Introduction

Paul Martin, Chair of the Northern Ireland Social Care Council (NISCC) and Colum Conway, Chief Executive of NISCC commented –

We are committed to promoting equality and good relations. For people with a disability, we recognise that we have to do more to promote positive attitudes and to encourage their participation in public life.

We want to make sure we do this in a way that makes a difference to people. We will put in place what is necessary to do so. This includes people, time and money. Where it is right to do so, we will include actions from this plan in the yearly plans we develop for the organisation as a whole. These are called 'corporate' or 'business' plans.

We will also put everything in place in the organisation to make sure that we do what we have to under the law. This includes making one person responsible overall for making sure we do what we say we are going to do in our Equality and Disability Action Plan.

We will make sure we let our staff know of what is in our plan. We will also train our staff and help them understand what they need to do.

The person in our organisation who is responsible for making sure that we do what we have promised to do is Declan McAllister. When you have any questions you can contact him at:

Who we are and what we do

NISCC is part of health and social care in Northern Ireland.

We do things like:

- Maintain the register which has around 39,000 social workers, social care workers and students on it.
- We carry out investigations about the conduct of social workers and social care workers who are registered with us. Social workers have Standards of Conduct and Practice (previously referred to as Codes of Conduct) which they must comply with.
- Review the Standards to ensure they are always up to date and reflect good practice.
- Ensure those who are registered complete all the necessary training they need.
- Take into account the views and experiences of service users and carers when we are planning and delivering our work.

How people can be involved in our work

There are a number of ways in which people can be involved in the work of NISCC –

- Meetings of Council are open to the public and can provide a way to observe how Council works. Minutes of meetings are also published on our website and can be provided in hard copy if necessary;
- Users of social care services and carers are encouraged to be members of our Participation Partnership which challenges how NISCC designs and delivers its business and policies.
- We publicly consult on a wide range of policies and initiatives and encourage the public to respond and help us ensure our business best meets the needs of those who use social care services.

- We advertise for lay members (members of the public with experience of social care) to apply to be panel members for Fitness to Practise and committee hearings.
- We openly recruit for staff to cover a wide range of posts on a regular basis.

What the law says

NISCC has to follow the law under Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998. It says that in our work we have to promote equality and good relations. We have to treat people fairly and based on their needs and to make things better for staff and people who use our services. It also says that we have to build better relationships between different groups of people.

There are nine different equality groups that the law requires us to look at:

- Gender (and gender identities)
- Age
- Religion
- Political opinion
- Ethnicity
- Disability
- Sexual orientation
- Marital status
- Having dependants or not.

There are three good relations groups we need to consider:

- Religion
- Political opinion
- Ethnicity

We also have to follow the law under the Disability Discrimination (Northern Ireland) Order 2006, which says that we have to:

- promote positive attitudes towards disabled people and

- encourage participation by disabled people in public life.

This includes people with any type of disability, whether for example, physical disabilities; sensory disabilities; autism; learning disabilities; mental health conditions; or conditions that are long-term. Some of these disabilities may be hidden, others may be visible.

Both pieces of legislation require us to develop an action plan: an Equality Action Plan and a Disability Action Plan. We have to send these plans to the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland and then report every year on what we have done.

How we reviewed our last plans and developed these new plans

In starting off to develop these plans we looked at what we have done so far to promote equality and good relations, to promote positive attitudes towards disabled people and to encourage their participation in public life.

We asked all teams in our organisation to think through the following questions:

- What has worked well?
- What hasn't worked well?
- What lessons have we learned?
- Did we do what we said we would do?
- Has this made a difference for people in the way we thought it would?

For the new plans, we asked them to consider two questions:

- In your area of work, what are the key issues for people in the equality groupings?
- What can you do to address these issues?

We also learned from what we heard when we:

- held coffee mornings to talk with staff about issues important to those who have a disability and those who care for somebody who has a disability

- ran a survey with staff to find out what they think an Employer of Choice for people who have a disability or those who care for somebody with a disability looks like
- spoke with the members of our staff disability network to find out what we should do to promote equality for those who have a disability and those who care for somebody who has a disability
- together with our colleagues in the Health and Social Care Trusts ran an engagement event with people from different equality groupings to find out what they think we could do to better promote equality.

We also read up on what the Equality Commission says would be good to do. All this helped us think about what else we could do to make a difference.

What we have done so far

This is some of what we have done to promote equality.

- We produced a signposting resource for our staff. It provides information on support networks in the community for people from each of the nine equality groups. We update this resource every year.
- We put in place an Accessible Formats Policy; this policy relates to all of the nine equality groups including age, gender, disability, ethnicity, sexual orientation, political opinion, dependants, religion and marital status. It addresses specific needs in relation to sensory impairment, learning disability, sexual orientation, older people, younger people, translation and interpreting for minority ethnic groups and more general literacy levels that are of particular importance.
- We ensured that all our job descriptions and advertisements for open competition positions included a full welcome statement to support our commitment to encouraging all people to apply for appointments.
- We ensured that equality awareness formed part of our induction programme for new staff and newly appointed managers.

- We collected equality data on our workforce including the social care workforce to help us ensure that our policy and decisions would not adversely impact on any one of the Section 75 groups.

This is some of what we have done to promote positive attitudes towards disabled people and encourage the participation of disabled people in public life.

Promoting positive attitudes towards disabled people

- To date, we have held seven disability awareness days for our staff. Each looked at different disabilities: Epilepsy, Sight loss and blindness, Depression, Hearing loss and deafness, Learning disabilities, Cancer, and Arthritis and Musculoskeletal conditions. We also spoke to staff to find out about issues which they felt we needed to raise awareness about and this included promoting the help and support available to carers.
- We developed an e-learning resource on disability. It is available to all Health and Social Care staff. All our staff are required to complete the programme at induction.
- We include the disability duties in all Equality Awareness and Equality Screening Training that the BSO Equality Unit delivers.
- We have delivered training sessions on mental health awareness to our staff, including on mental health first aid, mindfulness and managing stress; and courses for staff who are carers.
- We developed a staff resource on disability etiquette, a resource and checklist on how to positively portray people with a disability in their work.
- We arranged face to face training sessions for all our staff on disability awareness.
- We have checked our website to make sure it is accessible.
- We commissioned a programme called 'Synergy' which enabled staff to work alongside a range of individuals including those with a disability to help promote awareness and understanding.

- We actively produced easy read materials on a range of subjects – in particular when we were consulting on new policies.

Encourage the participation of disabled people in public life

- We participated in a disability work placement scheme together with our Health and Social Care partner organisations. So far, the Scheme has provided between 5 and 15 placements for people with a disability in our organisations every year.
- We engaged one individual through the placement scheme in a job role in NISCC who went on to successfully compete and attain a full-time paid employment role in NISCC.
- We arranged for the translation of written information into Braille on a number of occasions to support committee work along with facilitating the use of interpreting services and the provision of materials in specialised formats for those registrants or witnesses who have made the relevant requests.
- We developed standards and guidance for the involvement of people with a disability and a checklist for organising inclusive meetings.
- We put in place a process for publishing screening templates as soon as they are completed. A disability organisation had suggested that we do so. We do the same for publishing the quarterly screening reports.
- We developed a resource for line managers on reasonable adjustments for staff with a disability.
- We set up a disability network for our staff. Part of the role of this network is to raise disability issues with decision makers in our organisation.

What we have learned so far

Monitoring

Even with proactive encouragement, our staff seemed reluctant to declare their disability. So we need to keep working on this, including trying to find out why staff do not declare their disability. We will work closely with our disability staff network on this.

Placements

We evaluated our placement scheme each year and made changes in the next year's scheme to improve the experience for participants. We will carry this learning into our new plan. Managers and staff who have been involved in the scheme to date have told us that they have gained a better understanding of disabilities through working side by side a person who has a disability. Many have been impressed by the attitude and performance of the individual on placement.

Awareness Days

We have found that attendance at awareness events is greatest when the subject is most relevant to staff. This can be because they have the condition themselves or they know or work with someone who has the condition. We will continue to ask staff which areas relating to disability they would like more information on.

Training

We have found that our e-learning training on Disability is a really useful resource to train our large numbers of staff. We have also found that sometimes we need to run specific training courses, for example on autism awareness or deaf awareness when the need is identified. We will continue to take this approach of a combination of e-learning and classroom based training. People have told us that they take away a lot from sessions that are delivered by people with a disability themselves. We also want to do more to promote awareness and understanding of mental health issues so that staff feel supported and are informed.

Our Consultation

When we started the consultation on our new Action Plans we informed all consultees on our consultation list of the details of the consultation and how people could engage with us directly or respond in writing. We invited consultees to attend one of two consultation events, one in Belfast and one in Derry/Londonderry. In addition, we offered to meet in person with anyone preferring to do so.

We engaged closely with Tapestry, our Disability Staff Network, in the development of our Disability Action Plans. We likewise drew on our learning from a survey that we carried out with staff who have a disability or who care for somebody who has a disability. The survey focused on what would make an organisation an Employer of Choice for them.

We have published the details and the outcome of our consultation alongside our Action Plans and this can be found on our website www.nisccc.info

What is in the new plans

There are two separate tables below. The first table lists all the actions that we will do to promote equality and good relations. This is our Equality Action Plan. The second table describes what we will do to promote positive attitudes towards people with a disability and to encourage their participation in public life. This is our Disability Action Plan. In both plans we also say what difference we hope to make and when we will do these actions.

How we will monitor

Every year we write up what we have done. We also explain when we haven't done something. We send this report to the Equality Commission. We also publish this report on our website: <https://www.nisccc.info>

We have a look at the plans every year to see whether we need to make any changes to them. If we need to, we write those changes into the plans. Before we make any big changes we talk to people in the equality groupings to see what they think.

When we finish an action we take it off the plans for the next year. That way we will keep our plans up to date. They will show what we still have to do.

After five years we will look at our plans again to see how we have done. We will also see what else we could do.

Whenever we develop or look at our plans we will invite people who have a disability to help us.

The plans are also available on our website:
