SERC) incurred approximately £30k of set-up costs in the establishment of the Dublin Professional Skills Centre.
- (ii) No costs were paid by the Dublin government.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy when (i) AQW 7329/17-22; and (ii) AQW 7074/17-22 will be answered.
(AQW 8388/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: AQW 7074 was responded to on 14/10/2020 and AQW 7329 was responded to on 16/10/2020.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of (i) the need for support to travel agents; and (ii) the contribution that the travel sector makes to maintaining key air routes to Northern Ireland.

(AQW 8412/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Support for Travel Agents

I refer to my response to AQW 8411/17-22, raised by Mr Dickson on behalf of this industry.

Contribution of the Travel Agency sector to maintaining key air routes to Northern Ireland

There is no available statistical data to determine the contribution that business and travel, generated through local travel agencies, makes to maintaining key routes to Northern Ireland, or indeed to the local economy.

However, it is widely accepted that the travel agency business model in Northern Ireland is based on marketing and selling travel packages and services to destinations throughout the world.

Indeed, as stated in my previous response, (AQW 8411/17-22), the local travel industry has been impacted particularly hard as a result of the restrictions and reduction in foreign travel.

This is due to the fact that we have been and are still very much in the midst of a public health crisis, and all of the decisions that have been made in relation to foreign travel for Northern Ireland residents have been deemed necessary by the NI Executive, based on the very latest health advice and scientific evidence.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the number of requests sent by her Department to HMRC or the Treasury, seeking access to tax data in order to assist those excluded from business support schemes.

Mrs Dodds: The Department of Finance would normally be the lead department in any engagement with HM Treasury. That said, my Department has had many previous interactions with HMRC on accessing the data they hold, including liaison over many years in the case of the devolution of Corporation Tax, Trade Data associated with EU Exit and, more recently, my Department has had interactions with HMRC to help operationalise the Micro Business Hardship Scheme. However, we have been unable to gain permission to access taxpayer data, which is guarded zealously and for good reason.

I recognise that not all businesses and individuals have been able to avail of UK-wide support schemes. While my Department is currently working on schemes to assist these groups, I have previously raised with the Executive that there would be challenges in establishing a local scheme for those excluded as access to the national database would be required by HMRC.

It is also worth noting that many of those making representations about being excluded from business support schemes are the newly self-employed, a group that were, according to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, outside the SEISS Scheme because of a lack of tax data held by HMRC on those not yet within the self-assessment system.

To this end, HMRC has recently confirmed that it does not have any short term means to verify individuals who are newly self-employed.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what actions she will take in response to the Northern Ireland Audit Office report into the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme, which identifies a significant risk that some investors may be achieving a higher financial return than was required to encourage the adoption of the various supported technologies.

Mrs Dodds: Of the six recommendations in the report, three are specifically for my Department, including a recommendation to carry out a review of the levels of support available and rates of return for renewable electricity generators. The Department has accepted these recommendations and will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the scope of her Department's post-project evaluation exercise of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme; (ii) when the evaluation will be published; and (iii) whether it will include any independent scrutiny or evaluation of her Department's role in certain issues that have been identified with the scheme.

Mrs Dodds: An evaluation of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO) is being completed by independent consultants. It will report on issues including the achievement of scheme objectives; cost to consumers; benefits to consumers and citizens, and benefits to generators.

I cannot provide a precise publication date at this stage as the work is still ongoing.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will recommend that soft play areas are added to the list of businesses to be closed during the circuit breaker lockdown.

(AQW 8981/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: This is not within the remit of My Department.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of how the new Job Support Scheme will impact (i) the hospitality industry; and (ii) all other sectors affected by the recently announced Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) Regulations.

(AQW 9112/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Member will be aware that since this question was tabled the UK Government has extended the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme to pay 80% of wages until December and has enhanced the Self Employment Income Support Scheme grant to cover 80% of average trading profits for the month of November. These are welcome developments and much more in tune with what the NI Executive, and many others, have been calling for.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy what process or mechanism exists within her Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals.

Mrs Dodds: Information relating to all Ministerial correspondence and invitations are retained in the formal NICS electronic records management system known as HPRM, in line with NICS Records Management policy and GDPR obligations.

Details of all of the Minister's meetings, including those also attended by the Special Advisor, with external organisations and individuals are also collated and provided to the Department of Finance for publication quarterly. The Department also holds a record of meetings attended solely by the Special Adviser.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the review for potential renewed viable air routes, referred to within New Decade, New Approach.

(AQW 9247/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The New Decade New Approach document, published in January 2020, stated the following under Annex B: Irish Government Commitments;

"The Irish Government...intends to take forward a review of the potential for Government support to renewed viable air routes from Cork to Belfast and Dublin to Derry, working with the UK Government and Northern Ireland Executive to deliver improved connections as a priority."

This review is being led by officials in the Department of Transport in Dublin. My Department have had some initial discussions with them on these potential routes.

Whilst I would welcome the re-establishment of these air routes, civil aviation remains a reserved matter with the Department for Transport in London. My officials will, however, continue to engage with colleagues as appropriate, to help facilitate their development.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what action her Department is taking to ensure that the Health and Safety Executive for Northern Ireland is adequately resourced to undertake its enforcement role in regards to COVID-19 mitigation measures.

Mrs Dodds: Myself and my officials have been in close contact with HSENI since the onset of COVID-19. HSENI continues to play a very important role in ensuring appropriate COVID-19 mitigations have been implemented in the businesses it has enforcement responsibility for. Their staff work closely with colleagues from the Public Health Agency who are the lead organisation when dealing with a community transmissible viral pandemic such as Coronavirus.

However, HSENI is facing resourcing challenges but have assured me, that despite these pressures, they are prioritising COVID-19 work and are responding to concerns and complaints that have been raised with them.

I will of course carefully consider any proposals HSENI bring forward for additional resourcing. It is essential that everyone in the workplace plays their part, whether as a manager or employee, to adhere to the public health guidelines and in doing so prevent the spread of this disease in their place of work. If this is not happening, then I would ask employees to raise any concerns directly with HSENI or their local district councils if their concerns relate to office, retail or leisure activities.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy how her Department is assisting students studying remotely, specifically in terms of broadband connection.

(AQW 9292/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department provides a non-repayable maintenance grant to students from lower income households, which can be used to purchase the necessary IT equipment to participate in, and complete, their course remotely.

Northern Ireland has the highest fibre coverage of any region within the UK. Many students are currently able to access superfast broadband services. I recognise, however, that the Covid-19 crisis has emphasised the greater challenges faced by those with poor broadband coverage.

My Department has developed Project Stratum, a major telecoms project which aims to utilise funding of £165m to increase access to 30 Mbps broadband services or greater for those, primarily rural, premises currently unable to access such services. The project's target intervention area consists of just under 79,000 premises and some 97% are rural, defined as NISRA Band H – settlements of fewer than 1,000 and open countryside. Contract award for Project Stratum is anticipated by mid-November, with initial deployment activities expected to commence shortly thereafter.

There are a number of other UK Government broadband schemes operating in Northern Ireland and available to citizens and businesses including: Universal Service Obligation; and Rural Gigabit Connectivity Scheme.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the financial support available to cross border workers who are resident in Northern Ireland and working in the Republic of Ireland; and (ii) the discussions she has had with the Irish Government on supporting these workers during level 5 restrictions in the Republic of Ireland.

(AQW 9293/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Financial Support for cross border workers

For those people who are resident in Northern Ireland but who are actively employed in the Republic of Ireland, a need has not been identified for any additional financial support at this time.

Discussions with the Irish Government

Under level 5 restrictions in the Republic of Ireland, residents of Northern Ireland are still permitted to travel to work if their place of employment is in the Republic of Ireland.

For those employees whose workforces have been closed as a consequence of the level 5 restrictions, the Irish Government has a range of support options available.

Information on support for employers and employees can be found on the following websites:

<https://dbei.gov.ie/en/What-We-Do/Supports-for-SMEs/COVID-19-supports/Government-supports-to-COVID-19-impacted-businesses.html>

<http://www.eurescrossborder.eu/covid-19-cross-border-workers>

For cross border workers who are temporarily laid off (furloughed workers) during this period they will remain on their employer's payroll and be paid during this time. The employer can then claim the appropriate rate from the Government Department.

If the employee has been made wholly unemployed then 'normal rules' apply i.e the claimant must claim benefit from the country where they are resident. Therefore a cross border worker from Northern Ireland who had been working in the Republic of Ireland should, as with other residents in this jurisdiction, make a claim to Universal Credit - www.universal-credit.service.gov.uk

Finally, in response to the Covid-19 pandemic, InterTradelreland, the cross-border body, has introduced an Emergency Business Solutions programme. Employers are using this programme to assess their level of risk and get support in areas such as, accessing Covid-19 government supports and finance.

In addition, firms are requesting Covid-19 related support for Health and Safety and Human Resource matters, including advice on managing furloughed staff.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will commit to including dental laboratories in any further financial support schemes she is creating for businesses who did not qualify for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. (AQW 9355/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 22nd October 2020, I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS).

The CRBSS will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

Part A

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme;

Or

Part B

- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted.

The new CRBSS will apply for the four week period of current restrictions.

Applications for Part A of this scheme opened on Wednesday 28th October, and details on Part B covering the supply chains will be published soon.

Further support for businesses was also announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer which includes improved terms for the Job Support Scheme (JSS), additional grants for the Self-Employment Scheme and improved repayment terms for the various coronavirus loan schemes. The new JSS applies to businesses who have been required to close and those facing decreased demand, such as supply chain operators.

Executive Ministers have been asked to bring forward options for additional support for those who may not qualify for these latest schemes, or who may not have been able to avail of previous opportunities.

All of the latest information on the support available can be found on the NI Business Info and UK Government Coronavirus Business Support websites.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what support she is providing to supply chain operators for airport-based retail, considering the ongoing impact of COVID-19 restrictions on travel. (AQW 9367/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 22nd October I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS).

The CRBSS will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

Part A

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS);

Or

Part B

- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted.

The new CRBSS will apply for the four week period of current restrictions.

Applications for Part A of this scheme opened on Wednesday 28th October, and details on Part B covering the supply chains will be published soon.

Further support for businesses and individuals have also been announced by the Chancellor for the Exchequer on 22nd October. This included improving the terms of the Job Support Scheme which was introduced to help employers retain their employees. It applies to businesses who have been required to close and those facing decreased demand, such as supply chain operators. Improved terms for the repayment of the various coronavirus loan schemes have also been introduced.

Executive Ministers have been asked to bring forward options for additional support for those who may not qualify for these latest schemes, or who may not have been able to avail of previous opportunities.

All of the latest information on the support available can be found on the NI Business Info and UK Government Coronavirus Business Support websites.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy whether she intends to bring forward a grant scheme to assist Company Directors in Personal Service Contracts experiencing a downturn in trade as a result of COVID-19 public health restrictions. (AQW 9410/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme has been introduced to provide financial support to businesses which have been required to close or severely limit operations at their premises under the recent Health Protection Regulations that have been put in place by the NI Executive.

On 22nd October, I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS).

The CRBSS will support businesses which meet the following criteria:

Part A

- The business is restricted within the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 but is not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme;

Or

Part B

- The business is within the supply chain of businesses restricted by the Regulations and as a result has been significantly impacted.

The new CRBSS will apply for the four week period of current restrictions.

Applications for Part A of this scheme opened on Wednesday 28th October, and details on Part B covering the supply chains will be published soon.

In addition, businesses who do not occupy a commercial premises and experiencing a significant decline in turnover can apply for a grant of £300 per week.

The Chancellor for the Exchequer has also announced a number of additional support measures, to help businesses and individuals during a time when it is likely that we will still be dealing with the coronavirus pandemic.

These measures include improved terms for the Job Support Scheme, additional grants for the Self-Employment Scheme and improved repayment terms for the various coronavirus loan schemes.

Executive Ministers have been asked to bring forward options for additional support for those who may not qualify for these latest schemes, or who may not have been able to avail of previous opportunities.

All of the latest information on the support available can be found on the NI Business Info and UK Government Coronavirus Business Support websites.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will investigate temporary changes to employment law to allow those made redundant on the basis of the expected end of the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme on 31 October to take advantage of the extension of the scheme as announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 31 October. (AQW 9455/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My officials are actively engaging with their counterparts in the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS) to ascertain what, if any, legal changes are immediately required to employment law in Northern Ireland following the extension to the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme (CJRS) and introduction of the Job Support Scheme.

The CJRS was introduced by HMRC, which also sets the eligibility criteria. It is my understanding that, to be eligible under the extension to the scheme, employees must have been on an employer's PAYE payroll by 23:59 on 30th October 2020. Any employer making redundancies must follow the legal framework in Northern Ireland. HMRC guidance, as I understand it, advises that an employer can continue to claim for a furloughed employee who is serving a statutory notice period.

Any employer which requires information on the extension should contact HMRC directly. Details are available on its website, with further guidance from it expected to follow imminently.

I firmly believe that employers who have been able to take advantage of the Government's Job Retention Scheme, which has brought benefit to employers and employees alike, should treat staff fairly and respect employee rights. Specifically, in this situation, those relating to redundancy consultation, notice period and redundancy pay.

Individuals who believe their employment rights or terms and conditions of employment have been breached (including any potential unlawful deduction of wages) should consider contacting the Labour Relations Agency Workplace Information Service on 03300 555 300 for confidential and impartial information.

Finally, the Law Centre NI continues to provide free, independent, specialist legal advice (subject to capacity) on employment rights. Its advice line can be contacted on 028 9024 4401, or by email: employmentadvice@lawcentreni.org.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission, pursuant to AQW 7540/17-22, once the change of policy indicated in that reply was decided upon, why a revised answer to AQW 2293/17-22 was not issued.

(AQW 9310/17-22)

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): Written Questions are answered on the basis of an assessment of the relevant information in existence at the time. It is not possible or practical to continuously monitor questions and update answers for changes in the available information or to reflect future developments.

Written Answers to Questions

The Executive Office

Ms Anderson asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the funding contributions from the Executive Office to COVID-19 Community Response in each of the Urban Village Areas.
(AQW 4286/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): Towards the end of the 2019/20 financial year, just over £34,000 was reallocated by Urban Village projects to address immediate community needs arising from the Covid-19 public health emergency. This was in response to requests from community organisations. Groups and organisations in Urban Village areas adapted with energy and speed to reach out to help and protect the most vulnerable in communities, while continuing to fulfil Urban Village project aims.

Details of Covid-19 immediate response reallocations by Urban Village projects in 2019/20, by Urban Village area, are as follows:

Urban Village Area	COVID-19 immediate response reallocations in 2019/20 (£)
Colin	1,172
Derry / Londonderry	8,378
EastSide	5,405
North Belfast	12,698
South Belfast	6,400
Total	34,053

These resources helped support a range of activities, including, educational projects and those relating to health and well-being, shifting to online resources for those isolating or cut off from school and community activities; provision of PPE for volunteers and staff to continue community outreach and support; provision of meals, food parcels and other essential supplies for the most vulnerable across these areas.

The Executive's Urban Villages Initiative will continue to work with groups to help support their delivery of community-led activity within the Covid-19 context and also help communities across these areas to tackle longer term social, economic and health and wellbeing issues exacerbated by Covid-19. Funding of c£1.25m has been allocated across the five Urban Village areas in 2020/21 for community led projects. In addition, the Urban Villages Initiative in partnership with Business in the Community, are providing a further £50,000 to bring forward a new cross-cutting project "Keeping Healthy, Staying Safe" which builds on the success of the Healthy Summers 2019 initiative and will run from October 2020 to March 2021. These resources will help address the impact of social isolation; support children; young people and older residents; and deliver innovative approaches to improving and sustaining community cohesion.

Mr Blair asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline (i) when the Strategic Investment Board last completed an analysis of residual waste infrastructure requirements; (ii) the timeframe which such a review covered; and (iii) whether the Strategic Investment Board has any plans to review these assessments in light of (a) the passage of time; and (ii) the advancement in recycling rates and relevant technology since any reports were authored.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The last analysis of Municipal Solid Waste (MSW) waste arisings / infrastructure requirements was carried out over the period Oct 18 – Dec 19.

The last Review covered a timeframe 2019 – 2035, in line with the timescales in the EU Circular Economy Package, which sets a range of targets for MSW out to 2035, including specific recycling targets for 2025, 2030 and 2035 and a cap on waste to landfill of 10% by 2035.

In recognition of the global Corona virus pandemic SIB have already had discussions with DAERA officials about updating the Report to factor in the impacts of the Pandemic. SIB have agreed with DAERA officials that we will not undertake any further analysis until early to mid 2021. There would be low confidence limits in any analysis produced before this time due to economic uncertainties associated with the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

The 2019 SIB review of MSW waste arisings factored in the most recent recycling rates for NI with verified recycling rates for NI at that time (2017/18 figures) with data taken from waste returns by all of the NI Councils. SIB recognises that there have been advancements in technology and continues to assess what role they could play in dealing with Northern Ireland's waste.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) by what process and legal authority can Ms Brenda King exercise the functions of the Attorney General; (ii) who bestowed such functions and authority on her; and (ii) by what powers were such functions and authority bestowed on her.
(AQW 4967/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Section 22 of the Justice (Northern Ireland) Act 2002 (as amended) provides the First Minister and deputy First Minister (acting jointly) with the power to appoint an Attorney General for Northern Ireland and with the power to make arrangements for the discharge of the functions of the Attorney General for Northern Ireland during any vacancy in that office.

Mr O'Toole asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when they will update the Assembly on Brexit-related legislation that the Assembly will need to pass ahead of the end of 2020.
(AQW 5201/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Executive Office has scoped the anticipated EU Exit legislative requirements from NI departments up to the end of the Transition Period. From the most recent returns, Departments have confirmed the need for 3 Assembly Bills, 8 Westminster Bills, 43 pieces of subordinate legislation to be brought before the Assembly, with a further 116 pieces of subordinate legislation that cut across devolved matters to be laid at Westminster. The volume of legislation is however fluid and likely to change following any agreements reached in negotiations and clarity of the implementation of the Protocol. The Executive will be monitoring progress of this legislative programme on a regular basis.

Individual departments will be engaging with their Assembly Committees to discuss the volume of legislation and to agree scrutiny and liaison arrangements depending on the timescale, priority and importance of the legislative change being brought forward.

Mr McGrath asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their assessment of the (i) effectiveness; and (ii) value for money of the Commission on Flags, Identity, Culture and Tradition.
(AQW 5463/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: In line with DoF guidance a business case to identify the preferred option and assess its value for money was undertaken prior to the launch of the Commission. A post project evaluation will be completed within six months of the Commission completing its work, including an analysis of expenditure and realisation of benefits detailed in the business case.

Mr Muir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQW 6085/17-22, for their assessment of the response from the Minister for Infrastructure concerning the Executive Committee (Functions) Bill.
(AQW 6137/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: We have noted the response of the Minister for Infrastructure.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for a breakdown of costs (i) already known; and (ii) anticipated, arising from the recent judicial review of the failure to introduce a victims' pension.
(AQW 6855/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill:

(i) Costs already known:

To date, costs known in relation to legal advice regarding the recent Judicial Reviews amounts to £22,288.92

(ii) Anticipated cost:

No estimate is available at this point as the applicants have not yet submitted their bill of costs. Counsel fees are also awaited.

Mr McGrath asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when they became aware that they were not going to meet the date to have a Head of Civil Service in place for the leaving of Mr Sterling.
(AQW 7720/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Significant preparatory work on the recruitment competition for Head of the Civil Service (HOCS) was undertaken during the period from January to mid-March 2020. The intention was to launch the recruitment process in April to ensure completion of this before the end of August (when the then HOCS was due to retire). The timeline was impacted by the unprecedented situation in relation to the COVID-19 pandemic. In reactivating the recruitment process at the start of June 2020, we were aware it was unlikely that we would be in a position to have David Sterling's successor appointed prior to his last day of service, but the plan was to hold final interviews on 16th September; this date had to be postponed by a week due to unforeseen circumstances.

Ms Armstrong asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the High Streets Taskforce; and when the membership of that group will be confirmed.

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: An inter-departmental group of officials is currently examining best practice in other jurisdictions, and engaging with stakeholders.

It is clear that our town and city centres face a range of economic and social challenges. Whilst the Covid-19 pandemic has undoubtedly exacerbated the situation, many of the challenges are long-standing; stemming from the financial crisis of 2009, prolonged underinvestment in infrastructure, and changing patterns of consumer behaviour.

This calls for a strategic, sustained response, with Departments and local government working in partnership to deliver a vision for sustainable town and city centres, as thriving sustainable hubs for the retail, services, hospitality and residential sectors.

Our aim is to bring a proposal to the Executive for discussion in the near future.

Ms McLaughlin asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on progress towards the redevelopment of Meenan Square in Derry.

(AQW 8869/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: TEO's Urban Villages Initiative is currently developing the business case for this major regeneration project, which includes options for a mixed-use development that will offer a range of facilities for the benefit of the community.

The project aims to reinvent the site as a shared space for fostering positive community identities; building good relations; and harnessing wider economic and social benefits, reclaiming and repurposing a dilapidated site which has for too long been a catalyst for anti-social behaviour.

The business case is being prioritised with a view to it being completed and ready for submission to the Department of Finance for approval by the end of this calendar year. In parallel, work is also ongoing to secure purchase of the site before the end of this financial year.

The site has a history of anti-social behaviour and it is important that fencing is installed immediately to mitigate this risk. In preparation for this, our delivery partner, Apex Housing Association submitted a planning application recently which will allow for fencing to be erected to secure the site immediately on purchase.

Mr G Kelly asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their assessment of the key programme outcomes to date of the Community Relations Council-administered North Belfast Strategic Good Relations Programme

(AQO 852/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The key aim of this programme is to improve relations between and within all sections of the community in North Belfast.

An independent review in 2019 highlighted the programme's positive impact on the wider community and recognised the complementarity with the wider T:BUC Strategy. The programme continues to have a high level of engagement with the local community in North Belfast, with projects directly impacting around 8,000 participants annually.

Examples of key good relations outcomes from the Programme include the North Talks Too project, which brings together representatives from Lower Oldpark, Lower Shankill and the Cliftonville area, working to support a confident and thriving community in these areas.

The North Belfast Women's Network provides an accessible resource and developmental support for women in the Greater Shankill area and beyond.

And a recent CRC shared learning event highlighted the ways in which NBSGRP contract holders have led the way in terms of innovative use of technology to continue delivery during these challenges times – including a podcast by Intercomm on shared history in North Belfast which proved very popular.

In addition, many contract holders are also involved in other good relations initiatives, for example interface barrier removal, and learning is shared across projects.

The Programme contributes to the work of the Together: Building a United Community Strategy, and contract holders work with the Community Relations Council to ensure their project outcomes align to the key priorities of the Strategy.

Ms McLaughlin asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why it took almost nine months to advertise for the position of Head of the Civil Service.

(AQO 858/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Planning for the recruitment campaign to appoint a new Head of the Civil Service began in January 2020 with the aim of advertising the position at the end of April. During February and March 2020 significant work was undertaken to develop and agree the recruitment literature, advertising and outreach; arrangements in relation to the first stage interviews; assessment by an occupational psychologist; and our specific role at the final interview stage.

We had planned to advertise in April 2020, however, there was some inevitable delay due to the significant and unprecedented challenges associated with the on-going COVID-19 situation with the recruitment being advertised in July.

Ms Kimmins asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the sectoral issues and concerns raised during ongoing stakeholder engagement in relation to Brexit.

(AQO 862/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: In our engagement on EU Exit we have met and corresponded with a range of individual businesses and sectoral representatives.

Throughout this engagement our stakeholders have stressed the importance of reaching an agreement with the EU to support our trade east west and north south, and their concern of a potential non-negotiated outcome in parallel to the continuing challenges of COVID 19.

They have also emphasised the increasingly limited amount of time they have left to prepare for the end of the Transition period and asked for urgent clarity, guidance and assurances on key issues including:

- How unfettered access for goods moving west to east will be delivered to protect their place in the internal market;
- The potential frictions that will apply to the movement of goods east to west, including SPS checks and tariffs on goods “at risk”; and
- Their ability to benefit from UK and EU FTAs to support the continued flow of trade north south and west east.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for his assessment of why there was an increase in the return of spawning salmon to our local waterways this year; and (ii) what can be done to ensure the numbers returning are maintained and enhanced.

(AQW 6421/17-22)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): A number of factors may have helped increase the numbers of returning salmon to our rivers. The juvenile recruitment of salmon fry in 2017 was excellent and those young salmon emigrating as smolts in 2019, experienced good migration conditions which may have promoted higher survival rates. There are some early indications that marine survival has also shown an increase, although it is too early to fully assess this, as the year's data is not yet complete. The on-going salmon conservation measures undertaken by my Department have also contributed. This includes ‘catch and release’ and habitat improvement works which are implemented in conjunction with angling clubs,

To maintain and enhance salmon numbers, the Department will continue to protect and conserve salmon and their habitat. It will promote and enforce catch and release for salmon where rivers are not meeting management targets. We will work with angling clubs to develop and improve habitat and fish passage in salmon rivers which will in turn support greater numbers of juvenile salmon. The Department will also continue to work with landowners, angling clubs and other Government Departments such as the Department for Infrastructure - Rivers and with the planning authorities by providing advice and guidance on any river development works which might impact on, or enhance, salmon habitat and fish passage.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what measures he has implemented to ensure that the plastic and disposable waste generated through the COVID-19 pandemic, such as masks, gloves, aprons etc., is sustainably and safely recycled.

Mr Poots: I acknowledge that the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic has seen an unprecedented increase in the use of disposable Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) items. The disposal of these items has been an issue my Department has been instrumental in developing and delivering key messages around throughout the crisis.

The vast majority of disposable PPE items cannot be recycled through conventional recycling facilities and therefore guidance from my Department has focused on the correct and safe disposal of such items, whilst also encouraging the use of reusable items, such as face coverings. The incorrect disposal of items of PPE poses a contamination risk to others, including essential workers in the waste sector who collect and sort our recycling.

Information and guidance relating to the disposal of single-use and reusable face coverings is available at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-face-coverings>.

My Department is working closely with Keep Northern Ireland Beautiful, who undertake the Northern Ireland Litter Composition Analysis, to monitor both short and long-term impacts that improper disposal of this type of PPE may have on our environment.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) whether the Mullaghglass landfill site has an odour management plan in place; and (ii) what are the long-term plans to manage the odour of this site after its expected closure in December 2021.

(AQW 7952/17-22)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The Mullaghglass landfill site does have in place an odour management plan which is based on the UK guidance for odour management at permitted facilities.
- (ii) After site closure, the landfill will be sealed by covering with a final multi-layer engineered cap, including impermeable layers, and will be under gas extraction to maximise the capture of landfill gas for renewable energy production. This will minimise the potential for any further odours. As part of the landfill closure requirements, the operator will continue to be responsible for the long term management and monitoring of landfill gas for several decades. In addition the site will continue to be regulated by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency in the post closure period.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when AQW 6603/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 8095/17-22)

Mr Poots: Please note AQW 6603/17-22 was answered on 05 October 2020.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when AQW 6708/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 8098/17-22)

Mr Poots: Please note AQW 6708/17-22 was answered on 05 October 2020.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, as part of the Clean Air Strategy, whether his Department plans to introduce a requirement for each local council to develop a walking and cycling strategy, with targets aimed at reducing the number of journeys by private car.

Mr Poots: In December 2016, the previous DAERA Minister, Michele McIlveen, gave a commitment to develop an air quality strategy. Since then, my officials have been working on developing a draft Clean Air Strategy discussion document. This work has involved close collaboration with other Departments, in particular the Department for Infrastructure.

The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for a 12 week public consultation in the coming weeks. The consultation will invite views on a wide range of matters relating to air quality and it is likely that issues relating to active travel, including walking and cycling, will be raised at this stage. Responses to the consultation will be published and it is likely the Department of Infrastructure, will have interest in comments relating to walking, cycling and active travel.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether NI will be included in the interim arrangements currently being developed by the Department for Environment, Food, and Rural Affairs to allow members of the public to submit complaints about potential breaches of environmental law from the end of the transition period.

Mr Poots: My officials are currently in discussions with Defra regarding potential interim arrangements for Northern Ireland following the end of the transition period.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 8538/17-22, to detail the (i) dates when levels of particulates or nitrogen oxide in the Derry City and Strabane Council area exceeded the daily level proportionate to complying with the annual mean objectives; (ii) extent to which they exceeded those levels; and (iii) location of those excesses.

Mr Poots: Air Quality is continually monitored across Northern Ireland. This includes monitoring pollutants such as particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide. In Northern Ireland, District Councils are responsible for reviewing the state of air quality in their district and part of this involves monitoring activities.

There are currently four automatic monitoring stations within Derry City and Strabane Council area (Londonderry Rosemount, Londonderry Dale's Corner, Strathfoyle and Strabane Springhill Park).

During 2019, all sites within Derry City and Strabane City Councils met their limit values in respect of annual mean and daily mean for particulate matter and nitrogen dioxide levels.

The data from the monitoring stations is publically available on the Air Quality NI website (www.airqualityni.co.uk/) which was redesigned earlier in the year. The data from the website is used in the first Air Quality App for Northern Ireland, which I launched on 7 May 2020. I would encourage everyone to download the new Northern Ireland Air App in order to receive the most up-to-date information on the quality of air across the province.

In addition to the App, my Department has been working on developing a Clean Air Strategy Discussion Document. The Discussion Document has now been finalised and will be launched shortly for a 12 week public consultation in the coming weeks. The consultation will invite views on a wide range of matters relating to air quality and I would welcome further engagement with Derry City and Strabane District Council at this stage to discuss issues relating to air quality within that District Council area.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the potential for a substantial expansion of kelp farming and of the resulting environmental impact.

Mr Poots: There is currently one commercial kelp farm in Northern Irish waters at Church Bay, Rathlin Island. This has been licensed by my department under the Marine and Coastal Access Act since 2014.

My Department has not been approached regarding substantial expansion of kelp farming within the aquaculture sector and no assessment of potential has been made. Any applications for kelp farming are considered on a case by case basis. In determining any applications for a marine licence my Department must have regard to:

- a) the need to protect the environment,
- b) the need to protect human health,
- c) the need to prevent interference with legitimate uses of the sea, and any such matters as the authority thinks relevant.

In line with the draft Marine Plan for Northern Ireland, there is a presumption in favour of aquaculture proposals where it can be demonstrated that there will be no unacceptable adverse impact on marine activities, uses and/or the marine area and any potential adverse impact is, in order of preference, avoided, minimised and/or mitigated.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 8207/17-22, to detail (i) when the £250,000 scheme of support for inland fishermen who are involved in the Lough Neagh eel and scale-fish fisheries will be finalised; and (ii) when payments will be made.

(AQW 9689/17-22)

Mr Poots:

- (i) My officials are currently working on the necessary eligibility criteria to enable applicants to apply for Lough Neagh Financial Support Scheme. At this time I cannot confirm when this work will be finalised to launch the Scheme.
- (ii) Payments will be made when all eligible applications have been assessed in accordance with the Scheme's eligibility criteria.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the impact that increasing waste incineration capacity would have on rates of recycling.

(AQW 9721/17-22)

Mr Poots: Whilst I accept that energy recovery can be necessary in certain circumstances, I would stress the importance of applying the waste hierarchy in accordance with Article 4 of the Waste Framework Directive. Where waste generation cannot be prevented, reuse should be encouraged. If reuse is not suitable or the item has reached the end of its useful life, recycling should be undertaken. Only once these options have been exhausted should energy from waste or landfill be considered.

The transposition of the Circular Economy Package into domestic legislation will add further requirements to ensure that waste which has been separately collected for preparing for reuse or recycling is not incinerated, except where incineration delivers the best environmental outcome.

Although the planning process for waste incineration is not within my remit I do continue to assess the need for additional waste infrastructure and this will be further informed by an update to a Strategic Investment Board report which outlines Northern Ireland's future waste infrastructure needs to 2035.

My main focus is however on increasing the quality and quantity of recycling and my Department are progressing a range of initiatives in this area, including the Household Waste Collaborative Change Programme and the recent discussion document "Future Recycling and Separation of Waste in Northern Ireland".

I am confident the Northern Ireland will continue on this trajectory of increased recycling even if incineration capacity is increased.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to my Topical Question on 3 November, to detail (i) the value of the support package for the fishing community of Lough Neagh; and (ii) when this package will be released.

(AQW 9725/17-22)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The Lough Neagh Financial Support Scheme will be funded under the European Maritime and Fisheries Fund. The total value of the funding package will be up to £336,000.
- (ii) The funding package will be released when the criteria against which applications will be assessed have been finalised.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail (i) the conversations she has had with councils to allow people to visit recycling centres without first having to book appointments; and (ii) the reasons for continuing to use the booking system at recycling centres.

(AQW 9855/17-22)

Mr Poots: The majority of Household Waste Recycling Centres (HWRCs) have now re-opened across Northern Ireland with the latest information showing that 94 out of 96 sites now operational. The most recent figures gathered from across all 11 local councils indicate that a total of 15 HWRC sites across Northern Ireland are presently operating some type of booking or appointment system.

In April of this year, I approved a set of key principles and guidance to support councils with issues around the safe re-opening of HWRCs, you can view this here. In order to protect the health and safety of HWRC staff and the public during this pandemic it is important that this set of guidelines, which includes maintaining effective social distancing, are followed and some councils have decided that a booking system has enabled them to better manage this at some sites.

The operation and ongoing management of HWRCs, including the implementation of any booking or appointment systems, is a matter for each individual council to decide upon and my Department has no powers to direct them in relation to these aspects of their service delivery.

Department for Communities

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQO 594/17-22, whether the forthcoming legislation will provide mitigation for claimants affected by the benefit cap and the two child maximum tax credit rule.

(AQW 6679/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): I intend to bring forward new legislation to provide for the extension of the existing welfare mitigation measures. This legislation will include proposed amendments to the Benefit Cap mitigation scheme to remove restrictions on entitlement. If approved this will ensure that all families with children who are affected by the Benefit Cap will receive a mitigation payment equivalent to the capped amount.

I am also considering the feasibility of introducing a scheme to mitigate the restriction on support for a maximum of two children in Child Tax Credit and Universal Credit. The proposal is at an early stage of development with the estimated costs for delivering any additional welfare mitigation schemes currently being assessed. However, I can confirm, that it is my intention to bring forward the necessary legislation for any new mitigation measures at the earliest opportunity.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has considered abolishing the (i) two child limit; and (ii) benefit cap in Universal Credit.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am considering the feasibility of introducing a scheme to mitigate the restriction on support for a maximum of two children in Universal Credit and Child Tax Credit. The proposal is at an early stage of development with the estimated costs for delivering any additional welfare mitigation schemes currently being assessed. However, I can confirm, that it is my intention to bring forward the necessary legislation for any new mitigation measures at the earliest opportunity.

Currently Welfare Supplementary payments are made in certain situations where people are affected by the Benefit Cap in Universal Credit. These payments are part of the welfare mitigation measures. I intend to bring forward new legislation to provide for the extension of the existing welfare mitigation measures. This legislation will include proposed amendments to the Benefit Cap mitigation scheme to remove restrictions on entitlement. If approved this will ensure that all families with children who are affected by the Benefit Cap will receive a mitigation payment equivalent to the capped amount.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) what Sport NI capital funds are currently open to assist with capital projects for community and sporting groups; and (ii) whether such funds are due to open for applications going forward.

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are two capital funding programmes currently open to assist with capital projects for community and sporting groups.

- Sport NI has been allocated £650,000 in 2020/21 for the Your School Your Club initiative which invests in projects which enhance existing school sports facilities for use by local communities and sporting clubs outside of school hours. Investment is made on the basis of Expressions of Interest from district councils and schools, subject to availability of funding and state of readiness of the project to be completed by 31 March 2021.
- The Department has also allocated Sport NI a capital budget of £400,000 in 2020/21 to fund immediate health and safety requirements at sports grounds, with a particular focus on designated venues within the Safety at Sports Grounds (NI) Order 2006. Investment is made on the basis of health & safety needs identified by facility operators, district councils and the Sports Ground Safety Authority.

Sport NI is currently developing proposals aligned to its draft Corporate Plan (2020-2025) to bring forward additional funding opportunities for the sports sector.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities what steps her Department has taken to compile a database of the number and location of accessible properties in Northern Ireland Housing Executive and Housing Association stock; and when such a database will be available to the public.

(AQW 7617/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive in conjunction with the NIFHA is currently developing an in-house Accessible Housing Register (AHR) solution for social housing.

The AHR was programmed for completion and “go live” in May 20. However, this completion date was delayed due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic. The revised “go-live” date is December 2020 at which stage it will become operational for both the Housing Executive and Housing Associations.

The AHR data will provide staff with waiting list information, allocations, general & AHR stock profiles but will not be available to the public.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities which of the 11 district councils have a process in place to deal with disciplinary issues pertaining to their Chief Executives.[R]

(AQW 8238/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: All of the 11 districts councils have a process in place. Eight of the 11 deal with such issues in line with the Joint Negotiating Committee for Chief Executives of Local authorities Model Disciplinary Procedure and Guidance. Three councils (Fermanagh and Omagh DC, Antrim and Newtownabbey BC and Mid and East Antrim BC) have their own Council Disciplinary Policy and Procedures.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities whether she intends to provide revenue and capital funding for town and village revitalisation post-COVID-19.

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has been delivering a range of regeneration programmes in town and city centres over many years, and will continue to do so post-COVID-19. This will include revitalisation projects, together with other interventions such as public realm works, environmental improvements, and development schemes.

My Department’s regeneration policy focus extends only to urban towns, which has been defined by NISRA as those with a population of 5,000 and above. The Department for Agriculture, the Environment and Rural Affairs (DAERA), through its Rural Development Programme, provides support for regeneration in smaller settlements.

In response to the Covid-19 pandemic my Department has collaborated with DAERA and the Department for Infrastructure to provide £17.6m of additional funding to Local Councils for revitalisation activities in settlements of all sizes.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the (i) number of grants; and (ii) amount each council made to businesses under the first tranche of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Scheme.

(AQW 8848/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Payments totalling almost £6m for the first Tranche of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme have been made to councils to provide much needed support to local businesses as they recover and adapt to the impact of Covid-19.

Councils have decided to use part of their allocations to provide small grants to local businesses. The allocation and eligibility for the grants is a matter for each council to determine and as they are at various stages of administering their grant schemes, I am unable to provide the requested information at this time.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Communities to detail the status of the Housing Executive's Economic Appraisal for the Upper Long Streets in the New Lodge area; and why the Housing Executive is advising residents in that area that their homes cannot be sold to other social housing providers.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive's Economic Appraisal for the Upper Long Streets in the New Lodge Area is being progressed within the Housing Executive. There will be engagement with my Department during November and, subject to that being successfully concluded, I expect the Appraisal to go to the January meeting of the Housing Executive Board for agreement.

The Housing Executive has not advised residents in that area that their homes cannot be sold to other social housing providers. Any proposal for the acquisition of a property for the purposes of meeting housing need is considered against the criteria in the Housing Association Guide for existing satisfactory purchase/acquisition and rehabilitation delivery within the context of the Social Housing Development Programme.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether they will bring forward a support package or hardship fund for the industries which support the arts, entertainment and events sectors such as lighting, staging, sound and audio.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am pleased to say that my Department is delivering a Programme to support people and organisations in the culture, language, arts and heritage sectors which have been disproportionately impacted by the pandemic.

I am also pleased to say that all organisations including commercial whose primary role is to create, present or support a wide range of sectoral categories will also be eligible to apply.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the levels of financial support allocated to each of the district councils over the period of the pandemic; and (ii) total budget available to offer further support to each council.

(AQW 8930/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 19 May 2020, £20.3m was allocated to Department for Communities to support local councils which have delivered vital services during the Covid-19 crisis. This was for the period mid-March 2020 to 30 June 2020 and was allocated and paid to councils in June 2020 as set out in Annex 1.

On 24 September and 29 October 2020 further amounts of £40m and £15m respectively, was announced by the Executive for local councils for the period 1 July 2020 to 31 March 2021, to assist them with their financial pressures as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

My Department is carrying out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period July 2020 to September 2020 and updated estimates / actual spend for the period mid-March 2020 to June 2020.

Once my Department has carried out a due diligence exercise on the information provided by councils, the figures will be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives. Final consultation with Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives will also take place.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations of funding will be confirmed once the due diligence exercise has been completed.

My Department also activated the Scheme of Emergency Financial Assistance (SEFA) - COVID-19 for the period 3 April 2020 to 3 October 2020 to reimburse councils with other costs due to the Covid-19 crisis. For the period 3 April 2020 to 3 July 2020 claims totalling £74,329.20 have been paid out to councils. Allocations are set out in Annex 2.

Councils have also received funding from my Department of £3.25m for a COVID-19 Community Support Fund through the existing Community Support Programme. The allocations to each council are shown in Annex 3.

My Department is investing £10m in the Capital COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Scheme which will be used in larger towns and city centres.

The funding will be allocated to councils in two tranches to deliver measures that will help provide a safe environment for visitors, shoppers and workers within town and city centres. This may include measures such as shop frontage and awnings/canopies; outdoor furniture, heaters and queueing systems; PA/Tannoy and digital screens, and other signage. Allocations for tranche 1 are shown in Annex 4.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Communities why the Housing Executive is placing people with addictions in B&B accommodation without any support in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that placements of people with support needs in B&B and Hotels are used in the absence of more suitable accommodation and every effort is made to move the person to more suitable supported accommodation as soon as this becomes available.

As part of their response to COVID-19, the number of placements provided by the Housing Executive has increased by 136% when comparing April to September 2020 with the equivalent period in 2019. As a result of the unprecedented increase in demand, the Housing Executive has also sought to put in place additional support in places linked to dispersed accommodation such as B&Bs and Hotels. Within these situations, Housing Executive staff are also available to assist with any other support needs that may become evident during such a placement with care for the household/individual an integral part of the process.

In making placements in temporary accommodation, the Housing Executive will consider the availability of placements within the applicant's local area and any support needs which might have been identified during the assessment process. The objective being to make placements which are most appropriate to the requirements of the household. To facilitate this, the Housing Executive has access to 147 support services with a range of client groups catered for. These services provide a total 4,971 floating support units for those with additional support needs. Of these units 626 are available within Derry City.

The Housing Executive's Supporting People Team are producing a three year strategy for 2021-2024 which considers the existing needs and emerging demands on Housing Support Services. It will be informed by and in support of other strategies, including the Housing Executive Homelessness Strategy, wider strategies of health and criminal justice and aligned to outcomes identified in the Draft Programme for Government. It will also be informed in part by a strategic, evidence-based, assessment of need which saw some assessment completed in September 2020.

Through the life span of the Supporting People strategy there will be a focus on Ministerial priorities and the findings of the completed strategic needs assessment.

The strategy plans to address priorities and gaps in need through various means such as scheme reconfigurations, new or additional services facilitated by pursuing a more equitable basis of funding or through additional monies.

The Supporting People Strategy will progress to a public consultation which is planned to begin in December 2020.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the e Co-ownership Housing Scheme, as announced in New Decade, New Approach.

(AQW 8984/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In New Decade New Approach the Executive committed to bring forward legislation to reclassify Housing Associations as external to the public sector to ensure the continuation of new social house building and the Co-Ownership Housing Scheme.

The Housing (Amendment) Act legislation to facilitate reversal of the Office for National Statistics' (ONS) classification of Housing Associations as Non-Financial Public Corporations, became law on 28 August 2020. ONS confirmed the reclassification on 30 October 2020. The Department will fund Co ownership with £145m to provide 4000 affordable homes over the period 2020/21 - 2023/24.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many applicants on the social housing waiting list have points awarded for (i) overcrowding; and (ii) sharing, broken down by (a) constituency; and (b) council area.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following tables which detail all applicants with overcrowding points, and all applicants with sharing points, as at the end of September 2020. Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she plans to review the Caravan Act, including the length of tenancy stipulated.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Responsibility for the legislation around caravans is shared between DfC and DfE. The Department for Communities' primary purpose in this legislation is in relation to Part 1 of the Caravans Act 2011 and those people who live on a caravan/park site as their permanent residence. However Part 2 of the Caravans Act 2011 contains specific legislation controlling the arrangements between park owners and those renting caravan pitches for more than 28 days.

The primary aim of the legislation is to ensure clarity and transparency in the terms of the agreement allowing caravan owners to station caravans on holiday parks. Although the Act deals primarily with static caravan owners it also deals with touring caravans where the owner enters into an agreement entitling them to keep their caravan on a site for more than 28 days.

The Act requires that the owner of the caravan park must give the proposed occupier a written statement, this includes setting out the express terms in the agreement and the implied terms. The Act does not specify the implied terms, rather the guidance on the Act provides examples of things which may be included and the list is not exhaustive.

The standard terms of any contract allowing a caravan owner to station their caravan on a holiday park are subject to a test of fairness under the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contract Regulations 1999.

The provisions in the Act came into effect on 16 September 2011 and in 2016 the Department for Communities reviewed the Act as part of our routine evaluation process and no changes were recommended.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she plans to review the licence agreement contained in the Caravan Act.

(AQW 9448/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The provisions in the Act came into effect on 16 September 2011 and in 2016 the Department for Communities reviewed the Act as part of our routine evaluation process and no changes were recommended.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has undertaken an assessment of the existing rights for caravan owners and in relation to the Caravan Act.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Responsibility for the legislation around caravans is shared between DfC and DfE.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 8895/17-22, (i) how many grant applications have been received in each Council area; and (ii) what is the total amount sought from eligible applicants.
(AQW 9459/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department does not hold the information requested. I refer the Member to the response given in paragraphs (iii) and (iv) of my reply to AQW 8895/17-22

I can confirm, however, that the final Revitalisation Plans submitted by councils have identified a total of approximately £6.9m being allocated to grant schemes across both tranches of the Programme.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether she intends to review how welfare benefits are assessed; and whether she will consider bringing the process back into public sector control where her Department will be able to audit and manage performance.
(AQW 9463/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: An independent evaluation of the performance of both the Personal Independence Payment (PIP) Assessment Services and the Medical Support Services contracts in delivering health assessments for welfare benefits will be completed by the end of the year. Any enhancements identified through this evaluation will be considered for the future delivery of health assessments.

Additionally, a business case is under development to appraise all options for the delivery of health assessments from August 2023, including in-housing the service.

My Department manages a programme of monthly, quarterly and annual reviews of the current performance against defined service levels for both contracts. Officials also carry out an independent audit of completed health assessments to provide assurance on both quality and procedural accuracy.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities what discussions her officials have had with Westminster officials to examine whether the Carer's Allowance is delivering necessary support for carers; and whether there will be a COVID-19 payment made to carers.

Ms Ní Chuilín: In April 2020, my Department introduced two important temporary measures to help unpaid carers through the current COVID-19 emergency to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require:

- Unpaid carers are able to continue to claim Carer's Allowance if they have a temporary break in caring, because either they or the person they care for becomes infected with coronavirus or has to self-isolate because of it.
- Providing "emotional support" to a severely disabled person will also count towards the Carer's Allowance threshold of 35 hours of care a week.

My officials are in regular contact with all stakeholders as the coronavirus emergency progresses and we are continuing to look at how best to support people during this unprecedented time. We have extended the temporary easements in Carer's Allowance until 12 May 2021.

Carers in receipt of Universal Credit will also be able to benefit from the increase in the standard allowance put in place in response to the COVID-19 pandemic (around £1000 a year).

In addition, those in receipt of Carer's Allowance here may, depending on their circumstances, be eligible to access the range of other emergency financial support that my Department is providing during the COVID-19 crisis, including Discretionary Support.

In terms of providing longer term additional financial support for carers here, it is anticipated that this will be considered as part of the upcoming welfare mitigations review.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether her Department has considered a support scheme for people unemployed as a consequence of COVID-19, similar to the Pandemic Unemployment Payment available in the Republic of Ireland.
(AQW 9486/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has introduced a number of financial support measures in response to the Covid-19 pandemic for those who have become unemployed.

Depending on a person's circumstances, financial assistance is available to those impacted by the Covid-19 outbreak through Universal Credit, New style Jobseekers Allowance, and New Style Employment Support Allowance. Further information can be found at the following - <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-and-benefits>

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, I have taken a number of steps to ensure that the social security system is more flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require.

These include

- increasing the standard allowance of Universal Credit (and working tax credit) for this financial year by £1,040 per year (£20 a week). This is in addition to the annual uprating of 1.7%. This means that for a single Universal Credit claimant aged 25 or over, the standard allowance will increase from £317.82 to £409.89 per month;
- increasing the Local Housing Allowance rates for Universal Credit and Housing Benefit claimants so that it covers the cheapest 30% of local market rents;
- making a number of enhancements to the Discretionary Support scheme including increasing the amount of individual living expenses awards by increasing the rate of benefit used when calculating awards and allowing discretion to pay for longer periods;
- increasing the Discretionary Support Annual Income Threshold to £20,405 and increasing the debt threshold to £1,500 to ensure that more people on a low income can access assistance when they need it most;
- providing access to emergency financial support through the Discretionary Support (DS) scheme to students in full-time education who are normally not eligible for benefits; and
- providing a DS Self-Isolation Grant to a person when they or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Regional Agency for Public Health and Social Well-being. There is no restriction on the number of COVID-19 related grants that a claimant can receive.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities what assessment has been made of the potential harm caused by remote gambling at the users' location compared to the location of the server.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Betting, Gaming, Lotteries and Amusements (NI) Order 1985 contains no provisions in relation to remote gambling. However, the 2014 Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act makes it an offence for online gambling service providers to advertise to consumers here unless they hold the appropriate licence issued by the Gambling Commission and comply with their codes of practice.

During 2016, the Department commissioned a Gambling Prevalence Survey. The vast majority of people sampled (95.2%) stated that they had gambled in person, and of these, almost two thirds reported the purchase of a National Lottery ticket or scratch card as the most popular type of gambling participated in. The survey also showed that the number of respondents participating in online gambling had increased from 6.7% in 2010, to 15.8% in 2016. Although 2.3% of the survey respondents were identified as problem gamblers, no source of the harm could be identified.

On 2 November, I published the Outcome report from the recent consultation into the future of gambling regulation. I will shortly seek the Executive's agreement to my proposed way forward and I hope to make an announcement on my proposals within the next few weeks.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities what plans she has to ask the UK Government to repeal Section 5 of the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014 that regulates the online advertising of gambling products and services in Northern Ireland, so that the regulation of this activity can be developed and introduced here where the gambling takes place.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Betting, Gaming, Lotteries and Amusements (NI) Order 1985 contains no provisions in relation to remote (online) gambling. Online advertising of gambling products and services is regulated under Section 5 of the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014 which permits a remote (online) operator to advertise to consumers here provided they hold the appropriate Gambling Commission licence. This inclusion ensures that consumers here will have the same level of protection in respect of the advertising of remote gambling.

The Committees of Advertising Practice (CAP) recently launched a public consultation on proposals to introduce new strengthened rules and guidance to better protect children and young people (under-18s) and vulnerable people from potential gambling-advertising related harms. This consultation is in response to research published by GambleAware.

Meanwhile, the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA), an independent body, will continue to monitor and enforce the strict guidelines around gambling advertising.

I continue to keep all aspects of the regulation of gambling under review, including the operation of Section 5 of the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014. I will make an announcement on the way forward shortly.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities what discussions she has had with the officers of Belfast City Council and Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council regarding a financial support package to attract shoppers into the cities during the Christmas season; and to detail the awarded level of support.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 9205/17-22.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the impact upon district council finances following the First-Tier Tribunal decision in respect of VAT claim taken by Mid Ulster District Council. [R]
(AQW 9541/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 17 October 2020, the First-tier Tribunal issued its decision in relation to a dispute concerning the VAT liability of charges paid by members of the public for access to sport and leisure facilities provided by Mid-Ulster District Council. HMRC contended that the charges should bear VAT at the standard rate, while Mid-Ulster District Council contended that the charges in dispute did not attract VAT.

The appeal by Mid-Ulster District Council was allowed and now the quantum has to be agreed between both parties.

However, pursuant to Rule 39 of the Tribunal Procedure (First-tier Tribunal) (Tax Chamber) Rules 2009, any party dissatisfied with the decision has a right to apply for permission to appeal not later than 56 days after the date of this decision.

Therefore, at this stage it is too early to assess the impact of this decision on council finances.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether she has had discussions with her counterparts in Westminster to extend the Minimum Income Floor suspension for 6 months, in line with the new Winter Economic Plan.
(AQW 9577/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: After careful consideration of the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic and to ensure support is continued for the self-employed, I have decided that the current easement of the suspension of the Minimum Income Floor in Universal Credit that was due to expire on 12 November 2020 will be extended to 30 April 2021.

Regulations to give effect to this extension will be made prior to 12 November 2020.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities for a breakdown of the number and type of organisations and individuals in each constituency who (i) applied; and (ii) were successful, for the Arts grant launched on 26 October 2020.
(AQW 9578/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 26 October I announced a further release of £15.75m from the £29m package for arts, language, culture and heritage sectors; £7.75m of which has been made available to arts organisations through a third round of the Organisation Emergency Programme. This programme, the Stability and Renewal Programme for Organisations, opened to applications on 28 October. The closing date for applications is noon on Friday 27 November. The Arts Council aim to communicate decisions by the end of January 2021 and so the information requested is not known at this point.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Communities what funding has been made available for payments to those who have to self-isolate due to close contact with a positive COVID-19 patient.
(AQW 9710/17-22)

Ms Hargey: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID-19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Public Health Agency.

Almost 15,000 awards have been made to date, since the DS Self-Isolation Scheme grant was introduced in March.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) what payments are available to those in self-isolation; and (ii) how much they are.
(AQW 9758/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support Self-Isolation Scheme in the form of a grant, to provide support where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Public Health Agency.

There is no limit on the number of Discretionary Support Self-Isolation awards a person may receive as long as they meet the eligibility criteria. The amount payable is based on each applicant's individual circumstances and will include a specific amount for all dependent children in the household.

Almost 15,000 awards have been made to date, since the Discretionary Support Self-Isolation Scheme grant was introduced in March.

As we continue to respond to the impacts of the pandemic I will keep this under review.

Department of Education

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Education (i) whether an impact assessment has been carried out by his Department on the new build of Bangor Central Integrated Primary School at Balloo/Gransha; and (ii) to lay a copy of the assessment in the Assembly Library.

(AQW 7565/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): My Department has determined that the relocation to the proposed new site at Balloo Road would not materially change the pupil catchment area of Bangor Central Integrated Primary School. Under these circumstances a Development Proposal (DP) is not required and a formal assessment on the potential impact on integrated education due to the relocation of the school was not considered necessary.

In addition to examining data showing the existing location of pupils enrolled at Bangor Central Integrated Primary School, officials also considered the sustainability of neighbouring schools and assessed that any impact resulting from relocation would not be on a scale that would put at risk their sustainability.

In developing the business case for the project, a group of project stakeholders, consisting primarily of representatives from the school, identified and scored a list of non-monetary criteria which are relevant to the project. The recommended option in the approved business case (the relocation to Balloo) received a score of 9 out of 10 from the stakeholder group for the criterion "Promotion of Integrated Education."

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 7479/17-22, to provide a breakdown of each school that availed of (i) Chromebooks; and (ii) wi-fi vouchers.

(AQW 8600/17-22)

Mr Weir: The provision of digital devices and WiFi access for those pupils who need them has been a matter of significant importance for the Department. Priority has been given to children currently in year groups 12, 14, 7 and 4 (in that order) who are entitled to free school meals, and either have special educational needs, are newcomer children or are looked after children or otherwise vulnerable.

The detail you requested is listed in the tables below and represents all data available up to 15 October 2020;

Table A – provides a list of all schools that have availed of digital devices, both (Laptops and Chromebooks) under my scheme.

Table B - provides a list of all schools that have been allocated Hotspot Vouchers

Table C – provides a list of all schools that have been allocated Mifi Devices

I hope you find this helpful and gives you the assurance that this issue continues to be a priority for my Department.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education to detail the thresholds for funding allocation of percentages of Free School Meals pupils in schools.

(AQW 8888/17-22)

Mr Weir: Under the Common Funding Scheme, Social Deprivation funding distributed to schools through the Common Funding Formula is determined based on the percentages of pupils entitled to Free School Meals. The thresholds applied in 2020-21 are detailed in the table below.

	Nursery*	Primary	Post-primary
Band 1	32.92%	28.80%	27.27%
Band 2	46.67%	40.29%	38.55%
Band 3	Over 46.67%	Over 40.29%	Over 38.55%

* For the Nursery Phase, funding is allocated for those Full Time Equivalent pupils who have a parent in receipt of Income Support, Job Seekers Allowance, Universal Credit or having an entitlement to a free school meal.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Education, as has been committed to previously, to detail a timeline for the completion and implementation of the parental responsibility policy for schools.

(AQW 9471/17-22)

Mr Weir: Guidance for schools on Parental Responsibility is contained in DE Circular 1999/7. The Department is currently undertaking a review of this Circular but at this stage there is no definitive timeline for publication of the revised document.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Education whether within the Engage Programme the distribution of support to enhance learning and recover lost learning is on track.

Mr Weir: The Engage programme, which I launched on 23 September 2020, is providing vital help to primary and post primary schools as they seek to support pupils to engage with learning following the lockdown period. It will enable them to provide child centred one to one, small group or team teaching support for pupils they identify as in the greatest need.

All schools will now have received their Engage funding allocations in respect of the 2020/21 financial year. Schools will by now be planning towards or will have already started to implement their programme in line with their unique circumstances and pupils' needs.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education whether he will commit to working with his Executive colleagues to provide direct payments in lieu of free school meals over the Christmas school holiday period.

Mr Weir: The issue of holiday hunger is not new and will require a cross Departmental approach when seeking to address this matter.

At the Executive meeting on 22nd October, the Department for Communities Minister agreed to take forward work on food poverty including holiday hunger for the longer term. Initial discussions between the Department of Education and the Department for Communities have taken place and Executive colleagues will be updated on progress including any proposals for the Christmas holiday period as soon as possible.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Education whether he has given any consideration to facilitating those families who wish to remove their children from school to enter a period of voluntary isolation ahead of Christmas day, in order to spend the day with elderly or vulnerable family members.

Mr Weir: I fully understand and appreciate the wish of families to spend an uninterrupted Christmas together in these difficult times. However, it is essential that children and young people of compulsory school age attend their school regularly and maintain a pattern of good attendance throughout their school career in order to allow them to fulfil their potential.

Regular attendance is particularly important given the amount of classroom time pupils have missed recently due to Covid-19 and I therefore will not be considering voluntary isolation as a legitimate reason for absence.

Circular Number 2020/08 sets out guidance to schools on managing pupil attendance in the context of Covid-19. It is clear that if a pupil is required to attend school either physically or remotely and does not attend or complete work at home, the school must record the absence as unauthorised.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education to detail what his Department is doing to fulfil the Executive's commitment to building a united and shared society through the Together: Building a United Community strategy.

Mr Weir: My Department actively contributes to the implementation of the Executive's Together: Building a United Community (T:BUC) strategy in the following ways:

- Support for the delivery by the Education Authority (EA) of the T:BUC Camps programme on behalf of The Executive Office - a headline action under the strategy's key priority "Our Children and Young People" and the Planned Interventions programme. T:BUC Camps aim to support positive attitudinal change towards people from different backgrounds; support contact & friendships between young people from different backgrounds; support better understanding and respect for cultural differences, and, through planned interventions, support youth work activity to divert young people from anti-social and potentially criminal behaviour.
- Delivery of the Shared Education Campuses (SEC) headline action to commence 10 new shared education campuses. This provides capital assistance to applicant schools to facilitate shared education through Shared Education Facilities; Enhanced Education Facilities, and Shared Education Campuses. There are currently a number of Shared Education Campus Projects in development. Three projects are proceeding with approved Business Cases.
- My Department has a statutory duty to encourage, facilitate and promote Shared Education, underpinned by the Sharing Works policy, and is currently developing proposals for a long term sustainable strategy for the mainstreaming of Shared Education across the wider education sector for my consideration.
- My Department's Community Relations, Equality and Diversity (CRED) policy also aims to ensure that young people develop self-respect and respect for others.
- The Tackling Paramilitarism Programme, delivered in collaboration with the EA, the Tackling Paramilitarism Programme Team and other stakeholders is also led by my Department and is one action in the Executive's Tackling Paramilitarism strategy (A4 – to prevent young people being drawn into paramilitary activity and promote lawfulness).

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the rationale for his Department's Circular 2020/10 issued on 2 November 2020; (ii) how it can be safe for 30 children to remain in a small classroom all day with no social distancing, but not safe for those same 30 children to do PE in a large assembly hall for 30 minutes; (iii) how it is not safe for those same 30 children to do PE in the fresh air in the playground when only a short time before they were allowed to run free as a bubble at lunch time in the same playground; (iv) whether he is now instructing schools not to let children play in the playground in bubbles larger than 15; and (v) whether he will make public the science that underpins Circular 2020/10.

Mr Weir: The circular issued by my Department on 2 November set out the legal requirements of the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) Regulations introduced by the Department of Health. The Regulations prohibit organisation, operation or participation in an indoor or outdoor sporting event, with a legal exemption of an outdoor sporting if there is no contact between participations and the gathering consists of no more than 15 persons. It was essential to advise schools of the legal position in regard to PE. I had no flexibility in regard to the numbers specified by the Health legislation.

On 3 November, I secured a legal amendment to the Regulations to permit schools and other education settings to deliver indoor and outdoor PE, without a cap of 15 participants. New guidance was issued to schools.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education, in the light of current Education Authority advice to parents to use alternative private transport to school where possible, what support he will offer families currently experiencing financial hardship while not availing of free school transport to which they are entitled and thus incurring additional costs.

(AQW 9605/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department's New School Day guidance states that home to school transport should only be used where there is no alternative available. If parents do not believe an alternative means of affordable transport is available, provided they are eligible for home to school transport, their child(ren) remain able to avail of such transport provision at no cost to themselves.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Education to provide clarity on guidance issued to schools regarding the delivery of the physical education curriculum.

Mr Weir: The circular issued by my Department on 2 November set out the legal requirements of the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) Regulations introduced by the Department of Health. The Regulations prohibit organisation, operation or participation in an indoor or outdoor sporting event, with a legal exemption of an outdoor sporting if there is no contact between participations and the gathering consists of no more than 15 persons. It was essential to advise schools of the legal position in regard to PE. I had no flexibility in regard to the numbers specified by the Health legislation.

On 3 November, I secured a legal amendment to the Regulations to permit schools and other education settings to deliver indoor and outdoor PE, without a cap of 15 participants. New guidance was issued to schools.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 8952/17-22, to detail (i) the timetable for a decision on the refund of examination fees booked on the basis of cancellations in May 2020; and (ii) when an options paper on this will be submitted to, and considered by, his Department.

(AQW 9649/17-22)

Mr Weir: I have been advised by the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) that examination centres have not been invoiced for examination fees for summer 2020. As a result CCEA does not have examination fees to refund to centres.

I expect to receive the options paper, containing CCEA's recommendations on examination fee charges, in the very near future. I will carefully consider the options presented. Until I have completed that, I will not be in a position to set out how I intend to proceed or provide a definitive date for when this process will be completed.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Education for an update on (i) the Minor Works Application for Bunscoil Phobail Feirste; and (ii) when he expects the design team to be on site.

(AQW 9688/17-22)

Mr Weir: I understand that the Education Authority (EA) met with the Principal of Bunscoil Phobail Feirste on 9 November 2020 to scope the works required to deliver Special Educational Needs accommodation and a multipurpose space at the school. The EA will now prepare a Feasibility Report and Business Case which it is anticipated will be submitted to my Department for approval by March 2021.

Subject to Business Case approval in March, it is expected that construction would commence by the end of August 2021 at the earliest. With an estimated six month construction period the school could expect handover of the new accommodation in March 2022.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 7021/17-22, (i) for an update on the result of discussions between his Department and CCEA regarding qualification specifications and exams for academic year 2020/21; and (ii) when a final decision will be made on the provision of such.

(AQW 9693/17-22)

Mr Weir: On 9 October, I publicly announced changes to the delivery of GCSE, AS and A level qualifications in 2020/21 and wrote to all school leaders, parents and young people to provide clarity on the changes announced. Details of these changes are set out in addendums to each qualification specification which can be found on the CCEA website.

On 6 November, I agreed adaptations to a further five GCSEs to ensure that pupils are assessed on a minimum of 60% of the overall qualification. This decision has also been communicated to schools and CCEA will now work with schools to provide more information at a centre level as quickly as possible.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education (i) what additional funding has been provided to schools for (a) personal protective equipment; and (b) the provision of remote learning since they reopened; and (ii) what the average is for each, per school in Northern Ireland.

Mr Weir:

- (i) (a) My Department has allocated £13.5 million of additional funding to grant aided schools for Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) on a per pupil basis. Details of the individual allocations to schools are available on the Education Authority's website.
- (b) Funding to support remote learning is not provided on an individual school basis as it is better value for money for digital devices and other services to be procured centrally. My Department has allocated the following funds to support the provision of remote learning:
 - £2.4 million to support the expansion of bandwidth in particularly low bandwidth areas, and also for the procurement of additional learning applications to support remote learning;
 - £2.2 million for the purchase of 8,000 Chromebooks for disadvantaged or vulnerable learners;

- £2 million for laptops for primary pupils for disadvantaged or vulnerable learners;
- £0.2 million for 8,000 WIFI vouchers for disadvantaged or vulnerable learners; and
- £25k for MIFI Units (i.e. Mobile WIFI dongles) for disadvantaged or vulnerable learners.

The costs provided do not include the cost of internal staffing resources within the Department and its arm's length bodies involved in developing resources and guidance for schools to support remote learning.

- (ii) Funding for remote learning is managed centrally by the Education Authority and is not distributed on a per school basis. It is therefore not possible to provide an average cost per school. The average funding allocated to grant aided schools for PPE (albeit on a per pupil basis) is £12,487 per school.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education, since the restart of schools in August, (i) how many pupils have applied for remote learning; and (ii) how many have been provided with it.
(AQW 9695/17-22)

Mr Weir: Pupils do not apply for remote learning. My Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning to pupils in the event of a school closure due to COVID-19, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate.

My Department does not collect data on the number of pupils who have been provided with remote learning, as this would be a bureaucratic burden on schools to provide on a daily basis.

A small number of children will be advised by their clinical team not to attend school. Where a child has been medically advised by a consultant not to attend school during 2020/21, parents should consult with their school Principal and the Education Authority regarding education provision for these pupils. This is not termed remote learning.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education (i) to detail how the mental wellbeing of students taking GCSE, AS level and A level examinations will be ensured during the forthcoming exam period; (ii) whether he will commit to prioritising students' mental health in any new exams procedure that is introduced for this school year; and (iii) how he will ensure the process for determining the assessment procedures is open, fair and transparent.

Mr Weir: Through the Education Restart Wellbeing Project a range of measures are being delivered in direct response to the Covid-19 pandemic to support the mental health and wellbeing of students including:-

- An Education Authority (EA) online portal of resources available to schools with information on supporting learners, leaders and staff.
- A range of information and materials are available on the EA website to support educational settings, young people and parents/carers with emotional health and wellbeing.
- The EA Youth Service have developed an online resource called 'youth online' available at www.youthonline.org.uk where children and young people can access information, advice and support directly from Youth Service staff. The Independent Counselling Service for Schools (ICSS) for post primary aged pupils in mainstream Post Primary and Special Schools is available for young people to access through school and self-referral.
- The Education Welfare Service and Education Psychology Service are also working directly with all schools to support the wellbeing of young people and access services as required in accordance with presenting need.
- The £5m Education Restart Wellbeing Project funding has been approved, was launched on 10 November 2020 at St Columbanus College and will be allocated directly to schools very soon. By receiving their own allocation, schools will benefit from having the flexibility to use the money to provide health and wellbeing support for their pupils and/or staff.

With regard to the fairness of assessment procedures, my announcements of 9 October and 6 November indicate a reduction of assessment burden for young people to take account of lost face to face teaching time and ongoing disruption. This will ensure the validity, rigour and portability of qualifications, particularly for progression to university and other tertiary education providers as well as for future employment.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education how many (i) laptops; (ii) chromebooks; and (iii) broadband vouchers have been provided for children in Primary 7.
(AQW 9716/17-22)

Mr Weir: The provision of digital devices and WiFi access for those pupils who need them has been a matter of significant importance for the Department. Priority has been given to children currently in year groups 12, 14, 7 and 4 (in that order) who are entitled to free school meals, and either have special educational needs, are newcomer children or are looked after children or otherwise vulnerable.

I can confirm that children in Primary 7 who met these criteria were allocated the following;

Digital devices

- 499 laptops
- 1391 Chromebooks

Total digital devices allocated 1890

Broadband/wifi access

- Bt vouchers – 447
- MiFi – 85

Total 532

I hope you find this information helpful.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education what his Department is doing to ensure that the Engage Programme funding is used to support all children who have fallen behind due to the disruption to their education.

(AQW 9717/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Engage programme is a significant initiative which aims to limit any long-term adverse impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on children's learning due to the time spent out of school.

All children impacted by school closures will have experienced disruption to their education, and for that reason, all primary and post primary schools have received funding totalling £11.2m in the 2020/21 financial year which enables them to secure additional teaching resources. This will assist in the provision of high quality one to one, small group or team teaching support to those pupils identified by schools as in greatest need of additional support to engage with learning.

The Engage programme will focus on supporting pupils to be motivated and engaged to learn. It will be linked to the cross curricular skills, thinking skills and personal capabilities at the core of our curriculum and focussed on those areas where pupils would most benefit from additional teaching, practice and feedback.

In designing the programme, my Department has not prescribed what programme delivery should look like or specific parameters for schools to follow.

Schools know their pupils best and have autonomy and flexibility to use their professional judgement to decide which pupils and year groups will participate in the programme. So too, the content and structure of programme delivery will be based on each school's unique circumstances and assessment of their pupils' particular needs.

Appropriate accountability arrangements are in place, via schools' completion of the online Engage Planner reporting tool, to establish how Engage resources are being utilised and, in due course, to determine the impact of the programme. The Education and Training Inspectorate has also been commissioned to undertake an evaluation of the Engage programme.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education whether he has agreed that funding given by the Executive for the Engage Programme will be allowed to be used by primary schools to purchase an online tutoring app from a private company.

Mr Weir: I have not agreed that Engage programme resources will be allowed to be used to purchase an online tutoring app from a private company.

The Engage programme supports schools in securing additional qualified teachers to provide high quality one to one, small group or team teaching support within primary and post-primary schools. The purpose is to limit any long-term adverse impact of the Covid-19 lockdown on educational standards by supporting pupils' learning and engagement.

The separate Virtual Learning programme (worth up to £250k across all primary schools) provides financial support in 2020/21 for primary schools to purchase online literacy and numeracy software licences that they feel best meet the needs of their Year 7 pupils. The budget is limited to £10 per pupil. Schools have been given flexibility to choose online resources as they see fit and a wide range of software packages have been selected by schools to date.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education how many cases of COVID-19 have been recorded as being transmitted within (i) primary school settings; and (ii) post-primary school settings.

Mr Weir: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has been collecting data on the number of COVID school incidents reported to the PHA COVID School Team since schools reopened.

There is no data published which can identify the number of cases of COVID-19 that have been recorded as being transmitted within school settings.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education to detail the total number of (i) pupil days lost; and (ii) teacher days lost in the first term of the 2020/21 academic year.

(AQW 9764/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) The number of pupil days absent is recorded by schools and reported to the Department in half day sessions. The table below shows the proportion of total possible pupil half day sessions recorded in the first term of the 2020/21 academic year.

Number and percentage of pupil half day sessions recorded as absent

	No. half day sessions recorded as Absent	No. of Total Possible half day sessions	Total Absent	Total Present
w/c 2 November	159,165	2,929,426	5.4%	94.6%
w/c 12 October	210,904	2,904,326	7.3%	92.7%
w/c 5 October	181,736	2,899,481	6.3%	93.7%
w/c 28 September	163,839	2,764,036	5.9%	94.1%
w/c 21 September	178,373	2,822,059	6.3%	93.7%
w/c 14 September	225,592	2,922,409	7.7%	92.3%
w/c 7 September	234,208	2,781,931	8.4%	91.6%
w/c 31 August	102,099	1,897,235	5.4%	94.6%

Additionally, the Department has received 43 exceptional closure requests from schools since the start of the 2020/21 academic year. In total these requests amounted to 71 days, 12 of which were not related to COVID-19. This excludes the three exceptional closure days granted by the NI Executive that schools were permitted to take during the Halloween break.

- (i) The absence records of teachers' are reported to the Department by all schools except voluntary grammar schools and recorded on the Teachers' Payroll System the month after an absence has occurred. Therefore, only absences that occurred up to the end of September are currently available. Absence data for October will be available from mid-December.

Between 1 August 2020 and 30 September 14,460 working days were lost due to sickness and 13,397 calendar days were lost due to other reasons for teachers.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) pupil; and (ii) staff absences in the first week of the term beginning 2 November 2020.

(AQW 9766/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) Pupil attendance data is captured using weekly standard reports from the Schools Information Management System (SIMS) of all primary, post primary, special and Educated Other Than at School (EOTAS) settings. For the week commencing the 2nd November 2020 5.4% of total possible attendance was recorded as pupil absence.
- (ii) Results from the 68% of educational settings (primary, post primary, special and EOTAS) that responded to the weekly survey on 3 November reported that 92.7% of teaching staff and 93.6% of non-teaching staff were on site that day. A further 2.8% of teaching staff and 1.3% of non-teaching staff were reported to be working remotely. The remaining 4.5% of teaching staff and 5.1% of non-teaching staff were reporting as not being on site for another reason.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education to detail the policies and procedures for the appointment of transferor governors.
(AQW 9786/17-22)

Mr Weir: Schedule 4 to the Education and Libraries (Northern Ireland) Order 1986 makes provision for the membership of the Boards of Governors (BoGs) of controlled schools. In accordance with Schedule 4, a number of members of the BoGs of controlled primary and secondary schools are nominated by the transferors and superseded managers of the school. For controlled integrated schools, nomination is by the transferors and superseded managers of controlled schools (other than controlled integrated schools) in the locality served by the school. The proportion of transferor governors on a school's BoG will vary according to the total number of members on the board.

The Transferor Representatives' Council (TRC) nominates transferor representatives to the BoGs of controlled schools for formal appointment by the Education Authority. The TRC is an unincorporated body comprising the three Protestant churches (Church of Ireland, Presbyterian and Methodist) that owned schools prior to their transfer to state ownership.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for an update on the provision of 4G wireless solutions for pupils attending classes from home.

(AQW 9857/17-22)

Mr Weir: Officials have been working with the Education Authority (EA), in partnership with BT, to provide a range of connectivity solutions for pupils, particularly those in a rural settings. This includes:

- supporting the provision of an initial quantity of up to 2,500 Mi-Fi devices, which is a mobile connectivity solution to support those children who are not within a BT Wi-Fi hotspot; and
- providing 8,300 Wi-Fi vouchers for disadvantaged children providing internet access.

Demand for wireless vouchers and MiFi units has been met for pupils in the 4 priority year groups. Up to 2 November 2020, 1799 vouchers and 325 MiFi devices have been issued to schools. The EA is processing requests from other year groups as a matter of urgency.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, in relation to the additional funding provided to schools to tackle COVID-19, to detail (i) how schools are expected to spend this money; (ii) the terms schools must adhere to when spending this money; (iii) whether there exists a guarantee all money spent on COVID-19 by schools will be covered by this funding; and (iv) whether any COVID-19 spend will come out of schools' delegated budget.

(AQW 9860/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Children's Services Co-operation Act

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for an update on the operation, monitoring and reporting of the Children's Services Co-operation Act.

(AQW 9862/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Children's Services Co-operation Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 places a duty on named children's authorities to co-operate with each other and with other children's service providers to improve the well-being of children and young people; places a duty on the Northern Ireland Executive to promote such co-operation; and adopt a children and young persons strategy which sets out how it proposes to improve the well-being of children and young people. The Act requires the Executive to prepare a report on the operation of the Act within 18 months of the strategy being adopted by the Executive, with further reports at intervals of not more than three years.

On 14 November 2018 my Department published interim guidance to assist children's authorities understand the Act and the statutory duties it places on them in respect of co-operation, including the factors they should take into account when developing policy or procedures related to children's services or in delivering children's services. The guidance is available at <https://www.education-ni.gov.uk/publications/interim-guidance-childrens-services-co-operation-act-northern-ireland-2015>.

My Department has been leading on the development of the Executive Children and Young People's Strategy, although progress was slowed from March 2020 as the Department focused on addressing the Covid-19 pandemic. The strategy was referred to the Education Committee in September 2020 and I intend to bring it to the Executive for consideration in the near future. Once the strategy is adopted by the Executive, it will be laid in the Assembly and published. Following publication of the strategy, structures (proposals for which have been developed) will be agreed and put in place to monitor and report on the operation of the Children's Services Co-operation Act, including the actions taken to achieve the outcomes in the strategy and how children's authorities have co-operated with each other in the provision of children's services.

Although formal monitoring and reporting have not yet commenced, much effective co-operation leading to improved outcomes has already been documented via other complementary 'issue specific' reporting mechanisms and can be seen, for example, on the Children and Young People's Strategic Partnership and Safeguarding Board NI websites. Children's authorities have worked, and continue to work, co-operatively with each other and with other children's service providers to improve the well-being of children and young people when opportunities arise. Recent examples of collaborative working include the development of the Emotional Health and Well-being Framework (the Departments of Education and Health and the Public Health Agency); 'Our Journey Through Disability' (the Southern Health and Social Care Trust (SHSCT), Children and Young People's Strategic Partnership Newry & Mourne Locality Planning Group members and parents of children with disabilities); and an excellent pilot between Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services, the Youth Justice Agency and the SHSCT supporting young people in Woodlands with mental health issues.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Education whether he intends to equalise survivor benefits provision within the Northern Ireland Teachers' Pension Scheme in line with the provisions which were introduced in England on 14 July 2020.

Mr Weir: In a Written Ministerial Statement made on 20 July 2020, by the Chief Secretary to the Treasury, the UK government concluded that changes are required to the Teachers' Pension Scheme England & Wales (TPS E&W) to address sexual orientation discrimination highlighted by a case brought in the Employment Tribunal against the Secretary of State for Education in GB. The UK government believes that the discrimination will also need to be remedied in other public service pension schemes.

The implications for NI public service pension schemes, including the Northern Ireland Teachers' Pension Scheme (NITPS), have been considered by the Collective Consultation Working Group (CCWG) which is co-chaired by Department of Finance officials and the NI Committee – Irish Congress of Trade Unions. CCWG recognise the impact of this case on NI public service pension schemes and it is expected that, where necessary, provisions to remedy potential discrimination will be introduced by the affected NI schemes, including NITPS.

The Department is currently assessing what changes are required to scheme rules for NITPS. Whilst TPS E&W announced scheme changes on 20 July 2020, in order to equalise survivor benefits, those changes have not yet been implemented.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Education what steps his Department is taking to address the progress of Minor Capital Works projects impacted negatively as a result of COVID-19 disruption.

(AQO 1042/17-22)

Mr Weir: As a means of taking pressure off the backlog of minor works, my Department has appointed four new Design Teams via the CPD Integrated Consultancy Team Framework Agreement to progress additional minor works projects.

The Education Authority is also currently undertaking a review of the processes and resources applied in delivery of all capital programmes with the aim of accelerating delivery.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) why the £11 million Engage Programme school restart funding was not made available to special school principals and pupils; and (ii) whether a full equality impact screening was completed before issuing this grant.

(AQW 10000/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) Special schools are not included in the Engage programme as they don't receive a delegated budget; rather their staffing complement is provided according to identified and individual pupil need, often with one to one or small group adult to child ratios.

I have asked officials to work with the Education Authority and Special Schools Principals to consider options for a similar model to the Engage programme, subject to securing funding, to help address the impact of school closures, in terms of lost learning, on children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools. A meeting of the working group is to take place in coming weeks.

- (ii) The Engage programme was subject to an equality screening process and the policy was screened out. A copy of the screening document can be found on the Department's website at:-

<https://www.education-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/education/Equality%20Screening%20-the%20Engage%20Programme%20%28August%202020%29.pdf>

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education whether his Department will proceed with area planning in relation to schools. (AQW 10002/17-22)

Mr Weir: At an extraordinary meeting of the Area Planning Steering Group held on 21 October, the decision was taken formally to resume all area planning operations and structures from that date.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he will commission an independent review of special educational needs provision.

(AQW 10008/17-22)

Mr Weir: There have been a number of reports about Special Educational Needs (SEN) provision in recent years/months, for example, the Northern Ireland Commissioner for Children and Young People (NICCY) 'Too Little, Too Late' Report which I received in March 2020, and more recently the issue was discussed at the Public Accounts Committee in October.

The EA has established a Strategic Development Programme that will encompass all operational changes required to SEN under one programme. Where possible and appropriate, this will include implementation of the recommendations from the 2020 Northern Ireland Audit Office (NIAO) SEN Impact report, the Departmental SEN Learner Journey project, NICCY report and the EA's own internal audit of practice.

In terms of governance arrangements the Department has established a SEN Governance Group which will maintain strategic oversight and co-ordination of the overall programme of improvements within the EA and Department. This Group is chaired by the Department's Permanent Secretary and membership includes the Chief Executive of the EA and the Chair of the EA Board.

The Department is currently consulting on a New SEN Framework which will introduce new duties for the EA, Schools and Health designed to reduce timescales and bureaucracy, which will ultimately lead to improvements and efficiencies in the SEN process.

Given this on-going work I have no plans to commission an independent review of special educational needs provision at this time.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Education how many referrals for school absenteeism have been made to the Education Welfare Service in each year since 2015.

(AQO 1043/17-22)

Mr Weir: Education Welfare Service received the following number of referrals during the previous four academic years:

- 2015/15 – 4,419 referrals
- 2016/17 – 4,888 referrals
- 2017/18 – 4,835 referrals
- 2018/19 – 4,539 referrals
- 2019/20 – 2,703 referrals

The number of referrals in 2019/20 were somewhat lower than in previous years, which reflects the fact that schools were closed from March through to June due to the current pandemic.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Education how many positive COVID-19 cases among pupils and teachers are linked to transmission within the school setting.

(AQO 1045/17-22)

Mr Weir: Principals and school staff have been working tirelessly to keep schools safe for pupils and their efforts have ensured that schools remain a safe environment. However, we still need to be conscious that we are operating in a pandemic and therefore the return to more normal operations will be different to what schools, parents and pupils are used to.

My Department does not collect information on how many COVID-19 cases are linked to transmission within schools. It is the Public Health Agency (PHA) who hold and publish information on positive cases across all sectors.

We continue to work with the PHA and the Department of Health to ensure that information on education settings is produced on a sensible, informative basis.

The PHA is publishing weekly and monthly bulletins on the COVID-19 pandemic in Northern Ireland. This information includes information in relation to schools. The latest PHA stats indicate that up to the end of week 43 (ending 25 October 2020) 2,137 confirmed COVID-19 cases had been reported by schools to the PHA School Team.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister of Education for an update on the Council for Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment's contingency and scenario planning for examinations in 2021.

(AQO 1046/17-22)

Mr Weir: I have agreed a wide range of adaptations to GCSEs and A levels to reduce assessment burden. CCEA is now working at pace and engaging with schools to develop contingency arrangements to deal with a range of potential public health scenarios in the event that there is further significant disruption as the year progresses.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new build for Carrick Primary School, Lurgan.

(AQO 1047/17-22)

Mr Weir: Carrick Primary School was included in the list of projects I announced on 14 January 2020 to advance in design under the second call to the School Enhancement Programme (SEP2).

The school had also been submitted by the Education Authority (EA) for consideration under the Major Works protocol.

Under the SEP2 protocol, schools which secure investment under SEP2 will not be considered for a wholly new build project for seven years. In consultation with the EA, Carrick Primary School has chosen to remain within SEP2. It was subsequently withdrawn from consideration under the Major Works protocol.

The EA carried out a site visit on 18 June 2020 to discuss the scope of the proposed SEP2 project.

The tender process for an Integrated Consultant Team (ICT) for the SEP2 project has been initiated by the EA. Once appointed, the ICT will take the project through the design and construction phases.

I anticipate that the facilities provided under the SEP2 project will have a positive impact on the community at Carrick Primary School.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Education how the Engage Programme and the associated funding will support the education of those most in need.

(AQO 1048/17-22)

Mr Weir: Given the unique circumstances of the Covid-19 pandemic, all primary and post primary schools in Northern Ireland are receiving funding through the Engage programme to provide additional teaching resources.

The aim is to limit any long-term adverse impact of school closures on educational standards by supporting pupils' learning and engagement on their return to school.

Through the programme, qualified teachers will provide child centred one to one, small group or team teaching support within school to those pupils identified by the school as most benefiting from additional support.

As schools know their pupils best, they will decide for themselves what programme delivery should look like in their school. The structure of programme delivery will therefore be based on each school's unique circumstances and the needs of their pupils.

This is likely to focus on supporting pupils to be motivated and engaged to learn and it may help to develop social, emotional and behavioural skills to encourage success at school and with peers.

I would also expect that the programme will help many pupils to develop their resilience and capacity to respond more confidently to challenges, and support their health and wellbeing.

Mr Butler asked the Minister of Education for an update on temporary variation numbers for post-primary schools in the Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council area for the 2020-21 academic year.

(AQO 1049/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are 10 post-primary schools within the Castlereagh and Lisburn City Council area providing a total of 8,388 school places, 1,447 of which are in Year 8.

For the 2020/21 academic year my Department approved an additional 15 Year 8 places at three schools in the area via Temporary Variation; 11 places at Lagan College and two places at both Laurelhill Community College and Wallace High School.

In addition, three schools received approval for temporary increases to their enrolment numbers to a total of 130 places to facilitate the return of pupils into their sixth forms.

Lisnagarvey High School was granted 72 additional places, Lagan College 30 additional places and Wallace High School 28 additional places.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of the repeal of the exemption for teachers from the Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998.

(AQO 1050/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Fair Employment and Treatment (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 (FETO) is the legislative responsibility of The Executive Office. Any amendment to that legislation would be a matter for them to address.

I am committed to delivering equality for all school sectors; this includes consideration of an end to the Article 71 Exception of FETO.

My officials are currently working with TEO to consider the matter further.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new build for Rowandale Integrated Primary School, Moira.

(AQO 1051/17-22)

Mr Weir: Good progress has been made on the major capital investment project at Rowandale Integrated Primary School in Moira. This project will provide a new 14 class school building and associated facilities on the school's existing extended site.

The purchase of the additional land needed for the project was completed in July 2020. The planning application is currently under consideration with Lisburn & Castlereagh City Council and work to procure the Integrated Supply Team to construct the facilities is underway.

Subject to achieving planning permission and the completion of the procurement process, I anticipate that construction should commence on site in the second half of 2021.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education what level of COVID-19-related individual absence or school closures would activate centre assessed grades for examinations in 2021.

(AQO 1052/17-22)

Mr Weir: It is sensible to plan for 2021 examinations taking place, and I have agreed a wide range of adaptations to GCSEs and A levels to reduce assessment burden. CCEA is now working at pace and engaging with schools to develop contingency arrangements to deal with a range of potential public health scenarios in the event that there is further significant disruption as the year progresses.

Department of Finance

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Finance whether he plans to intervene to ensure that Civil Service agency staff receive their outstanding backpay.

(AQW 9450/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): The 2019 pay award was approved and implemented for agency workers on assignment to NICS departments in September 2020. Work started immediately on calculating, checking and approving any back pay entitlement, and back pay has already been paid to a number of agency workers. The remaining payments will be made over the coming weeks.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance whether (i) dog kennel operators; and (b) cattery operators are eligible for the Coronavirus: Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.
(AQW 9456/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) which I introduced, is providing financial support to those businesses using commercial premises which are required by the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 to severely limit their operations or close. Further details on this Scheme, including eligibility requirements and how to apply are available at:

<https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>

The Department of Health's Regulations specify precisely those activities that must be severely restricted or cease at this time; applications from businesses carrying out such activities are thereby 'passported' to the LRSS for assessment and payment. As dog kennel and cattery operations are not required to limit their operations or close under these current Health Regulations, they will not be eligible for the LRSS. However, the Department for the Economy has introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme for businesses affected more generally by the restrictions and you may wish to apply.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 8667/17-22, whether the figures provided on available desk space take account of social distancing requirements.
(AQW 9484/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The figures provided in the response to AQW 8667/17/22 on available desk space does not take account of social distancing requirements. The figures quoted are the total number of available desk spaces in buildings.

Departments hold information on available desk space, taking account of social distancing requirements, in the buildings for which they have premises responsibility based on their Business and Employer's risk assessment that they carried out, as set out in the NICS Recovery Plan.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance how many disciplinary proceedings have been initiated in the NI Civil Service on foot of the findings of the Report of the Independent Public Inquiry into the Non-Domestic Renewable Heat Incentive Scheme.
(AQW 9488/17-22)

Mr Murphy: There were ten matters of disciplinary proceedings initiated in the NI Civil Service on foot of the findings of the Report of the Independent Public Inquiry into the Non-Domestic Renewable Heat Incentive Scheme.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Finance to detail the level of additional financial support, since the outbreak of the pandemic health crisis, that has been allocated to Northern Ireland from the Chancellor of the Exchequer.
(AQW 9518/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Treasury has guaranteed a total of £2.8 billion of additional funding for the Executive in 2020-21. This includes £1.6 billion in Barnett consequentials which were identified prior to the guarantee.

The guarantee was put in place to provide upfront COVID-19 funding, avoiding the drip-feed of Barnett consequentials following announcements of English programmes, thereby assisting the Executive to plan appropriately.

Details of this additional financial support are provided in the Table below.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance what assessment he has made of the role that the Rating System can play to disincentivise owners of properties from letting them fall into a state of dereliction.

Mr Murphy: There are a number of pre-existing features of the rating system that aim to help prevent properties falling into a state of dereliction. The policies of non-domestic vacant rating at 50% of the occupied liability, and the rating of empty homes at 100% of occupied liability, both operate with the express policy rationale of encouraging occupation of properties rather than letting them rest as vacant.

My Department also has statutory enabling powers that can be used to prevent so called 'deliberate dereliction' of empty domestic property in order to avoid rates in that sector, where there is a higher risk of dereliction being used as an avoidance step. Likewise the Back in Business scheme (which the Executive have agreed will be reinstated once Covid measures expire), acts alongside non domestic vacant rating to incentivise new business occupiers of long term vacant property to provide a 50% reduction on their first year's rates bill.

In terms of the impact of Covid-19 pandemic on the business sector, and to help reduce the likelihood of businesses vacating their property, the Executive has provided an unprecedented £300 million plus in rates support packages for over 25,000 businesses, as well as tailored and sectoral support provision outside the rates system. These policy interventions, alongside other methods to mitigate dereliction or underuse of property remain the subject of ongoing review, in particular within the rating system which is dependent upon rateable property to finance local and central government functions.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the reform of building regulations to include Changing Places toilets in all future plans for public buildings.

Mr Murphy: Officials in my Department's Building Standards Branch are finalising research to inform the work of a technical sub-committee of the local Building Regulations Advisory Committee that is currently being established to scope out proposals for wider stakeholder consultation. Christine McClements, the mother of a child with severe disabilities, who has extensive knowledge as a Civil Engineer and user of Changing Places Toilets, has already agreed to join the sub-committee. We are seeking other members with the relevant expertise from representative organisations and industry. Draft proposals could be agreed and ready for wider consultation sometime in the spring of 2021.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 9028/17-22, whether a business that has to close their cafe under the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No. 2) (Amendment No. 9) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020, which makes up a considerable proportion of their operations but not their total business, will be eligible for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

Mr Murphy: Restrictions on the hospitality sector are detailed in Schedule 2 paragraph 8 of the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020 and apply to a person responsible for carrying on a business or members' club which sells or provides food or drink for consumption on the premises. The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) was established with the sole purpose of providing financial support to any such business specified in the Health Protection Regulations which has been required to restrict or cease trading at this time.

Where a hospitality business cannot operate, albeit it has ancillary activities that are not restricted, the business may apply under this Scheme. Further details on the Scheme, including eligibility requirements and how to apply are available at: <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/LocalisedRestrictionsSupport>

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Finance to detail (i) the delays in the payment of grants under the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme; and (ii) the expected amount of time from application to payment of grants under the scheme.
(AQW 9680/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (i) Applications for a 2 week support scheme opened on 14th October 2020 in the Derry City and Strabane Council area. The Scheme was subsequently extended by a further 4 weeks to include applications from all Council areas on 19th October 2020.

Financial Regulations to enable payments to be made to all Council areas under this scheme came into effect on Friday 30th October 2020. Land & Property Services (LPS) is working through applications as quickly as possible. Once an application has been processed and verified, an applicant will receive an e-mail to advise them payment is being made. This will normally follow within three working days of the e-mail.

Officials in my Department have worked as swiftly as possible to issue payments in line with Regulations without delay while maintaining their responsibilities for managing public money.

- (ii) At present over 11,400 applications have been received. Once the applications are received they must be checked and verified to see if they meet the scheme criteria. At the time of this response, £10.83 million of payments have issued to 2,910 businesses. A further 300 applications have so far been identified as not meeting the criteria – we expect this number to be greater as the process continues. It is not possible to give an accurate turnaround time on all applications as it will depend on the individual application and the amount of manual intervention required to validate it.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance what his Department is doing to fulfil the Executive's commitment to building a united and shared society through the Together: Building a United Community strategy.
(AQW 9686/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Announcement on 1 November.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether there are any Barnett consequentials arising from the announcement on 1 November that the UK Government would provide £1.8 billion of funding for Transport for London.[R]
(AQW 9730/17-22)

Mr Murphy: COVID funding has been provided to the Executive via the Treasury Guarantee. This guarantee is designed to provide upfront COVID-19 funding, avoiding the drip-feed of Barnett consequentials following announcements of English programmes, thereby assisting the Executive to plan appropriately. In that regard it is not possible to distinguish the elements of English funding which make up the guarantee until funding is reconciled to English programmes at the end of the year.

The Chancellor's 5 November announcement included an additional £400 million, bringing the total Guarantee for the Executive to £2.8 billion.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether there are any Barnett consequentials arising from the UK Government's economic support announcements on 31 October 2020.
(AQW 9731/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The funding for business support grants in England which was announced on 31 October is anticipated to attract a Barnett consequential however for 2020-21 COVID funding has been provided to the Executive via the Treasury Guarantee.

This guarantee is designed to provide upfront COVID-19 funding, avoiding the drip-feed of Barnett consequentials following announcements of English programmes, thereby assisting the Executive to plan appropriately. In that regard it is not possible to confirm the elements which make up the guarantee until funding is reconciled to English programmes at the end of the year.

The Chancellor's 5 November announcement included an additional £400 million, bringing the total Guarantee for the Executive to £2.8 billion.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Finance (i) whether a civil partnership registered in England or Wales can be converted to marriage in this jurisdiction; and (ii) if not, what actions can be taken to remove any barriers to allow this to happen.
(AQW 9774/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Marriage and Civil Partnership (Northern Ireland) (No.2) Regulations 2020, which will come into force on 7 December 2020, were introduced by the British Government. They do not make any provision for the conversion of civil partnerships registered outside this jurisdiction to marriages in this jurisdiction. A couple who have registered a civil partnership in England and Wales will therefore not be able to convert their relationship to a marriage here. Such a couple will need to convert their civil partnership to a marriage in England and Wales (or in a jurisdiction that permits overseas conversions) which will then be recognised as a marriage here.

Any change to this position to permit overseas conversions would require primary legislation.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Finance (i) how many businesses in North Antrim have received the latest tranche of COVID-19 support in the form of the new Localised Restrictions Support Scheme; and (ii) what percentage this is of the total businesses who qualify, as of 4 November 2020.

(AQW 9799/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (i) LPS is currently unable to collate this information by Parliamentary Constituency. However, I can advise that, to date, payments have issued to 2142 businesses via the scheme.
- (ii) LPS does not have a definitive list of eligible businesses which is why an application process is required to determine eligibility. The total number of applications received to date from businesses is 11,241. Until applications have been processed, LPS cannot determine how many of the applications received meet the eligibility criteria. In addition, businesses that are eligible may not apply. It is therefore not possible to advise of the percentage of eligible businesses paid to date.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Finance how many people have died as a result of (i) coronary heart disease; and (ii) cancer in (a) 2015; (b) 2016; (c) 2017; (d) 2018; (e) 2019; and (f) 2020 to date.

Mr Murphy: Deaths are registered with the General Register Office and analysed by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA). The statistics in table 6.1 of the Registrar General Annual report 2018, cause of death tables provide, using the International Classification of Diseases (ICD10) codes, the data requested for 2015 to 2018. The ICD10 codes for Cancer are C00-C97. Your request for deaths due to 'Coronary heart disease' has been interpreted as Ischaemic Heart Disease (I20 to I25).

<https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-annual-report-2018-cause-death>

Table 1c of the Registrar General Quarterly tables will provide the provisional statistics, as requested, for 2019 and 2020 (up to June). <https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-quarterly-tables-2020>.

An update to these statistics for Q3 (July to September), 2020 will be published on 18th November 2020 on the NISRA website. <https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-quarterly-tables-2020>.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Finance to detail the projected deaths from (i) coronary heart disease; and (ii) cancer in (i) the remainder of 2020; (ii) 2021; and (iii) 2022.

(AQW 9806/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The information requested is not available. The Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) does not produce statistical projections on deaths data.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Finance how many owners of anaerobic digester plants are entitled to Small Business Rates Relief.

(AQW 9921/17-22)

Mr Murphy: At present there are 5 anaerobic digesters in the Valuation List with a NAV below £15,001 which are entitled to Small Business Rate Relief.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 9469/17-22, how much it cost his Department, in each of the last five years, to grant Small Business Rates Relief to the 516 owners of wind turbines who received this relief.

(AQW 9924/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The number of Wind Turbines in receipt of Small Business Rate Relief (SBRR) and the total amount awarded in each of the last 5 rating years are detailed in the table below.

Rating Year	No receiving SBRR	SBRR Total
2015/16	340	£178,035
2016/17	491	£258,857
2017/18	579	£362,900
2018/19	562	£397,963
2019/20	505	£358,741

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Finance (i) for an update on the processing of Localised Restrictions Support Scheme payments; (ii) how many applications have been received; and (iii) how many have been paid.
(AQW 9959/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (i) I opened applications for a 2 week support scheme on 14th October 2020 in the Derry City and Strabane Council area and subsequently extended the Scheme by a further 4 weeks to include applications from all Council areas on 19th October 2020.

When applications opened on 14th October 2020, LPS was not in a position to immediately review applications and issue payments. A number of technical IT requirements had to be completed to facilitate access to the information required to administer applications. My Department also had to make regulations to provide the legal authority to issue the payments and these came into effect on 16 October. In addition, a number of processes for issuing large volumes of payments on approved applications had to be agreed and implemented.

Payments have been issuing to applicants from within the Derry City and Strabane Council area since 16th October 2020.

The regulations to extend the Scheme to all Council areas only came into effect on 30th October 2020. While it was possible to accept applications on the existing application portal from 19th October 2020, when the announcement to extend the scheme was made, it was not possible to issue payments to applicants within the extended scope area until after the regulations came into effect on 30th October 2020.

Officials from LPS worked as quickly as possible to start issuing payments as soon after the date regulations took effect.

LPS started to issue payments in respect of applications from businesses outside of Derry City and Strabane District Council area on 4th November 2020.

- (ii) A total of 11,322 applications had been received at the time of this response.
(iii) A total of 2,290 payments had issued at the time of this response.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance to detail (i) the number of applications received; and (ii) the number of payments made for the COVID-19 Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.
(AQW 9972/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (i) The number of applications received at the time of this response is 11,241.
(ii) The number of payments made at the time of this response is 2,142.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Finance when businesses who have successfully applied to the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme will be issued payments.
(AQW 10017/17-22)

Mr Murphy: LPS officials are working as quickly as possible to review applications and issue payments.

It is not possible to give an estimate of the turnaround time on payments on all eligible applications as it will depend on the individual application and the amount of manual intervention required to validate it.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Finance to detail the (i) number of Localised Restrictions Support Scheme applications received to date; and (ii) average time taken for applications and payments to be processed.
(AQW 10027/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (iv) A total of 11,405 applications had been received at the time of this response.
(ii) 2910 payments have been issued to businesses with a value of £10.83M to date. It is not possible to give an accurate estimate of the turnaround time on all applications as it will depend on the individual application and the amount of manual intervention required to validate it.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Finance whether he will consider reviewing the legislation on the rating of vacant properties where a property could not be repaired to a habitable condition without major renovation.

Mr Murphy: A domestic property that is truly derelict will be removed from the Valuation List and therefore will have no rate liability. I do not believe there is any need to review the legislation on the rating of vacant domestic properties.

Any person can ask the District Valuer in Land & Property Services to carry out a review of the rateable capital value of a property. The District Valuer will consider the actual state of the property and is guided by both statute and case law in determining if a property is considered to be beyond reasonable repair, such that it will never be a dwelling again.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Finance whether current European Union funding programmes will be replaced in full by the British Government.
(AQO 1061/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The British Government have given a commitment that as a minimum they will replace EU Structural Funds in full and have indicated that announcements will be made with those for the Spending Review. However I have concerns around how the British Government calculates the value of replacements and how replacement funding will respect the devolution settlement.

I am working alongside the Welsh and Scottish Governments to secure full replacement of the spending power that we derived from EU sources as well as the freedom to spend according to our local priorities.

I welcome the continued commitment to the PEACE Plus Programme which is currently under development and will be a key aspect of our future funding strategy.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Finance whether the British Government has implemented its New Decade, New Approach commitment to remove corporation tax liability from the Housing Executive.
(AQO 1062/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My Department has been pressing on this issue for some time now, with my Permanent Secretary raising the matter directly with her Treasury counterpart, who has now agreed to examine the issue.

Officials in my Department and the Department for Communities are liaising with Treasury and HMRC to set out the rationale for the removal of this multimillion pound corporation tax liability. I will continue to press for this matter to be resolved to free up much needed resources for the Housing Executive to use in addressing social housing need in the North.

I hope to have a response before the end of the month.

Mr McGuigan asked the Minister of Finance what support has been made available to sustain the local newspaper industry.
(AQO 1064/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As Members are already aware, I circulated a paper to Executive colleagues back in June seeking to provide the newspaper industry here with a 12 months rate holiday, given the significant loss of income that the sector has experienced. I remain keen to see this matter tabled at the Executive and agreed.

The Executive has engaged local newspapers to help in the important communication of COVID-19 public health messages. Overall spend on COVID-19 advertising from March until the end of September by the Executive is around £1.3 million. In the region of £875,000 in total has been spent on local media buying and, of that amount, the support to the Print media is around £150,000.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the work to amend building regulations to make changing places toilets mandatory in certain types of new builds and larger renovations.
(AQO 1065/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Officials in my Department's Building Standards Branch are finalising research to inform the work of a technical sub-committee of the local Building Regulations Advisory Committee that is currently being established to scope out proposals for wider stakeholder consultation. Christine McClements, the mother of a severely disabled child, who has extensive knowledge as a Civil Engineer and user of Changing Places Toilets, has already agreed to join the sub-committee. We are seeking other members with the relevant expertise from representative organisations and industry. Draft proposals could be agreed and ready for wider consultation sometime in the spring of 2021.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Finance what consultation he is undertaking on an extension of rates relief for the hospitality industry beyond the end of the current financial year.

Mr Murphy: Work is continuing on possible rating measures for the forthcoming year. I have met recently with a number of key stakeholders and ratepayers in the hotel and hospitality sectors and other business sectors to discuss the way forward, and I will be continuing my engagement over the coming weeks.

We are still in a very fluid situation, although I very much understand the need to bring certainty to businesses at the earliest opportunity for the next rating year.

I am continuing to draw on the consultation work carried out by my Department last autumn on business rates. Future rate support will need to be targeted at those sectors most in need and tailored to what we can afford in our Budget.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Finance how he is responding to calls by NI Water for substantial investment in waste water infrastructure.

(AQO 1067/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Executive's 2020-21 Budget gave DfI a Capital DEL Budget of £558.2m. This is by far the largest capital Budget of any of department and represents a 19% increase on the department's 2019-20 opening Budget. Of the £558.2m DfI allocated £105m and £150.4m respectively to NI Water.

It is up to the Minister for Infrastructure to prioritise that capital budget.

NI Water were also allocated an additional £15m capital which I announced in September, to enable them to bring forward investment in sewerage infrastructure, including a number of waste water treatment works this year.

I recently met the Infrastructure Minister to discuss the pressures facing her department over the PC21 period as part of the Budget process.

Of course, funding for NI Water needs to be viewed in the context of all pressures facing the Executive and the finite amount of resources available.

Department of Health

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he has a diagnostic recovery plan which includes an awareness campaign and a shorter diagnostic pathway for people with ovarian cancer.

(AQW 7000/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): The diagnosis and treatment of ovarian cancer in Northern Ireland is delivered in line with National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE). Diagnosis is entirely a matter of clinical judgement as to the sequencing of diagnostic tests for those patients suspected of having ovarian cancer. Therefore it is possible for GPs to refer for ultrasound without the result of a CA125, thereby speeding up the diagnostic pathway, but this is completely the decision of the GP. In relation to awareness campaigns, an ovarian cancer campaign takes place annually during March - ovarian cancer awareness month.

Last year coproduction work began on the development of a 10 year Northern Ireland Cancer Strategy, with policy makers, health representatives and charities actively working in its development. This cancer strategy will consider support for patients along the whole cancer pathway including psychological support from diagnosis to during and after treatment. The strategy will include options and recommendations for further actions; these will link to 3, 5 and 10 year goals and intervals.

COVID-19 continues to present unprecedented capacity challenges across the cancer pathway which the service is actively managing. All possible steps will be taken to maintain services during the current and any future surges, including commissioning additional assessments and treatments from independent sector providers, with capacity prioritised for those patients with suspected or confirmed cancer.

I have established a Cancer Services Rebuilding Cell to oversee the resumption of cancer screening, diagnosis and treatment in clinically safe environments as quickly as possible, and to protect these services as much as possible throughout the pandemic, taking into account existing capacity constraints and the ongoing pandemic response.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he has a recovery plan focusing on support services, including psychological support, for ovarian cancer patients.

Mr Swann: The diagnosis and treatment of ovarian cancer in Northern Ireland is delivered in line with National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE). Diagnosis is entirely a matter of clinical judgement as to the sequencing of diagnostic tests for those patients suspected of having ovarian cancer. Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health to detail the work his Department is undertaking in terms of providing a COVID-19 vaccination programme in schools.

(AQW 7280/17-22)

Mr Swann: Vaccination policy is informed by recommendations and advice provided by the independent Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI). JCVI will advise on which COVID-19 vaccine(s) might be used, and on the priority groups to receive the vaccine based on the best available clinical, modelling and epidemiological data.

JCVI have met several times to consider a COVID-19 programme and their latest interim advice was published on the 25 September. Current evidence indicates that the risk of serious disease and death from COVID-19 increases exponentially with age and is also increased in those with a number of underlying health conditions.

Accordingly, the prioritisation of a school based COVID-19 vaccination programme will be kept under review.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health what action will he take to ensure the introduction of the Cytosponge TFF3 test in hospitals and other healthcare settings.

(AQW 7595/17-22)

Mr Swann: The National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) provides national guidance and advice designed to support health service commissioners and staff who are considering using new medical devices and other medical or diagnostic technologies to improve healthcare. NICE has a global reputation for rigour, independence and objectivity, which is informed by the best available scientific evidence.

NICE have confirmed that they do not currently make any recommendations on the use of the Cytosponge-TFF3 test in any of their guidelines. However, they are in the process of developing briefing on the use of the Cytosponge-TFF3 test which when published will inform the potential use of this technology in the National Health Service and in Health and Social Care, Northern Ireland.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether there are any plans to install more drive-in COVID-19 testing centres.

(AQW 8126/17-22)

Mr Swann: The location of testing facilities across Northern Ireland, including fixed sites and Mobile testing units (MTUs), is kept under constant review with MTUs deployed in response to local need.

Current information is available at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/testing-covid-19>

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health for an update on the roll out of the uncapped PrEP trial; and whether people seeking the treatment will have to pay for access to the drug.

(AQW 8288/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is anticipated that there will be a pilot PrEP clinic available in Northern, Southern and South Eastern Trusts, as well as the recommencement of the Belfast clinic as of late October 2020. This development is dependent on both the availability of physical space and recruitment but Trusts are hopeful that a solution can be found to enable the clinics to become operational.

PrEP services had commenced in WHSCT in October 2019 in order to increase and improve patient access. The Western Trust continued to deliver the PrEP service throughout the pandemic. The WHSCT has committed to keeping PrEP clinics open until March 2021.

There is an on-going effort between the HSCB/PHA/Trusts and the Department to seek recurrent funding for this service so that individuals will continue to have free access.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many nurses in each Health and Social Care Trust have tested positive for COVID-19.

(AQW 8294/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the number of nurses that have tested positive for COVID-19 has been provided by each Health and Social Care Trust and is detailed in the table attached.

Number of nurses who tested positive for COVID-19 by HSC Trust

HSC Trust	Number of Nurses Tested Positive ¹
Belfast	60
Northern	98
South Eastern	35
Southern	105

HSC Trust	Number of Nurses Tested Positive ¹
Western	22

1 It should not be assumed that all of the staff were infected whilst at work.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQO 93/17-22, whether there has been any progress recruiting staff and capacity building at the Regional Fertility Centre to enable three cycles of IVF to be provided in line with the New Decade, New Approach commitment.

(AQW 8328/17-22)

Mr Swann: I announced, prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, my plans to establish a Project Board to take forward the welcome New Decade, New Approach commitment to increasing the number of publicly-funded IVF cycles. However, although membership of the Project Board has been determined, progress has been temporarily delayed due to the ongoing COVID-19 response.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the Immigration Health Surcharge.

(AQW 8403/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Immigration Health Surcharge (IHS) was introduced in 2015 by the Immigration Act 2014 (which applies to the whole of the UK).

The IHS is paid by temporary non-EEA migrants who come to the UK for 6 months or more and was introduced to ensure that temporary migrants make a fair contribution to the comprehensive range of NHS services available to them during their stay.

The IHS is collected by the Home Office as part of the immigration application process and it is payable in full, upfront, for the length of the individual's visa period.

Those who have paid the IHS are exempt from charge and entitled to access free healthcare on the same basis as those who are ordinarily resident in the UK.

Certain categories of person are exempt from paying the IHS:

- those applying for indefinite leave to enter or remain in the UK;
- health and care workers who are eligible for a Tier 2 Health and Care visa (or their dependant);
- diplomats or members of a visiting armed forces and not subject to immigration control;
- dependants of a member of the UK's armed forces;
- dependants of a member of another country's armed forces who is exempt from immigration control;
- family members of a European national with European Union treaty rights;
- those applying for a visa for the Isle of Man or Channel Islands;
- British Overseas Territory citizens resident in the Falkland Islands
- asylum seekers or those applying for humanitarian protection (or their dependant);
- domestic workers who have been identified as victims of slavery or human trafficking;
- those applying for discretionary leave to remain in the UK as someone who has been identified as a victim of slavery or human trafficking (or their dependant);
- those to whom the Home Office's domestic violence concession applies (or their dependant);
- if being made to leave the UK would be against their rights under Article 3 of the European Convention of Human Rights (or their dependant).

The IHS is currently £470 per year for students, those on a Youth Mobility Scheme visa and those under the age of 18 at time of application, and £624 per year for all other visa and immigration applications.

Northern Ireland is entitled to a share of the receipts collected, in line with the Barnett formula. The receipts collected vary from year to year and consequently the amount which Northern Ireland receives also varies from year to year.

The funding is part of the «general» funding received by the Department and the Department is free to allocate it according to current health priorities.

On 21st May 2020 the Prime Minister announced that overseas health and social care workers would be exempted from paying the IHS.

On 4th August 2020 the UK government launched a new visa for health and social care workers and their dependent family called the Health and Care Visa. This Visa forms part of the Tier 2 (General) Visa regime for skilled workers.

People applying for the Health and Care Visa, and their dependent family, are exempt from paying the IHS.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister of Health (i) to list the names of the panel appointed to investigate the level three Serious Adverse Incidents at Craigavon Area Hospital and Daisy Hill Hospital in regards to COVID-19 outbreaks; (ii) to detail the terms of reference for the panel; and (iii) on which date the panel commenced its investigation.

(AQW 8493/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Details of panel members appointed are:
- Dr Gopal Rao, Consultant Microbiologist London North West University Healthcare NHS Trust (Chair);
 - Dr Jean O'Driscoll, Consultant Microbiologist Buckinghamshire Healthcare NHS Trust;
 - Dr Simon Watt, Consultant Haematologist, Manchester University NHS Foundation Trust;
 - Dr Charles Cayley, Medical Examiner London North West University Healthcare NHS Trust;
 - Ms Christine Perry, Independent Clinical Consultant in Nursing Infection Prevention and Control; and
 - Dr Tim Wyatt, Consultant Microbiologist, Public Health Agency
- (ii) The Terms of Reference of the Severe Adverse Incident (SAI) investigation have been agreed by the Chair, submitted to the Health and Social Care Board, and shared with the families concerned.
- (iii) The first meeting with the SAI Chair took place on 29 September 2020, at which the Chair provided specifications of information required to commence the review. Weekly meetings are taking place between the Southern Health and Social Care Trust and SAI panel to progress the investigation process.

Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health when the consultation on the introduction of a soft opt-out organ donation system will be launched.

(AQW 8504/17-22)

Mr Swann: Although I cannot confirm an exact date at this time, as I announced on 22 July, it is my intention to launch a consultation on the introduction of a soft opt-out system for organ donation in the autumn.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health (i) how many dementia assessments have been carried out in each month since March 2020; (ii) how many have been diagnosed with the condition; and (iii) how these assessments are being carried out under the current restrictions.

(AQW 8673/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Please find information detailed below.

It is currently not possible to give the breakdown between Dementia & Functional mental health illness assessments carried out. The figures also include both new and review dementia assessments.

*Northern and South Eastern HSC Trusts advised that the information for dementia diagnoses could only be obtained through a manual trawl through electronic data and could therefore only be supplied at disproportionate cost. The Northern Ireland figure represents dementia diagnoses across the other three HSC Trusts.

- (iii) During the initial response to the pandemic Trusts reconfigured services with staff being redeployed as necessary. Trust services are now being rebuilt whilst continuing to take precautions due to the on-going pandemic. Trust Memory Services have adapted to current circumstances and through the use of technology and other innovative practices, are able to undertake assessments and care reviews. Along with the Community and Voluntary sector, Trust staff will continue to provide local support to people with a dementia and their carers. This has included telephone calls to provide information and offer reassurance and use of other technologies including Apps and video links.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to outline his Department's plans to ask health and social care students to join the workforce as part of increasing staff as COVID-19 cases increase.

Mr Swann: My Department's overarching priority is to protect the learning of health and social care students so that they can successfully complete their studies and be able to join the workforce as registrants.

Some HSC Trusts have made a small number of temporary, part time, positions as Medical Student Technicians available to medical students on a volunteer basis.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health whether he will publish the medical and scientific evidence underpinning the Actions to Reduce COVID-19 Transmission Rates, as announced in the Assembly on 14 October 2020.

(AQW 8740/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department of Health has recently published a bank of evidence papers that have helped shape its response to COVID-19.

This can be found on the Department's website at

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/covid-19-scientific-evidence>

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health what the current waiting time is for adults to be assessed for autism spectrum disorder; and how he plans to reduce waiting times.

(AQW 8746/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data held by the Health and Social Care Board in relation to current waiting times for adult autism assessment is provided in the table below.

People with Autistic Spectrum Disorder have access to a range of core HSC services. Support may be provided via GP and Primary Care in the first instance or referral onto services such as psychology or psychiatry, dependant on assessed need. Access to other community services where relating to Mental Health or Learning Disability support are also available where appropriate, as are services provided through the community/voluntary sector.

I am however fully aware of the rising demand for adult autism services within our health and social care sector and of the growing need for the standardisation of provision of services across the regional Trusts. This is why my Department has been liaising with the Health and Social Care Board and with the Public Health Agency to commence a review of adult autism services. Work on this review was due to commence in April of this year, but due to pressures on the system as a result of COVID-19, plans to commence this work had to be paused.

However, mindful of the challenges which COVID 19 has presented to families and people with autism, I have recently written to my Executive Colleagues to advise them of my intention to publish an interim autism strategy early in 2021 which will ultimately inform the development of a fully co-produced strategy later in 2021. It is intended that the work to review adult autism services will be undertaken as an action within this strategy. Like its predecessor, this interim strategy contain cross-departmental actions recognising that adults with autism require a wide range of supports across for example health, education, housing and employment.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health what support mechanisms are in place for adults diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder.

(AQW 8747/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data held by the Health and Social Care Board in relation to current waiting times for adult autism assessment is provided in the table below.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what is the maximum capacity of COVID-19 testing possible in a single day.
(AQW 8790/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing capacity in Northern Ireland has increased significantly since the beginning of the pandemic and is delivered through two routes.

Pillar 1 testing is delivered via Health and Social Care laboratories and laboratories operating as part of the Scientific Advisory Consortium. My Department is actively working with colleagues in the Public Health Agency and in the Health and Social Care Trusts to further enhance Pillar 1 testing capacity.

Pillar 2 testing is delivered through participation in the National Testing Programme managed by the Department of Health and Social care in London (DHSC). Officials here continue to link with DHSC on a regular basis to ensure that testing capacity through Pillar 2 is maximised for Northern Ireland

Overall testing capacity is continually reviewed by my Department. Optimising available testing capacity will continue to be a key priority for me and for my officials in the weeks and months ahead.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) how many prisoners have been transferred to a secure Mental Health Unit, in each year for the last ten years; and (ii) how many prisoners have been transferred to a secure Mental Health Unit after being accommodated in a Care and Supervision Unit within the Northern Ireland Prison Service, in each year for the last ten years.
(AQW 8863/17-22)

Mr Swann: The South Eastern HSC Trust, who are responsible for the care of people in prison, indicate that information on the number of prisoners who have been transferred to a secure Mental Health Unit, and the number transferred after being accommodated in a Care and Supervision Unit is not available.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what support and treatment is available for lipedema patients, particularly patients in the more developed stages of the condition.
(AQW 8916/17-22)

Mr Swann: Patients with lipoedema are normally seen by the lymphoedema service. Patients whose care is not able to be managed by the lymphoedema and lipoedema services in Northern Ireland, and whose condition would be considered as clinically exceptional to others with the condition, can be referred by their lymphoedema and lipoedema specialist to a specialist provider in the UK.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health what support has been provided to dental businesses, engaged in NHS dental treatment, to meet additional costs incurred as a result of COVID-19 regulations.

Mr Swann: At the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, I established a General Dental Services Financial Support Scheme (FSS) to support the industry. Since the inception of the scheme the combined level of FSS and net Item of Service (IoS) payments made to General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) is approximately £37.5 million. This compares with the £28 million worth of net IoS payments made in the same period in 2019-20. Further, I have approved the availability of an extra £5m to address the reduction in revenue from patients, resulting in an additional total investment of £14.8m.

Discussions are ongoing with the British Dental Association in respect of the specifics of the support arrangements for the remainder of 2020-21 with the commitment that the full General Dental Services budget will be utilised to support the service. The financial support has been, and will continue to be, conditional on dentists providing care to registered Health Service patients on the basis of need.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health what plans his Department has to provide COVID-19-related financial support to dentistry.

Mr Swann: At the outset of the COVID-19 pandemic, I established a General Dental Services Financial Support Scheme (FSS) to support the industry. Since the inception of the scheme the combined level of FSS and net Item of Service (IoS) payments made to General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) is approximately £37.5 million. Miss McIlveen asked the Minister of Health what support is provided for women diagnosed with endometriosis.
(AQW 8976/17-22)

Mr Swann: Endometriosis services are provided as a sub-specialty within gynaecology and patients are normally referred to services provided by the Western and Belfast Health and Social Care Trusts.

Trusts are delivering services with reduced footfall across sites so as to comply with social distancing requirements and to keep patients and staff safe.

Trust Plans to rebuild services as safely and as quickly as possible, under the Strategic Framework which I published in June, will have been set back by the current surge in hospital admissions. Trusts are fully committed to maintaining essential services and resuming normal activity levels as soon as it is safe to do so for patients and staff. In the meantime, patients experiencing signs and symptoms of endometriosis should discuss any concerns with their GP.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health what plans are in place for the resumption of potentially life saving surgeries, including transplants, despite the current pressure the Health Service is facing.

Mr Swann: Trusts are currently working to reschedule cancelled surgeries as soon as it is safe and feasible to do so within the current conditions. I recently published a Strategic Surge Framework and individual Trust Surge Plans. These set out how the HSC system will manage further Covid-19 surges, whilst still trying to maintain as many essential services as possible.

The deceased donor kidney transplant service was reinstated on 17 April 2020 following a brief pause, and delivered over 100 transplants during the initial wave of the pandemic. The Belfast Health and Social Care Trust will also consider live donor kidney transplants on an individual case basis. Recognising the significant challenges in delivering surgical activity during the current surge in hospital admissions, my Department is working with the Health and Social Care Board and the Belfast Trust to ensure the full resumption of kidney transplant services as soon as practicable within the prevailing COVID-19 conditions.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Health why flu vaccinations for over 65 year olds are being cancelled at short notice.

Mr Swann: There has been a very high early demand for vaccines through the public seasonal flu vaccination programme this year. To meet this demand, virtually all centrally held stock of the flu vaccine used for those aged 65 and over has been distributed to GPs. This amounts to over 285,000 doses of vaccine, an unprecedented number at this stage of a seasonal flu vaccination programme.

There is a small volume of centrally held stock remaining and additional stock is due to arrive next week. In order to ensure that this stock is maintained throughout the season, a cap has been placed on GP ordering of this vaccine. This may have led to some GPs cancelling mass vaccination clinics; however, GPs are still able to order small volumes of this vaccine.

GPs have been asked to continue to use their existing stock to vaccinate those in the eligible groups. Where they have unused vaccine, and do not have immediate plans to use this, they have been asked to advise the PHA or Regional Procurement Pharmacy to enable redistribution to other practices that may require it.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister of Health whether additional technology, such as phones or video facilities, will be made available to GP practices to permit better access to the current telephone triage system.

Mr Swann: It is recognised that remote triage and consultation requires an increase in digital working and support continues to be provided to GP practices to ensure the appropriate telephony equipment is in place to support the delivery of patient services.

The Business Services Organisation and the Health and Social Care Board have worked with representatives from the BMA Northern Ireland General Practitioners Committee on the introduction of solutions to enable virtual consultations with patients along-side telephone first triage and face to face contacts.

Advice has been provided to GP practices on the options available and the GMS ICT Support Team in BSO offers some support to practices in the use of this technology.

Investing in the upgrading of GP Practice telephony services is a key priority in 2020/21 and, on 23rd October, the Health and Social Care Board launched the GMS Telephony Equipment Grant Scheme which is available to all GP practices in NI. The Scheme provides funding, based on patient list size, towards the purchase of:

- a new VoIP/VoIP ready telephone system;
- additional telephone lines added to the current telephone system between the 1st April 2020 to 31st March 2021;
- mobile phones and contracts for practice use (for any spend between 1st April 2020 and 31st March 2021).

In order to ensure timely patient care and ease of access for other professionals involved in care for patients, practices also must ensure that they provide a direct dial telephone number to their relevant care homes, HSC trust laboratories and community pharmacies. They must also undertake to provide this number as appropriate to any services that require a direct line to facilitate urgent professional handover of patient care.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister of Health whether any consideration has been given to making calls to GPs surgeries free of charge, given patients can no longer use the walk in service.

Mr Swann: There is no regional plan at present to provide free calls to GP surgeries, however practices are expected to ensure that patients contacting their practice do not incur charges above the equivalent of a local geographical call.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail each date he consented for the Department of Health to take forward Statutory Instruments relating to Brexit.

Mr Swann: Please see set out below EU Exit related Statutory Instruments and the dates of consent for them to be taken forward:

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health when AQW 8035/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 9224/17-22)

Mr Swann: I refer the member to my previous answer to AQW 8035/17-22 answered on 26 October 2020.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Health (i) how many key actions identified in pages 60 and 61 of his Department's surge planning framework have been completed; (ii) how many are in progress; and (iii) how many have not yet commenced.

(AQW 9259/17-22)

Mr Swann: I can confirm that of the 19 actions listed in the Strategic Surge Planning Framework document (pages 60 and 61), 11 have been completed and 8 are in progress.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Health to detail (i) how many nurses, doctors, social workers and other allied professionals are currently available and working; and (ii) what proportion in each specialty are working in (a) COVID-19; and (b) non-COVID-19 roles.

(AQW 9277/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the number of nurses, doctors, social workers and allied health professionals available and working across Health and Social Care as at 9th October 2020 is detailed in the table below.

Profession	Staff available and working * as at 9th October 2020
Nurse	13,101
Doctor	4,504
Social Worker	3,631
Allied Health Professional	4,732

Source: HSC Trusts and regional HSC organisations

* Excludes bank staff, and staff recorded as absent due to sickness absence, COVID-19 related absences, career break, maternity/paternity/adoption leave, parental leave, term time, suspension, or unpaid leave.

In addition to the figures provided, HSC Trusts and regional HSC organisations also have a bank of staff to draw on as and when required.

A split between staff working in a COVID role or non-COVID role is not possible as COVID-19 is impacting across all service areas and roles.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health how many health and social care staff are currently undergoing COVID-19-related training.

(AQW 9312/17-22)

Mr Swann: Staff across HSC are helping with the treatment of COVID-19 patients.

Where staff are being redeployed to manage pressures, necessary induction takes place to enable all staff to take on different duties. Staff are only asked to take on tasks within their current level of competence.

Staff availability rather than training is the key challenge when responding to the increased demand. Staff absence, including those absent due to COVID-19, remains a key issue for Trusts in terms of managing the ongoing pressures.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health (i) how many of the key actions identified in pages 60 and 61 of his Department's surge planning framework have been completed; (ii) how many are in progress; and (iii) how many have not yet commenced.

(AQW 9325/17-22)

Mr Swann: I can confirm that of the 19 actions listed in the Strategic Surge Planning Framework document (pages 60 and 61), 11 have been completed and 8 are in progress.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the mental health services deemed as essential services during this second COVID-19 surge.

(AQW 9345/17-22)

Mr Swann: All mental health services are deemed as essential during this second Covid-19 surge. Since the beginning of the pandemic, mental health services have in general not stopped unless it has been deemed clinically appropriate or in direct response to workforce resource pressure, albeit some services have been delivered using different methods such as phone and video communication.

Mental health services in Northern Ireland are provided in line with the regional stepped care model. This approach remains during the COVID-19 pandemic. All those who need care and treatment will be provided with services that are clinically appropriate.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of calls to the Health and Social Care Trust Psychological Support Helpline for each week since January 2020.

Mr Swann: The table below provides the information requested.

	Mar	Apr	May	June	July	Aug	Sept	Oct
BHSCT	0	16	34	34	4	8	13	20
NHSCT	3	28	19	11	7	4	0	0

WHSCCT	0	27	17	19	26	14	11	27

Please note that figures for January and February are not included as the service began in April, with the exception of in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust which started in March. October figures reflect the position on the 27th of that month.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the connection between poverty, deprivation and rates of cancer.

(AQW 9365/17-22)

Mr Swann: In 2011-17, the Standardised Incidence Rate (SIR) for cancer in Northern Ireland was 600 cases per 100,000 population. The inequality gap between the 20% most and least deprived areas was 24%, with the SIR in the most deprived areas 694 cases per 100,000 compared with 559 cases per 100,000 in the least deprived areas. Since 2007-13 there has been no change in the inequality gap between the most and least deprived areas.

Source: Health Inequalities Annual Report 2020 <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/health-inequalities-annual-report-2020>

Last year my Department began the development of a 10 year Northern Ireland Cancer Strategy. While the global pandemic has undoubtedly had an impact on our ability to finalise the strategy, my intention is still to have a draft strategy and recommendations available for consultation at the earliest opportunity, before finalising the strategy in the new year.

In addition, in order to address health inequalities we therefore need to tackle the wider social determinants of health and reduce inequalities in these determinants. This approach is at the heart of Making Life Better, which is the Executive's overarching strategic framework to improve health and address health inequalities.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of times the Air Ambulance Service has been called out in each of the last three years, broken down by Assembly constituency; and whether his Department will fully fund the service in future.

Mr Swann: The table below shows the number of missions undertaken by the Helicopter Emergency Medical Service (HEMS) team, in each financial year and by Council area, between the launch of the service on 22 July 2017 and 31 August 2020. This includes responses by the HEMS doctor and paramedic crew by helicopter or by rapid response vehicle (Delta 7), which is deployed in poor weather conditions or when tasked to an incident in close proximity to the base location. Figures are not held in a format which enables a breakdown by Assembly constituency.

In regard to funding arrangements, my Department continues to provide significant recurrent funding of approximately £1million per annum to enable the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service to cover the medical costs of the Helicopter Emergency Medical Service, including doctor and paramedic staff, training and equipment. This forms part of the agreed partnership funding model with Air Ambulance Northern Ireland, which raises charity funds (including public donations) to sustain the aviation side of the service. This has been found to be a highly effective model which operates in a number of UK HEMS services.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Health for an update on any extra funding being made available to NI Hospice; and whether he has asked the Executive for specific funds for NI Hospice.

(AQW 9393/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Board has recently completed a review of its contract funding for adult hospice services as a result of which additional funding of £867,360 has been made available for hospices backdated to April 2019.

The Health and Social Care Board has also recently agreed a 4% uplift for 2020/21 to the value of its core funding Service Level Agreements held with hospices in Northern Ireland - for the Northern Ireland Hospice this applies to both adult and children's services.

In addition to the core contract funding for children's hospice services, since 2018, a Paediatric and Life Limited Service (PALLs) has been commissioned from the NI Children's Hospice. This service provides a specialist nursing role to support children, families and clinicians in recognising and managing end of life needs as well as access to a dedicated bed in the NI Children's Hospice or in the child's own home. Initially provided for 2 years, my Department has made this funding available for a further year in 2020/21 to ensure the continued delivery of the service by the NI Children's Hospice.

I welcome the recent allocation of additional funding provided to my Department for hospices which recognises the impact of COVID-19 on their fundraising activities.

I met with representatives of the Northern Ireland Hospice in September and am aware of their concerns in relation to increasing demand for services and financial challenges. I have asked that my Department, Health and Social Care Board officials and the NI Hospice continue to engage on the funding issues.

Given the current funding arrangements for adult hospice services date back to 2004, it is appropriate that consideration be given to reviewing these in light of the changing context and demographics for palliative care and I would hope that hospices would engage with this.

New Decade New Approach included a commitment to increase investment in palliative and end of life care to fully implement service improvements for palliative and end of life care including enhancing the contribution of hospices; and to increase support for palliative perinatal care.

Investment to meet the NDNA palliative care commitment has been captured in my Department's response to the recent Department of Finance Budget 2021-24 Information Gathering Exercise.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health what is the current daily testing capacity for COVID-19 in (i) pillar 1; and (ii) pillar 2. (AQW 9402/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing capacity in Northern Ireland has increased significantly since the beginning of the pandemic and is delivered through two routes.

Pillar 1 testing is delivered via Health and Social Care laboratories and laboratories operating as part of the Scientific Advisory Consortium. My Department is working with colleagues in the Public Health Agency and in the Health and Social Care Trusts to further enhance Pillar 1 testing capacity.

Pillar 2 testing is delivered through participation in the National Testing Programme managed by the Department of Health and Social care in London (DHSC). Officials here continue to link with DHSC on a regular basis to ensure that testing capacity through Pillar 2 is maximised for Northern Ireland

Overall testing capacity is continually reviewed by my Department. Optimising available testing capacity will continue to be a key priority for me and for my officials in the weeks and months ahead.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health how much of the additional financial assistance for care homes responding to COVID-19 was underspent. (AQW 9407/17-22)

Mr Swann: Spend is continuing to be incurred. As indicated in my announcement on 21 October 2020 this assistance, along with additional funding recently received from the Department of Finance, still remains available for the support of care homes

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of eating disorder services in each Health and Social Care Trust. (AQW 9419/17-22)

Mr Swann: Support for patients with eating disorders are provided by all Health and Social Care Trusts in Northern Ireland. Eating disorder services are, like all other mental health services, under increasing pressures, with the number of referrals increasing by 43% between March 2019 and September 2020. The number of review patients seen has also increased significantly, with a 64% increase during the same period

To ensure that our eating disorder services continue to provide good quality care, action 9.2 of the Mental Health Action Plan is to review specialist mental health services.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the services his Department coordinates or commissions with the Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs on suicide prevention. (AQW 9420/17-22)

Mr Swann: A range of work is undertaken in collaboration across the Department of Health, the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB), the Public Health Agency (PHA), Health and Social Care Trusts and Community and Voluntary organisations to promote mental and emotional wellbeing, and to reduce social isolation, financial and debt problems, and other issues influencing suicide rates in rural communities.

The Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs Tackling Rural Policy and Social Isolation (TRPSI) Framework supports initiatives to address financial poverty, access poverty and social isolation.

TRPSI Funded initiatives funded include the Rural Support Charity which operates a telephone helpline and signposting service for farmers and rural dwellers. Rural Support also work in partnership with staff from the Farm Families Health Checks (FFHC). This programme is delivered in conjunction with the Public Health Agency and the Northern Health and Social Care Trust and provides 2,600 rural dwellers annually with a comprehensive physical and mental health screening service.

SPRING Social Prescribing is delivered with the support of the DoH, HSCB and in partnership with the rural Healthy Living Centres. It aims to link medical care to non-clinical locally delivered support services.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health to detail the cost to run an ICU bed in the (i) Altnagelvin; (ii) Antrim Area; (iii) Belfast City; (iv) Causeway; (v) Craigavon Area; (vi) Royal; (vii) South West Acute; (viii) Ulster; and (ix) Nightingale hospitals.
(AQW 9422/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the average cost of an ICU critical care bed day in hospital sites at (i) Altnagelvin; (ii) Antrim Area; (iii) Belfast City; (iv) Causeway; (v) Craigavon Area; (vi) Royal; (vii) South West Acute; (viii) Ulster are set out in the table below. These average costs relate to 2018/19 which is the latest information available.

Information on costs for the Nightingale Hospital is not available.

The average costs shown are the total costs of each critical care service divided by the total number of occupied bed days for each service for the financial year. The costs include direct staff costs, plus other inputs such as diagnostics, pharmacy and equipment, catering and laundry and an appropriate proportion of administrative and other overheads.

This information, along with indicative unit costs for other critical care beds, is also readily available via the following link on the Department of Health website: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/specialist-services>.

Critical Care Service	2018/19 - Average cost per bed day / £

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health what is the cost of running (i) a general inpatient bed; (ii) a mental health inpatient bed; and (iii) an outpatient bed.
(AQW 9423/17-22)

Mr Swann: The latest available costs from health and social care trusts relate to 2018/19 and are as follows:

Inpatients

- (i) The average cost per patient day across all clinical specialties was £777.
- (ii) The average cost per patient day for mental health specialties only (Programme of Care 5) was £470.

Outpatients

- (iii) The average cost of an outpatient attendance was £206.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Health when dental practices will be able to operate at full capacity.
(AQW 9445/17-22)

Mr Swann: Routine dental care resumed on 20 July 2020 however, enhanced infection prevention and control measures including additional Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) requirements, fallow time and cleaning after Aerosol Generating Procedures (AGPs) limit the number of patients that can be seen each day.

Currently, around 21,000 items of treatment are provided each week in Northern Ireland in General Dental Practice. Prior to the pandemic approximately 84,000 items of treatment were provided each week. At the moment, dentists are therefore operating at 25% of pre-Covid levels. This is similar to the activity levels in primary care dentistry seen across the UK.

To ensure that this limited treatment capacity is targeted appropriately, guidance issued to all Northern Ireland General Dental Practitioners recommends that patients are seen on the basis of need and that patients requiring emergency and urgent care are given the highest priority.

Updated operational guidance was issued to General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) on 21 October 2020 and included details of a marked reduction of fallow times. While the new guidelines should allow for an increased number of appointments per day, overall patient throughput is expected to remain below normal levels for the foreseeable future.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to increase the number of trans community representatives on the gender pathway review group.
(AQW 9451/17-22)

Mr Swann: Two service user representatives currently sit on the Gender Identity Service Pathway Review Group (GISPRG). The Health and Social Care Board, with the assistance of the Patient and Client Council (PCC), is currently seeking to recruit fifteen people with lived experience of gender dysphoria and/or gender identity services to join a wider Liaison Panel that will sit under the GISPRG. Both the Co-chairs of the panel will be invited to join the Review Group.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Health whether his Department provides tablet computers to care homes, in line with other health authorities in Great Britain.

Mr Swann: Funding is available for care homes to support the use of tablet computers. This was part of the £11.7m funding package I announced in June and will continue to be supported through the further funding package I announced recently.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health whether women nearing the 40 year old threshold, who missed the opportunity to get IVF treatment due to COVID-19, will no longer be eligible for treatment.

Mr Swann: I appreciate that the delay in accessing fertility treatment due to the COVID-19 pandemic may have caused distress to those currently awaiting treatment. In order to mitigate this, the eligibility for anyone currently on the waiting list has already been extended by a year.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health to detail the allied health professional workforce model which is currently being implemented in the Whiteabbey Nightingale Hospital; and what assurances he can give that the unit will be adequately resourced and staffed for patients who have had COVID-19 and require extensive rehabilitation.

Mr Swann: I have commissioned an additional Nightingale facility on the Whiteabbey Hospital site. This will be an intermediate care facility, providing 100 additional 'step down beds'. The facility will operate under an enhanced nursing and therapies rehabilitation and step down model, which will be clinically led by Advanced Nurse Practitioners, with medical support provided by a primary care provider.

The new facility will be operational on a phased basis from late-November, with all infrastructure and equipment in place by mid-December 2020.

The availability of staff to respond to the increased demand is extremely challenging and this is exacerbated by the number of staff absent because of COVID-19. In anticipation of a second surge my Department re-opened the Workforce Appeal in September in an effort to try and build capacity again. Yet again the response has been exceptional with over 4,800 applications already made. I would encourage anyone with the relevant skills and experience who is interested in joining or returning to the health service to consider applying.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when he will publish the evidence on which the decision to maintain the pause in shielding on 23 October 2020 was based.

Mr Swann: The Chief Medical Officer and his team recently assessed the approach to the current risks presented by COVID-19 and their assessment is that the resumption of shielding arrangements is not necessary at this stage.

In terms of the evidence on which this decision was based, it reflects the context of a range of factors. These include greater understanding of COVID-19 and clinical outcomes, how to prevent its transmission, and appreciation of the impact of shielding on many people's physical and mental well-being. A number of important changes have taken place in the approach to managing COVID-19 and reducing its transmission since shielding was originally advised. These include a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, COVID secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene. The statement by the Chief Medical Officer, confirming that shielding remains paused, can be found here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/news/shielding-remain-paused>

The decision to retain the pause in shielding will be kept under continuous review. If in the future this position changes, further guidance will be issued and we will communicate directly with clinically extremely vulnerable people to ensure they have the information they need. In the meantime, people who are clinically extremely vulnerable should continue to scrupulously follow the advice we have given to keep themselves safe.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health how many baby scans have been conducted since the beginning of the pandemic.

(AQW 9522/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since the beginning of the pandemic there have been 14,987 booking scans carried out in Northern Ireland (1st February – 31st October 2020).

Information on other scans, including anomaly scans, is not yet available.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health how many births have occurred in hospitals since the beginning of the pandemic.

(AQW 9523/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since the beginning of the pandemic there have been 16,283 births in Northern Ireland (1st February – 31st October 2020).

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the additional support in place for Health and Social Care staff in relation to (i) COVID-19 accommodation; (ii) access to food; (iii) psychological support; and (iv) additional break time areas.

(AQW 9525/17-22)

Mr Swann: A wide range of additional supports have been provided as follows

- (i) Trusts have developed facilities that provide for full isolation residential accommodation for Trust staff who stay on hospital sites and who need to isolate from their colleagues in line with track and trace and/or as quarantine accommodation for our continuing flow of international medical and nursing recruits. The staff are fully supported whilst in isolation in terms of daily care phone calls, food and laundry services etc.
- (ii) Staff continue to have access to food through the staff restaurants plus snacks from vending machines on sites. On COVID wards, where staff are restricted in their movement outside these areas, food is delivered to staff. This includes sandwiches and hot food from the patients' menus. They are also provided with tea, coffee and milk etc. Any staff quarantining or isolating as referred to above are also provided with food supplies.
- (iii) A diverse range of psychological services have been made available to staff by Trusts since the onset of COVID-19 in an attempt to meet the greatly varying needs of the workforce.

These include:

- Individual Psychological Support via Occupational Health
- A range of drop in clinics / bookable appointments
- Psychological Wellbeing Support Phone Line
- Resources via Trusts' intranet
- Team Time – a virtual space from Point of Care Foundation for teams to discuss the emotional impact of their work
- Team workshops with focus on coping with uncertainty and anxiety
- Spaces for listening – supported conversations within teams
- Team Support Framework- a flexible, bespoke and virtual team support tool.

A Health & Wellbeing SharePoint Site has also been developed jointly by BSO/PHA/HSCB. This information site was launched during the initial COVID-19 lockdown, and has had approximately 10,000 hits from staff.

Content ranges from providing guidance/advice on home working, mental and physical health, links to free stress control classes, COVID-19 support lines, financial wellbeing information, and links to external organisations such as Inspire, Aware and other Mental Health organisations which provide resources and counselling services. The site will remain as a permanent resource for staff and the content will be continually updated and developed.

- (iv) As part of Trusts' COVID-19 ongoing surge response planning, clear guidance has been developed for managers and staff on COVID-19-safe working practices.

The guidelines are based on teams working together to assess risks in every aspect of their working shift including their staff refreshment and rest facilities. The guidelines provide a range of proposed mitigations to help support staff remain COVID-19-safe whilst they take their rest breaks including identifying alternative areas in wards/departments/facilities that staff can use for their breaks in order to maintain social distancing. Visual cues and cleaning materials have been provided in each area.

Additional efforts have also been made to support local managers in their responsibilities for shared working spaces. Trusts are also mindful of the importance of ensuring that staff can use their break times to talk to their colleagues about what they are experiencing. Working together supportively as a team in these challenging times is viewed to be a key requirement, while ensuring that COVID-19-safe working practices are well understood and adopted.

In a number of hospital sites many ward and ICU family visiting rooms have been modified and given over to staff as additional rest spaces. Additional external areas have been identified and fitted with shelter and temporary heating where possible. Drop-in temporary showering and changing facilities have been provided. In some areas main restaurants are now open longer hours as break-out spaces for staff rest and refreshment.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of cases referred to the primary care COVID-19 centres for each week since they were established, broken down by time of day and each COVID-19 centre.

Mr Swann: The number of cases referred to the primary care COVID-19 centres for each week since they were established is outlined in the table below. Information on the brake down of referrals by time of day and each COVID-19 centre is not held by the Department.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the dates and content of any representations or submissions, his Department made to the Department of Health and Social Care regarding the implementation of the Falsified Medicines Directive.

Mr Swann: It is not possible to detail all the dates and content of all representations made to the Department of Health and Social Care regarding the implementation of the Falsified Medicines Directive as these take place on a frequent basis and cover all areas in relation to the delivery of Health and Social Care in Northern Ireland following the end of the Transition Period.

My officials continue to brief me as to progress on these matters, and in turn, I and my Department provide regular updates to both the Northern Ireland Executive and the Northern Ireland Assembly Committee for Health.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust spent the money they raised on car parking charges for the 2019/20 financial year.

Mr Swann: The income generated in 2019/20 from car parking across the South Eastern Trust has been spent on the operational upkeep of car parking facilities including the maintenance costs of parking assets, such as barriers, CCTV and pay stations.

In addition, the income was used to enhance security on hospital sites and to fund a number of travel planning initiatives such as bike shelters, additional off-site parking capacity, staff shuttlebuses, maintenance of electric pool cars, the travel plan coordinator and the Trust Shop Mobility schemes on the Lagan Valley and Ulster Hospital sites which facilitate vehicle to hospital transfer of patients with mobility issues and disability.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how much the Chief Executive for the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust paid in car parking charges on Trust grounds in the 2019/20 financial year.

Mr Swann: The Chief Executive of the South Eastern Trust paid £180 for car parking in the year 2019/20 as a full time employee.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health why full free car parking charges, without conditions, for all health staff have not been introduced at the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 9561/17-22)

Mr Swann: The South Eastern Trust has confirmed that from 5 November 2020 it will be reinstating the same parking arrangements that were available to staff during the initial wave of the Covid-19 pandemic – i.e. - free car parking and access for all staff. In line with my instruction this will be in place up to and including 31 March 2021.

Staff who have paid for car parking at machines will be reimbursed for the period 29 October 2020 (when I announced free staff car parking for this wave of the Covid response) to 4 November 2020.

However, as patients and visitors continue to access services on hospital sites, the Trust is encouraging staff to use the free off-site car parks and avail of the free and enhanced park and ride services available at the Lagan Valley and Ulster hospitals.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health when the Gender Review Pathway group will finish and publish its findings and recommendations.

(AQW 9566/17-22)

Mr Swann: The work of the Gender Identity Pathway Review Group was paused earlier this year to allow staff to quite rightly focus their efforts on dealing with the COVID-19 pandemic. However, this important work has since restarted.

Every effort is being made to progress the review in a timely manner with a view to the group reporting its findings and recommendations to my Department by summer 2021 although this is predicated on the availability of staff during the ongoing pandemic.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health to detail the contributory factors used to estimate how much it takes to run a hospital bed.

(AQW 9582/17-22)

Mr Swann: In estimating unit costs, trusts must attempt to capture their full operating costs and apportion these appropriately across programmes of care and clinical specialties. There are therefore a large number of individual elements included in the estimated cost, but the main factors are listed below:

Direct costs:

- Medical and nursing staff, operating theatres, pharmacy, equipment.
- Medical, paramedical and diagnostics:
- Labs, radiography, physiotherapy, occupational and other therapies, social work, dietetics.

Overheads:

- Catering, laundry and cleaning, corporate admin, medical records, energy, buildings maintenance, capital costs.

The daily cost of a hospital bed can vary greatly between clinical specialties and also between hospital sites as different conditions require very different levels of medical input, and some care may be provided more in outpatient or day case settings rather than in the inpatient setting.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of home visits carried out by GP practices for each week between January 2019 and October 2019, broken down by GP federation.

(AQW 9584/17-22)

Mr Swann: This information is not available. GPs are independent contractors and this information is not held centrally.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health for an update on the feasibility of outcome-based payment for cancer medicines. (AQW 9608/17-22)

Mr Swann: A three phase research study on outcomes-based payments for cancer medicines is being taken forward in England by the Office for Health Economics, RAND Europe and King's College London, in conjunction with Greater Manchester Health Partnership. Early work has been published and phase two will now examine key uncertainties and barriers that have been identified in the first phase report. If taken forward, the study's third phase will carry out a live pilot of an outcomes-based payments scheme within Greater Manchester, based on the principles set out in the first phase report. The implications of the study can be considered once the research has concluded.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on the availability of flu vaccines to complete the full vaccination programme. (AQW 9611/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is sufficient vaccine with school health teams, in central storage, and in the manufacturer supply chain to complete the schools flu vaccination programme.

Of the flu vaccine used for those aged 65 and over, almost all stock has been distributed to GPs. A small amount remains in central storage and additional stock is due to arrive next week. Taken together, this amounts to 296,000 doses which should be sufficient to complete the vaccination programme for those aged 65 and over who wish to receive the vaccine.

In relation to the vaccine used in adults under the age of 65, all stock has been distributed to GPs, Health Trusts and community pharmacies. There are no stocks of this vaccine remaining in central storage; however, a further 192,800 doses are due to arrive within the next two weeks.

The first report on uptake rates of vaccine across the public seasonal flu programme up until 31 October is due with my department by the second week of November. This will provide detail of available unused stock remaining within the supply system at local level.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8262/17-22, whether he will publish the agenda and minutes of the Transformation Management Board in future and those of the previous meetings. (AQW 9635/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department already publishes a weekly summary of the issues discussed at each meeting of the Management Board. The summaries are available at: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/health-and-social-care-chairs-forum-weekly-updates>.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact that COVID-19 is having on student nurses and allied health profession students in their studies and clinical placements. (AQW 9636/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department is very aware of the impact of Covid-19 on the Health and Social Care workforce including nursing and allied health professional students (AHP).

COVID-19 has had an impact on nursing and AHP undergraduate programmes and mitigating measures are in place. We remain fully committed to safeguarding students' progression through their pre-registration education and training.

My officials maintain regular contact with the Universities and Health and Social Care Trusts to ensure that all students are supported in their studies and whilst on clinical placements.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8702/17-22, what formal correspondence his Department has had with the Nursing and Midwifery Council regarding emergency registration arrangements due to COVID-19. (AQW 9637/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department has had no recent formal correspondence with the Nursing and Midwifery Council regarding Emergency registration arrangements due to Covid – 19.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of Muckamore Abbey staff who have (i) been cautionary suspended; (ii) had their suspension lifted; (iii) been re-suspended; and (iv) charged, broken down by (a) Trust; and (b) agency staff. (AQW 9640/17-22)

Mr Swann: Responsibility for placing staff on precautionary suspension rests with the Belfast Trust as the employing body.

As of 6 November, (i) 64 Muckamore Abbey staff have been placed on precautionary suspension; (ii) 3 staff have had their suspension lifted; and (iii) 1 staff member has been re-suspended. (iv) Decisions on charging staff are taken by the PSNI as part of the ongoing criminal investigation.

All the staff placed on precautionary suspension are Trust staff.

As of 6 November, (i) 15 Muckamore Abbey staff have been absent from 0-6 months; (ii) 9 staff have been absent for 6-12 months; (iii) 20 staff have been absent for 12-18 months; and (iv) 17 staff have been absent for 18-24 months.

All the absent staff are Trust staff.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 7495/17-22, to report on the experience of patients suffering from long Covid; and the lessons to be learnt from that experience.

(AQW 9647/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is accumulating evidence to suggest that people who have had both mild and severe symptoms of COVID-19 can experience long-term health effects such as problems with breathing, chronic fatigue and stress.

Research to evaluate the long-term health and psychosocial effects of COVID-19 in affected persons is ongoing.

The National Institute for Care and Health Excellence (NICE) is developing a guideline on long Covid which is due to be published by the end of the year. The guideline will address, among other things, a formal definition of the disease, how to identify on-going symptoms and a definition of best practice investigation and treatment options to support the management of the condition across diverse communities.

When published, the guideline will be fully considered alongside the wider body of emerging research to inform future policy and service decisions in Northern Ireland.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of whether the allied health professional workforce model which is being implemented in the Whiteabbey Nightingale Hospital will be fit for purpose for patients who have had COVID-19 and require extensive rehabilitation.

(AQW 9656/17-22)

Mr Swann: I am content that the allied health professions workforce model that is being implemented in the Whiteabbey Nightingale Hospital will be fit for purpose for patients who have had COVID-19 and are requiring rehabilitation services.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many nursing vacancies there currently are in the Southern Health and Social Care Trust.

Mr Swann: Information on the number of registered nursing vacancies actively being recruited to at 30 June 2020 in the South Eastern and Southern HSC Trusts is detailed in the table below.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister of Health how much has been spent in total by his Department on funding for the Family Drug and Alcohol Court (i) for each of the last three years; and (ii) the projected spend for 2020/21.

(AQW 9681/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Early Intervention Transformation Programme (EITP) was a cross-departmental Delivering Social Change Atlantic Philanthropies Signature Programme. EITP was funded by the Delivering Social Change Programme, the Atlantic

Philanthropies and jointly by the Departments of Health, Justice, Education and the Departments for Communities and the Economy.

The EITP provided a total of £461k funding to the Family Drug and Alcohol Court pilot delivered by the Department of Justice and the Southern Health and Social Care Trust. The breakdown per financial year is as follows:

Year	Funding (£)
17/18	£173,652
18/19	£286,962
19/20	0

The Family Drug and Alcohol Court pilot concluded in March 2019 and EITP formally closed in November 2019. No further funding has been provided under the EITP since the 2018/19 financial year.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health what support is available to assist care homes with significant increased administrative pressures.

(AQW 9699/17-22)

Mr Swann: As indicated in my announcement regarding an additional funding package on 22 October 2020, you will be aware I have set aside important support for care home staff including £27.3m of additional funding for the sector.

This £27.3m funding package is in addition to previously announced support packages. £9m of the funding will be paid directly to care homes to reflect the costs of:

- the rolling programme of testing for both residents and staff;
- the costs of overseeing safe visiting and setting up care partner arrangements; and
- the increased management time needed to oversee homes.

Care Providers will not need to apply for this funding which will be allocated based on the number of residents each has, with a set amount per home to recognise some of the additional management overheads.

The remaining funds can be claimed back by homes to support additional staffing costs (for instance, because of more acutely unwell residents or the need to support individuals self isolating), continue with enhanced cleaning and enhanced sick pay, support changes to the physical environment (to support safe visiting, for instance) and meet other increased costs, such as IT.

Trusts are currently working to start allocating this funding and will provide more details in due course.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health why the number of beds listed as available on the departmental COVID-19 dashboard fell from 3,680 to 2,903 when the 18 October figure is compared with the 28 October figure.

Mr Swann: From 18th October onwards, the methodology for calculating bed occupancy changed. In order to take into account the dynamic nature of bed modelling and the flow of patients in and out of hospital over the course of a day, the revised methodology now includes patients where a 'Decision to Admit' (DTA) has been made, e.g. from an Emergency Department, thereby projecting more accurate occupancy levels across hospital sites. Trusts are also being asked to provide additional Admissions data as at 9am on the morning of reporting to help assess operational pressures which are impacting upon bed occupancy. The revised methodology now includes adult only acute and geriatric inpatient beds at the 12 main hospital sites as presented on the Dashboard; it excludes Paediatric, Obstetric, Mental Health and Day Beds, as well as beds in smaller hospital sites which may have been included in the previous methodology. Data prior to 18th October should not be compared with data from this date, however the time series has been retained to demonstrate the trend in COVID-19 occupancy levels. Further information on the methodology used for calculating occupancy levels pre and post 18th October can be found within the 'G&A Notes' page of the Department's COVID-19 Dashboard.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health how many staff have been allocated to the Whiteabbey Nightingale facility to date, broken broken down by (i) the service; and (ii) the hospital that staff have been redeployed from.

(AQW 9715/17-22)

Mr Swann: As at 6 November 2020, the following staff have been sourced for Whiteabbey Nightingale Hospital. Recruitment is ongoing to fill the remaining vacancies within the staffing model.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of Muckamore Abbey staff that have been off due to ongoing investigations for between (i) 0-6 months; (ii) 6-12 months; (iii) 12-18 months; and (iv) 18-24 months, broken down by (a) Health and Social Care Trust staff; and (b) agency staff.

(AQW 9719/17-22)

Mr Swann: Responsibility for placing staff on precautionary suspension rests with the Belfast Trust as the employing body.

As of 6 November, (i) 64 Muckamore Abbey staff have been placed on precautionary suspension; (ii) 3 staff have had their suspension lifted; and (iii) 1 staff member has been re-suspended. (iv) Decisions on charging staff are taken by the PSNI as part of the ongoing criminal investigation.

All the absent staff are Trust staff.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) when the final report and recommendations of the Maternity Strategy Implementation Group will be published; and (ii) how it will be made available to relevant stakeholders.

(AQW 9726/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Maternity Strategy Implementation Group submitted its end of strategy report to the Department's Chief Medical Officer and Chief Nursing Officer in summer 2020. The report summarises the progress in implementing the Strategy for Maternity Care in Northern Ireland 2012-2018.

My Department's ongoing response to the COVID-19 pandemic has meant that the consideration of the report has been somewhat delayed, but as soon as is possible we will complete that work, and if appropriate publish the report.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health for an update on the recruitment of surgical staff to fill vacant posts at Daisy Hill Hospital.

(AQW 9733/17-22)

Mr Swann: The general Surgical Department in Daisy Hill Hospital has funding for 6 consultant surgeons. Currently there are 5 substantive and one locum surgeon in post.

Recognising this position is set to change pre-Christmas, the Southern Health and Social Care Trust has recently made offers to 3 locum surgeons who were deemed to be suitable. Two have accepted and will commence with the Trust at the end of November 2020.

The Trust is also intending to advertise three permanent posts in early December.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health (i) how many under-18s have downloaded the StopCovidNI app; (ii) how many under-18s have reported symptoms through the StopCovidNI app; and (iii) for his assessment of the effectiveness of making the StopCovidNI app available for under-18s.

(AQW 9739/17-22)

Mr Swann: In line with ICO guidance and GDPR requirements, personal information such as age is not collected by the "STOPCovid NI" app. Neither are symptoms reported on nor checked via the 'StopCOVID NI' app.

However the 'COVIDCare NI, and online symptom checker app does record symptom queries. In the period since the latest version of the 'StopCOVID NI' app was launched, the 'COVIDCare NI' symptom checker app has processed 41,456 symptom checks. 4,134 of those symptom checks related to persons aged under 18.

The StopCovidNI proximity app and COVIDCareNI symptom checker app support the work to break the chains of transmission of the virus and guide people of all ages to appropriate treatments.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Health (i) how many people are currently on the waiting list to see an Ear, Nose and Throat consultant; and (ii) how long on average are people waiting for an appointment.

(AQW 9740/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department publishes National Statistics on Hospital Waiting Times on a quarterly basis. The latest published position is June 2020, with the September 2020 publication due for release on 26th November 2020. These publications can be found at: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/topics/dhssps-statistics-and-research/hospital-waiting-times-statistics>

However, to monitor the impact of COVID-19 on hospital waiting times, my Department has also been publishing provisional management information on a monthly basis. These reports can be found at:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/interim-waiting-times-reports>

The data provided within this answer is based on the provisional position as at 30th September 2020 and is therefore subject to change.

At 30th September 2020, 40,763 patients were waiting for a first Ear, Nose and Throat consultant led outpatient appointment. Table 1 to follow shows how long patients currently on the waiting list have been waiting to date.

At 30th September 2020, 11,363 patients were waiting for an inpatient/day case appointment within the Ear, Nose and Throat Specialty. Table 2 shows how long patients currently on the waiting list have been waiting to date. All of these patients were still on the waiting lists at 30th September 2020.

These data do not indicate how long patients waited for an ENT appointment as they are still on the waiting lists, but rather presents how long they have waited to date.

Table 1: ENT waiting times for a first consultant led outpatient appointment at 30th September 2020

Specialty	Number of weeks waiting at 30th September 2020							Total number waiting	Average weeks waiting

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8730/17-22, how many baby and child deaths occurred in each year since 2016.

(AQW 9752/17-22)

Mr Swann: Figures on baby and child deaths registered in Northern Ireland are the responsibility of the Department of Finance, and can be found here: <https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/death-statistics>

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of hours support provided to children with Special Educational Needs in terms of (i) physiotherapy; (ii) occupational therapy; and (iii) speech and language therapy in (a) September 2019; (b) October 2019; and (c) October 2020.

(AQW 9765/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Special Educational Needs status is not routinely captured on Health and Social Care systems. The requested information is therefore not available as it can only be obtained through a manual trawl of thousands of individual children's files, and so could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Health (i) whether it is the current policy of his Department to make Northern Ireland a trauma-informed community; and (ii) if so, how will he achieve that.

(AQW 9776/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department has been instrumental in establishing the Northern Ireland Trauma Informed Practice Steering Group. This is a cross-Departmental, Inter-Agency and Multi-Disciplinary Group that has the strategic vision of making Northern Ireland a community and workforce that is aware of the impact of Trauma on children's outcomes and is able to respond effectively. The Steering Group has adopted a Logic Model for Trauma Informed Practice in Northern Ireland to help translate a number of defined activities and outputs into improved outcomes in response to trauma. Funding from the Early Intervention Transformation Fund has been used to develop the Safeguarding Board for Northern Ireland Trauma Informed Practice Team.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Health (i) whether he is aware that, following a job evaluation process of portering staff at RVH, the outcome was that they would be classed as being Band 2; and (ii) whether he will intervene to resolve the issue of the date when backpay will be awarded from.

Mr Swann: The Belfast Trust's HR department have engaged with local management and Trades Unions and are agreeing a way forward in line with the Agenda for Change process. This will include agreement with Trades Unions on the appropriate date for back pay, to be based on the point at which these staff began to work at this level.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Health to detail the total staff cost at Muckamore Abbey of those who have been off due to the ongoing investigations between (i) 0 to 6 months; (ii) 6 to 12 months; (iii) 12 to 18 months; (iv) 18 to 24 months, broken down by (a) Health and Social Care Trust staff; and (b) agency staff.

Mr Swann: The costs requested are set out in the table below. The figures represent the approximate total pay cost of the staff who are currently suspended from the point of their suspension to the end of October this year.

Months Suspended	0-6	6-12	12-18	18-24
Total Pay Cost	£30,307	£309,372	£833,409	£381,586

All the absent staff are Trust staff.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8954/17-22, and in light of England's decision to reintroduce shielding, to detail (i) his rationale for not reintroducing shielding in Northern Ireland; and (ii) the criteria for reintroducing shielding.

(AQW 9818/17-22)

Mr Swann: In response to the infection rate in Northern Ireland, a range of robust new restrictions were introduced on 16 October. As part of this, following careful consideration, the advice of the Chief Medical Officer was that shielding should remain paused. In light of the new restrictions, updated advice for the Clinical Extremely Vulnerable has been published online.

While I am aware of the new measures introduced in England, I am clear that the right approach to protect our community is through measures tailored for the conditions in Northern Ireland.

The position on shielding will be kept under continual review and I will not hesitate to act to protect vulnerable people, including the reintroduction of additional protections for the Clinically Extremely Vulnerable, should this become necessary again.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to list the services within each hospital that have had to stop temporarily due to COVID-19.

(AQW 9876/17-22)

Mr Swann: I refer the member to AQW 9133/17-22, answered on 30 October 2020.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health when AQW 7595/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 9907/17-22)

Mr Swann: The National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) provides national guidance and advice designed to support health service commissioners and staff who are considering using new medical devices and other medical or diagnostic technologies to improve healthcare. NICE has a global reputation for rigour, independence and objectivity, which is informed by the best available scientific evidence.

NICE have confirmed that they do not currently make any recommendations on the use of the Cytosponge-TFF3 test in any of their guidelines. However, they are in the process of developing briefing on the use of the Cytosponge-TFF3 test which when published will inform the potential use of this technology in the National Health Service and in Health and Social Care, Northern Ireland.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health whether he will review the policy restricting family visitation for end of life hospital patients.

Mr Swann: A key plank in our approach to the COVID crisis is that no one should die alone. Wherever feasible patients approaching the end of life should be afforded the opportunity to spend time with family members and/or loved ones. This is applicable to all areas of care.

To reduce the distress for families and support decision making for staff dealing with circumstances in which end of life care is being provided, my Department has issued updated guidance which recognises end of life care as being an exceptional circumstance in which restricted visitation to a patient will be permitted regardless of the Regional Alert Level Position at that time, but at all times balancing the public health and infection control guidance with the need for compassionate care at end of life.

I acknowledge the anguish of all families who find themselves in this position and it is with great sadness that it has not been possible to permit a higher number of visitors and frequency of visits during the patient's palliative care and end of life period.

Very difficult decisions have had to be made to provide a balance of measures required to minimise infection transmission into and within hospitals with the rights of patients to have access to loved ones in their time of need.

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Health what progress is being made to provide an accessible paediatric pathology service.

(AQO 1073/17-22)

Mr Swann: The full range of paediatric pathology services is available to parents from across Northern Ireland, however it remains extremely challenging across these islands to recruit into this highly specialised service, and as Members will aware it has therefore been necessary to deliver these services from Alder Hey Children's Hospital in Liverpool since January 2019.

I remain committed to the provision of a local service in the longer term. Unfortunately, despite numerous national and international recruitment campaigns which remain open-ended, and ongoing efforts by the HSC to encourage trainees into this specialty, this has not been possible to date.

I am therefore also committed to exploring the potential for an all-island network model to deliver these services in the longer term. However, it has not been possible to progress this matter further at present, due to the need to reprioritise resources in both jurisdictions, to protect essential healthcare services for the duration of the pandemic, and to free up stretched resources.

Mr Speaker, I fully appreciate the importance of these services to families. In the meantime my Department's priority is to ensure that bereaved parents continue to have access to the highest quality service, one that provides not only the clinical answers and the rapid reporting that families expect, but also the care and support that they require and deserve. I am assured from the initial feedback my Department has received that the interim arrangement with Alder Hey provides this.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Health for an update on the work of the Mental Health Champion for Northern Ireland.
(AQO 1074/17-22)

Mr Swann: Professor Siobhan O'Neill took up the post of interim Mental Health Champion, on 10 August 2020. During this relatively short period of time she has focused on raising awareness of the need to care for our mental health and highlighted the support available. To raise awareness she has spoken to a wide range of media across TV, radio, print, podcasts and online, participating in public discussion about topical issues.

Professor O'Neill has met with a broad range of stakeholders across charity, education, research, commissioning and health and wellbeing, as well as undertaking public advocacy work across Departments, meeting Ministers and officials, groups and panels to gain an insight into the current situation.

Professor O'Neill sits on the Department's Mental Health Strategic Reform Board and Strategic Advisory Panel, relaying views of stakeholders with whom she has met, to inform the development of the Mental Health Strategy.

To address Covid-19 mental health concerns, Professor O'Neill has also been involved in the delivery of a regional social media campaign to promote positive mental health and wellbeing of people across the Public Health Agency, NI Health and Social Care Trusts and Northern Ireland Ambulance Service.

Mr Irwin asked the Minister of Health when he will amend the restrictions on visiting maternity wards to permit greater access.

Mr Swann: The current visiting guidance took effect from 23 September 2020.

While this guidance is kept under constant review, there is no current intention to change the existing visiting restrictions, which are in place to limit the risk of the virus spreading.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister of Health what steps he is taking to increase pillar 1 COVID-19 testing capacity.

(AQO 1076/17-22)

Mr Swann: In Northern Ireland, Pillar 1 testing is delivered via the Health and Social Care (HSC) laboratories (including the Regional Virology Laboratory) and through the Scientific Advisory Consortium which includes Queen's University, University of Ulster, the Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute and Almac.

Since the beginning of the pandemic Pillar 1 testing capacity in Northern Ireland has increased significantly.

My Department continues to work very closely with this network of local partners to enhance testing capability and capacity and there are active plans underway to develop capacity further.

Optimising available testing capacity remains a key priority for me and for my officials in the weeks and months ahead.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Health what steps he is taking to ensure that care homes are prepared for a second wave of COVID-19 this winter.

(AQO 1077/17-22)

Mr Swann: There are a number of actions and measures we are taking to support and protect care homes as Covid-19 continues to spread in the community and as infection levels in homes start to rise. These include:-

- A revised surge plan for care homes, informed by the Rapid Learning Initiative, which contains 56 actions. Actions in the surge plan are being delivered by the PHA, HSCB, Trusts, Department and care homes themselves. Progress against the surge plan is being overseen by a regional Adult Social Care Surge Group, jointly chaired by the Chief Social Worker and Chief Nursing Officer;
- Continuing supply of PPE, continuing access to free training through NISCC and CEC, ongoing assistance through Trust service support teams, continuing support from the RQIA and ongoing expert guidance from the PHA;
- Trusts, the HSCB, PHA and Department are monitoring returns provided by care homes through the RQIA's care home portal to identify key trends and particular homes which may need further assistance. In addition, this data is used to monitor our regional surge level for care homes;
- From 3 August a rolling programme of testing commenced for all residents and staff in homes which did not have a confirmed outbreak of the virus. This involved testing all staff on a fortnightly basis and all residents on a monthly basis. My officials will continue to actively monitor and assess current and emerging science relating to Covid-19, to inform our approach to testing in care homes;
- I have put in place a number of measures to provide financial support to care homes. I announced up to £6.5m in April to support care homes with additional costs and up to a further £11.7m in June to support enhanced sick pay, enhanced cleaning, and purchase of equipment. I recently announced a further package of up to £27m, in addition to previously announced support. In addition, an income guarantee to help provide homes stability remains in place;

- In addition to this funding, care homes have been provided with over 48 million items of PPE, at a cost of over £16m. We also continue to connect smaller local providers with homes, so that they can purchase their own PPE.
- During the first surge Trusts also provided more than 26,000 hours of free staff time to work in care homes and fill gaps in rotas. Each Trust has a dedicated care home support team in place provide advice, guidance and training to care homes to enable them to meet the care needs of residents. In addition, we have provided funding support for enhanced and additional environmental cleaning and we are considering the case to create dedicated training support for cleaning staff in care homes. Proposals are also being developed by HSC Trusts to expand their dedicated teams of infection prevention and control nurses, and this will include support for care homes.

I have recently relaunched our workforce appeal and remain clear that Trusts should consider how individuals identified through this mechanism can be placed in the independent sector – subject to all the appropriate risk assessments being in place.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health what additional support he has provided to young families and children to cope with mental ill health during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Swann: The COVID-19 pandemic has brought with it countless unprecedented challenges for children and young people and undoubtedly the mental health of many will be impacted as a result. It is therefore important that young people and their families take care of their mental and emotional wellbeing during this time; and know how, where and when to get help.

In response to the pandemic, I published a Mental Health Action Plan and a COVID-19 Mental Health Response Plan in May 2020, with specific actions focused on the mental health needs of children and young people.

The Minding Your Head website has been revamped in response to the pandemic; it contains information to help individuals and families look after their own mental health and to support others, including a link to online support such as the HSC Apps Library.

Much work has also been done by the Children & Young People's Strategic Partnership (CYPSP) to produce key resources for children and young people, specifically in relation to managing the impact of COVID 19.

It is important to stress that children and adolescent mental health services continue to operate throughout the pandemic, and I would encourage anyone who has concerns about their mental health to seek help and speak to their GP.

It is also worth highlighting that my Department is leading on a cross-Government Action Plan to take forward agreed recommendations from the Children Commissioner's 'Still Waiting' Report, to improve mental health services and support for children and young people, where resources allow. Implementation of the 'Still Waiting' Action Plan was included as an action in the Mental Health Action Plan.

Actions in the 'Still Waiting' report include the implementation of Primary Care Multidisciplinary Teams with mental health practitioners attached to GPs across the region. MDTs have played a key role in the emergency response during the past number of months, with the mental health practitioners and practice based social work staff proving particularly valuable at this time.

I understand work is almost complete on the Department of Education's Framework for Children & Young People's Emotional Health and Wellbeing in Education – the main emphasis of which is to support schools to promote emotional health and wellbeing at a universal level, through a holistic, multi-disciplinary approach. The framework is also focussed on providing early and enhanced support for those children and young people who may be at risk or showing signs of needing further help. While DE have been leading on the Framework, DoH have been particularly involved in the mental health aspects. With this in mind, I have recently committed recurrent funding of £1.5 million to help support this important work.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Health how he will ensure that cancer treatments are not negatively impacted during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Swann: COVID-19 has undoubtedly had a severe impact on diagnostic and cancer treatment services, however, urgent cancer diagnostics and treatment were delivered during the first wave and will continue to be delivered during this second surge, as safely as possible in COVID-19 safe spaces and using the independent sector hospitals where appropriate.

However, we should be under no illusions that these are challenging times. Services are already coming under pressure and as the number of COVID-19 positive inpatients increases, this will have a negative impact on our ability to maintain other services. The position relating to services in Trusts is a dynamic position and is related to staff absence as well as the rising numbers of COVID-19 inpatients. It is therefore not possible to state definitively which services are being or will be impacted. Staff in all areas are continuing to work as hard as they can to maintain and prioritise services. If services do need to be postponed, this will only happen where absolutely necessary and they will be rescheduled as quickly as possible on a prioritised basis.

One of my primary aims in the difficult weeks ahead will be to ensure the continued delivery high quality diagnosis and cancer services, providing of course that it is safe to do so.

Mr Butler asked the Minister of Health for an update on the elective care centre at Lagan Valley Hospital.
(AQO 1080/17-22)

Mr Swann: Considerable progress has been made at the Day Procedure Centre at Lagan Valley Hospital. The Day Procedure Centre is currently providing much needed support to other Trusts in response to the downturn in elective services during this surge period, particularly for regional cancer diagnostic work.

Urology, general surgery, ENT, gynaecology and varicose vein day procedure lists are already underway or are planned. So far, there has been positive feedback from staff and patients alike. Engagement continues with a range of other surgical specialties to identify and prioritise procedure that are suitable for the Day Procedure Centre at Lagan Valley Hospital.

The service delivery position in Lagan Valley and across the HSC is dynamic and is related to staffing levels and the impact of rising numbers of Covid-19 patients.

Department for Infrastructure

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure when (i) driving tests; and (ii) driving lessons can recommence.
(AQW 9141/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): The Driver & Vehicle Agency's (DVA) booking system for driving tests reopened on 5 October and thousands of bookings have been made. At this time the DVA has not released any driving tests slots beyond January 2021.

Driving instructors have been included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that must close until 13 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision driving tests will also cease over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The booking service is now closed and the DVA will contact those who had their driving tests cancelled to advise them how they can reschedule their appointments.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the proposed Narrow Water bridge at Warrenpoint.
(AQW 9424/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am committed to progressing the long awaited transformative, iconic, Narrow Water Bridge. The Narrow Water Bridge is a commitment in New Decade, New Approach and is currently at options analysis stage and my officials are working to update an economic appraisal of options for development in collaboration with Southern colleagues in the Department for Transport.

Work has included significant stakeholder engagement and most recently, in September, I met with representatives from the Narrow Water Bridge Community Network and local political representatives to discuss the local support for a bridge to link the communities on both sides of the lough and how to maximise the multiple opportunities this project would deliver for local communities and our wider island economy.

I have recently engaged with Minister Ryan on the Narrow Water Bridge at the North South Ministerial Council on 7 October.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether a feasibility study has been carried out for a proposed rail link to Belfast international Airport.
(AQW 9425/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is currently developing the Regional Strategic Transport Network Transport Plan (RSTNTP) which is one of four draft Transport Plans intended to set out the framework for transport policy and investment decisions until 2035. It is concerned with strategic roads, the buses which run on them and the rail network across the North. Whilst the RSTNTP will primarily consider capital investment for the road and rail networks, it will also consider resource costs for improved bus and rail services, including connectivity to our airports.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many Translink bus runs have been cancelled in North Down due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 9426/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The COVID-19 pandemic has had a huge impact on Translink services since March 2020 when I took the decision to reduce services on the bus and train network.

Whilst service changes have been made in the North Down area, there have been no bus cancellations.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of the latest accident on the A48 Cotton Road/Newtownards Road where a young girl was knocked down, whether she will now reduce the speed limit to 40mph.

(AQW 9427/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I was very sorry to hear reports of the collision involving a pedestrian on the Cotton Road and I hope the young person is recovering from her traumatic experience. I have asked officials to contact the PSNI when their investigation is complete to obtain further information relating to this collision and to consider any emerging factors relevant to my Department.

Regarding your request for a reduction in speed limit at this location, as previously advised in our recent correspondence on this matter, I can confirm that I have asked my officials to carry out a speed limit review along this stretch of road and to advise you of the outcome when this has been completed.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will consider making The Point, Groomsport, an adopted road.

(AQW 9428/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The basis for adopting private roads or laneways is similar to that which applies to streets in new housing developments, in that they all must be brought up to the required standard before adoption and subsequent maintenance by my Department.

In order for my Department to agree to the adoption of The Point, significant improvements would need to be carried out by or on behalf of the frontagers, to include full road construction with a footpath on one side, provision of a turning head, road drainage and upgraded street lighting.

If these works were completed then my Department would adopt the road providing:

- 1 the majority of frontagers consented to and requested in writing that the street should become a public road; and
- 2 appropriate planning permission through Council Planning was in place with any associated costs in bringing The Point up to adoption standard, including planning, design and construction costs, borne by the frontagers.

My officials are always willing to provide whatever guidance and advice is required to assist frontagers take forward projects such as this.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how many times the street lights on the B511 Bangor Road, Groomsport, have had an outage in the past three years; and (ii) to detail the cause of the reoccurring failures of the street lights.

(AQW 9429/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that over a 3 year period there have been 60 street light outage reports recorded in relation to the Bangor Road, Groomsport.

These lights are mounted on Northern Ireland Electricity (NIE) poles which support overhead electricity lines. NIE is aware of faults occurring with their lines during inclement weather and is working to resolve the issue in conjunction with officials from my Department.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to street lights that have remained off for over one year despite many outage reports submitted, whether there is a policy within her Department not to repair complicated individual street light outages.

Ms Mallon: I can advise that my Department's policy is to repair all street light outages within its designated timescales. However there may be occasions when for operational reasons, such as when LED retrofitting is planned or extensive traffic management works are required, repairs may be deferred.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for Infrastructure when her Department will have the street lighting working again along the B511 Bangor Road, Groomsport.

(AQW 9433/17-22)

Ms Mallon: A number of street lights on the Bangor Road, Groomsport have not been working due to a fault with the electricity supply. Northern Ireland Electricity (NIE) are responsible for this repair and my Department reported the fault to them on 16 October 2020.

I understand that NIE attended the site and carried out an interim repair to restore the electricity supply to the lights. However a further fault has emerged during the recent inclement weather and NIE has again been contacted. My officials will continue to work closely with NIE to find a lasting resolution so that street lighting on Bangor Road can be restored as soon as practicable.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the anticipated planning review.
(AQW 9434/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The regulations setting out the terms of the review were agreed at Committee at the end of September 2020 and were subsequently made on 12th October 2020, and came into operation on 2nd November 2020.

Officials have commenced work on the review within the terms set out in the regulations, and it is hoped that the review report will be agreed and published as soon as possible but before the end of March 2021.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail all current called-in planning applications.
(AQW 9435/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I attach a list of the 16 live called in applications as at 30 June 2020, in line with my Department's most recently published official statistics.

You will also be aware that I have issued a Notice of Opinion to approve the Casement Park application, but until such time as my final decision is given, this application will remain current.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Newry Southern Relief Road.

(AQW 9436/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Newry Southern Relief Road is one of the infrastructure projects within the Belfast Region City Deal being taken forward by my Department. Currently work is progressing development of the design of the road and preparing the draft Statutory Orders, along with an Environmental Impact Assessment Report in advance of public consultation, which I hope to be in a position to consider next year.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will provide further support to the taxi sector during COVID-19.

(AQW 9437/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In recognition of the hardships faced by the industry at this time, my main priority is to get a financial support scheme operational as quickly as possible and which I intend to launch in the next few days. The Executive has agreed a scheme providing financial support of £14m for taxi drivers. This package, taken together with the £1.2m that I have already put in place to waive fees for the renewal of taxi vehicle licences, will ensure that more drivers will be able to continue in the trade and hence be available for recovery, post-Covid.

I will also continue to press for the inclusion of the taxi sector in the various other support schemes being taken forward across the Executive.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) for her assessment of what Brexit will mean for drivers travelling into the south; and (ii) what her Department is doing to ensure all-island transport is not disrupted.

(AQW 9438/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Following the transition period, holders of a valid NI/GB driving licence will need to carry their NI/GB driving licence with them at all times. They will not, however, be required to carry an International Driving Permit (IDP) to drive in Ireland. In addition, a motor insurance green card will be required for vehicles from GB and Northern Ireland, being driven in the south or other EU Member States.

In response to the coronavirus pandemic driving licences that expire(d) between 1 February and 31 December 2020 have been extended by eleven months, and drivers are not required to renew in this period. If there is not a negotiated outcome that allows mutual recognition of driving licences, other EU member states may not recognise extended GB NI-issued licences from 1 January 2021.

My Department is in daily contact with the Department of Transport to ensure that the needs of Northern Ireland are taken into account in negotiations with the EU, and that there is as little disruption as possible for drivers travelling into the South, and for all-island transport.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the implications limited resources in terms of design capacity is having on future minor and major works programmes, broken down by roads division.

Ms Mallon: While design resource is one factor in the delivery of future minor and major works programme, the key factor that dictates the scale and number of roads and other schemes that can be delivered is overall funding levels. The reality is that operating with a single year budget and a lack of certainty around funding in future years inhibits our ability to plan in advance for future schemes given the long lead-in times and procurement requirements.

The current funding envelope within which my Department is required to operate only allows for higher priority schemes to be taken forward at this time. Until funding in future years is determined, it is not possible to comment on the implications of any restricted design capacity on future programmes.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the extent of delays in land acquisition due to resource limitations, broken down by roads division.

Ms Mallon: There is currently only one vacancy within Divisional Lands teams (in Southern Division) and this is not considered to significantly impact on land acquisition or delivery of programmes.

While land acquisition is one factor to be considered in the delivery of future minor and major works programmes across Divisions, the key factor that dictates the scale and number of roads and other schemes that can be delivered is overall funding levels. The reality is that operating with a single year budget and a lack of certainty around funding in future years can also inhibit the ability to plan in advance and purchase land for future schemes.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail all the minor and major works programmes which are currently delayed, or put on hold, due to limited resources in terms of design capacity and land acquisition, broken down by roads division.

Ms Mallon: While design resource is one factor in the delivery of future minor and major works programmes across Divisions, the key factor that dictates the scale and number of schemes that can be delivered is overall funding levels. It is considered that all schemes included in this year's minor and major works programmes are progressing satisfactorily and that no schemes included in this year's programme are delayed or put on hold because of resourcing issues within the design or lands teams.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how she will address the shortage of personnel which currently exists within (i) designs capacity; and (ii) land acquisitions, broken down by roads division.

(AQW 9443/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In common with other parts of the NI Civil Service, the Department has experienced some delays to recruitment processes as a result of the Covid-19 pandemic and associated restrictions.

However, processes are in place to fill priority vacancies in all parts of the Department as a matter of urgency including in design and land acquisitions. These include both internal and external recruitment through NICS HR as well as specific recruitment of Civil Engineering Graduate Trainees and Apprentices.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the extent of resource limitations in terms of design capacity, broken down by roads division.

(AQW 9444/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There are approximately 145 internal civil engineering posts within the DfI Roads Consultancy business unit of which 39 relate to road / junction improvement designs. 12 of these posts are currently vacant with the breakdown across Divisions is as follows:

Roads Division	Number of Vacant Posts in Road Design Teams
Eastern Division	5
Southern Division	3
Western Division	2
Northern Division	2

There is currently a recruitment process ongoing which, when completed, will enhance the overall internal design capacity.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the private streets in West Tyrone which are not adopted by her Department; and (ii) the length of time they have been unadopted.

(AQW 9478/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department does not hold this information by constituency but rather holds it by Council area. However we still hold information on the old Council boundary areas of Omagh and Strabane and believe this makes up the West Tyrone constituency.

The list of un-adopted development/private streets sites below are at various stages ranging from planning permission recently granted to largely complete. These sites/phases make up the road infrastructure in housing developments that are proposed for adoption. The site name/address provided has been extracted from the planning permission, however, it should be noted that this does not always match that used in subsequent naming of the development.

Although my Department is unable to specify exactly the period of time that all private streets have been unadopted, the year when files were opened for each site is a good indicator and details of this have been provided. You will also appreciate this list is subject to ongoing change as developments are completed and new ones added.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Fintona flood alleviation scheme.
(AQW 9480/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is continuing to assess whether at present there are any viable flood alleviation works that can be taken forward. A financially viable scheme has not been identified at this stage, but it is anticipated that the final assessment process will be complete by the end of this calendar year.

In the meantime my Department annually inspects and maintains a number of designated urban watercourses in the Fintona area. In addition watercourse inlet structures, that my Department has responsibility for, are inspected and maintained on a weekly basis and my officials play an active role in supporting the community resilience group in the area.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has plans for a new Omagh bus centre.
(AQW 9481/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Translink has advised it currently has no plan in place for a new Omagh Bus Centre. However, there is currently a project on the capital plan for a replacement garage at Omagh, subject to funding being available.

I do recognise the potential which new bus stations could provide to areas such as Omagh. Unfortunately, I have severe and challenging budget constraints with significant pressures across my Department. I will be assessing these pressures reflecting my priorities, the commitments in "New Decade: New Approach" and the budget made available for the 2021/22 period ahead.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure what assessment her Department has made on the impact that a large-scale electric vehicle rollout in Northern Ireland would have on air pollution levels.

Ms Mallon: Road transport is a significant contributor to both greenhouse gases and air pollutants, responsible for emissions of carbon dioxide, nitrogen oxides and particulate matter. In terms of the impact on air pollution, whilst electric vehicles do not emit nitrogen oxides, small particle pollution from brake, tyre and road wear is still produced. Therefore, whilst supporting the uptake of electric vehicles, I am encouraging people to walk and cycle whenever possible.

My Department continues to identify, plan and implement measures to promote and enable a shift onto more sustainable modes of transport to reduce emissions and improve air quality. My Department will continue to work closely with the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs who is leading on the development of a long term clean air strategy for Northern Ireland, creating opportunities to identify and implement further measures to improve air quality whilst simultaneously cutting carbon emissions.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps her Department is taking to encourage more people to switch to electric vehicles.

(AQW 9535/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since taking up post I have made clear my commitment to delivering greener, cleaner, sustainable transport. I chose to have an electric vehicle for my Ministerial duties and recently wrote to Executive colleagues to invite them to do the same.

The 'Road to Zero' strategy sets out a number of targets and actions in order to achieve an increase in electric vehicles. The Office for Low Emission Vehicles (OLEV) provides a range of e-car related grants towards the purchase of electric vehicles including home, workplace and residential charge points to support the delivery of these targets. My officials work closely with OLEV to monitor the range of e-car related grants and provide advice and guidance to support the transition to zero emissions.

Recently alongside Minister Ryan in the Irish Government and Minister Matheson in the Scottish Government I committed funding in partnership with the EU to deliver increased investment in e-charging points across the island as part of our ambition to transform transport.

In addition, my Department is working to identify further action to support the decarbonisation of transport and infrastructure services that will help to reduce carbon emissions and address the climate emergency. I agreed with Minister Poots MLA earlier this year to work collaboratively to promote the use of electric vehicles and specifically to improve the charge point network across the North. I remain committed to working in partnership with my Executive colleagues and others across our islands to help deliver a change in the way we travel that also helps us to tackle the climate crisis.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will consider rural areas when developing electric vehicle charging infrastructure.

Ms Mallon: The current e-car public charge point network is owned, operated and maintained by the Electricity Supply Board (ESB). The market is also open to other commercial operators who wish to provide charging infrastructure. My Department will, however, liaise closely with commercial providers to ensure the charging infrastructure remains fit for purpose and that consideration is given to provision of charging infrastructure across the North, including in rural areas.

I fully recognise the importance of having modern, reliable public electric vehicle charging infrastructure in providing confidence for users of ultra-low emission vehicles and in respect of the connectivity improvements this would bring. I am pleased that my Department has been able to financially support the EU Funded FASTER project to install EV Rapid Chargers. The project will complement and enhance the existing EV charging infrastructure, and will mean a total of 73 electric vehicle charging points across the eligible area of the Programme i.e. the island of Ireland and the West of Scotland by 31 March 2023.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to address the climate emergency, what steps her Department is taking to enhance the charge point infrastructure.

(AQW 9537/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The e-car public charge point network is owned, operated and maintained by the Electricity Supply Board (ESB) and the market is also open to other commercial operators who wish to provide charging infrastructure. My Department has recently been engaging with ESB on their plans to upgrade and improve the reliability of the existing public network.

I have also recently announced my intention to bring forward proposals to assist the expansion of the recharging infrastructure for electric vehicles by providing additional permitted development rights. These allow works to proceed without the need to apply for planning permission.

I fully recognise the importance of having modern, reliable public electric vehicle charging infrastructure in providing confidence for users of ultra-low emission vehicles and in respect of the connectivity improvements this would bring. I am pleased that my Department has been able to financially support the EU Funded FASTER project to install EV Rapid Chargers. The project will complement and enhance the existing EV charging infrastructure, and will mean a total of 73 electric vehicle charging points across the eligible area of the Programme i.e. the island of Ireland and the West of Scotland by 31 March 2023.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8277/17-22, whether her Department has informed, or intends to inform, the European Commission as to why it is appropriate to (i) allow unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development to continue at Lough Neagh Special Protection Area; (ii) permit unauthorised EIA development to become immune from enforcement action; and (iii) justify how such actions do not breach the EIA directive.

Ms Mallon: My Department has provided relevant information to the European Commission in relation to the Lough Neagh case at different stages in the process, and will continue to provide it with information as appropriate and necessary.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to her recent announcement to plan a high speed rail feasibility study from Derry-Belfast-Dublin-Cork-Limerick, whether she will engage with her Ministerial counterpart in the south to progress a western arc rail route which could provide a rail connection from Derry-Letterkenny-Sligo- Galway.

Ms Mallon: The Executive and the Irish Government are committed, through the North South Ministerial Council (NSMC), to help deliver all island infrastructure projects that will benefit people across the island, including investment in infrastructure that will support cooperation and unlock the full potential of our island economy.

At last month's NSMC Transport sector meeting, Minister Ryan and I agreed to extend the feasibility study for high speed rail to include Derry and Limerick. I am committed to working with Minister Ryan to explore what other rail enhancements are possible. I intend to discuss rail connectivity further with Minister Ryan in the coming months.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an indicative timescale for a decision being made following the Department receiving the inspectors report for the A1.
(AQW 9562/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am very aware of how important the A1 improvements are for the many people who have expressed their support for the scheme, especially those who have lost loved ones. My thoughts are with the family who lost their loved one in a collision on the A1 earlier this month.

The Inspector issued his report to the Department on 19 October 2020. Officials will require some time to fully and efficiently consider the Inspector's proposals and recommendations.

When I have been apprised on the findings, I will give them careful consideration before deciding on the next steps for this scheme. I very much recognise the importance of these improvements and hope to be in position to publish the Department's response to the Inspector's report towards the end of January 2021.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the number of private electric vehicles, compared to the number of private vehicles in total.
(AQW 9565/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Swansea, with permission from the Department for Transport publishes licensed vehicle statistics for GB and NI from their administrative database.

A comprehensive statistical data set is available <https://www.gov.uk/government/statistical-data-sets/all-vehicles-veh01#licensed-vehicles>

Included in the data set Table VEH0130 indicates that at the end of Quarter 2 2020 there were 3,673 plug in electric vehicles across all categories in Northern Ireland.

At March 2020 there were 1.2 million registered vehicles in Northern Ireland.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what engagement she or her Department has had or plans to have with the Union Connectivity Review.
(AQW 9587/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Union Connectivity Review was announced by Prime Minister Johnston on 30th June 2020, to examine current connectivity arrangements and help plan improvements to road, rail, air and sea links between all parts of the UK.

On 13th August the Department for Transport formally wrote to me to advise that a Chair had been appointed to the Review.

In September I wrote a joint letter to the Secretary of State for Transport, Grant Shapps, along with Transport Ministers from the Scottish and Welsh governments, asking for clarity on the nature of the Review and its implications for devolved administrations, to whom Transport Policy remains a devolved matter.

This was followed by a call with Minister Shapps and a meeting with the Chair of the Union Connectivity Review is currently being scheduled to take place in the coming weeks.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether wedding car hire businesses are eligible to apply for the Support Fund for Taxi Drivers and Private Coach and Bus Operators, announced on 29 October 2020.
(AQW 9588/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I recently secured funding of £14m for taxi drivers and £5m for private bus and coach operators from the Executive. The funding for taxi drivers is open to drivers in all classes, including Class C which wedding car drivers fall under. This package, taken together with the £1.5m that I have already put in place to waive fees for the renewal of taxi and bus vehicle licences, will ensure that more drivers will be able to continue in the trade and hence be available for recovery, post-Covid.

The financial assistance scheme for taxi drivers is open to all self-employed licensed drivers including wedding car drivers who were available to work from 22nd March to 30th September 2020. The eligibility criteria for the scheme is being finalised, and details will be made available when it launches this week. The bespoke support offered will be via a one off payment of £1500. This one off payment will be a contribution to their yearly overhead costs including PPE and recognises the financial pressures sustained by eligible taxi drivers due to Covid-19.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for Infrastructure, following her recognition of its importance to Enniskillen, whether the Southern Bypass scheme will go to tender before the end of December 2020.
(AQW 9593/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I acknowledge the significance of the Enniskillen Southern Bypass and reaffirm my commitment to moving ahead with this important scheme. I am currently considering the making of the statutory orders for the scheme after which I will consider the next steps.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on all flood alleviation studies in West Tyrone.
(AQW 9602/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is undertaking a number of flood alleviation studies in West Tyrone. It is anticipated that feasibility studies for Elmwood Green, Castleberg, Sion Mills Village and Campsie Bridge, Lower Market Street, Omagh will be completed before the end of the 2020/21 financial year. It is also expected that a feasibility study for Strabane will be completed by summer 2021. It is also anticipated that the final assessment process, to assess the potential for a flood alleviation scheme for Fintona, will be complete by the end of this calendar year.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps are being taken to enforce traffic restrictions, or otherwise control traffic, at the Dark Hedges.
(AQW 9617/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department introduced a Prohibition of Traffic Order on the Bregagh Road between Ballykenver Road and Ballinlea Road on 30 October 2017 at the request of Causeway Coast & Glens Borough Council. The PSNI has responsibility for the enforcement of this traffic restriction. There are no other traffic restrictions or control measures in the vicinity of the Dark Hedges.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister for Infrastructure what measures will be put in place to provide shelter from the weather for drivers who have to wait outside MOT Centres while their vehicles are tested.

Ms Mallon: The Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) has carried out an extensive review of its risk assessments to ensure that all relevant control measures relating to Covid-19 have been incorporated into its driver and vehicle testing processes.

One of the risks identified in the risk assessment is interaction with the public and the potential of contracting or spreading Covid-19. In order to mitigate against this risk, and to meet PHA guidelines in relation to social distancing, it has been necessary for the DVA to take steps to reduce the number of people in the test hall. Therefore DVA customers are advised in their reminder notice and booking appointment confirmation, to come prepared for the weather as they may need to remain outside for the duration of the test and there may be no shelter available.

I fully appreciate your concerns and accept this is far from an ideal situation. Following a further review of their risk assessments, the DVA is putting in place localised arrangements to accommodate as many customers as possible within the test centre buildings while their vehicles are being tested. Customers will be required to wear face coverings and comply with the H&S requirements at each test centre and this position will be kept under review.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether, in the event of a shortage of driving test instructors, DVA will prioritise the resumption of Approved Driving Instructor testing.
(AQW 9644/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There are currently around 1,000 Approved Driving Instructors (ADIs) and approximately 50 Potential Driving Instructors (PDIs), active on the Register. 8 PDIs, who have obtained their Part 1, are waiting on their Part 2 and Part 3 tests.

The Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) conducts approximately 47,000 Category B (private car) practical driving tests per annum. The ratio of driving test to ADI is 47 per annum, which does not suggest there is a shortage of driving instructors.

The DVA is considering the safe resumption of all driver testing services, including the ADI Part 2 and Part 3 qualifying tests, and will directly contact PDIs with details of when these tests will be reinstated and how they can book a test.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether the financial assistance provided to taxi drivers to contribute to yearly overhead costs and additional costs incurred by personal protection equipment, will negatively affect and potentially disqualify struggling taxi drivers from benefit payments, such as housing benefit.

Ms Mallon: It will be up to eligible taxi drivers in applying for the financial assistance scheme and, based on their individual financial circumstances, to consider any implications for other financial support and benefits that they receive. My Department is not in a position to determine the implications on benefit payments for individual applicants.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will provide support for (i) wedding car; and (ii) other car operators.

Ms Mallon: You will be aware that I secured funding of £14m for taxi drivers recently from the Executive. This package, taken together with the £1.2m that I have already put in place to waive fees for the renewal of taxi vehicle licences, will help taxi drivers to be able to continue in the trade and therefore be available for recovery, post-Covid.

The financial assistance scheme is open to all self-employed licensed drivers, including wedding car drivers, who were available to work from 22nd March to 30th September 2020 and who meet the eligibility criteria. The criteria for the scheme is being finalised and details will be made available when it launches this week. The bespoke support offered will be via a one off payment of £1500. This one off payment will be a contribution to their yearly overhead costs including PPE and recognises the financial pressures sustained by eligible drivers due to Covid-19.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how many individuals in the north of Ireland hold southern driving licences; and (ii) whether these licences will need to be traded for northern licences before the end of the transition period.

Ms Mallon: The DVA does not hold details of the number of drivers who are resident in Northern Ireland, who hold a driving licence issued in the South and who have not exchanged their driving licence with the DVA.

Holders of a Group 1 (car/motorcycle) driving licence issued in the South can drive in Northern Ireland as long as the licence is valid, or they can exchange the licence for a Northern Ireland one to show new address details. The rules for lorry, minibus and bus driving licence holders (vocational driving licence) are different, and they can drive using a driving licence issued in the South for five years after becoming resident, or for those aged 65 or over, for 12 months after becoming resident. In order to continue driving after these periods, the driver is required to get a Northern Ireland driving licence.

Existing arrangements, which allow the holder of a driving licence issued in the South who is resident in NI or GB, to exchange their licence for a NI or GB one, will continue unchanged until 31 December 2020.

My officials have been engaging with counterparts in the Department of Transport regarding what arrangements in respect of driving licences will apply from 1 January 2021. It is the intention of the British Government to publish the future arrangements that are agreed with Member States in respect of driving licences before the end of the transition period.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure why planning guidelines for quarrying have not been updated.

Ms Mallon: Current planning policy for minerals development are contained within 'A Planning Strategy for Rural Northern Ireland' and the Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS).

There are planning guidelines for quarrying contained in 'Vibration and Blasting Guidelines (NI)' published in September 2017 which were updated from the previous 1995 report.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to define what constitutes an occupied property in planning terms.

(AQW 9670/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There is no singular definition in Northern Ireland planning law or policy which specifically defines the term 'occupied property'.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure what her Department is doing to fulfil the Executive's commitment to building a united and shared society through the Together: Building a United Community strategy.

(AQW 9683/17-22)

Ms Mallon: While my Department does not directly lead the delivery of Together: Building a United Community actions, I recognise that we have an important supporting role to play in building a united and shared society and am committed to doing so.

Examples of this include our work in support of the Urban Villages Programme through specific projects such as the Colin Connect Transport Hub and also through our contribution through planning policies to the development of shared spaces that can be used and enjoyed by all. Our public transport system is also crucial in helping people and communities connect with each other and with employment and other opportunities.

Together with other departments, we also have an important role to play in helping rid communities of unwanted flags, emblems and other displays that can cause division. In this regard, the Justice Minister and I have jointly written to the First and deputy First Ministers asking sight of the Commission on Flags, Identity, Culture and Tradition (FICT) report. I remain committed to working collectively with Executive colleagues towards a sustainable solution in this area.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8376/17-22, what contact her Department has had with the European Commission over her decision not to take enforcement against unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment development that has become immune, or is currently taking place as a result of her Department's decision not to stop unauthorised sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area.

Ms Mallon: My Department has provided relevant information to the European Commission in relation to the Lough Neagh case at different stages in the process, and will continue to provide it with information as appropriate and necessary.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure what exceptional circumstances meant that her Department was the only Department to bid for holiday pay as part of the October monitoring round.

Ms Mallon: Untaken annual leave is required to be recognised as a liability at each financial year end. Under normal circumstances, the liability from one financial year to the next is not usually significantly different for my Department. However, given the unprecedented situation, it is anticipated that the amount of annual leave carried forward will be greater than the previous year end, hence increasing the liability this financial year.

My Department is facing significant resource pressures as a result of income lost due to the pandemic and simply is not able to absorb any further pressures. Given the challenging financial position, my Department submitted the pressure arising from the estimated increase in the year-end holiday accrual as a bid in the October monitoring round.

This issue is not unique to DfI. I cannot speculate on the actions of other Departments and why they may or may not have bid for similar pressures.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) actions taken to increase capacity at MOT centres; and (ii) current capacity compared to the situation prior to (a) the pandemic; and (b) the lift faults issue.

Ms Mallon: There has been a gradual resumption of MOT services from 1 June 2020, when the Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) resumed Individual Vehicle Approval testing.

From 20 July, the Driver and Vehicle Agency resumed MOT testing, at all test centres, for priority vehicle groups, including those vehicles that are not able to avail of a Temporary Exemption Certificate (TEC). This includes taxis and buses due a first time test, vehicles not previously registered in Northern Ireland, vehicles whose MOTs have expired by more than 12 months that includes vehicles previously declared SORN and those sold by car dealerships.

From 1 September, MOT testing for four year old cars and motorbikes and three year old light goods vehicles also resumed and for those vehicles in this category that currently have a 6 month TEC, they will be called for test when their TEC expires. In addition, the DVA recommenced testing of heavy goods vehicles, trailers and buses.

TECs will continue to be automatically generated from DVA's system for all eligible vehicles that the DVA does not have the capacity to test at this time.

The current capacity for vehicle testing is approximately 30% in comparison with levels prior to the pandemic and the lift issues. To meet increasing demand, the DVA is in the process of recruiting additional examiners and will also use overtime to provide additional capacity and cover for vehicle tests, if due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, examiners are unable to attend work.

Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time. Vehicle testing capacity will increase as restrictions ease and risk assessments are updated until such times as normal service delivery resumes.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 9226/17-22, whether Mountain View Drive will also be included in this assessment for traffic calming measures.

(AQW 9734/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have asked my officials to add Mountain View Drive, Newry to the existing list of locations that are being assessed for possible provision of traffic calming measures in accordance with our established framework.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to assist local high street business and help improve trade, what consideration her Department has given to temporarily extending parking restrictions from one hour to two hours in town centres.

Ms Mallon: I am fully committed to doing all I can to help businesses and the communities get through and recover from the current pandemic. Since becoming Minister, I have also made clear my desire to change the way we use our roads and streets, and make sure they work for the whole community, both residents and businesses alike.

My Department's approach to the provision of on-street parking is already aimed at helping businesses, as well as helping local people access their city and town centres, in a way that is designed to cater for a range of varied needs. Extending permitted parking times, while benefitting some businesses, would disadvantage others who are, despite the circumstances arising from the pandemic, still dependent on the quick turnover of available spaces.

I am therefore of the opinion that the current approach still represents the best way forward in terms of achieving a balance that best accommodates the varied and competing needs of the different types of businesses and business users in our towns.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to planning, whether her Department has considered the introduction of mineral safeguarding areas.

Ms Mallon: Regional planning policy for minerals development is set out in the Department's Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS). The SPPS requires councils to bring forward appropriate policies and proposals for minerals development in their Local Development Plans (LDPs). In particular LDPs should, inter alia, safeguard mineral resources which are of economic or conservation value, and seek to ensure that workable mineral resources are not sterilised by other surface development which would prejudice future exploitation.

Furthermore, in preparing their LDPs, councils may also identify areas most suitable for minerals development within the plan area. Such areas will normally include areas of mineral reserves where exploitation is likely to have the least environmental and amenity impacts, as well as offering good accessibility to the strategic transport network.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) how many times each of the Strangford Ferry Service ferries have been out of service for maintenance or breakdown in the past twelve months; and (ii) the maintenance cost for each ferry in that time.

(AQW 9770/17-22)

Ms Mallon:

- (i) In the last 12 months the ferries have been out of service for maintenance or due to a breakdown as follows:
 - a) MV Strangford II - five times. Once for the planned 6 week annual refit, once due to contaminated fuel and three times to address potential faults; and
 - b) MV Portaferry II – twice. Once for its planned 6 week annual refit, which was extended into June due to COVID-19 restrictions, and once due to a fault for which we are currently awaiting delivery of specialist parts to undertake repairs.
- (ii) In the last 12 months the maintenance costs for the MV Strangford II and MV Portaferry II have been £80.4k and £228.1k respectively.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8335/17-22, to detail (i) the projected full cost of the wastewater upgrade works for Limavady; (ii) the works included in the potential £63,000 preparation works for the project; and (iii) the full works deemed necessary for the complete Limavady wastewater project.

(AQW 9782/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have been advised by Northern Ireland Water that:

- (i) The estimated full cost of investment in wastewater upgrades for Limavady during the PC21 period is £4.2 million. This investment will be subject to funding;
- (ii) Preparation works will include surveys to confirm existing infrastructure; identify location of services; establish ground conditions; and engagement of contractors and consultant engineers to develop a detailed design that will deliver a best value solution; and
- (iii) The Limavady work package is contained within NI Water's £2 billion business plan for the period 2021 to 2027, known as Price Control 21 (PC21). The Utility Regulator will provide its Final Determination on NI Water's business plan in March 2021. The full package of work identified for Limavady for the PC21 period is anticipated to fall into three areas:

Limavady Catchment Upgrade

- Repair of sewers in the Edenmore Road area

- New trunk sewers in Scroggy Road, Greyabbey Road, Edenmore Road, Ballyquin Road, Roe Valley Park, Benevenagh Drive, Shanreagh Park, Church Street and Blackburn Park
- New pumps and additional storage at Whitehill Wastewater Pumping Station

Bovally Wastewater Pumping Station

- Construction of a new pumping station with storage

Ballyclose Street Combined Storm Overflow

- Provision of storage to protect watercourse from Unsatisfactory Intermittent Discharges

PC21 is subject to the appropriate public expenditure funding being made available to my department. The total funding required will be in the order of £2 billion. This compares to capital spend in the previous Price Control in the order of £940m, and demonstrates the scale of the challenge that we face in order to provide a first class water and sewerage services which enables health, development and economic growth.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister for Infrastructure what assurances she can give that complaints regarding (i) street lighting; (ii) ponding; and (iii) blocked gullies are dealt with in a timely manner.

Ms Mallon: The NI Direct website provides an interface between the public and my Department through a Public Information Portal (PIP) system which allows members of the public to report road related faults such as street lighting and potholes or other defects such as spillages and gully blockages. The system also provides the facility for the person who reported the fault to track its progress.

Reports of ponding and blocked road gullies are prioritised, with those that are impacting on the safe passage of road traffic inspected and cleaned as soon as practicable and if considered necessary, this will extend to outside of normal office hours. Where traffic is not impacted these issues are usually dealt with by officials the next working day normally through inclusion within the next gully maintenance schedule.

My Department is currently providing a full street lighting repair service. Typically repairs will take up to 5 working days, however, there may be slight delays in some areas due to staff capacity issues related to Covid 19 that are affecting both our internal and external contractors.

I can assure the member that my staff endeavour to investigate and address all such complaints as quickly as possible and as permitted by availability of resources.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the progression of the Ballynahinch bypass.

(AQW 9808/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In June, I announced my commitment to fund the continued development of a number of Strategic Road Improvement schemes, including the A24 Ballynahinch Bypass, as part of my plan to aid economic recovery and community transformation, while addressing regional imbalance.

The Ballynahinch Bypass scheme is now at an advanced stage of development and preparatory work on contract documentation has been completed. I have asked officials to complete the work necessary to allow me to make the Direction Order. This includes a review of the environmental reports which is nearing completion and, subject to the outcome of the review, I hope to be in position to make the Direction Order for the scheme in the new year.

I reaffirm my commitment to moving ahead with the Ballynahinch Bypass scheme and I am currently considering the next steps.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many staff are employed in her Department's cycling unit.

(AQW 9813/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's Active Travel Branch (originally named the Cycling Unit) consists of seven members of staff, two of whom are part-time.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she intends to bring forward proposals to end permitted development rights for all fossil fuels including lignite.

(AQW 9817/17-22)

Ms Mallon: While I am bringing forward legislation to remove permitted development rights for petroleum (oil and gas) exploration, I have also asked officials to brief me on the operation of the minerals exploration permitted development regime for the remaining fossil fuels, including lignite. This will allow me to consider whether I wish to bring forward any further changes to permitted development rights for mineral exploration.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given that there has been four road traffic accidents within the last four weeks, including a fatality, what plans she has to improve road safety on the section of road from the junction of Whinney Hill and Ballymiscaw Road to the Belfast Road, Newtownards, including the Craigantlet crossroads junction.

Ms Mallon: I am aware that a serious road traffic collision occurred on the Holywood Road on 14 October 2020 and extend my sympathies to the family of the lady who lost her life in this tragic incident. I understand the PSNI are leading an investigation into this collision and upon its completion my officials will be liaising with them to obtain further information relating to this and the other collisions where injuries have been sustained. Officials will then consider any emerging factors relevant to my Department in respect of road safety.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) how many Glider inspectors there are; (ii) when they are on the Glider, broken down by location.

(AQW 9903/17-22)

Ms Mallon:

- (i) Translink currently have 23 Customer Revenue and Protection Officers (CRPOs).
- (ii) The CRPOs do not operate in a fixed location but patrol the entire Glider network during the operational day. Information on their location therefore is not collected.

Department of Justice

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Justice when the recommendations of the Family Justice Review will be implemented in full; and when an independent Chair will be appointed to the Family Justice Board, as recommended in section 20 of the Family Justice Review.

(AQW 9470/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): Responding to the large number of wide-ranging recommendations of the Review of Civil and Family Justice is not for the Department of Justice alone. Many are matters for the judiciary, the legal profession and other Departments. Others have significant financial, operational or cross-cutting implications and require careful analysis. The key recommendations from the Review which fall to my Department are currently being considered as part of a wider evolving programme of civil and family modernisation. Good progress has been made in a number of areas. That includes the additional protections for vulnerable court users being introduced through the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill, the development of a pilot to help address unnecessary delay in public family law proceedings by allowing the appointment of experts in without prior approval and work on a joint action plan with the Department of Health to improve outcomes for parties to private family proceedings.

I intend to continue to build on this good start including considering recommendations on the establishment of the Family Justice Board. In making decisions, I will want to consider all options and learn from the experience of other jurisdictions. I have noted, for example, that the independent Chair of the Family Justice Board in England and Wales has been replaced by joint Ministerial Chairs from the Department of Education and Ministry of Justice. I will wish to learn from the experience that has driven that change in approach before reaching any decisions.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice whether her Department will consult on legislation to contain a requirement for jury directions to be given in modern slavery and human trafficking offence cases to enable juries to approach court evidence in a more informed manner, as recommended by CJINI in their recent report; and to detail the timeline for this consultation.

Mrs Long: My Department is looking at a number of recommendations relating to jurors' responsibilities emanating from the CJINI report on modern slavery and human trafficking and the Gillen Review, which includes a similar recommendation about giving directions to rape trial jurors (an issue which was also previously noted by CJINI).

I intend to roll these together into a policy review in 2021, which will include a public consultation on a range of juror issues later in the year.

Any proposals for legislation which emerge will be considered for inclusion in the legislative programme for the next mandate.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Justice whether statistics on the racial background of people fined in Northern Ireland for breaches of COVID-19 restrictions have been compiled; and whether the findings of Lady Lawrence's inquiry that BAME people were seven times more likely to be fined than white people for COVID-19 infringements in England also applies in Northern Ireland.

Mrs Long: The Department does not hold the information requested. Fixed Penalty Notices (FPNs) in respect of breaches of COVID regulations may be issued by the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI), local councils, Border Force and any other body designated by DoH.

The issue of fixed penalty notices by the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI or to District Councils.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Justice why legislation does not make provision for time remanded on bail counting towards time served in the case of an imposed curfew and the use of electronic monitoring.

(AQW 9554/17-22)

Mrs Long: The introduction of credit for periods on bail with an electronic monitoring condition in England and Wales was facilitated by provisions in the Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 ("the 2008 Act") that were brought forward in response to a recommendation in Lord Carter's Review on the efficient and sustainable use of custody (essentially to curb prison overcrowding).

The provisions were implemented alongside another accepted Carter recommendation to reserve custody for the most serious offenders for which provision was also made in the 2008 Act.

This was achieved by means of an amendment to the Bail Act 1976 (Section 3AB) to provide a pre-condition that electronic monitoring can only be imposed as a condition of bail where the judge would otherwise have remanded an individual into custody.

Neither the provisions of the 2008 Act referred to above nor the Bail Act 1976 extend to Northern Ireland. Here, electronic monitoring is available as a condition of court bail without pre-condition as to its application, not just to those who might otherwise have been remanded into custody.

In this sense it is no different to court bail with a curfew condition (without an electronic monitoring requirement) where freedom of movement is also restricted by the court during curfew hours.

In neither scenario does the time spent on bail count as time served for sentence calculation purposes under the Treatment of Offenders Act (Northern Ireland) 1968.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister of Justice whether she has any plans to introduce legislation to make provision for time remanded on bail counting towards time served in the case of an imposed curfew and the use of electronic monitoring, similar to the corresponding provision in England and Wales contained in Section 240A of the Criminal Justice Act 2003.

Mrs Long: The introduction of credit for periods on bail with an electronic monitoring condition in England and Wales was facilitated by provisions in the Criminal Justice & Immigration Act 2008 ("the 2008 Act") that were brought forward in response to a recommendation in Lord Carter's Review on the efficient and sustainable use of custody (essentially to curb prison overcrowding).

The provisions were implemented alongside another accepted Carter recommendation to reserve custody for the most serious offenders for which provision was also made in the 2008 Act.

This was achieved by means of an amendment to the Bail Act 1976 (Section 3AB) to provide a pre-condition that electronic monitoring can only be imposed as a condition of bail where the judge would otherwise have remanded an individual into custody.

Neither the provisions of the 2008 Act referred to above nor the Bail Act 1976 extend to Northern Ireland. Here, electronic monitoring is available as a condition of court bail without pre-condition as to its application, not just to those who might otherwise have been remanded into custody.

In this sense it is no different to court bail with a curfew condition (without an electronic monitoring requirement) where freedom of movement is also restricted by the court during curfew hours.

In neither scenario does the time spent on bail count as time served for sentence calculation purposes under the Treatment of Offenders Act (Northern Ireland) 1968.

Any proposals to replicate the different arrangements in England and Wales for time remanded on bail to count towards time served would require significant reforms to both electronic monitoring and sentencing arrangements in Northern Ireland.

I do not have any plans to introduce any such legislation.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Justice for an update on recent and current waiting times for victims of sexual assault to access counselling via Nexus.

(AQW 9624/17-22)

Mrs Long: There are two steps in the process of beginning counselling with an individual. The first step is an Assessment Interview (AI) and once that is complete the person will then move on to Ongoing Counselling (OC).

At the end of Quarter 2 (July – September 2020) the waiting list was 1029 with an average waiting time to be seen for AI of approximately 12 weeks. The waiting list at 5th November 2020 is now 839 for an AI, with an approximate average waiting time of 6 weeks.

To date the waiting time for ongoing counselling is 3 to 4 months but due to additional funding from my Department that increased the Nexus contract value, it is hoped the waiting list and waiting times will reduce further moving forward.

Department for the Economy

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) what cross-border agencies fall within the remit of her Department; and (ii) what engagements she has had with these cross-border bodies since taking up post.
(AQW 3300/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): There are two cross-border agencies falling within the remit of my Department.

Tourism Ireland is the body responsible for marketing the island of Ireland as a tourism destination overseas and helping Northern Ireland achieve its tourism potential.

I have had a number of meetings with Niall Gibbons, Chief Executive of Tourism Ireland since taking up post. These have covered a range of key tourism issues, such as the impact of COVID-19 on tourism, the importance of air access, and how we can best maximise the potential of the Northern Ireland Experience Brand “Embrace a Giant Spirit”. Niall Gibbons is also a member of the Tourism Recovery Steering Group which I chair.

I have also participated in Tourism Ireland events. I attended a Tourism Ireland Northern Ireland Tourism Breakfast event in New York on 10th March 2020. This provided an opportunity to meet the Tourism Ireland team and to network with representatives of the US travel industry, media guests and tourism/business leaders from Northern Ireland. On 17th June 2020 I participated in the Tourism Ireland GB Marketing Partnership Group to discuss the impact of COVID-19 on marketing campaigns and heard from the industry about their views on travel to Northern Ireland.

InterTradelreland

InterTradelreland is the body responsible for the promotion of trade and business on a cross-border basis. It seeks to enhance the global competitiveness of the economy North and South to the mutual benefit of the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland.

I have met with InterTradelreland’s Chair, Ken Nelson and the agency’s senior management. This provided the opportunity for me to learn of the excellent work InterTradelreland has been doing over the past 20 years supporting small to medium sized businesses in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. Discussions also included the work that the body plans to do over the next few years to support cross-border business with the range of challenges they face, including the need to adapt to the emerging digital revolution, transition to a low carbon economy, the development of clusters on a cross-border basis, and the UK’s Exit from the European Union.

My Departmental officials are in regular contact with Tourism Ireland and InterTradelreland.

Mr McGuigan asked the Minister for the Economy what strategy her Department has to promote the tourism potential of cycling.

(AQW 6936/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The tourism potential of cycling was exemplified in 2014 when Tourism Northern Ireland supported and promoted the Giro D’Italia Grand Partenza, which generated £12.7 million in tourism impact and working through Tourism Ireland overseas gained a further £11.6 million in international media coverage. Tourism NI has subsequently provided £622,000 in funding for cycling events between 2015-2020.

While consumer research by Tourism NI highlights that cycling is not a key driver of visits to Northern Ireland, it is seen as an integral part of a holiday and demand is likely to increase if cycling is made safer and more accessible for visitors.

Tourism NI works closely with a range of public and private sector organisations and businesses who can provide safe, enjoyable cycling experiences for visitors to develop and promote market-led cycling tourism products and experiences.

In order to contribute to the further development of safe, market-led cycling tourism experiences, Tourism NI fed into the Department of Infrastructure’s “Bicycle Strategy for Northern Ireland” and sat on the Cycling Working group.

Greenways are an integral part of the Department of Infrastructure’s ‘Bicycle Strategy for Northern Ireland’ and, as a result, there are several Greenways at various stages of development across several Local Authority areas in Northern Ireland.

The significant investment in Greenways and other cycling infrastructure by central and local government has begun to increase the opportunity for tourism through cycling.

Visitors expect and appreciate this investment and destinations such as Northern Ireland need to be able to demonstrate a sustainable approach in order to stay competitive. My Department is very aware of this from a tourism perspective and also a wider economic perspective, and seeks to encourage and work with partners on all initiatives that support a greener and more sustainable economy for NI.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy whether she has plans to support the local newspaper industry across Northern Ireland.

Mrs Dodds: I fully appreciate the difficulty and stress that the COVID-19 public health crisis has created for local businesses and our economy at large, and I do recognise the specific problems faced by this particular industry.

During this pandemic, the Department for the Economy has led in paying out over £340m in support grants to almost 32,000 businesses across Northern Ireland as part of a wide range of support measures introduced by the Executive and UK Government to help those who have been affected by the consequences of COVID-19.

In addition, the Chancellor of the Exchequer has recently announced further measures to protect jobs and support businesses over the coming months, at a time when the Covid-19 pandemic will unfortunately continue to have significant public health and economic impacts for our society.

There are many employment and business sectors calling for additional support at this time. Therefore, in considering further interventions, including any new funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively to determine how this will be allocated to best support the economy.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy for a breakdown of the tourism sectors that will benefit from the additional £9.9 million announced recently.

Mrs Dodds: The additional £9.9m funding will support a portfolio of interventions, which aim to maximise the benefits to the whole of the tourism industry by creating demand, stimulating footfall and driving business revenue as opposed to supporting specific tourism sectors.

In the absence of international visitors, current marketing campaigns to encourage Northern Ireland and Republic of Ireland residents to holiday in Northern Ireland, are being uplifted to continue to stimulate consumer demand through the autumn and winter months. In addition to supporting Tourism NI's campaign activity, individual businesses will also be supported in the form of a 75% marketing grant of up to £5,000 towards their own marketing activity on the island of Ireland.

To drive further demand, Tourism NI will run a Holiday at Home Voucher Scheme providing NI consumers with discount vouchers to redeem against participating accommodation providers, attractions and activity providers.

Tourism NI is also focusing on securing business for 2021/22 by supporting Northern Ireland businesses to work in partnership with international tour operators and destination management companies. The aim is to ensure that Northern Ireland attractions, experiences and accommodation providers are being actively sold for the 2021/22 seasons by tour operators to consumers in overseas markets.

Funding is also being allocated to Tourism Ireland to support airlines in the marketing of sea and air routes between GB and Northern Ireland's ports and airports. This is aimed at increasing visitor numbers from the GB market whilst helping to sustain these routes which are important not just to tourism but also to the wider economy.

Additionally, Tourism NI will be providing targeted support to tourism businesses to adapt their products and services to respond to changes in the market place as a result of COVID-19.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister for the Economy whether data in the skills barometer will form the evidence base for the upcoming skills strategy.

Mrs Dodds: Jobs Supported by Invest NI

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for the Economy for a breakdown on the number of jobs Invest NI have supported in 2020, by each Assembly Constituency.

(AQW 8041/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Invest NI is unable to release the number of jobs that it has supported in 2020 as this information is due for release in official publications at the end of the 2020-21 financial year. However, information on the number of jobs announced by Invest NI since 1st January 2020 is included in the table below. It should be noted that these projects may have been approved for support by Invest NI in previous years but only publicly announced in 2020. Ms Anderson asked the Minister for the Economy for a breakdown on the number of jobs Invest NI have created in 2020, by each Assembly Constituency.

(AQW 8042/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Invest NI tracks the number of additional jobs created each year from KPI data collected from businesses it works with. As this process has not yet happened for 2020 we are unable to provide this information in response to your question. This information is normally available after the end of the financial year, once it has been collated and validated.

However, we have provided the number of jobs announced by Invest NI since 1st January 2020 in the table below. Mr Blair asked the Minister for the Economy, (i) how many requests her Department have received from airlines and airports for support with route development; and (ii) what decision the Department has taken on each request.

Mrs Dodds: My responsibility is with maintaining and enhancing Northern Ireland's air connectivity, both domestically and internationally, which is essential to rebuilding Northern Ireland's economy. In doing so, I fully acknowledge that civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Department for Transport (DfT).

My Department is always willing to consider any requests for support from airports/airlines that deliver value for money and are compliant with EU State Aid regulations.

For the calendar year to 12 October 2020, my Department has received two direct requests for support, one of which was supported, through co-operative marketing. This is the mechanism by which we provide route development support. It is delivered by Tourism Ireland and all airlines serving NI airports can apply directly to Tourism Ireland for support.

For the calendar year to 12 October 2020, Tourism Ireland have informed me that they have received eight requests for co-operative marketing support and all have been approved. This includes the one noted above.

Diane Dodds

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether meeting the costs of an increased cohort of teaching students at Stranmillis Univeristy College is consistent with the strategic priorities of her Department and the findings of research into Northern Ireland skills deficits.

(AQW 8285/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Whilst my Department provides the funding to Initial Teacher Education (ITE) providers, the Department of Education (DE) determines the ITE intake.

For Academic Year 2020/21, the NI Executive made a decision to ensure that no student who would have secured the necessary grades would be disadvantaged. DE therefore increased the overall number of ITE places and Stranmillis University College received an additional 28 places while St Mary's University College received 35.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the reasons for Ireland's university sector containing three and a third times more students than Northern Ireland's, compared to a population size two and a half times larger.

Mrs Dodds: The size of the student population in Northern Ireland (NI) is necessarily limited due to the levels of total funding available for the higher education sector. Such funding includes the level of available government budget for the NI higher education sector, student tuition fee levels in NI, and student support available for NI students. My Department must operate within these budgetary limits, which consequently impact on the number of HE students here on an annual basis.

It is not my position to comment on the higher education policy direction of the Republic of Ireland.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 6464-17/22, for an expected timeline for bringing forward proposals and a consultation on banning zero hours contracts.

(AQW 8317/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As outlined in my reply to AQW 6464-17/22, I will wish to take account of the views of stakeholders on this important issue. The pandemic has had a significant impact on the economy and I have sought to prioritise those legislative measures required to immediately address the effects of the pandemic on workers and businesses. In light of this ongoing priority, it is not possible to give a firm timeframe in relation to bringing forward consultation on this matter. However, I recognise the importance of the issue and I have asked my officials to continue to work towards bringing forward proposals at the earliest opportunity.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 6555/17-22, to specifically outline (i) which areas of funding for COVID-19 response measures were ring-fenced; (ii) where reallocations of £23.7 million originated from; and (iii) where they were directed to in order to fund emerging pressures.
(AQW 8319/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The Department for the Economy has received a total of £481.6 million Resource DEL funding from the Executive for COVID-19 response measures. All of this funding is ring-fenced.

In May 2020, £410.0 million was received relating to schemes to assist businesses experiencing financial hardship as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, with the overarching aim being to protect jobs and prevent business closures. £68.1 million of this funding was surrendered as it was not required based on the uptake of the schemes. £1.4 million was also received for student hardship. These schemes are ring-fenced.

As part of the June monitoring process £4.7 million was allocated to my Department for four COVID-19 interventions in Invest NI and Higher Education, each of these is ring-fenced. In respect of the COVID SME Process & Organisational Improvement Grant £1.2 million was surrendered at October monitoring as demand was less than originally anticipated.

In August and September 2020, as a result of the Chancellor's Summer Economic Update, my Department received urgent allocations for six initiatives totalling £26.3 million. Three for Apprenticeship schemes; two for Further Education relating to the provision of a safe learning environment and the additional cost of free school meals; and one for Higher Education to meet increased student numbers as a result of the policy change in respect of awarding A-level results in 2020. Each of these six initiatives is ring-fenced.

More recently, in the COVID-19 Allocation Exercise agreed on 24 September 2020, £39.2 million was allocated to my Department for 23 initiatives grouped into eight categories:

- Assistance to Business - £8.5 million;
- Skills and Youth Training - £8.35 million;
- Tourism £9.85 million;
- Stimulating Air Access Restoration – £1.85 million;
- Energy Strategy - £1.35 million;
- University Research - £5.8 million;
- Provision of a safe learning environment in Higher Education - £2.5 million; and
- Provision of a safe learning environment in Further Education not funded in earlier exercises - £1.0 million.

For this most recent funding, as detailed in AQW 6555/17-22, the Executive approved the ability to exercise flexibility across similar initiatives within the same category of funding. For previous funding there is no flexibility to reallocate funds across the various COVID-19 response measures.

- (ii) and (iii) In addition to the allocations from the Executive detailed above, as noted in AQW 6555/17-22, £23.7 million of funding was reallocated from the budget of my own Department, as part of June monitoring, to address emerging COVID-19 budget pressures. This funding is not ring-fenced. These reallocations originated from areas where Reduced Requirements as a result of COVID-19 were identified, and also from an assessment to determine if anything could be reduced or stopped to address priority COVID-19 pressures. The funding was mainly re-prioritised from Invest NI and Higher Education. More details on the pressures which were met from the reallocations are detailed on pages 25 and 26 of the Finance Minister's June Monitoring Statement at the following link:

<https://www.finance-ni.gov.uk/publications/year-monitoring-public-expenditure-2020-21>

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the support being given to students who are away from home and currently in isolation at our universities.
(AQW 8340/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In Northern Ireland, there are 3 main types of student accommodation:

- University owned and operated student accommodation (Halls of Residence);
- Purpose built and managed student accommodation (Private); and
- Houses of multiple occupation (HMOs) and the private rented sector.

For university owned and operated student accommodation, the universities already have in place systems to advise, support and assist isolating students living in this type of accommodation. For the remaining two types of student accommodation, it is proposed to issue a 'support framework', through the HEIs, to keep them informed of the range of support measures which are already in place, whether at the university-level, or even information on local providers of groceries and medical supplies. Officials have been working to develop this framework with the Department for Communities, who developed the Covid-19 Regional Community Helpline (Advice NI) and which can help to triage students' individual needs through appropriate signposting. This framework will provide clear and consistent information on the support which is currently available for isolating HE students, and will issue shortly.

In addition, my Department provides support to students facing genuine financial hardship through the provision of support funds. These funds are distributed by the universities on behalf of my Department. A total of £5.6m was allocated to the universities in this financial year, and students should contact their institution for details on eligibility and how to apply for support.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy, with regard to the ending of the current European Social Fund Programme funding period in 2022, for her assessment of the risks to funding to Northern Ireland disability employment groups.
(AQW 8409/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The funding for existing projects supported by the Northern Ireland European Social Fund (ESF) Programme (2014-2020) continues until March 2022. A joint project with the Department for Communities has been established to consider the policy and delivery options once the current projects conclude.

Securing the necessary funding will be a key consideration. Until we have clarity from the UK Government on the UK Shared Prosperity Fund there is a risk to provision after March 2022. Engagement on the funding issues is being progressed by the Department of Finance with the objective of securing at least the same level of funding as we currently receive from the EU.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department has reviewed all BT broadband schemes that her Department funded, or part funded.
(AQW 8423/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has not funded any BT schemes. BT has, as the successful bidder, delivered a number of public broadband interventions following a public procurement process. These include the Next Generation Broadband Project (NGBP), the Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project (NIBIP), and the Superfast Rollout Project (SRP). Of these, a Post Project Evaluation (PPE) has been carried out in line with Government practice on the NGBP. NIBIP and SRP were funded jointly with BDUK which has carried out an assurance on the expenditure on NIBIP, and will also conduct this exercise on SRP. In due course PPEs will be undertaken by the Department on both projects when the projects have completed.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy what engagement she is undertaking with other Departments to ensure (i) the new renewable electricity target which she said should not be below 70 per cent by 2030 is achievable; and (ii) that all necessary cross-Departmental action is taken to ensure it is delivered.

Mrs Dodds: Given the inter-related nature of your questions, I will answer them together.

I agree that the success of a future Energy Strategy will require action across a number of Department. This is why my Department leads an Energy Strategy Government Stakeholders Group, covering both central and local government, to ensure partnership-working across all the relevant departments. In addition, many departments are represented on the five working groups looking at policy options in respect of power, heat, transport, energy efficiency and consumers.

This collaborative approach ensures that the Energy Strategy is not only aligned with other Departmental strategies, e.g. DAERA Green Growth, but also that where action may be required by other Departments, this is being adequately considered with those officials involved from the outset.

The issues around achieving at least a 70% renewable electricity target, including grid development and route to market, are being considered within the Power Working Group.

This group includes representation from both the Transmission System and the Distribution Network Operators, as well as the Utility Regulator, to ensure that ambitions in relation to renewable electricity generation can be accommodated by the grid in the most cost effective way possible. This will require a combination of grid investment and greater system efficiency and flexibility through the deployment measures such as smart system technology, better use of data and ancillary services.

The Power Working Group is also considering any future support mechanisms that may be needed to bring forward investment. As a first step, I have asked my officials to engage with their counterparts in the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy to look at the potential of the Contracts for Difference Scheme. However, a wide range of potential mechanisms are also being considered.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy how her Department will ensure the electricity grid is capable of facilitating the new renewable electricity target of at least 70 per cent by 2030.
(AQW 8460/17-22)

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, given the role it will play in attracting investment and creating jobs as part of the green recovery, what steps her Department has been taken to accelerate the publication of the new Energy Strategy.

(AQW 8461/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome your recognition of the important role that energy will play in supporting a green recovery.

The Energy Strategy, led by my Department, will provide a long-term direction of travel for the future decarbonisation of energy, and the decisions within it will have significant implications for consumers and taxpayers for decades to come. This work needs to be given the appropriate time to ensure decisions are evidence-based and thoroughly considered.

A large work programme is therefore progressing through the five working groups which brings together over 70 stakeholders to develop appropriate policy options relating to heat, power, transport, energy efficiency and consumers.

I have also made clear that I will not wait for the strategy to be published to progress urgent issues that need to be moved forward now. In that regard, I have set out my ambition for both hydrogen and renewable electricity in advance of the strategy being published in order to provide a clear signal to industry and encourage investment now.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, given her recent commitment that the new renewable electricity target should not be below 70 per cent by 2030, for an update on what work has been done to introduce a route to market for renewable projects.

(AQW 8462/17-22)

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what action she is taking to co-ordinate with other Executive Ministers to support students and staff at universities and colleges in Northern Ireland during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 8483/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

Universities

While my Department is responsible for higher education policy in relation to teaching and research, as autonomous institutions, the universities are ultimately responsible for their own policies in relation to responding to the Covid-19 pandemic in line with Public Health Agency (PHA) advice – this includes ensuring there are robust protocols in place to minimise the spread of Covid-19. My Department has no formal remit to intervene, although we have shared a range of relevant supporting guidance with the universities.

That said, I and my officials are in very regular contact with our universities and university colleges, and I have sought assurances from them on provision for a safe opening, for both students and staff. My officials, along with the universities, have also been participating in the Executive Office's Covid-19 Strategic Enforcement Group. For the past couple of weeks, this group has had higher education as a key agenda point, in order to discuss actions to help minimise the spread of Covid-19, and discuss support for students who are self-isolating.

All HEIs have confirmed that the health, safety and wellbeing of their staff and students is their first priority. Plans for a safe return to campus were developed in accordance with the NI Executive's Pathway to Recovery plan, and are in adherence to all guidelines issued by the Public Health Agency.

From a financial perspective, my Department has put in place measures to assist students who experience financial hardship due to Covid-19. This financial year, I have secured an additional £1.4m from the Executive and a further £1.4m from my own Department's budget, making available a total of £5.6m to support students facing genuine financial hardship. Any increase in funding for the financial year 2021/22 is subject to additional budget being available and also the ongoing demand for the funds.

Further Education Colleges

My Department and I recognise that since the start of the Covid-19 pandemic, the needs of staff and learners at Further Education (FE) colleges have changed, as has the nature and delivery of the support they require. Supporting them at this time is a key priority for both the Department and the FE colleges themselves.

In June my Department established an Advisory and Oversight Group (AOG) to work collaboratively with the FE Sector to prepare for the safe resumption of on-site educational delivery. The AOG developed the 'Framework for Recommending On-site Educational Provision and Related Activities in FE Colleges and Non-Statutory Contractors (NSCs)' which was provided to FE colleges and published online. This document provides clear guidance about how FE colleges should support their staff and learners, for example, through the provision of an extended induction process to ensure that both staff and learners are aware of and understand the college's policies, procedures and controls; the provision of support services and pastoral support; and guidance for those who are delivering and engaging in industry related courses at the colleges.

In developing this Framework Document, my Department liaised with other Executive Departments as required. Recognising the need for appropriate medical and scientific advice in guiding the safe resumption of onsite education, my officials engaged with DoH and the Chief Medical Officer, resulting in a number of discussions with the PHA to obtain specific advice for the FE Sector and the challenges it faces. Further, over the summer months, officials liaised with the Department of Education on their approach to Education Restart in schools on a weekly basis; as well as reviewing and considering guidance issued to schools when developing similar guidance for the FE Sector.

My Department will continue to engage with other Executive Departments as necessary to ensure that issues relating to the resumption of onsite educational delivery and related activity are resolved, and the support required by staff and learners is provided as efficiently and effectively as possible.

From a financial perspective, my Department secured £1.078 million of additional resource funding from the Department of Finance for the FE colleges, allocated as part of June monitoring. This was used to provide laptops, equipment and software for financially vulnerable learners and staff to assist with digital and remote study and working during the initial lockdown. More recently, I secured £6.5 million to support the safe resumption of learning in the colleges. This will provide additional IT, cover additional staff costs and embed appropriate measures to provide for safe resumption of delivery at FE campuses across Northern Ireland. An additional £0.43 million has also been allocated to meet the cost to date of funding direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of almost 1,900 eligible school-age FE students.

During the pandemic, my Department ensured that FE student support arrangements continued to operate effectively or were adapted to direct flexible support to students in need. This included paying childcare retainer fees during the initial lockdown, acceptance of electronic applications and evidence, paying Free School Meal allowances into households and ensuring there was effective public transport arrangements for Term 1.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the potential additional financial burden facing further and higher education students as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic; and what support she can provide.

(AQW 8486/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department provides approximately £435 million of support to students across further and higher education every year. For Further Education (FE), this includes FE Grants, College Hardship Fund (both of which include childcare support), Free School Meals and Home to College Transport.

In addition to the current support arrangements, my Department initially secured £1.078 million of additional resource funding in June monitoring for the colleges to provide IT equipment for financially vulnerable learners to assist with remote learning during the initial lockdown. More recently I secured an additional £6.5 million from the Executive to support safe resumption of learning in FE colleges.

An additional £0.43 million has been allocated to fund direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of almost 1,900 eligible school-age FE students. My Department also continued to pay Educational Maintenance Allowance to eligible FE students when the FE Colleges shifted to online provision earlier this year.

During the pandemic, my Department has ensured that current FE student support arrangements continued to operate effectively, or were adapted, to direct support to students in need. This included paying childcare retainer fees during the initial lockdown, acceptance of electronic applications and evidence, paying Free School Meal allowances into households and ensuring there was effective public transport arrangements in place.

Regarding Higher Education (HE), it is a priority for me that students continue to receive the support to enable them to continue their higher education during this time. To date, a total of £56.2m of support has been paid out to 38,000 students by Student Finance NI for the current financial year. This comprises tuition fee loans, maintenance loans and grants, Disabled Students Allowance and other support.

I am aware that many HE students may be facing financial hardship due to the effects of the pandemic. In response, I have doubled the amount of support funds available to our universities from £2.8m to £5.6m for the current financial year. These funds are distributed by the universities on behalf of my Department and I would encourage any students who are experiencing financial genuine financial hardship to contact the student support team at their institution for details on how to apply.

My Department continues to keep support arrangements for HE and FE students under review and will adapt these as required in response to evolving needs.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy whether those returning to Northern Ireland from travel to a country on the quarantine list, and are required to self-isolate for 14 days upon return, are eligible for (i) Statutory Sick Pay; and (ii) Contractual Sick Pay from their employer.

(AQW 8499/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Sick pay entitlement varies from job to job as there are different sick pay schemes in operation.

(i) Statutory Sick Pay

Statutory Sick Pay is paid to employees, who are unable to work due to sickness, at a flat rate of £95.85 for up to 28 weeks. In order to qualify for payment an individual must be classed as an employee, have worked for their employer, have been ill for at least 4 days in a row (including non-working days) and earned an average of at least £120 per week. They must report that they are sick in advance of their employer's deadline or within 7 days if the employer has not set a deadline.

A number of amendments have been made to Statutory Sick Pay in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and these include:

- extending eligibility to those who need to self-isolate for medical reasons to protect others,
- temporary removal of the three day waiting period meaning that where an eligible individual is sick or self-isolating due to COVID-19 Statutory Sick Pay will be available from day one,
- providing for those who have been advised by the Regional Agency for Public Health and Social Well Being that they have had contact with a symptomatic person or who have tested positive for COVID-19, and should therefore stay at home and self-isolate as a result.

No specific provision has been made for those who have chosen to travel to countries on the quarantine list and who are required to self-isolate on their return home, but depending on their personal circumstances they may be able to claim Universal Credit.

Additionally, anyone who finds themselves in a crisis situation can apply for financial assistance with short-term living expenses from the Discretionary Support Scheme which is available to employed earners whose income does not exceed £20,404.80 per annum.

(ii) Contractual Sick Pay

Many employers offer Contractual Sick Pay schemes that are more generous than the legal minimum (Statutory Sick Pay). The options available to individuals in these circumstances will depend on the terms of their employment contract.

Details of an employer's sick pay entitlement should be included in a written statement of employment particulars. If an employer does not offer a scheme, the written statement should say so.

An employer can offer any scheme that does not fall below the legal minimum. If an employer does not have a company sick scheme, then an individual will be paid, if they qualify, Statutory Sick Pay (SSP). As highlighted above, this would not include a situation where an individual is self-isolating after entering or returning to the UK and does not need to self-isolate for any other reason.

Further information on employer responsibilities and employee rights concerning sick pay can be found at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/sick-pay-rights>.

Employees who believe they have been unfairly treated, or their terms of contract breached, may be able to complain to an Industrial Tribunal. Anyone who finds themselves in this position may wish to consider contacting the Labour Relations Agency - Workplace Information Service on 03300 555 300 for confidential and impartial information.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy whether the priorities of the Utilities Regulator Northern Ireland will be changed by legislation to ensure that expenditure requests ensures both the lowest cost of electricity to the consumer and enables Northern Ireland to effectively contribute to meeting the UK's 2050 net zero target.

(AQW 8517/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Energy Strategy Call for Evidence, which was published in December of last year, specifically asked for views on changes to legislation and regulatory frameworks that may be required to facilitate energy transition. Any changes deemed necessary to achieve net zero energy in a cost-competitive manner for consumers, which may include amending existing legislation, reviewing statutory duties and obligations or introducing new responsibilities, will be considered as part of the Energy Strategy development process.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy, following her comments to the Northern Ireland Energy Forum on 29 September 2020, what urgent issues will be addressed in advance of the implementation of the forthcoming Energy Strategy.

(AQW 8518/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I have stated that I will not wait for the Energy Strategy to be published to move forward urgent issues. This is why I have prioritised work to progress opportunities around hydrogen and renewable electricity.

Hydrogen

I have met with a number of key players in Northern Ireland who can help to support the growth of the hydrogen economy, and my Department has identified a range of potential projects across the public and private sectors that can help to position Northern Ireland as leader in this space.

I have subsequently been seeking to identify potential funding routes, particularly from UK Government, to help move these forward in advance of publication of the Energy Strategy.

I have also met with Ministerial colleagues to seek to establish a public sector hydrogen working group to deliver a coordinated approach across government to identifying and furthering such projects.

Renewable Electricity

I recognise that a supportive policy environment needs to be in place to deliver investment in this sector so I set out my belief that a target for renewable electricity should be at least 70% by 2030. This has provided a clear signal to industry about my ambition, to allow them to begin to develop potential projects now rather than waiting for the strategy.

In addition, I have instructed officials to engage with the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS) on the potential for the Contracts for Difference Scheme to be extended to Northern Ireland, subject to securing an agreement around how this could accommodate our individual circumstances and protect local consumers.

I have also made clear the opportunities I see in offshore wind, and my officials have been engaging with BEIS on offshore wind supply chain opportunities as well with The Crown Estate with regards to seabed leasing rights.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy to outline the COVID-19 safety measures implemented by local airports and airlines to limit the spread of the virus.

(AQW 8550/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Department for Transport (DfT). On 11 June 2020 DfT published Coronavirus guidance for aviation operators and safer air travel guidance for passengers. This guidance applies to all workers in the aviation industry such as aircrew and flight crew, ground crew, retail staff, baggage handlers, maintenance engineers, shuttle / bus drivers, security staff, cleaners, catering company workers and workers who assist passengers with reduced mobility or disabilities. The guidance to operators supports staff by promoting safe practices and workplaces, including extensive cleaning of aircraft, increasing the availability of handwashing and hand sanitiser facilities, reducing face-to-face interactions with passengers, and introducing protocols for symptomatic passengers and staff. It is available at

<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/coronavirus-covid-19-safer-aviation-guidance-for-operators>

The guidance to passengers covers all aspects of the travel experience, from checking the public health requirements before booking a flight, to navigating the airport safely and boarding the flight or leaving the airport. It is available at <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/coronavirus-covid-19-safer-air-travel-guidance-for-passengers>

Local airports and airlines have implemented a range of measures to comply with public health guidelines and taking account of the guidance above in order to limit the spread of the virus.

Social distancing measures have been supported by signage, seat spacing, one way systems, protective screens at counters and provision of hand sanitising stations, revised boarding procedures and the wearing of face coverings.

Social distancing is a key public health measure and it is important that everyone plays their part; the airport, airlines and airport users including members of the public by adhering to the measures put in place.

In addition to these bids my Department received £411.4 million for COVID-19 response measures. Of this amount, £410.0 million was for grant schemes to assist businesses experiencing financial hardship as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and £1.4 million was for student hardship. Due to underspends across the three grant schemes, £68.1 million of funding was returned to DoF.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what independent research she has (i) commissioned; and (ii) consulted on regarding the role that freeports can play in incentivising international trade, boosting innovation and regenerating disadvantaged areas post-Brexit.

(AQW 8576/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I want to ensure that the emerging UK Government Freeport proposals are shaped in a manner which can drive economic growth in Northern Ireland and bolster our medium to longer term response to the Covid pandemic.

It is important to get this policy right and I am exploring, alongside Executive colleagues, how a Freeport can complement and magnify our economic ambitions in a way that supports a regionally balanced economy. Alongside our own internal analysis, my Department has commissioned research from the Institute for Export and International Trade to inform that assessment.

My officials engage regularly, alongside DoF colleagues who are leading on this work from an NI perspective, with their UK Government counterparts on this emerging policy. They participated in a series of consultation events organised by HMT, and engagement has continued with a range of stakeholders, conscious of the potential for a future Freeport allocation process.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what discussions she has had with (i) the UK Government; (ii) Executive colleagues; and (iii) Northern Ireland port authorities regarding freeport status.

Mrs Dodds: The UK Government's Freeports policy is being developed by Her Majesty's Treasury and as such is being led by the Finance Minister from a Northern Ireland perspective. The Finance Minister wrote to HM Treasury last August setting out the Executive's position and seeking further clarity on the policy, some of which has been provided in the Government's response to its Freeport consultation.

In seeking to ensure that this emerging policy is designed in a manner that works best in the Northern Ireland context, my officials engage regularly, alongside DoF colleagues, with their UK Government counterparts. They participated in a series of consultation events organised by HM Treasury, and engagement has continued with a range of stakeholders, including representatives of the NI port authorities, while remaining conscious of the potential for a future Freeport allocation process.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy has her Department given generation consent for Mullavilly, Drumkee and Kells BESSs in the full knowledge that they have obtained planning permission on the basis of being non-generating developments and with no stated capacity on their planning permissions.

(AQW 8588/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department is satisfied the Mullavilly, Drumkee and Kells battery storage plants fall within and require consent under Article 39 of the Electricity (Northern Ireland) Order 1992 Order. Accordingly, and as the applications were in order, the Department granted the consents requested.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy (i) whether they share the commitment of the Irish government in its Programme for Government of working with the Northern Irish Executive to create a coastal tourist trail, linking the Wild Atlantic Way, the Causeway Coastal Route and along our eastern and southern coast; and (ii) if so, how they will fulfil that joint objective.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The Wild Atlantic Way Experience Brand is one of several experience brands in the Republic of Ireland that was created by Fáilte Ireland to fulfil market need. The Wild Atlantic Way has been supported by marketing communications and experience development activity which gives the consumer reasons to visit.

It has been clear for many years, that if Northern Ireland is to compete effectively for tourism spend with the rest of the Island of Ireland, it urgently required its own distinctive tourism brand, which is reflective of the experience that a visitor truly encounters when on a trip to Northern Ireland.

Following extensive national and international testing, a new Experience Brand was developed and launched for Northern Ireland in 2019: Northern Ireland – Embrace a Giant Spirit. When this brand was tested against existing marketing content, there was a 30% increase in the number of people showing an interest in visiting Northern Ireland.

The priority has been to create a brand that will give the whole of Northern Ireland standout in the marketplace. The tourism industry has adopted Northern Ireland's new experience brand with significant enthusiasm as it recognises the potential of the new brand to contribute to local economic growth and to spread the economic benefits across all regions of Northern Ireland over the long-term. The Causeway Coastal Route is a key offer within our new brand.

- (ii) There has been to date no formal discussions at Executive level to link The Wild Atlantic Way with the Causeway Coastal Route with the objective to form a single coastal tourist trail. Both are distinct brands that serve to market separate geographies and jurisdictions and both are recognised internationally.

It is important that the new Northern Ireland brand is embedded with both the local industry and the international trade. The economic rationale for creating a new coastal tourist trail, linking the Wild Atlantic Way and the Causeway Coastal Route would need to be fully understood and have the agreement of the industry, Tourism Northern Ireland, Fáilte Ireland and the local authorities on both sides of the border.

The implementation of a new coastal tourist trail would have to be undertaken in a way that makes sense from a consumer perspective and executed in a way that would not dilute the new Northern Ireland brand or convey conflicting messages to the tourism industry, trade operators or consumers.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department intends to remove the NI Apprenticeship schemes age limit cap.

(AQW 8628/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As part of my Department's response to COVID-19 there has been ongoing consideration to removing age-related funding criteria on the ApprenticeshipsNI programme to improve access to apprenticeships, providing reskilling opportunities and pathways to employment and life-long learning for all. It is important that any Departmental proposals do not disadvantage young people, as analysis of previous recessions demonstrates that young people, and in particular school leavers, are disproportionately impacted during times of recession.

I have instructed my Department to continue to develop this proposal, including assessing how implementation should be monitored to prevent a negative impact on youth unemployment, with a view to introducing all-age apprenticeships at the earliest opportunity.

Higher Level Apprenticeships, including funding, are already available for applicants of all ages who meet the qualifying criteria.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail her plans to reimburse students who have paid for student accommodation but will not receive face to face education on campus.

(AQW 8644/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Higher education institutions are autonomous bodies, and are therefore responsible for determining the cost of student accommodation insofar as university-managed Halls of Residence are concerned. The same principle applies for the private rental market.

My Department therefore has no remit in determining whether students should receive a refund or reduction of their accommodation fees as a result of the disruption caused to face-to-face learning.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the robustness of the information upon which the level of support was determined for anaerobic digesters under the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme.

(AQW 8647/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Neither anaerobic digestion plants nor the biogas they produce are eligible for support under the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO). The NIRO supports the generation of renewable electricity, including electricity generated by stations fuelled by biogas produced through the anaerobic digestion process.

This is an important distinction as any revenue streams for anaerobic digestion plants that do not relate to electricity production by a generating station are not within the scope of the NIRO.

The banding levels set for such stations were informed by information gathered through a public call for evidence in 2010 and subsequent consultation. Information was provided from a range of sources with knowledge and experience in anaerobic digestion, and provided examples from international best practice. Further information was gathered in 2014, upon which banding levels were maintained.

The decision on banding levels was scrutinised by the Enterprise, Trade & Investment Committee, and debated in the Assembly where the associated legislation was subsequently passed.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how she will ensure that recommendations made by the Northern Ireland Audit Office in regards to the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme are incorporated into any future energy schemes.

(AQW 8648/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the levels of return for anaerobic digesters as part of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation scheme; and whether these represent value for money.

(AQW 8650/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Neither anaerobic digestion plants nor the biogas they produce are eligible for support under the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO). The NIRO supports the generation of renewable electricity, including electricity generated by stations fuelled by biogas produced through the anaerobic digestion process.

This is an important distinction as any revenue streams for anaerobic digestion plants that do not relate to electricity production by a generating station are not within the scope of the NIRO. I therefore cannot comment on the rates of returns of anaerobic digesters themselves.

The levels of returns for renewable electricity generating stations are based on a number of factors, not just the Renewable Obligation Certificate (ROC) banding levels set, and the rates of returns will differ substantially depending on the assumptions about the individual circumstances of generators used to calculate any figures.

I note that the Audit Office report includes a recommendation to carry out a review of the levels of support available and rates of return for renewable generators, and I have accepted this.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy (i) whether the Barnett consequential of circa £30 million per year until 2040 for renewable heat, as outlined by the Chancellor, will be available to new projects from 1 April 2020; or (ii) whether the money will be returned to Treasury if it is not committed to projects, or to schemes that it was allocated to under the Northern Ireland Renewable Heat Initiative, are subsequently closed.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The NDNA includes a commitment that, "RHI will be closed down and replaced by a scheme that effectively cuts carbon emissions". I will bring forward a new scheme in due course. Any new scheme will be introduced in line with the new Northern Ireland Energy strategy, as part of an overall framework to support the pathway to net zero carbon.
- (ii) Funds for the RHI scheme are drawn down from the AME budget as required. Where funds are not drawn down, they will be retained by HM Treasury.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy given that Mullavilly, Drumkee and Kells BESSs obtained planning permission on the basis of being non-generating developments and with no stated capacity on their planning permissions, will the generating consents given by her Department now be withdrawn.

(AQW 8682/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department is satisfied the Mullavilly, Drumkee and Kells battery storage plants fall within and require consent under Article 39 of the Electricity (Northern Ireland) Order 1992 Order. Accordingly, and as the applications were in order, the Department granted the consents requested.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the reliability of the thirty one Independent Technical Assurance Reports submitted to OFGEM relating to off-grid or zero exporting generating stations.

(AQW 8692/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Ofgem are responsible for the administration of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation on behalf of the Northern Ireland Authority for Utility Regulation.

They have advised that all of the information included in the Independent Technical Assurance Reports, referred to in the NIAO report entitled 'Generating electricity from renewable energy', was set aside. Comparable alternative evidence was gathered and analysed to enable Ofgem to complete their investigations.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the postcodes from the former Strabane District Council area will be included in the roll out of Project Stratum.

(AQW 8711/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department is still in the procurement and governance phase for Project Stratum, and therefore I cannot currently confirm which premises will be included in the roll out. It remains the aspiration of the project to maximise broadband coverage across the target intervention area. The table below lists the 533 postcodes from the former Strabane District Council area that contain at least one premises eligible to benefit from Project Stratum, along with a count of how many premises in the postcode are eligible (3597 premises).

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy (i) when the new public consultation on Tamboran Resources (UK) proposed changes to the work programme of PLA2/16 will take place; (ii) whether the new consultation will be considered as part of the wider research into petroleum licencing by her Department; and (iii) how this public consultation will be taken into account in light of the research currently being undertaken by her Department.

(AQW 8715/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In March 2020, following its own review of the responses received by the Department to the public consultation on petroleum licence application PLA2/16, Tamboran Resources UK Ltd (TRUK), made a request to my Department to revise its work programme. The proposed revision will remove the need for fracking; very much a direct result of the strength of opposition to this controversial technique highlighted by the respondents.

Given the potential significant change to the Work Programme, my Department is currently in the process of scrutinising the revised proposal and is awaiting further information from TRUK, before identifying the next steps in the assessment of PLA2/16.

This consideration of the next steps in the assessment of PLA2/16 will include consideration of the requirement to undertake further consultation in relation to the agreed revision to the Work Programme, and if required, how and when that consultation will be taken forward.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail how she plans to engage with student representatives to guarantee their voices are heard in any COVID-19 planning for universities and colleges.

(AQW 8734/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 14 October 2020, I had a very productive meeting with representatives from NUS-USI, at which we discussed ways in which my Department could support students during these difficult times, as well as ensure that students' voices are represented in discussions which concern them.

I have agreed with NUS-USI that my officials will seek their views and ensure that they are taken into consideration as we move forward, as well as seek to ensure they are invited to any further Executive Office discussions on matters relating to higher and further education.

My officials have already ensured that NUS-USI will be invited to participate in the weekly meetings between Queen's and Ulster universities and the Public Health Agency (PHA).

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the Northern Ireland Audit Office report into generating electricity from renewable energy.

(AQW 8737/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome that the Northern Ireland Audit Office report has recognised the many achievements of the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO). Most notably, the role that the NIRO played in ensuring that the Executive's 40% renewable electricity consumption by 2020 target was achieved a year early, with the figure now at almost 48%.

I recognise that the report has made three recommendations that are specifically for my Department, and I will ensure these are implemented going forward.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what financial measures will be put in place to support businesses and employees affected by the restrictions announced on 14 October.

(AQW 8742/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive agreed restrictions that came into effect on 16 October 2020, for a period of four weeks, in order to reduce the concerning rise in the transmission of COVID-19. While this will be a difficult time for everyone across Northern Ireland, I am acutely aware of the particular impact the restrictions will have on businesses and employees, not only in the hospitality sector but across the economy.

The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations.

The scheme launched for all council areas on 19 October 2020 and provides up to £1,200 per week to eligible businesses for the duration of the restrictions. Further information and applications can be made at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/coronavirus-localised-restrictions-support-scheme>.

I recognise that not all businesses who have been effected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support to restricted businesses who do not qualify for support through LRSS and businesses in the supply chain of restricted businesses.

Part A of the scheme, which opened on 28 October 2020, is targeted at those businesses required to close or cease trading as a result of the restrictions and are not eligible for the LRSS. Eligible businesses under this part of the scheme will received a flat grant payment of £600 per week, paid in one lump sum. Applications will be processed as soon as possible and first payments will be issued this week.

Examples of businesses that may be eligible for Part A of the scheme include businesses that deliver their product or service on a mobile basis or operate from their home, or their customers' homes; for example a driving instructor or mobile hairdresser or beautician. Self-employed individuals and sole traders, who may not have been covered by previous schemes are eligible to apply.

Further details and the application portal are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme>.

Part B of the scheme will provide support to businesses who directly provide goods or services to the businesses that have been required to close or cease trading as a result of the 16 October 2020 restrictions and are significantly impacted as a result.

Further details on Part B will be released by the Department as soon as possible.

Businesses can also claim a proportion of salary costs through the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. The UK Government has announced an extension to the scheme for November with employees receiving 80% of their salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500. Under the extended scheme, the cost for employers of retaining workers will be reduced compared to October.

The Chancellor has announced further support measures including an expansion to the Job Support Scheme to provide support to businesses across the UK who are required to close as a result of restrictions. Businesses can claim two thirds of their employees' salaries from 1 November 2020 up to a maximum of £2,083.33 per month.

I have also asked my officials to develop a tourism and hospitality scheme and a scheme for the recently self-employed in order to address gaps in current funding. I will make a further announcement on these schemes in the near future.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for the Economy what efforts her Department will undertake to implement the recommendations in the recent Northern Ireland Audit Office report into generating electricity from renewable energy.

(AQW 8769/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Of the six recommendations in the report, three are specifically for my Department. The Department has accepted these recommendations and will ensure they are addressed going forward.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 7948/17-22, whether her officials, in their capability assessment review of Ulster University, made specific recommendations or conclusions with regard to Ulster University's capability and capacity to undertake expansion of its Magee campus; and to disclose these recommendations or conclusions.

(AQW 8786/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: No specific recommendations or conclusions were made in the review commissioned by the Department with regard to Ulster University's capability and capacity to undertake expansion of its Magee campus.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will review the funding structure for post-graduate students before the next academic year.

(AQW 8787/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department's proposed Postgraduate Loan Review is a complex piece of work comprising different strands of the postgraduate funding system in Northern Ireland. It is anticipated that appropriateness of the current postgraduate fee loan of up to £5,500 towards the cost of taught postgraduate courses, will be reviewed alongside a range of potential options for maintenance loans or grants. Separate from that, there will be a review of the Postgraduate Awards Scheme.

It is anticipated that a public consultation on the Postgraduate Loan Review, comprising the different options for fee loans and maintenance provision, will be published before the end of this year. However, you will appreciate that the implications of the Covid-19 pandemic for higher education are currently taking priority.

With respect to a date of implementation for any approved policy changes following the consultation, this will be dependent on the ability of the Student Loans Company to implement any policy changes.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy when updated guidance for students living in houses of multiple occupancy will be published on weekend and half-term travel.

(AQW 8857/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 14 October 2020, I had a very productive meeting with representatives from NUS-USI, at which we discussed ways in which my Department could support students during these difficult times, including the provision of detailed advice and guidance. NUS-USI subsequently forwarded my Department a list of specific questions to inform this guidance, and my officials are working urgently to develop and publish full advice on the back of this.

While NUS-USI have also requested guidance on student travel, it is my firm view that this is a matter of public health, and any such advice must be provided by the relevant public health authorities. I have, however, requested urgent advice from those health authorities which, once received, will be included in the full range of guidance which will be published in due course.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy whether she plans to bring forward assistance for students who have been told they will be educated remotely in terms of (i) a reduction in university fees; or (ii) assistance with rental costs for those in private sector properties.

Mrs Dodds: While my Department is responsible for determining the annual maximum tuition fee level that can be charged by higher education institutions in Northern Ireland, it is a decision for the higher education institutions to determine what they wish to charge Northern Ireland and EU domiciled students, up to that maximum level. This includes any decision regarding whether a student should receive a refund or reduction of this fee.

My Department has no role in determining the cost of student accommodation, whether that is for university-managed Halls of Residence or private rental.

However, students who find themselves in financial hardship may be eligible to receive an award from the Support Funds made available by my Department. This financial year, I secured an additional £1.4m from the Executive and a further £1.4m from the Department's own budget for these Support Funds, making a total of £5.6m available to support students facing genuine financial hardship.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the postcodes in West Tyrone which have been (i) included in Project Stratum; and (ii) removed from the project.

(AQW 9289/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Premises in the West Tyrone constituency fall within 3,039 postcodes. Eligibility for Project Stratum has been determined based on the Open Market Review (OMR) and State aid Public Consultation, the findings of which were published on 16th December 2019. On 5th February 2020, an addendum to the OMR was published, based on further information that had been made available to the Department (see <https://www.economy-ni.gov.uk/consultations/extending-broadband-across-northern-ireland-project-stratum>). This information was used to determine whether individual premises did, or soon would, have access to a broadband service with a download capacity of at least 30Mbps.

i) There are 1,513 postcodes in the West Tyrone constituency that contain at least one premises eligible for Project Stratum. These were listed in the response to AQW 8913/17-22.

ii) In the OMR publication from December 2019, 1,720 postcodes in the West Tyrone constituency were identified that contained at least one eligible premises. However, based on further information provided to the Department following the publication of 16th December 2019, 207 of these postcodes were removed as this new data received indicated that there were no eligible premises in that postcode. This left the 1,513 postcodes referenced in part (i) and published on 5th February 2020. The 207 postcodes are listed in Annex A. There are also 1,526 postcodes in the West Tyrone constituency that do not contain at least one premises eligible for Project Stratum. These are listed in the Annex B.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of whether there is a potential conflict of interest in including the Chief Executive Officer of Grafton Recruitment Agency on the Northern Ireland Economic Advisory Group.
(AQW 9362/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I established the Economic Advisory Group (EAG) in June 2020 to provide me with independent advice, aimed at challenging and developing public policy and strategic thinking on the economy.

The approach to this EAG is in line with its original remit as set out in the Independent Review of Economic Policy which recommended “the establishment of a small advisory body, comprising expertise on regional economic development (drawn from business and economics), to provide independent advice to the Economy Minister.”

The focus of EAG advice will be on the refinement and implementation of actions to be taken for medium and long-term regional economic recovery, following the COVID-19 outbreak, aimed at underpinning and supporting a longer term economic strategy.

Members of the EAG have been appointed on the basis of their knowledge, experience and acumen, and I am satisfied that they will act and advise on the wider interests of the Northern Ireland economy.

EAG members have provided a conflict of interest and integrity declaration to the secretariat. The Chair and I are content with the responses received.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of whether the inclusion of the Chief Executive Officer of Grafton Recruitment Agency on the Northern Ireland Economic Advisory Group contradicts the NI Executive's commitment to satisfy the spirit of the workers' rights pledge in New Decade, New Approach.
(AQW 9363/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Members of the EAG have been appointed on the basis of their knowledge, experience and acumen, and I am satisfied that they will act and advise in the wider interests of the Northern Ireland economy.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy whether she has made any recommendations to increase the capacity of the Health and Safety Executive.
(AQW 9366/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Health & Safety Executive for Northern Ireland was established in 1999 to promote health, safety and wellbeing in the workplace. HSENI's locus predominantly covers larger commercial businesses. These include the public sector estate (health, education, policing and prisons), major hazards, gas, transport, agriculture & food, extractive industries & waste, manufacturing, utilities & docks, construction and occupational health & hygiene.

Since March, when Coronavirus became an issue in the UK, HSENI staff worked with businesses to seek to offer them advice which was coming from the Public Health Agency as the lead organisation for dealing with a viral pandemic.

HSENI currently has 8 trainees employed and undertaking their Regulatory Diploma course which typically takes 2-3 years to complete. The organisation provides mentors for these trainees to assist them in developing the appropriate evidence to develop their portfolio. As trainees complete this diploma, the organisation would seek to bring on board more trainees as required to fill posts vacated by other staff.

I am aware that the organisation has also just recruited two additional complaints officers who will assist with call handling as well as site visits. In addition HSENI has bid for additional resources as part of the work likely to emerge from EU Exit and the implementation of the Northern Ireland Protocol.

Diane Dodds

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how the forthcoming Energy Strategy will be integrated with a climate change act for Northern Ireland, which was committed to in New Decade, New Approach.
(AQW 9453/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The new Energy Strategy is being developed in the context of the UK's legislation requirement for net-zero carbon emissions by 2050.

The strategy is taking a collaborative approach, ensuring we actively involve relevant departments across the Executive in its development.

This joined-up approach ensures that the Energy Strategy will be integrated with other relevant strategies outlined in 'New Decade, New Approach' including work on the Climate Change agenda, which the Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (DAERA) lead on.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the actions her Department is taking to support the fintech sector in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9540/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Northern Ireland has a strong and world renowned FinTech sector. Indeed the Financial Times FDI markets has placed Northern Ireland as the world's top region for Financial Services technology inward investment projects (FDI markets FT 2020). Northern Ireland has also been identified as a top 3 Fintech location of the future, after London and Singapore (FDI markets FT 2019).

There are nearly 10,000 people employed in Fintech roles in Northern Ireland and major companies such as Citi, Allstate, First Derivatives, FinTrU, Insurance Office of America, Peak6, Qarik and Aflac have chosen to locate here.

My Department and Invest NI have been working closely with these and other companies and key stakeholders in this sector for many years with both financial support and sector development through a number of activities including:

- Supporting sector specific trade missions and promoting NI at a number of key trade events
- Arranging a number of meet the buyer events with major banks and financial institutions in strategic markets
- Conducting market research and supporting new trade activities in potential new markets.
- Working closely with the NI Fintech Envoy and Fintech NI to promote NIs Fintech capability on a national and global stage.
- Engaging with national and cross border Fintech organisations to showcase NIs capabilities in the sector and increase access to investment and funding.
- Working closely with the universities and Further Education colleges along with industry to build a future pipeline of skills and talent for the sector.

My Assured Skills team also works closely with companies in this sector providing pre-employment training to individuals, from a diverse range of degree backgrounds, through its Academy model. Academy participants gain up-to-date skills delivered by Further and Higher Education Institutions, that are highly sought after by Fintech companies. Many Academy graduates have been employed by our local Fintech employers helping to meet the skills demand of the sector.

Invest NI and my Department will continue to work closely with Fintech businesses, as a key element of the Economic Recovery Plan, and to support them during this challenging time.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the progress of Project Stratum.

(AQW 9590/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The evaluation of tenders for Project Stratum was completed on 11 August 2020 and a preferred bidder was identified. The necessary robust corporate governance and internal approval processes were conducted at that time. These, along with a number of contract finalisation matters, have now concluded.

Subject to final approval and State aid Assurance, contract award is anticipated in the coming weeks. My Department will then work with the preferred bidder to ensure that citizens and businesses can access further information regarding phased deployment plans and relevant updates related to project implementation.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for the Economy how her Department will support adults returning to part-time education to improve basic numeracy and literacy skills.

(AQW 9592/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department's Essential Skills Strategy focuses on the needs of adults and, in particular, those who have low levels of literacy, numeracy and Information and Communication Technology (ICT). Essential Skills qualifications in literacy and numeracy from Entry Level to Level 2 are available free of charge to all learners. These courses are designed to help improve reading, writing, mathematics and computer skills for anyone over the age of 16. Courses are delivered by Further Education (FE) colleges, private training providers and community organisations, using a variety of delivery methods to help meet differing needs of learners in employment and training.

There are a range of financial support arrangements that have been in place over many years for eligible part-time FE students. These include FE Grants for living costs, fees and childcare support and the Hardship Fund which is intended to provide support to learners who are experiencing exceptional financial difficulty with meeting costs associated with learning including childcare. Assistance with childcare may also be available for adults up to 20 years of age through the Care to Learn (NI) Scheme.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy arising from her Department's subsidising of small scale wind turbines and anaerobic digesters, did any whistleblowers come forward to her Department; and how were their concerns processed.

Mrs Dodds: Three whistleblower cases have been received by my Department. The issues relate to small scale onshore wind and to stations fuelled by biogas produced from anaerobic digestion, however, they do not relate directly to the level of support available under the Northern Ireland Renewables Obligation (NIRO).

All issues have been fully investigated in collaboration between the Department, the Northern Ireland Authority for Utility Regulation and Ofgem, through the NIRO Assurance & Risk Management Steering Group.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, further to AQW 8870/17-22, (i) what role her Department's officials had in producing Transform to Deliver; (ii) whether that role included the drafting of the proposals; (iii) whether the proposals originated within her Department; and (iv) whether she will now publish Transform to Deliver.

(AQW 9650/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As set out in my response to AQW 8870/17-22, Departmental officials have not been involved in drafting Transform to Deliver proposals.

I am content that the Department has acted at all times within its role as sponsor Department for the Further Education (FE) colleges including, as I have set out previously, the assessment of any business cases developed by the colleges.

As employers in their own right, FE colleges are responsible for setting the terms and conditions of their staff including the development of any proposals to reform these. As such, discussions on staff pay, terms and conditions are a matter for negotiation and agreement between the Lecturers Negotiating Committee of the College Employers Forum (CEF), which represents the six FE Colleges, and Trade Union Side.

If an agreement is reached through this process, it will then be for the CEF to develop a business case to be submitted to the Department to seek approval for any additional resources required. I am not, therefore, in a position to publish any proposals in relation to Transform to Deliver at this time.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 7668/17-22, what support is available for those in rural areas not included in Project Stratum, who cannot wait up to three years for a better internet connection and for who other UK Government schemes are not suitable, as is the case for some residents in the BT47 2SL area near Newbuildings, Derry.

Mrs Dodds: A number of premises have not been included in the proposed intervention area under Project Stratum as, following consultation with telecoms infrastructure providers, my Department was advised that such premises already have access to a superfast broadband service, or will be able to access such a service by January 2022. Under State aid rules, these premises are not eligible to benefit from Project Stratum. For premises which will be served solely by one or more Wireless Internet Service Providers (WISPs), these will be kept under review by my officials over the course of the project to ensure that the coverage claims made by the relevant WISPs are adhered to. If this is not the case, such premises can be re-categorised and deemed eligible to benefit from Project Stratum or any future public intervention. This applies to a number of premises within the BT47 2SL postcode area.

In my response to AQW 7668/17-22, I provided details, and the appropriate links, of the UK-wide schemes available to residents and businesses that cannot currently avail of an acceptable broadband service. If consumers are experiencing difficulties accessing these schemes, they should raise this with the Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport with regard to the Rural Gigabit Connectivity Scheme and with Ofcom regarding the Universal Service Obligation.

Alternatively, consumers may wish to explore the provision of a service from one of the satellite broadband providers operating in Northern Ireland.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on her plans around student travel over the Christmas period.

(AQW 9671/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Given the overlap between the above questions, I have decided to answer them all in a single response.

It is my firm view that any issues relating to travel for students, as they would be for any other members of the public, are a matter of public health. Any such advice and guidance must therefore be provided by the relevant public health authorities, and I have made this case to both the Minister of Health as well as my Executive colleagues. Both I and my officials are ready to assist public health authorities by liaising on these matters, if necessary, with both the higher education institutions, as well as representatives of students.

That said, both I and my officials have been involved in some discussions with our other UK counterparts, so that we are kept apprised of their respective plans for student travel before the Christmas period. This way, any implications for Northern Ireland can inform local public health authorities' guidance.

There have not yet been any discussions around the return of students for semester two, either with other UK jurisdictions, or between myself and the Minister of Health.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether the unsuccessful bid for capital funding for Project Stratum in the October monitoring round will impact or delay the project.

(AQW 9677/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: There is no anticipated delay to Project Stratum as full project funding has been confirmed.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the legislation required to be progressed by her Department for the implementation of the Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland; and (ii) the specific constraints on progress for each.

(AQW 9678/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department is progressing six Statutory Rules that are required for the implementation of the Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland, concerning: the carriage of dangerous goods and use of transportable pressure equipment; biocidal products; biocides / classification, labelling and packaging; equipment and protective systems intended for use in potentially explosive atmospheres; priority dispatch of renewable generators and transposition of priority Single Electricity Market related aspects of the Electricity Directive. The main constraint for each is the limited time available until the end of the Transition Period.

Further Protocol related legislation will be progressed by my Department after the Transition Period. Greater clarity on the interpretation and outworkings of the Protocol and the UK/EU negotiations is required to inform the full scope of potential legislative requirements.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy what her Department is doing to fulfil the Executive's commitment to building a united and shared society through the Together: Building a United Community strategy.

(AQW 9684/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has responsibility for the United Youth Commitment under the Executive's 'Together: Building a United Community' strategy. This commitment of 10,000 places for young people aged 16-24 is currently being delivered via the cross border Peace IV funded Peace4Youth Programme.

The Programme will target 7,400 14-24 olds who are disadvantaged, excluded or marginalised; have deep social and emotional needs; and are at risk of becoming involved in anti-social behaviour, violence or paramilitary/dissident activity.

To date around 4,500 young people have completed their Peace4Youth Programmes.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of media speculation that completion of the energy strategy will be delayed until 2022.

(AQW 9735/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The timeframe for Energy Strategy remains unchanged. I intend to publish a public consultation on policy options in March 2021 and launch the final Strategy before the end of 2021.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for the Economy (i) what discussions she has had with Caterpillar following today's announcement it is to set to cut around 700 jobs in Northern Ireland; and (ii) what immediate support is available for the employees affected by this decision.

(AQW 9751/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The decision by Caterpillar in the US to enter a period of consultation will be a worrying time for many. While the company has explained that this is part of a process for the restructuring of its Electric Power Division at Larne, the scale of the potential job losses will have come as a great shock to the workforce and their families.

I met with Caterpillar NI's Senior Management Team, along with representatives from Invest NI on Friday 6 November 2020, to express my disappointment at the decision. I have asked Invest NI, which has a good working relationship with Caterpillar, to continue to engage with the company throughout this consultation period to explore ways to minimise the impact at the Northern Ireland sites. I also met the UNITE union on Tuesday 10th November 2020 to hear their concerns and I am confident that everyone will be working to ensure that we can support the workforce at this time.

At the meeting with Caterpillar NI I made it clear that the Executive is committed to exploring ways to minimise the impact at both Northern Ireland sites. I told the Senior Management Team that I was keen to discuss with them what future opportunities might exist for the Caterpillar NI operations as the company focusses on other business areas. The team at Invest NI will continue to explore where it might be possible to assist the company with any potential new investment opportunities.

My Department's Careers Service officials made contact with the company on Monday 9th November 2020 to make them aware of the advice and guidance services available to support those employees who may be facing redundancy.

The Careers Service, Invest NI, alongside other stakeholders (including Mid and East Antrim Borough Council, NI Chamber, Manufacturing NI, and MEGA), are liaising with Caterpillar Senior Management to ensure that assistance is available to support workers through this process. This will include helping employees to match their skills and experience to existing job vacancies, and personalised job searching advice. Employees will also be supported to re-skill and will be provided with labour market information on growth and emerging sectors.

The company is also working with both Union Representatives and Salaried Worker Representatives as it enters the 90-day consultation period.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what action she is taking (i) to avoid the loss of 700 jobs at Caterpillar in Larne and Belfast; and (ii) to help support workers at these sites.

(AQW 9763/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The decision by Caterpillar in the US to enter a period of consultation will be a worrying time for many. While the company has explained that this is part of a process for the restructuring of its Electric Power Division at Larne, the scale of the potential job losses will have come as a great shock to the workforce and their families.

The team at Invest NI will continue to explore where it might be possible to assist the company with any potential new investment opportunities.

My Department's Careers Service officials made contact with the company on Monday 9 November 2020 to make them aware of the advice and guidance services available to support those employees who may be facing redundancy. The Careers Service will maintain contact with Caterpillar over the coming weeks and will be available to support employees at any stage throughout the transition process.

My Department and Invest NI, alongside other stakeholders (including Mid and East Antrim Borough Council, NI Chamber, Manufacturing NI and DfE Careers Service), are liaising with Caterpillar Senior Management to ensure that assistance is available to support workers through this process. This will include redundancy clinics, re-skilling, job fairs and identification of job opportunities.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for the Economy what assessment has been made of the fitness for purpose of the Trader Support Service and its ability to cope with trade in both directions between Great Britain and Northern Ireland from 1 January 2021.

Mrs Dodds: The Trader Support Service (TSS) is being designed and implemented by a consortium led by Fujitsu. The TSS was procured by the UK government (UKG) and falls under the remit of HMRC. The TSS will provide guidance and advice to NI businesses that receive goods from GB or the rest of the world on a free to use basis. Furthermore, the TSS portal will enable customs declarations to be made by, or on behalf of, these NI businesses.

In terms of the capacity within the TSS, I understand that the information and guidance will be embedded within the TSS portal for businesses to access and there will also be a dedicated call centre for enquiries. Frank Dunsmuir, part of the Fujitsu-led consortium, estimated that approximately 30 million customs declarations will be made annually and that TSS would be able to process this number. I have repeatedly pressed UKG, and will continue to do so, to ensure that our businesses have the necessary services and information to prepare for the trading arrangements under the Protocol.

For businesses selling to GB, UKG has committed to providing NI goods with unfettered access to the GB market – including no new paperwork or processes (except in a small number of highly regulated goods) – and I intend to hold them to this commitment.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for the Economy whether Northern Ireland-based firms will be required to have a different VAT numbering system to firms in the rest of the United Kingdom from 1 January 2021.

(AQW 9827/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: NI businesses that trade only with the UK will continue to follow the same VAT registration procedures they do now. Unlike UK sales, NI-EU transactions will have to be recorded on Interstat and EC Sales Lists. So it is likely that NI companies will need some mechanism to identify themselves.

The EU has proposed that NI companies attach a 'XI' prefix to their VAT number whilst GB companies are assigned a 'XU' country code. This is to allow a means of distinguishing between NI and GB companies for UK reporting purposes and to fulfil obligations in the Protocol for NI to align with EU VAT rules.

This issue remains in negotiation through the Joint Committee and my officials are in regular contact with HMRC to press for information and guidance so that NI businesses are fully prepared to trade from 1 January 2021.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister for the Economy what assessment has been made as to the financial cost to hauliers as a result of any checks that may be required on goods travelling in either direction between Northern Ireland and Great Britain from 1 January 2021.

(AQW 9828/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Until final decisions are made by the Joint Committee overseeing the implementation of the Protocol it is difficult to assess accurately what additional costs hauliers may face. The UK has set up the Trader Support Service to educate and assist business, including hauliers, with the new processes required to move goods between GB and NI. This is a free to use service, initially set up for 2 years and should be helpful to hauliers moving goods on this route.

Additionally, the UK Government has guaranteed unfettered access to the GB market for NI goods, and is negotiating for the waiving of export summary declarations. This will ensure that goods moving from NI-GB should do so without incurring any additional cost.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for the Economy whether (i) her Department intends to bring forward a support scheme for students experiencing financial hardship; and (ii) financial assistance will be provided to cover rental costs for those in student accommodation.

(AQW 9867/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has provided support for students facing genuine financial hardship for many years through our Support Funds. These funds are distributed by the Universities on behalf of my Department and any students facing genuine financial hardship should contact the Student Services team at their University for details on how to apply. This financial year, in recognition of the impact of Covid 19 on our students, I secured an additional £1.4m from the Executive and a further £1.4m from the Department's own budget for these Support Funds, making a total of £5.6m available to support students facing genuine financial hardship.

The funds may be used to provide financial assistance to students who, for whatever reason, face financial difficulties in meeting their living costs. Students who are facing specific issues related to rental costs should firstly speak to their accommodation office or private landlord, as applicable, as accommodation rental agreements are between the student and the university/private landlord.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for the Economy how much did it cost to pay the Educational Maintenance Allowance during the recent extended mid-term break.

(AQW 9879/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department of Education announced on 27 October 2020 that Educational Maintenance Allowance would be paid to eligible school students during the extended half term break of 19 - 23 October. The cost of providing EMA to these students during the extended half term break is estimated to be £270,000.

The cost of providing EMA support to all eligible students – both at schools and at Further Education Colleges - is in the region of £450,000 per week, with approximately £270,000 of that attributable to school students and £180,000 to those within further education colleges.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will consider establishing a body similar to the Sustainable Energy Authority of Ireland to promote and support the development of renewable energy.

(AQO 1027/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Energy Strategy Call for Evidence asked if there was a need for a dedicated organisation to 'champion, lead and deliver' sustainable energy advice and support in Northern Ireland, and if so, what should this look like.

The majority of responses supported the concept of a "one stop shop" for delivery of energy information, advice and funding in Northern Ireland. The Sustainable Energy Authority of Ireland was cited as a best practice example.

The Energy Strategy is developing options based on the evidence received, and further research is also being carried out to gather additional evidence.

We are looking at best practice in Sustainable Energy Authorities in the Republic of Ireland, Great Britain, Europe and further afield.

The findings from this work will be presented in the Energy Strategy Options Consultation planned for March 2021.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the number of health and safety inspections carried out in meat processing plants since April 2020.

(AQO 1028/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: There have been a total of 35 Inspections of meat processing plants since 1 April 2020 to 23 October 2020).

All 35 health and safety inspections were unannounced and all were conducted by either 2 or more HSENI Inspectors.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will accelerate the completion of her energy strategy to contribute to capital investment and job creation in co-operation with her counterpart in Dublin.

(AQO 1029/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome your recognition of the important role that energy will play in supporting a green recovery and growing our local economy.

The Energy Strategy, currently under development, seeks to decarbonise the energy sector in a cost-competitive way by 2050. It will provide a long-term direction of travel across every aspect of energy production and consumption, and will have significant implications for consumers and taxpayers for decades to come.

This is a complex topic which impacts on many areas, and a significant work programme is ongoing involving multiple departments, local government, the energy industry, consumers and wider stakeholders, including those in the Republic of Ireland.

Rather than rush this important work, I have progressed key priorities in advance of the strategy being published. This includes specifically including Clean Energy as one of four priority growth sectors in my Medium Term Recovery Plan, that will be target of future investment.

That is also why I recently made statements setting out my ambition for both hydrogen and renewable electricity, in order to provide a clear signal to industry and encourage investment now that will deliver economic benefits.

My department is already exploring and supporting a range of projects that will showcase our potential to develop cutting-edge hydrogen technology here. And my officials are engaging with some local councils seeking to develop clean energy and hydrogen training academies.

Mr Catney asked the Minister for the Economy, in relation to developing an economic strategy to address regional inequality, to outline which inequalities will be prioritised.

(AQO 1030/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department is committed to improving economic conditions across the whole of Northern Ireland for the benefit of everyone.

There are regional variations in our economy in areas such as investment, employment and wage levels. It is important that we continue to put in place measures to address these and support local economies to grow, compete and prosper.

The Executive's current economic focus is supporting the businesses, people and places most heavily impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic, and creating a foundation on which to deliver a greener, competitive and inclusive economy.

It is important to note that delivering an inclusive and regionally balanced economy requires a partnership-based and holistic approach including education, skills and infrastructure.

My Department will continue to support these key policy levers which have the collective potential to impact positively on people across Northern Ireland.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on her Department's plans to mark the Northern Ireland centenary in 2021.

(AQO 1031/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The centenary is an opportunity for us to showcase Northern Ireland to the world. This will clearly mark a milestone in our history, but it will also be a shop window for our competitive, inclusive and green economy.

My Department will be hosting a series of local and international events that will bring the story of Northern Ireland to the world. A year-long promotional campaign will celebrate our people; this place; and our innovative past, present and future.

Our programme for 2021 will include an International Investment conference that will bring together current and potential investors from all over the world.

A series of global showcase events throughout the year will showcase Northern Ireland in key export markets.

Proposals are also being developed for a range of bespoke one off cultural events that will bring the 100th anniversary of Northern Ireland to a global audience.

2021 provides us with a unique opportunity to tell the world of our achievements. In the past we built the world's greatest ships and weaved the finest linen. Today we lead the world in cyber security technology and financial services, our people can truly do anything.

The Centenary of Northern Ireland is an event to be proud of and my Department will use next year to promote all that is great about our economy.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister for the Economy what plans are in place to mark the centenary of Northern Ireland in 2021.

(AQO 1032/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Whilst my Department's focus remains on ensuring that our economy survives the devastating effects of this pandemic, we have not lost sight of our longer-term strategic aims.

The centenary of Northern Ireland provides us with a springboard from which to build an inclusive economic recovery and to promote Northern Ireland and its innovative business community throughout the world.

We continue to plan a series of local and international events. This will include a number of showcase events including the Dubai Expo 2021 an event which is expected to attract some 25 million visitors.

We cannot wait for economic conditions to be perfect to begin our recovery.

I have therefore asked Invest Northern Ireland to begin planning an investment conference to be held in the second half of 2021.

Planning such a conference will require great innovation and creativity to deal with the challenges that the world currently presents us with, but we must begin to rebuild an investment pipeline that will continue to deliver for us in the years to come.

It is only by looking to the future now that we can ensure that there will be many better days ahead for us all.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister for the Economy how much money has been allocated through the £1 million Digital Selling Capability Grant scheme.
(AQO 1033/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Invest Northern Ireland has completed final assessment of applications for the Digital Selling Capability Grant and all of the applicants have been informed of the outcome.

A total of 100 businesses were successful and are being issued grant offers of between £5,000 and £20,000 to help them with their e-commerce and digital marketing. The £1m funding has been fully allocated.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy to outline discussions her Department has had with the Minister of Finance on providing financial support for sole traders.
(AQO 1034/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In recent months, the Northern Ireland Executive and UK Government have introduced an unprecedented range of support measures to businesses and individuals working across all sectors, including many sole traders.

To date, my Department has provided over £340 million of support to approximately 32,000 businesses through the Business Support Schemes for large, small and microbusinesses throughout Northern Ireland.

On 22nd October, I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. This latest financial support option has been designed to support those businesses, including eligible sole traders, who will be directly impacted by the four week period of restrictions that were deemed necessary by the Executive.

I understand the frustration shared by some in our business community who may not have been able to avail of as much support as others.

Unfortunately, it has not been possible to provide funding for every scenario that has presented itself during this pandemic.

In considering further interventions, it will be for the Executive collectively, to determine how the limited funding available, will be allocated to best support economic recovery moving forward, and I will continue to engage with the Minister of Finance and others to this effect.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister for the Economy what support is available for the self-employed.
(AQO 1035/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive and the UK Government have introduced an unprecedented range of financial support packages to mitigate against the worst impacts of COVID-19.

Included in this range of options is the Self-Employment Income Support Scheme.

The latest release of information has revealed that approximately 66,000 self-employed individuals in Northern Ireland had claimed the second Self-Employment Income Support Scheme grant up to 30 September 2020, totalling £163m - this is an average value of £2,500 in terms of claims made, the same value as the UK as a whole.

This equates to 69% of eligible self-employed workers in Northern Ireland who have taken up the second grant, slightly higher than the take-up rate in the UK as a whole, which sits at 67%.

On 22nd October, I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. This latest financial support option has been designed to support those businesses, including self-employed, who will be directly impacted by the four week period of restrictions deemed necessary by the Executive.

I have also asked my officials to develop a new scheme, associated with current restrictions, to support those self-employed that were excluded from Self-Employment Income Support Scheme because they were not registered for self-employment in 2018/19.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how she will ensure that future COVID-19 financial support schemes do not exclude sole traders and others that have not been able to access support previously.

(AQO 1036/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In recent months, the Northern Ireland Executive and UK Government have introduced an unprecedented range of support measures to businesses and individuals working across all sectors.

My own Department has provided over £340 million of support to approximately 32,000 businesses through Business Support Schemes for large, small and microbusinesses throughout Northern Ireland.

On 22nd October, I announced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. This latest financial support option has been designed to support those businesses, including self-employed sole traders, who will be directly impacted by the four week period of restrictions deemed necessary by the Executive.

Other schemes are also being developed and, in addition to the financial supports recently announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, aim to exclude no-one in our society.

I understand the frustration shared by some in our business community, such as sole traders, who may not have been able to avail of as much support as others previously.

Unfortunately, it has not been possible to provide funding for every scenario that has presented itself during this pandemic.

In considering further interventions, it will be for the Executive collectively, to determine how limited funding will be allocated to best support economic recovery moving forward.
